All warrants outstanding issued prior to January 1, 1913, by any county of the state against either the general road and bridge fund or any district road and bridge fund are hereby validated in so far as such warrants are invalid because of the fact that the board of county commissioners did not have authority to create any indebtedness for road and bridge purposes. [L. '13, p. 478, § 6.]

§ 5590-7. Special Indebtedness Fund.

In any of the counties which, on the first day of January, 1913, had a warrant indebtedness in any of the road and bridge funds there is hereby created a special indebtedness fund which shall be designated as follows: "Special General Road and Bridge Indebtedness Fund, — County," and "Special District Road and Bridge Fund of District Number —, — County." All warrants outstanding on the first of January, 1913, shall be transferred to and paid out of the special indebtedness funds hereby created. All uncollected taxes levied the year 1912 and prior years, either for general road and bridge purposes or district road and bridge purposes, shall be credited as they are collected to the special indebtedness fund or the fund for which such taxes were levied. [L. '13, p. 478, § 7.]

§ 5590-8. Indebtedness—Special Levies.

At the time of making the levy in October, 1913, for road and bridge purposes, the board of county commissioners of each county which on the first day of January, 1913, had any outstanding warrants against the general road and bridge fund, or any district road and bridge fund, shall make a levy of six mills on the dollar on all the taxable property in the county or district for each special indebtedness fund hereby created, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to pay the warrants with accrued interest in each indebtedness fund. The board of county commissioners shall continue to make such special levies in each succeeding year until all of the warrants in each special indebtedness fund are paid. When all of the warrants in each indebtedness fund are paid, with accrued interest, such fund shall be extinguished and the surplus, if any, together with all credits accruing thereto, shall be transferred to the regular general road and bridge fund or district road and bridge fund. [L. '13, p. 479, § 8.]

CHAPTER VII.

§§ 5594—5602.

Repealed. See L. '13, p. 479, § 9.

CHAPTER VIII.

FRANCHISES AND RIGHTS IN HIGHWAYS.

§ 5613.

This and the next section, validating franchises granted by the county commissioners to use county roads or highways "outside the limits" of incorporated cities or towns, to the extent that such roads have been actually occupied prior to the passage of the act, refers to grants made outside of city limits at the time of the attempted grant, and is not limited to franchises granted in territory still under control of the county commissioners at the time of the passage of the act: Spring Water Co. v. Monroe, 55 Wash. 195, 104 Pac. 202.

The legislature has power to pass a retro-active curative statute which validates the ultra vires county grant of franchises in public roads outside of the limits of a city, actually occupied, although the territory has since become incorporated as a town of the fourth class: Spring Water Co. v. Monroe, 55 Wash. 195, 104 Pac. 202.

As to the validity of retrospective laws, see note in 120 Am. St. Rep. 468.

As to retrospective laws validating municipal contracts, see note in 27 L. R. A. 696.

CHAPTER IX.

LAYING OUT AND OPENING COUNTY ROADS.

§ 5623.

Superseded, see § 5623-1 et seq.

See notes to § 9368.

Since the fee of public highways rests in the abutting owner, he may maintain irrigating ditches in the untraveled portion thereof; and his rights will be protected by an injunction against one trespassing thereon by diverting the water by a continuing act resulting in special damage: Holm v. Montgomery, 62 Wash. 398, 34 L. R. A., N. S., 506, 113 Pac. 1115.

As to the ownership in an abutting landholder to the fee of the soil of the highway, see note in 101 Am. St. Rep. 103.

The evidence is insufficient to show the establishment of a county road over certain lands, where the county commissioners' record of an order establishing the road was so indefinite that it could not be located with reference to the government subdivisions, and an engineer's projection of the field-notes of the survey did not bring the road within one hundred feet of the land in question, and there was no proof that the road as opened by the supervisors passed over the land: Dahlstrom v. Anderson, 56 Wash. 575, 106 Pac. 127.

County roads shall be laid out and established by order of the county commissioners of the proper county in the manner hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 305, § 1.]

§ 5623-2. Resolution.

When deemed advisable that a road be established, the board of county commissioners shall, at a regular meeting, by unanimous vote pass a resolution and enter same on the minutes of the board, which resolution shall describe the terminal points of such proposed road and the width and general course of same. The resolution need not set forth the manner of construction, the cost, nor describe the several tracts or parcels of land through which the same shall run. The resolution shall declare that the laying out and establishment of the road is considered a public necessity and shall direct the county engineer to make an examination of the proposed route of said road as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 305, § 2.]

§ 5623-3. Engineer's Duty.

The county engineer shall make an examination of the proposed route of such road and, if necessary, a survey of same. If, however, after an examination, he deems the same to be impracticable, he may so report to the board of county commissioners without making a survey, or he may examine or survey any other route that would subserve that purpose, and make a report thereon. [L. '11, p. 305, § 3.]

§ 5623-4. Petition of Householders.

In addition to the method hereinabove provided, ten or more householders of the county residing in the vicinity of a proposed road may petition the board of county commissioners for the establishment of such road. Such petition shall describe the terminal points of said road and the general course of same. [L. '11, p. 306, § 4.]

§ 5623-5. Bond.

If the board of county commissioners so order the petition shall be accompanied by a bond in the penal sum of three hundred dollars ($300) payable to the county, executed by one or more persons as principal or principals, with two or more sufficient sureties, and conditioned that the petitioners will pay into the county treasury the amount of all costs and expenses incurred in examining and surveying the proposed road and in the proceedings in case the road shall not be established, or in case the application is for the purpose of changing the road for the benefit of the land owner or owners, and no such change shall be made until such cost bill has been paid and the road graded. When the cost is assessed against the principal petitioner, the clerk of the board of county commissioners shall file the cost bill with the county treasurer, who shall proceed to collect the same. Before considering the petition the board may require the petitioners to secure waivers for the right of way from the land owners, and, in such case, before an examination or survey is ordered, the waivers shall be filed with the board of county commissioners. [L. '11, p. 306, § 5.]

§ 5623-6. Examination by Engineer.

Upon the filing of said petition and said bond, if required, the board of county commissioners shall examine and approve same and if found sufficient shall direct the county engineer to make an examination and survey, as provided for in section 5623-3. [L. '13, p. 306, § 6.]

§ 5623-7. Warrants for Awards—Deposit—Decree.

At the time of the hearing on the establishment of said road as provided for by law, the board of county commissioners shall direct the auditor to draw warrants in favor of the record owner or owners of said property appropriated in said proceeding for the amount of the award made by the board for the appropriation thereof. The auditor shall cash said warrants if the same be not accepted by said owner or owners by the time said petition to condemn is filed with the clerk of the superior court as provided for by law and shall deposit said moneys in court for the use and benefit of said owner or owners. If said warrants be accepted by said owner or owners, or if said money be withdrawn from the registry of the court, the county shall be entitled to a decree of appropriation vesting full title to the property in the county. [L. '11, p. 306, § 7.]

§ 5623-8. Right of Way may be Condemned.

If any award of damages is not accepted at the time of said hearing it shall be deemed rejected, and the board must then, by order, direct proceedings to procure the right of way to be instituted in the superior court of the county by the county attorney of the county in the manner provided by law for the taking of private property for public use. [L. '11, p. 307, § 8.]

§ 5623-9. Condemning Gravel-beds and Stone Quarries.

Counties shall have the right in the manner provided for in this act, to condemn land or other property for the purpose of securing gravel-beds, stone quarries or other material suitable for the construction, building or repair of county roads, and shall have the right to condemn the right of ways to reach such property and to gain access thereto. The proceedings shall be the same as provided for herein for the establishment and condemnation of county roads. [L. '11, p. 307, § 9.]

§ 5623-10. Widening County Roads.

The county shall have the right, in the manner provided for in this act, to condemn land and other property for the purpose of widening county roads already established, to any width allowed by law, and to condemn land and other property for the purpose of changing the course or location of roads already established. [L. '11, p. 307, § 10.]

§ 5632. Wages Paid.

The chainmen, rodmen, axmen, flagmen, and all necessary assistants employed in such survey to assist the county engineer, shall be paid such salary for their services as the board of county commissioners shall determine upon, to be paid out of the proper fund of the county. [L. '11, p. 342, § 1.]

§ 5634.

Land owners cannot object to the confirmation of the establishment of a county road because of insufficiency of the county's tender of compensation for land to be taken, which, under this and the next section, is not final, the statute providing that, if such tender is not accepted by the land owners, condemnation proceedings must be instituted for the purpose of fixing the damages: Strunz v. Spokane County, 67 Wash. 235, 121 Pac. 75.

§ 5656.

See notes to § 9368.

CHAPTER X.

To create a highway by prescription the use or possession must be open, notorious, continuous and adverse; and none is shown where it appears that the use, in all for about eighteen years, was commenced under a temporary grant of a right of way to a county limited to five years, after which time the county refused to expend money because the right of way had expired or was in dispute, until immediately preceding the commencement of the action, over the owners' protest, and that the owners at all times paid taxes thereon, and from time to time maintained gates, since nothing transpired to convert the permissive use into an adverse use: Scheller v. Pierce County, 55 Wash. 298, 104 Pac. 277.

As to the acquisition of a highway by prescription, see note in 57 Am. St. Rep. 748.

Roads across unimproved arid lands become public highways by user, where they were well defined and commonly traveled for more than thirty years, the county officers repaired and improved them within the last five years, and the public used them continuously as public highways for many years: M'Whorter v. Forney Brothers & Co., 69 Wash. 414, 125 Pac. 164.

As to evidence to establish such user as takes the place of a dedication of highway, see note in 11 L. R. A. 56.

This section is only a statute of limitations, and has no application where the road has not been kept up at public expense: State v. Seattle, 57 Wash. 602, 27 L. R. A., N. S., 1188, 107 Pac. 827.

In an action to declare a road a public highway by prescriptive use it is admissible, under a general denial, to show that the use was only permissive under a lease: Dennis v. Gary, 56 Wash. 112, 105 Pac. 172.

A public road by prescriptive use is not shown where it appears that the road was constructed and used almost exclusively as a logging road under written leases, and no public money was spent on it: Dennis v. Gary, 56 Wash. 112, 105 Pac. 172.

A public highway by prescription over certain lands is not established by proof that, in an open country, a road had been used in the general direction claimed, changes having been made in the travel as the country settled up until the whole section was platted with streets and cross-streets, and at the time of the trial the change in travel was so complete that no part of the original way remained in existence unless over the particular strip, public buildings and dwellings having been built in the road as shown by the earlier maps, portions of it having been fenced, and no part of it having been used as a road for many years: Dahlstrom v. Anderson, 56 Wash. 575, 106 Pac. 127.

Proof of user, in early times of a road as a public highway is not proof of establishment of a county road over the tract by county officers: Dahlstrom v. Anderson, 56 Wash. 575, 106 Pac. 127.

As to the evidence of user necessary to establish right of highway, see note in 11 L. R. A. 56.

As to effect of mere use of highway over public domain as acceptance of grant of right of way, see note in 9 L. R. A., N. S., 1223.

CHAPTER XII.

Ballinger's Code, section 3803, providing that any county road that has been or may hereafter be authorized which remains unopened for public use for five years is hereby vacated, cannot, since the enactment of this section, adding a proviso to that effect, have any application to streets dedicated in town plats (withdrawn on rehearing): Mohr v. Pierce County, 65 Wash. 370, 118 Pac. 321, 119 Pac. 747.

A street dedicated in a town plat was not abandoned by five years' nonuser, under Ballinger's Code, section 3803, where it appears that it was cleared up, graded, and opened for public use in 1890, and was open for public use until 1908, when it was obstructed by defendant: Mohr v. Pierce County, 65 Wash. 370, 118 Pac. 321, 119 Pac. 747.

A street is open for public use to such an extent as to prevent its abandonment by nonuser, as provided in this section, where an electric railroad company, by virtue of a right of way deed, went upon it and set its location stakes and constructed its railway line in the street: Clark v. Seattle, 71 Wash. 316, 128 Pac. 670.

A county road is opened for public use, within the meaning of this section, relating to abandonment by nonuser, where the line of travel generally followed the dedicated way, although frequently in order to avoid hills and ravines, it departed from the road for short distances and again entered it: Clark v. Seattle, 71 Wash. 316, 128 Pac. 670.

Under this section, providing for the vacation of any county road which remains unopened for public use for five years after its authorization as a public highway, the five year period begins to run from the date of the filing of a dedicated plat, and not from the date of its execution: Clark v. Seattle, 71 Wash. 316, 128 Pac. 670.

As to extinguishment of highway or street by nonuser or adverse possession, see note in 14 Am. St. Rep. 278.

As to vacation or abandonment of highway, see note in 101 Am. St. Rep. 117.

CHAPTER XIII.

BRIDGES ON COUNTY ROADS AND NAVIGABLE STREAMS.

§ 5680.

The operation of this section is not affected by the subsequent federal acts providing that navigable streams shall not be bridged except by consent of Congress and upon executive approval of the plans, as this but imposes an additional burden upon the county: Green v. Okanogan County, 60 Wash. 309, 111 Pac. 226.

As to bridges over navigable streams constructed under state authority, see note in 2 L. R. A. 540.

This section was not superseded by the act of 1893 (section 5575), a general act, not complete in itself, relating to county road and bridge work, and containing no specific provisions relating to contracts for bridge construction across navigable streams; nor was it superseded by the act of 1903 (section 5585), relating to the letting of contracts where the estimated cost exceeds one hundred and fifty dollars, since the latter is merely supplemental to and not conflicting with the earlier act, which relates chiefly to steps preliminary to the letting:

Green v. Okanogan County, 60 Wash. 309, 111 Pac. 226.

County commissioners in letting a bridge contract must strictly comply with the law, or it is not binding and money paid thereon can be recovered: Green v. Okanogan County, 60 Wash. 309, 111 Pac. 226.

Money donated to a county to induce the construction of a county bridge, belongs to the county, and may be recovered by the county if it has been wrongfully paid out under an unauthorized contract: Green v.

Okanogan County, 60 Wash. 309, 111 Pac. 226.

Where a county has accepted and is using a county bridge, constructed under a contract let without complying with the law, but which the county could have entered into if it had conformed to the statutory requirements, it is liable for its reasonable value, and can only recover any excess wrongfully paid out: Green v. Okanogan County, 60 Wash. 309, 111 Pac. 226.

As to illegal contracts of county boards, see note in 137 Am. St. Rep. 365.

CHAPTER XIII-A.

BRIDGES ON INTERSTATE OR INTERCOMMUNITY ROADS.

§ 5686-1. Power to Construct.

The state of Washington and all counties, cities or towns within the state are hereby authorized and empowered to join with each other or to aid the state of Washington, the federal government, or any adjoining county, city or town in this state, or to jointly or separately join with any adjoining state, county, city or town in the purchase, construction, control, operation and maintenance of any bridge or bridges over or across any river, stream or body of water being within or constituting the boundary line of the state or of any county therein. [L. '13, p. 168, § 1.]

§ 5686-2. Highway Board to Represent State—Joint Control.

Whenever the legislature of the state of Washington shall have made provision for the purchase or construction of a bridge or bridges, jointly with counties, cities or towns in this or adjoining states, the state highway board is hereby authorized and empowered to represent and act for and on behalf of the state of Washington for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act, and any other act making an appropriation for the purchase or the construction of a bridge or bridges, which come under the provisions of this act, and when the state of Washington joins in the purchase or construction of a bridge jointly with adjoining states or with the counties, cities, or towns of any adjoining states, or jointly with counties, cities, or towns in this state, the purchase or construction of such bridge or bridges shall be under the direction, control and management of the state highway board acting jointly with the public authority legally authorized to represent and act for such adjoining state, county or city, and when counties or cities in this state shall join with the state for the purchase or construction of a bridge built or to be built in this state, or on the boundaries thereof, the money or funds furnished or provided by such county or city shall be expended under the direction, supervision and control of the state highway board, and under the provisions of this act. [L. '13, p. 168, § 2.]

§ 5686-3. Maps and Plans—Bids.

Whenever provision is made for the purchase or construction of a bridge, which comes under the provisions of this act, the state highway commissioner, upon being directed by the state highway board, shall confer with the legally authorized public authorities of any adjoining state or city or county or cities within this state, and acting jointly with such authorities make or cause designs, maps, plans, specifications, drawings, details, estimates, and all other requirements for full information with reference to the location and construction of such bridge to be made and shall determine the kind, character and dimensions of the bridge to be constructed, subject to the approval of the state highway board. That after the plans and specifications have been agreed upon by the public authorities, representing the respective states, counties, cities or towns interested, bids shall be advertised by giving such notice as the parties interested shall agree upon, Provided, That in no event shall less than thirty (30) days' notice be given. The notice shall provide that the contract shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder, and that the authorities acting jointly in giving the notice reserve the right to reject any and all bids, and the notice shall state the proportion of the total amount to be paid by each. [L. '13, p. 169, § 3.]

§ 5686-4. Contract for Construction.

Upon the final acceptance of the bid for the construction of a bridge, under the provisions of this act, the state highway board, acting jointly with the public authorities of any other state, county, or city, or county or city in this state, shall enter into a contract for the construction of the bridge and shall require the contractor to furnish a surety bond for the faithful performance of the contract, in such sum as shall be fixed by such joint authorities, and shall also require the contractor to furnish an additional bond in the sum to be fixed by the state highway board of Washington, conditioned as is provided in sections 1159 to 1161, inclusive, of Remington & Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington, and shall file said last-mentioned bond with the auditor of the state of Washington, which bond shall be approved by the attorney general. [L. '13, p. 169, § 4.]

§ 5686-5. Clerical Assistance — Supervising Engineer — Payments, How Made.

The highway commissioner, when directed by the highway board, is hereby authorized to rent office rooms, purchase the necessary supplies and to employ clerical and engineering assistants necessary in making the preliminary arrangements, and during the construction of the bridge; the compensation of such employees to be fixed by the state highway board. The state highway board shall have authority to act jointly with the other public authorities interested in the construction of such bridge, to employ a supervising engineer to be in charge of the work of the construction of the bridge, whose compensation shall be fixed by the state highway board, and the public authorities of any adjoining state, county or city, joining in the construction of the bridge. The payment of salaries of employees and all other expenses shall be deemed a part of the construction work, and shall, including payments on contract, be made only on vouchers approved by the state highway commissioner, and payable only out of funds provided therefor. [L. '13, p. 170, § 5.]

§ 5686-6. County Indebtedness—Bonds.

Whenever the board of county commissioners of any of the counties in this state shall deem it for the interest of the county to engage in or to aid in the purchase or construction of any bridge or bridges, under the provisions of this act, and to incur indebtedness to meet the cost thereof and expenses connected therewith, and issue bonds of the county for the payment of such indebtedness or any thereof, such county is hereby authorized and empowered, by and through its county commissioners, to engage in or aid in any such work as aforesaid, and to incur indebtedness for such purpose or purposes to an amount which, together with the then existing indebtedness of such county, shall not exceed five (5) per centum of the taxable value of the taxable property in said county, as shown by the last previous assessment-roll thereof for state and county purposes, and to issue negotiable bonds of the county for all or any such indebtedness, and for the payment thereof, in the manner and form and as is provided in sections 5094 to 5101, inclusive, of Remington & Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington, and other laws of this state which shall then be in force, and to make part or all of such payment in bonds or moneys derived from sale or sales thereof, or partly in such bonds and partly in such money, provided that said commissioners shall have first submitted the question of incurring such indebtedness to the voters of the county at a general or special election, and three-fifths of the voters voting upon the question shall have voted in favor of incurring the same. [L. '13, p. 170, § 6.]

§ 5686-7. Bonds are for County Purposes.

Any and every such purpose as is mentioned in the foregoing section is hereby declared to be a county purpose, and the bonds or the money derived from the sale of the same shall be deposited with the proper state authorities, as directed by the state highway board, and expended under the provisions of this act, provided that any bonds or funds so deposited and not used for such purpose shall be returned to the county making the deposit. [L. '13, p. 171, § 7.]

§ 5686-8. City Assistance—Indebtedness—Bonds.

That whenever the city council of any incorporated city or town in this state shall deem it advisable to join with or aid in the purchase or construction of any bridge or bridges within or partly within the corporate limits of such city or town, under the provisions of this act, and to contract indebtedness to meet the cost thereof and expense connected therewith, and to issue negotiable bonds of the city or town for the payment of such indebtedness or any part thereof, said city or town by and through its council is hereby authorized and empowered to engage or aid in the purchase or construction of such bridge or bridges or public work, as aforesaid, and to incur indebtedness for such purpose or purposes to an amount which together with the then existing indebtedness of such city or town shall not exceed five (5) per centum of the taxable value of the taxable property of such city or town, to be ascertained by the last assessment of such city or town for city or town purposes, previous to the incurring of such indebtedness, and to issue negotiable bonds of such city or town for all or any such indebtedness, and for the payment thereof in the manner and form, as is provided in section 8041 to 8049, inclusive, of Remington & Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington, and other laws of this state which shall then be in force, and to make a part or all of such payments in bonds or money derived from sale or sales thereof, or partly in such bonds and partly in such moneys, provided that the council of said city or town shall have first submitted the question of incurring such indebtedness to the voters of said city or town at a special election held according to law, and three-fifths of the legal ballots cast on said question shall be in favor of incurring such indebtedness. [L. '13, p. 171, § 8.]

§ 5686-9. Bonds are for Municipal Purposes.

That any and every such purpose as is mentioned in the last preceding section is hereby declared to be a strictly municipal purpose, and that the bonds, or the money derived from the sale of the same, shall be deposited with the proper state authorities, as directed by the state highway board, and expended under the provisions of this act, provided that any funds or bonds so deposited and not used for the purpose for which they were deposited shall be returned to the city or town so depositing the same. [L. '13, p. 172, § 9.]

§ 5686-10. State to Own Bridge.

That upon the purchase or construction of any bridge jointly or with any adjoining state, county or city, the same shall be accepted by the state highway board acting in conjunction with such public authorities of any adjoining state, county or city, joining in its construction, and the state shall own one-half of such bridge, and the same shall become the exclusive property of the state of Washington, and under the control and management of the state highway board. [L. '13, p. 172, § 10.]

§ 5686-11. City and County may Join—Bonds.

That whenever it is deemed advisable by the common council of any city or town and the county commissioners of any county in this state to purchase or construct a bridge within or partly within such city or town, the council and commissioners are authorized and empowered to enter into an agreement for the construction of such bridge, upon such terms as may be mutually agreed upon, each contributing such sum toward the purchase or construction of the same as may be determined to be just and proper, and enter into contract for the construction of such bridge and to spend public funds thereon, and if deemed necessary may bond the county or city or town in the manner herein specified. The contracts for letting the same and notice given to bidders, and all other matters pertaining to the construction shall be governed by the laws in force governing the construction of bridges by county commissioners in the state of Washington, provided the payments to be made on the contract by the respective municipal corporations be made direct to the contractor. [L. '13, p. 173, § 11.]

§ 5686-12. Franchises—Powers of Public Service Commission.

The state highway board is authorized and empowered, acting jointly with any legally authorized body or public authority of any adjoining state, county or city joining in the construction of such bridge, to grant franchises for laying rails and the operation of electric street and suburban railways, and other public utilities, except steam railroads, and for the laying thereon and suspending therefrom pipes for the carrying of water, gas and other substance, and wires and cables for the conducting of electricity for telegraph, telephone, lighting, heating, power and other purposes, provided that no exclusive franchise shall be granted or given any person, firm or corporation for any use or purpose, but such bridge shall be for common use for all public service corporations or individuals, upon such terms as may be prescribed. That in the granting of any right, privilege or franchise to any person, firm or corporation for the use of said bridge for any purpose, the state highway board shall fix and prescribe the compensation to be paid for the use of such bridge, subject to the approval of the public service commission: Provided, That the rates, sums or amounts which shall be fixed in the franchise, granted to any person, firm or corporation shall be subject to change, raised or lowered, at any time by the public service commission, or any other body possessing the same powers as is now possessed by the public service commission of the state of Washington, and new or different rates or charges fixed by the public service commission, acting jointly with the other public authorities herein mentioned: Provided further, That the powers and duties given to the public service commission by the laws of the state of Washington are extended to include any bridge which may have been built by the aid of the state of Washington, and which has become the property of the state of Washington under the provisions of this act. [L. '13, p. 173, § 12.]

§ 5686-13. Proceeds from Franchise Rights.

All moneys derived from any source from the use of such bridge by any persons, firm or corporation shall be paid into the public highway fund of the state of Washington. [L. '13, p. 174, § 13.]

§ 5686-14. Powers of Highway Board.

That the state highway board is hereby given power and authority to do all acts and things necessary to carry out the provisions of this act, whether mentioned herein or not, and to construct, complete and maintain any bridge which may be authorized to be constructed under the provisions of this act. [L. '13, p. 174, § 14.]

§ 5686-15. Definitions.

The meaning of words and phrases used in this act shall, unless inconsistent with the context, be as follows: "Bridge" shall include public road, and shall include bridge, bridge approach, culvert or viaduct over the state boundary line, or over a stream, river or body of water within, at, or constituting the boundary line of the state or county. "Construct" shall include to build, repair, maintain, improve, or other like work. "Construction" shall include repair, maintenance, improvement, or other like work. "Public authorities" shall mean the county commissioners of the county or the constituted authorities of any county having control of roads and bridge construction or the council, when cities or towns are referred to. Words importing the plural number may be applied in the singular, and words importing the singular may be applied in the plural. [L. '13, p. 174, § 15.]

CHAPTER XVI.

ROADS OWNED BY PRIVATE CORPORATIONS.

This section and section 5718 do not authorize a railroad company to appropriate a part of a city street; but the sections apply only to road and toll companies occupying the street with the public in view of section 5719, which provides that where such highways are taken by agreement with the local authorities the corporation may place gates thereon and receive such tolls as the local authorities consent to, and if appropriated without such agreement, no gates or other obstructions shall be placed on the public roads or tolls charged: State ex rel. Schade Brewing Co. v. Superior Court, 62 Wash. 96, 113 Pac. 576.

CHAPTER XX-A.

ARTERIAL STREETS.

§ 5856-1. "Arterial" Streets Defined.

Whenever any street, avenue or highway within any city or town shall connect at or near the corporate limits of such city or town with any public road or highway not less than two miles in length, and constructed along a main line of travel being uniformly graded to a width of not less than sixteen feet, and having proper bridges, drains and culverts, and surfaced with macadam, stone, compacted gravel, or other material equally as permanent and durable, not less than twelve feet in width, such street, avenue or highway may be improved by grading or regrading, planking or replanking, paving or repaving, macadamizing or remacadamizing, graveling or regravelling, bridging or rebridging, surfacing or resurfacing, from the point of connection with such road or highway to the business center of such city or town, or to a connection with a permanently surfaced street leading thereto, under the provisions of this act. Streets improved under the provisions of this act shall be known as "arterial streets." [L. '13, p. 142, § 1.]

§ 5856-2. Resolution to Improve Arterial Street.

Whenever the city council or other governing body of any city or town shall desire to improve any arterial street under the provisions of this act it shall adopt a resolution designating the street or streets to be improved, the general character of the improvement to be made, the estimated cost thereof and the amount of such cost which will be of special benefit to the property, a certified copy of which resolution shall be forthwith transmitted to the board of county commissioners. If the board of county commissioners shall approve such resolution the city council or other governing body of such city or town shall thereupon be empowered to and shall improve such arterial street as above provided and to enter into contracts therefor. [L. '13, p. 143, § 2.]

§ 5856-3. Local Improvement District—Limit of Assessments.

So much of the cost of such improvement as shall be of special benefit to property within such city or town shall be a charge upon such property, and the city council or other governing body shall cause to be created in the manner provided by law a local improvement district for the purpose of defraying so much of the cost as shall benefit property therein. The provisions of law with reference to the creation of local improvement districts for the improvement of streets shall, so far as the same are applicable, apply to arterial streets improved under the provisions of this act: Provided, however, That nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent any property included in such improvement district from being charged under this act with any amount not exceeding fifty per cent of the valuation thereof, as last placed upon it for the purpose of general taxation, exclusive of improvements thereon. So much of the cost of such improvement as shall not be charged to property within the improvement district above provided for shall be paid equally by the county and the city or town. The board of county commissioners of any county is authorized and empowered to pay the portion of the cost chargeable to such county for the improvement of any arterial street under the provisions of this act from the general road and bridge fund of the county, or from the district road and bridge fund of the district with which such arterial street connects. The city council or other governing body of any city or town is authorized to pay the part of the cost of improving any arterial street under the provisions of this act, which shall be a charge against such city or town from the general fund of such city or town or from any special fund which shall be available for that purpose. [L. '13, p. 143, § 3.]

§ 5856-4. Limitation of Act.

This act shall not be construed as providing for the maintenance of said arterial highways within the limits of any municipality. [L. '13, p. 143, § 4.]

CHAPTER XXI.

PRIVATE WAYS OF NECESSITY.

§ 5857-1. Eminent Domain—What Included.

An owner, or one entitled to the beneficial use, of land which is so situate with respect to the land of another that it is necessary for its proper use and enjoyment to have and maintain a private way of necessity or to construct and maintain any drain, flume or ditch, on, across, over or through the land of such other, for agricultural, domestic or sanitary purposes, may condemn and take lands of such other sufficient in area for the construction and maintenance of such private way of necessity, or for the construction and maintenance of such drain, flume or ditch, as the case may be. The term "private way of necessity," as used in this act, shall mean and include a right of way on, across, over or through the land of another for means of ingress and egress, and the construction and maintenance thereon of roads, logging roads, flumes, canals, ditches, tunnels, tramways and other structures upon, over and through which timber, stone, minerals or other valuable materials and products may be transported and carried. [L. '13, p. 412, § 1.]

§ 5857-2. Procedure for Condemnation.

The procedure for the condemnation of land for a private way of necessity or for drains, flumes or ditches under the provisions of this act shall be the same as that provided for the condemnation of private property by railroad companies, but no private property shall be taken or damaged until the compensation to be made therefor shall have been ascertained and paid as provided in the case of condemnation by railroad companies. [L. '13, p. 412, § 2.]

§ 5857-3. Logging Road to Carry Products.

Any person or corporation availing themselves of the provisions of this act for the purpose of acquiring a right of way for a logging road, as a condition precedent, [shall] contract and agree to carry and convey over such roads to either termini thereof any of the timber or other produce of the lands through which such right is acquired at any and all times, so long as said road is maintained and operated, and at reasonable prices; and a failure so to do shall terminate such right of way. The reasonableness of the rate shall be subject to determination, by the public service commission. [L. '13, p. 412, § 3.]

CHAPTER XXII.

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER AND BOARD.

§ 5867. Board and Commissioner—Appointment, Qualifications.

There is hereby created the office of state highway commissioner and a state highway board. The said state highway commissioner shall be appointed by the governor and shall hold his office for four years unless sooner removed for cause; and shall receive an annual compensation of five thousand dollars a year, and shall be allowed his actual traveling expenses while officially employed, and shall be allowed his office expenses.

He shall take oath of office and shall give a bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties; the said highway board shall be composed of the governor, state auditor, the state treasurer, the state highway commissioner and a member of the railroad commission of Washington, to be named by the governor. Each shall be allowed his actual traveling expenses while engaged in official duties as member of such highway board. [L. '11, p. 156, § 1.]

§ 5869-1. Construction of State Roads—Labor.

The state highway board may in its discretion cause any state road to be constructed, either under contract as now provided by law or by force account. In case the construction is done by force account, the work thereon shall be done by convict labor to the extent that the same may be available and advantageously used, and such free labor may be employed as may be necessary to successfully carry on the work. If free labor is employed the state highway board shall by resolution entered on its records state the reasons therefor. [L. '13, p. 411, § 1.]

Whenever any money shall be appropriated for any state road or roads, and the state highway board shall have determined to construct the same by convict labor and free labor as aforesaid, the state highway board may in its discretion purchase road-making machinery to be used in such construction work. The board shall, prior to entering upon any such construction work determine what roads shall be improved by force account, and estimate the amount and cost of machinery that can be used in the construction of all of the roads, to the end that the machinery may be used on different roads. When the board has decided how much machinery can be so used, it may purchase the same and pay for it from the appropriation made for different roads, in proportion to the amount of use that will be made of it on each road. [L. '13, p. 411, § 2.]

§ 5871-1. Assistant and Chief Clerk.

The highway commissioner may appoint an assistant who shall act as chief clerk in his office, and such assistant shall have power to perform any act or duty relating to the office of highway commissioner that the commissioner has, and, in case of vacancy by death or resignation of the highway commissioner, said assistant shall perform the duties of said office until the vacancy is filled. Such assistant shall subscribe, take and file the oath of office provided by law for other state officers before entering upon the performance of his duties. The principal shall be responsible under his official bond for all of the official acts of the assistant, and may revoke such appointment at his pleasure, and may require his assistant to give him a bond in such sum as the principal may determine, which bond shall be made, executed, approved and filed as other state official bonds. [L. '13, p. 69, § 1.]

CHAPTER XXII-A.

CLASSIFICATION OF PUBLIC HIGHWAYS.

§ 5878-1. Classes.

The highways of the state of Washington shall be divided into two classes, called primary and secondary roads. [L. '13, p. 221, § 1.]

§ 5878-2. Primary Roads Specified.

The primary roads shall be as follows:

a. A highway starting at the international boundary line at Blaine, Washington; thence southerly by the most feasible route through the cities of Bellingham, Mount Vernon, Everett, Seattle, Renton, along the easterly side of the White River Valley through Kent, Auburn, Tacoma, Olympia, Tenino, Centralia, Chehalis, to the southern boundary line at the city of Vancouver, Washington, to be known as the Pacific Highway.

b. A highway starting from the Pacific Highway at Renton, Washington; thence over the most feasible route by the way of Snoqualmie Pass into the Yakima River Valley; thence by way of Wenatchee, over the most feasible route, through Waterville and Spokane, to the state boundary, which shall be known as the Sunset Highway.

c. A highway connecting with the Sunset Highway at or in the vicinity of the city of Ellensburg; thence by way of North Yakima, Kennewick, Pasco, Walla Walla, Dayton, crossing the Snake river at either Almota or Penawawa, Colfax, Rosalia, Spokane, Deer Park, Loon Lake, Colville, to the international line at boundary, which shall be known as the Inland Empire Highway.

d. A highway known as the eastern route of the Inland Empire Highway, shall commence at or in the vicinity of the town of Dayton, thence over the most feasible route, through the town of Pomeroy, to the Idaho and Washington state line where said line crosses the steel bridge known as the Lewiston and Clarkston bridge, and shall be known as the first division of the eastern route.

The second division of the eastern route, shall commence at a point on the Idaho and Washington line where the same crosses the public road known as the Lewiston and Uniontown road, thence over the most feasible route through Pullman, Palouse and Garfield, thence in a northerly direction, joining the Inland Empire Highway at the most practical point, to be determined by the highway commissioner.

e. A highway connecting with the Inland Empire Highway at Pasco, Washington; thence by the most feasible route through Connell, Ritzville, Sprague, and Cheney to Spokane, Washington, to be known as the Central Washington Highway.

f. A highway starting at a connection with the Pacific Highway at Auburn, Washington; thence along the most feasible route through Enumclaw, following the route of former State Road No. 1 to North Yakima, Washington.

At a point in Pierce county where said State Road No. 1 leaves the main channel of White River a branch shall take off which shall follow up the White River Valley to a connection at the most practicable point with the Rainier National Park.

Another branch shall take off where Road No. 1 leaves the American River and shall follow said American river by the most feasible route to a connection with the Rainier National Park, this highway and its branches to be known as the McClellan Pass Highway.

g. A highway starting from the Pacific Highway in the city of Tacoma; running thence southerly by the most feasible route, to or near the town of Elbe, where it will branch, one section connecting with the government road in Rainier National Park, at or near Ashford, Pierce county, and the other by the most feasible route through Mineral, Morton, Klickitat Prairie, Forest, Chehalis, Pe Ell, South Bend, to the ocean beach at Holman, in Pacific county, which shall be known as the National Park Highway.

h. A highway starting from the Pacific Highway in Olympia, Washington, combining roads numbers nine (9) and fourteen (14), and completely circling the Olympic peninsula, through the cities of Shelton, Hoodspoint, Duckabush, Quilcene, Port Angeles, Hoquiam, Montesano, Elma, and McCleary, reuniting with the Pacific Highway at Olympia, which shall be known as the Olympic Highway. [L. '13, p. 221, § 2.]

§ 5878-3. Secondary Roads.

All other state highways heretofore or hereafter established that are not designated to be primary highways, shall be classed as secondary highways. [L. '13, p. 223, § 3.]

§ 5878-4. Maintenance of Primary Highways.

All primary highways when constructed shall be maintained at the expense of the public highway fund of the state, and shall be under the immediate supervision and control, both for construction and maintenance of the state highway department. [L. '13, p. 223, § 4.]

§ 5878-5. Maintenance of Secondary Highways.

All secondary highways when constructed shall be maintained by the counties in which they are located, and in the event that any county does not desire to maintain such secondary highway it shall so indicate to the highway department of the state by the passage of a formal resolution to that effect spread upon the records of said board of county commissioners, a copy of which shall be forwarded to the office of highway commissioner; whereupon, said highway, unless it is a way of necessity whereby certain persons residing thereon are connected with the county highway, the same shall be abandoned as a public highway, and the right of way revert to the abutting property.

In the event that it is a private way of necessity the maintenance and upkeep of said highway shall devolve upon the persons whom it serves. [L. '13, p. 223, § 5.]

§ 5878-6. County and City Expenditure on State Roads.

Nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent the authorities of any county or road district from expending the road funds of such county or road district upon primary or secondary highways either for construction, maintenance or right of way, and they are hereby empowered so to do, the only exception being that when any section of the primary highway has been constructed by the state any expenditures made upon said portion of said primary highway shall be under the direction of the state highway commissioner. [L. '13, p. 223, § 6.]

§ 5878-7. Routes.

In determining the question of whether or not any particular route is the most feasible, no attention need be paid to routes heretofore selected for state highways. [L. '13, p. 224, § 7.]

§ 5878-8. Width of Highway.

All primary highways when graded shall be graded so that they shall have a running surface of not less than sixteen (16) feet in width. [L. '13, p. 224, § 9.]

§ 5878-9. Transfer of Fund.

Hereafter the state treasurer shall transfer from the public highway fund to the permanent highway fund all taxes levied in counties composed entirely of islands respectively, for the public highway fund, and place to the credit of each of said counties the amount of said levy, which shall be expended on permanent highways under the provisions of chapter XXII-B. [L. '13, p. 304, § 1.]

CHAPTER XXII-B.PERMANENT HIGHWAYS.*§ 5879-1. Permanent Highway.

The term "permanent highway," when used in this act, shall be construed to mean an improved public road constructed along a main line of travel, either beginning at some trade center or an extension of an existing road of like character beginning at some trade center. Every permanent highway shall be uniformly graded to a width of not less than sixteen feet, shall have proper bridges, drains and culverts, and shall be surfaced with macadam, stone, gravel or other material equally as permanent and durable not less than twelve feet in width. No such highway shall be constructed with a grade exceeding five per cent, except where, by reason of physical conditions, it is not feasible or practicable to obtain such grade, but in no case shall any such highway be constructed with a grade greater than ten per cent. [L. '11, p. 118, § 1.]

§ 5879-2. Owners' Petition.

The owners of two-thirds of the lineal feet of lands, other than lands of the state or the United States, fronting upon any public highway or section thereof in any county may present to the board of county commissioners a petition setting forth that the petitioners are such owners, and that they desire that such highway or section thereof be improved under the provisions of this act.

The board of supervisors of any township, in any county having township organization, or a majority of them, may, when authorized at a general election, or a special election called for the purpose, sign a petition for the improvement of any public highway within such township, in whole or in part. [L. '11, p. 118, § 2; L. '13, p. 484, § 1.]

§ 5879-3. Resolution to Improve.

The board of county commissioners in any county, upon the receipt of a petition as provided in the preceding section, or upon its own motion, may pass a resolution for the improvement of any public road or highway or section thereof described in such resolution, under the provisions of this act, and within ten days after the passage of any such resolution shall transmit a certified copy of the same to the state highway commissioner.

Said board shall have no power to provide for the improvement of any portion of a highway within the corporate limits of any city or town. [L. '11, p. 119, § 3.]

§ 5879-4. Highway Commissioner's Duty.

Such highway commissioner, upon receipt of such resolution, shall investigate and determine whether the highway or section thereof sought to be improved is of sufficient public importance to merit improvement under the provisions of this act, taking into consideration the use, location and value of such highway or section thereof for the purpose of common traffic and travel, and after such investigation shall certify his approval or disapproval of such resolution, and if he shall disapprove such resolution he shall state his reasons therefor.

All expenses incurred by the state highway commissioner under the provisions of this act shall be paid from the public highway fund. [L. '11, p. 119, § 4.]

§ 5879-5. County Engineer.

The board of county commissioners may require the county engineer to perform all engineering in connection with and to supervise any improvement work contemplated or prosecuted under the provisions of this act, or may in its discretion employ a construction engineer for that purpose and fix his compensation, such compensation to be paid by the county. [L. '11, p. 119, § 5.]

§ 5879-6. Surveys.

Whenever the board of county commissioners shall have passed a resolution for the improvement of any public highway under the provisions of this act, and the same shall have received the approval of the state highway commissioner, a certified copy thereof shall be transmitted to the county engineer, or construction engineer appointed as aforesaid, who shall thereupon make the necessary surveys and prepare profiles, maps, plans and specifications, and an estimate of the cost of construction or improvement of the highway or section thereof described in the resolution; making such recommendations concerning deviation from existing lines as he shall deem of advantage to obtain a shorter and more direct route, or to lessen gradients, or to otherwise improve such highway. [L. '11, p. 119, § 6.]

§ 5879-7. Recommendation—Record.

Upon the completion of such profiles, maps, plans, specifications and estimate, a copy thereof shall be transmitted to the state highway commissioner, who shall thereupon examine the same and return them to the board of county commissioners, making such changes therein or recommendations with reference thereto as he may deem advisable, and certifying his approval thereof.

Upon receipt of such profiles, maps, plans, specifications and estimate, the board of county commissioners may pass a resolution adopting the same, and that such highway or section thereof shall be improved under the provisions of this act. No resolution thereafter adopted by said board shall have the effect of rescinding or annulling the resolution so adopting such profiles, maps, plans, specifications and estimate, unless the same shall be approved by the state highway commissioner. The profiles, maps, plans, specifications and estimate as finally adopted by the board of county commissioners shall be filed in its office and become a permanent record of the board, and certified copies thereof shall be transmitted to the state highway commissioner and to the county engineer. [L. '11, p. 120, § 7; L. '13, p. 484, § 2.]

§ 5879-8. Board may Condemn.

Whenever the board of county commissioners shall find it necessary for the purpose of straightening any permanent highway, lessening the gradients thereof, or otherwise improving the same, to acquire or appropriate lands, real estate, or other property, and are unable to agree with the owners thereof, upon the reasonable and fair value of such lands, real estate, or other property, such board is hereby authorized to acquire the same by condemnation proceedings in the manner provided by law for the appropriation of lands, real estate or other property by private corporations authorized to exercise the right of eminent domain. [L. '11, p. 120, § 8.]

§ 5879-9. Advertise for Bids—Surety Bond—Final Payment.

When the board of county commissioners shall have finally adopted the profiles, maps, plans and specifications for the improvement of any permanent highway under the provisions of this act, said board shall advertise for bids for three successive weeks in a newspaper published at the county seat of such county, and if they deem advisable, in such other newspaper as it shall determine, for the construction and improvement of such permanent highway, or section thereof, according to such profiles, maps, plans and specifications, and shall award the contract to the lowest responsible bidder, save that the board shall have the right to reject any and all bids. All contracts shall be let on the lump sum basis. Before entering into any contract for such construction or improvement, it shall require a corporate surety bond in the full amount of the contracts, conditioned that the party thereto will perform the work upon the terms, within the time, and in accordance with the contract, profiles, maps, plans and specifications, and that such party will indemnify the county against any direct or indirect damages that shall be suffered or claimed for injuries to persons or property during the construction and improvement of such highway and until the same is accepted. Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified check in a sum equal to one-tenth of the amount of such bid, payable to the county, which shall be forfeited to the county upon the failure of the party, for a period of twenty days after any contract is awarded to any such party, to enter into a proper contract and furnish satisfactory bonds as required by this act. Monthly partial payments shall be provided for in the contract and paid in the manner therein provided, when certified by the county engineer or construction engineer employed, as the case may be, to an amount equal to eighty per centum of the value of the work done during the preceding month. Twenty per centum of the contract price shall be retained until the entire work has been accepted and no final payment shall be made until the state highway commissioner shall have examined the work or caused the same to be examined and certify to the state auditor that such work has been fully completed in accordance with the contract and the profiles, maps, plans and specifications governing such work. All payments to be made by the state upon contracts entered into in accordance with the provisions of this act shall be made by the state treasurer from the permanent highway fund hereinafter created, upon the warrant of the state auditor issued upon the presentation of proper vouchers by the person entitled thereto, said vouchers to be approved by the board of county commissioners, and the state highway commissioner, and, in case of final payment, to be accompanied by the certificate of the state highway commissioner as aforesaid. The state auditor shall issue no warrant for any purpose against the permanent highway fund hereinafter provided for unless there be sufficient money to pay such warrant in such fund to the credit of the county affected. No payment shall be made for any incidental changes during the progress of the work, unless the same shall have been approved by the board of county commissioners by resolution, and a copy of said resolution shall have been transmitted to the state highway commissioner. The board of county commissioners shall let no contract for the improvement of any permanent highway or section thereof less than one mile in length. Whenever any permanent highway shall be improved or constructed pursuant to a petition as provided for in section 5879-2, the proportion of the cost of such improvement chargeable to the property within the improvement district shall be paid out of the general road and bridge fund of the county, and all taxes assessed against abutting property under the provisions of the following section, and all moneys payable by any township, shall, when collected, be paid into said general road and bridge fund. All payments made from the general road and bridge fund upon contracts entered into in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall be made by the county treasurer upon warrants of the county auditor, issued upon the presentation of proper vouchers, approved by the board of county commissioners and the state highway commissioner. [L. '11, p. 121, § 9; L. '13, p. 485, § 3.]

§ 5879-10. Fifteen Per Cent Tax—Divisions—List—Roll—Assessment.

The county engineer of any county in which any highway or section thereof has been improved or constructed pursuant to a petition as provided in section 5879-2, shall have the power and it shall be his duty upon receiving notice from the board of county commissioners of the county in which said highway is located, of the cost of construction or improvement of such highway or section thereof, to prepare, verify and file with the county auditor an assessment-roll of the assessments and shall assess upon the lands benefited thereby, and situated within the boundaries of an improvement district, to be established, fifteen per cent or such greater per cent as may be stated in such petition, of said total cost. Such improvement district shall be constituted, and the boundaries thereof fixed, as follows: The highway coterminous with the improvement shall be the central line through the district, and the bordering lands on each side and within a distance of not less than six hundred and sixty feet, and not more than three miles, such width to be fixed by the board of county commissioners, from the center line of said highway and coterminous with the construction work or improvement shall be included in and constitute the body of the improvement district and shall be subject to assessment to the extent above provided. For the purpose of making an equitable apportionment of the assessment, such improvement district shall be divided longitudinally on each side of the center line of such highway, into three parts of equal width, which, beginning with the part abutting upon the highway, shall be known as the first, second and third subdivisions, respectively, of such improvement district. In case the petition shall call for the payment of fifteen per cent each separate tract or parcel of land in said first subdivision shall be assessed and be subject to a charge for a proportional part of seven per cent of the whole cost of the construction work or improvement of said highway, and it shall be subject to a lien therefor until it shall be paid; each separate tract or parcel of land within said second subdivision shall be assessed and subject to a charge for a proportional part of five per cent of the whole cost of such construction work or improvement and be subject to a lien therefor until it shall be paid; each separate tract or parcel of land in said third subdivision shall be assessed and subject to a charge for a proportional part of three per cent of the whole cost of such construction work or improvement and be subject to a lien therefor until it shall be paid. If the per cent of cost to be paid by such owners shall be greater than fifteen per cent the excess shall be assessed to the property in each subdivision upon the same ratio as such fifteen per cent. The charge upon the several separate tracts or parcels of lands in each subdivision shall be assessed ratably on the basis of the special benefits according to the actual area within such subdivision; that is to say, the area within the first subdivision shall be assessed seven-fifteenths, the area within the second subdivision shall be assessed five-fifteenths, and the area within the third subdivision shall be assessed three-fifteenths of the proportionate part of the cost assessed to the property in the assessment district. Each tract or parcel of land shall be assessed according to the relation of the area thereof to the total area within the subdivision wherein it is situated. The county engineer shall file such assessment-roll, as aforesaid, with the auditor of the county at least thirty days prior to the date prescribed by law for the first annual meeting of the county board of equalization after such list shall have been completed, and at said meeting, or an adjourned meeting, said board shall hear all objections to the assessments and determine the same, and correct all errors which may be found in such list; and after the same shall have been examined, compared and corrected by the county board of equalization, the assessment-roll shall be filed with the county treasurer, and the amount charged against the several lots, tracts or parcels of land within such improvement district shall be a lien upon such land, and shall be collected in the same manner as the general taxes of such county are collected, and shall become delinquent at the same time as general taxes, and after becoming delinquent shall be increased by the same percentage of penalty, and shall bear interest at the same rate as other delinquent state and county taxes: Provided, That the county commissioners may in their discretion by resolution duly certified to the county treasurer permit the payment of such taxes in ten equal annual installments, in which event each installment shall become delinquent as general taxes, and after becoming delinquent shall bear the same rate of interest as other delinquent state and county taxes: Provided, further, That the owner may pay all or any number of such installments at any time, and all deferred payments shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from the 31st day of May of the year following the filing of the assessment-roll with the county treasurer: And provided further, That whenever the county commissioners shall have provided for the payment of said taxes in installments as aforesaid it may, if it shall deem necessary or proper, issue bonds of the county payable from the general road and bridge fund ten years after the date of the issuance thereof with such option to redeem as shall be considered advisable, in an amount not exceeding the proportion of the cost of such highway which shall be a charge against the abutting property, and that such bonds shall bear interest at a rate not greater than six per cent per annum and shall be sold at not less than par by the board of county commissioners in such manner as they shall deem advisable. A notice directed to all owners of property affected by such assessment, whether known or unknown, to appear before said county board of equalization on a day to be therein specified to make their objections, if they have any, to such assessments, shall be published by the county auditor in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in at least three issues on different days of said newspaper, the first of which shall be at least twenty days prior to the specified date for appearances, and said notice shall contain a description of the highway, for the construction or improvement of which the assessment is made, and enumerate the several sections of land, according to the United States surveys, which shall be wholly or partially included within the special improvement district. If any such assessment shall be deemed invalid by the county board of equalization or adjudged to be invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction, a reassessment of the land within an improvement district with proper boundaries shall be made and collected in the manner herein prescribed. The county boards of equalization may hold adjourned or special sessions whenever it may be necessary to do so for the purpose of hearing objections to, and completing assessment lists required by this act.

All persons owning property abutting on such highway so improved, or residing thereon shall thereafter pay all highway taxes assessed against them in money, and in the manner now provided by law.

Where the petition for the improvement or construction of any permanent highway shall be signed by the board of supervisors of any township, or a majority of them, under the provisions of section 5879-2, the proportion of the assessment of abutting property shall, as to property within such township, be a charge upon such township and shall be paid by such township from the moneys raised for the purpose of constructing and improving roads therein into the general road and bridge fund of the county on or before the date of the approval of such construction or improvement work by the state highway commissioner. [L. '11, p. 122, § 10; L. '13, p. 487, § 4.]

§ 5879-11. Construction and Closing of Highway.

Whenever a contract has been let for the improvement or construction of any such highway in accordance with the provisions of this act, the contractors may and are hereby authorized to, whenever the engineer in charge of the work shall certify to the necessity therefor in writing, close any such highway or section thereof to the public by putting up a sufficient obstruction and notice to the effect that such highway is so closed. When such highway shall have been so closed to the public any person disregarding such obstruction and driving, riding or walking over any portion of such highways so inclosed, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. Nothing herein contained, however, shall relieve the contractors of the burden of keeping highways under construction at all times open to the public until the engineer in charge of the work shall have certified to the necessity for closing such highway and shall have filed such certificate in the office of the county auditor of the county within which such highway or section thereof is located. [L. '11, p. 125, § 11.]

§ 5879-12. Maintenance.

Whenever the improvement of any permanent highway shall have been completed and accepted under the provisions of this act, the same shall be maintained in the same manner as is provided by law for the maintenance of other public highways and roads. [L. '11, p. 126, § 12.]

§ 5879-13. Draining.

Whenever during the construction of any such highway, or after its completion, it may be necessary for the proper construction or maintenance thereof to open or maintain ditches or drains for the purpose of properly draining such highway, the county commissioners of the county within which such highway or section thereof is situated, shall have the right to enter upon the lands adjacent thereto and to open any existing ditch or drain or dig a new ditch or drain for the free passage of water for the purpose of draining such highway. Said county commissioners shall also be empowered to agree with the owner of any such lands upon the amount of damages, if any, sustained by him in consequence of such entry upon his lands and performance of the work hereby authorized, and the amount of damages so agreed upon shall be the road district charge and shall be audited and paid the same as other road district charges. If the county commissioners are unable to agree with such owner upon the amount of damages thus sustained, the amount thereof shall be ascertained and determined and paid in the same manner as damages are so ascertained, determined and paid where new highways are laid out and opened and the county commissioners and land owners are unable to agree upon the amount thereof. [L. '11, p. 126, § 13.]

§ 5879-14. Providing Revenue.

For the purpose of raising revenues for the improvement and maintenance of permanent highways under the provisions of this act, the proper state officers shall levy and collect a tax of one and one-half mills upon all property in the state subject to taxation for the year 1913, and for each year thereafter. All moneys derived from such tax shall be paid into the state treasury and credited to a fund to be known as the "Permanent Highway Fund." The amounts received from each county shall be credited to the county paying the same, until such time as the same shall be expended on contracts for permanent highways within such county or for the maintenance of the same under the provisions of this act. Five per cent of all moneys credited to each county under this act and which shall be derived from taxes levied for the year 1912 and subsequent years shall be set aside and expended by the board of county commissioners, upon vouchers approved by such board, for maintaining and repairing roads constructed under the provisions of this act and other roads of like character, and no part of such five per cent shall be expended for any other purpose. [L. '11, p. 126, § 14; L. '13, p. 491, § 5.]

§ 5879-15. Transfer Fund.

Upon the taking effect of this act, the state treasurer shall transfer from the public highway fund to the permanent highway fund hereby created, and placed to the credit of each county, a sum equal to one-half of all taxes levied in such county for said public highway fund for the years 1907, 1908, 1909 and 1910, first deducting therefrom all sums expended from the public highway fund for state aid road purposes in such county under the provisions of chapter 150 of the Session Laws of 1907 prior to such transfer. All payments on contracts executed prior to the passage of this act for state aid roads shall, from and after the date of its passage, be paid out of the permanent highway fund and charged to the county in which such state aid road is situated: Provided, That if any county shall not have sufficient money to its credit in the permanent highway fund to carry out any such contract or contracts, then and in that event the state treasurer shall transfer to the credit of such county from the public highway fund to the permanent highway fund sufficient money to complete the existing contracts for state aid roads. For the purpose of making the transfers from the public highway fund to the permanent highway fund, as provided in this section, there is hereby appropriated out of the public highway fund the sum of five hundred and eighty thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary. [L. '11, p. 127, § 15.]

§ 5879-16. No Railroads on Highway.

No railroad or street railroad, by whatsoever power operated, shall be constructed upon any permanent highway or section thereof which may be improved under the provisions of this act, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, nor shall any such railroad or street railroad be constructed upon any public highway or section thereof of which such permanent highway is a continuation. [L. '11, p. 127, § 16.]

§ 5879-17. Bonds for Improvements Heretofore Made.

Where any assessment for the improvement of any permanent highway pursuant to petition has heretofore been made and extended upon the tax-rolls of any county and said assessment has not been paid, the county commissioners may provide for the payment of the same in installments, and may issue bonds of the county to an amount not exceeding such unpaid assessment in the manner provided in section 5879-10. [L. '13, p. 491, § 6.]

§ 5879-18. County Roads Through Fourth Class Cities.

Each and every county of this state is hereby authorized to build, construct and improve any permanent highway as same is defined by this chapter, through the corporate limits of any city of the third or fourth class, upon such streets or other rights of way connecting with such permanent highway in the corporate limits of such municipality as may be provided for such purpose by the municipal authorities, of sufficient width and appropriate for said purpose. [L. '13, p. 384, § 1.]

§ 5879-19. Eminent Domain—County may Pay Damages.

Where such city or town is unable to pay for the condemnation of such rights of way, the county may pay or aid such municipality to pay for the same. All expenses herein authorized shall be disbursed and all such construction, improvement and repair herein contemplated shall be disbursed under, and be controlled wholly, by the provisions of this chapter, or law amending or superseding the same. [L. '13, p. 384, § 2.]

CHAPTER XXIII.

STATE AID ROADS.

§§ 5879-5896.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 128, § 17.

§ 5880.

The provision of the constitution vesting in counties the right of local self-government is not violated by this act, authorizing the construction of state aid roads under the direction of the state highway commissioner, upon plans adopted by the county commissioners, the expense to be paid in part by the county and the local road district: Meehan v. Shields, 57 Wash. 617, 107 Pac. 835.

The constitutional provisions requiring uniformity in taxation and the proper application of taxes are not violated by this section, since the cost is paid by the state, county and district respectively benefited and taxed for moneys expended in their own territory: Meehan v. Shields, 57 Wash. 617, 107 Pac. 835..

CHAPTER XXIV.

STATE ROADS.

§ 5898. State Tax Levy for Highways and Bridges.

For the purpose of raising revenue to construct and repair highways and bridges, the proper state officers shall levy and collect a tax of one and one-fourth mills upon all of the property in the state subject to taxation for the fiscal year beginning March 1, 1913, and for each fiscal year thereafter shall levy and collect a tax of one mill. The fund provided by such levy shall be placed in said public highway fund: Provided, however, That nothing in this act contained shall have the effect or be construed to alter or modify in any particular any tax levy made or proceeding had or to be had for the collection of any tax heretofore levied or imposed under or pursuant to the provisions of any former or existing laws: And provided further, That five per centum of the taxes collected as herein authorized shall be set aside by the state treasurer and used exclusively under the direction of the highway commissioner for the repair and maintenance of state roads that shall have been established and constructed. [L. '11, p. 303, § 1; L. '13, p. 220, § 1.]

CHAPTER XXV.

ACQUISITION OF QUARRIES AND ROAD MATERIAL BY STATE.

§ 5910. Building for Convicts—Rock-crushers and Machinery.

Whenever under the provisions of this chapter any site and quarry is procured, the state highway commissioner shall take possession thereof, and may forthwith erect and construct at and upon the same such stockades, buildings and structures as may be necessary, suitable and adequate for the safe confinement and comfortable housing of such convicts as may from time to time be confined or worked therein, and may likewise purchase and install therein such suitable and proper rock-crushing plants, machinery, appliances and tools, and with such capacity as in the judgment of the highway commissioner may be necessary and adequate to keep continuously employed and occupied such force of convicts as may from time to time be worked therein. [L. '11, p. 517, § 1.]

§ 5911. Employment of Convicts.

It shall be the duty of the state highway commissioner to keep and employ in the several quarry sites so established and equipped as aforesaid, under charge of the superintendent of the penitentiary, and with his permission and that of the state board of control, in charge of such other persons in the employ of the state as the board of control shall direct, a sufficient number of able-bodied convicts when available to keep and maintain said plant therein installed in continuous operation to its full capacity, for which purpose said convicts may be transferred from the penitentiary at Walla Walla. [L. '11, p. 517, § 1.]

§ 5912. Output for State Roads—Surplus—Free Labor.

All convicts maintained at said quarry sites shall, when physically able and so long as there is a demand for the output of such quarry, be kept and employed continuously (except Sundays and legal holidays) in the quarrying, crushing, preparation and handling of rock or other materials for roads or streets. All rocks so crushed shall be, upon the request of the state highway commissioner, loaded upon the car or vessel and there delivered to said state highway commissioner, who shall use the same in the construction or maintenance of state roads or state aid roads: Provided, however, That so much of said materials as the state highway commissioner may not at any time require for use on state roads or state aid roads shall be by said highway commissioner disposed of at not less than ten per cent above estimated cost f. o. b. the car, scow or boat at the place of production, to counties, cities or towns within the state in the order of application therefor, excepting in cases where the demands of such counties, cities and towns may be in excess of the supply, in which case the state highway commissioner shall apportion, deliver and distribute such material among the several counties, cities and towns applying, in such proportion as in his judgment may seem fair and equitable: Provided, further, That all materials used by the state highway commissioner on any state road shall be paid for out of the appropriation, apportionment or fund for the construction or improvement of the particular road upon which it is used, and all material sold to the state highway commissioner or to any county, city, town or other municipality, shall be at not less than ten per cent above the estimated cost of production at the place of delivery: Provided further, That when the quantity of material on hand is in excess of the amount demanded by the state highway commissioner for use upon state roads, or state aid roads, or for disposition to the counties, cities and towns as herein provided, then the same may be disposed of by the state highway commissioner, at such prices, not less than the cost of production, as said commissioner may deem most advantageous for the state, giving prior right of purchase to citizens of the state of Washington before applicants from another state: And provided further, That nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prohibit the state highway commissioner from employing within said stockades, or at said quarry sites, in the production of said material and in the operation of said quarry, such free labor as the commissioner may deem necessary or proper. [L. '11, p. 517, § 1.]

§ 5914. Appropriations—Application—Good Roads Fund.

All moneys received from the sale of products of the state quarries and all moneys that may be received on account of fire insurance and settlement of fire losses at such quarries shall be paid into the state treasury and shall be kept in a fund to be known as the "Quarries Rotary Fund." Such fund shall be used for the purpose of maintaining such rock quarries and all necessary expenses in connection therewith, including the repayment as herein provided, and the cost and expenses of transporting to and from, keeping and guarding the convicts working therein, the payment of the fire insurance premiums and for making such permanent improvements as the state highway commissioner shall deem necessary to be expended on the order of the state highway commissioner: Provided, however, No warrant shall be issued against said fund in excess of the amount remaining in such fund at the time of the issuance of the warrant. All warrants drawn against this fund shall be paid in the same manner as the state's general fund warrants are paid. All moneys heretofore paid out of the state general fund and the public highway fund for the purchasing and installing of crushing machinery, appliances, tools and cars for the maintenance of the state quarries, shall be repaid to the respective funds from which used, whenever the state highway commissioner shall deem sufficient funds have been received from the sale of the product of such quarries over and above the amount required for the operation of such plants. To secure the efficient, economical and satisfactory administration and maintenance of the several rock quarries under the jurisdiction of the state highway commissioner, the state highway commissioner is hereby authorized to appoint a superintendent of quarries who shall have and exercise such powers and perform such duties in connection with the various rock quarries of the state as shall be from time to time prescribed by the state highway commissioner. He shall receive an annual salary of not more than two thousand dollars and his necessary traveling expenses, to be paid out of the quarries rotary fund herein established, and in case there is insufficient in that fund he shall be paid out of the state highway fund. He shall be subject at all times to the jurisdiction, control and direction of the highway commissioner, and shall appoint such assistants with such compensation as shall be determined by the state highway commissioner. [L. '13, p. 556, § 1; Cf. L. '11, p. 517, § 1.]

TITLE XLII.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Under sections 5915-5917, a homestead acquired from the federal government by a married man during the lifetime of his wife is community property; and the state has the sovereign power to fix its character irrespective of federal statutes: Curry v. Wilson, 57 Wash. 509, 107 Pac. 367.

As to land granted by the government and whether it is separate or community property, see note in 94 Am. St. Rep. 916.

It sufficiently appears that property sold by a husband and wife, and later conveyed to the husband, became his separate property, where the wife produced no evidence to contradict the husband's statement that he paid for it out of his separate estate, and from her testimony the conveyance would appear to have been without consideration and a gift to the husband: Palmer v. Abrahams, 55 Wash. 352, 104 Pac. 648.

Under our community property laws, authorizing every married woman to hold and dispose of her separate estate as if she were unmarried, any profit made by a married woman upon selling a contract for the purchase of land, prior to payment of the last two installments, is her separate estate and not community property, where she entered into the contract to purchase in her own name, her husband not joining, making the first payment out of separate estate, and giving her personal notes for five subsequent annual installments, and she then had separate moneys sufficient to make all the payments, and made two subsequent payments out of her separate estate, it appearing that she was dealing with her separate estate and that there was no intent to involve the community property: United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Lee, 58 Wash. 16, 107 Pac. 870.

The wife's separate estate is liable for the funeral expenses of her husband, he having left no property, where the services were rendered with her knowledge and consent: Butterworth & Sons v. Teale, 54 Wash. 14, 18 Ann. Cas. 854, 102 Pac. 768.

As to liability of wife for husband's funeral expenses, see note in 18 Ann. Cas. 856.

As to liability of separate estate of wife for her funeral expenses, see note in 37 L. R. A., N. S., 754. And see note in 33 L. R. A. 662, as to the liability of the estate of each for the funeral expenses of the other.

As to liability of wife for medical attendance upon husband, see note in 5 Ann. Cas. 832.

The fact that the husband joined in a note and mortgage upon real estate purchased and mostly paid for by the wife before marriage does not make the property or the proceeds therefrom community property: Dobbins v. Dexter Horton & Co., 62 Wash. 423, 113 Pac. 1088.

Assumption by a wife of mortgage indebtedness upon real estate purchased with her separate funds does not create a community obligation or make the property community property: Dobbins v. Dexter Horton & Co., 62 Wash. 423, 113 Pac. 1088.

As to the theory and tests of community property, see note in 126 Am. St. Rep. 100.

In an action by a wife for conversion of stock held in trust for her by defendant, the stock is sufficiently shown to be separate property where she so testified, and all of the dealings of the trustee had been with her individually: Hetrick v. Smith, 67 Wash. 664, 122 Pac. 363.

Real estate conveyed to the husband is sufficiently shown to be the separate property of the wife and held in trust for her, so that it would not be subject to a subsequent judgment recovered against the husband, where it appears that, at the time the property was purchased, the wife was possessed of separate real and personal property of considerable value, that she paid for the property by giving her personal check and satisfying a loan she had made derived from her separate estate, and from the same source paid for improvements on the property, and the husband admitted the trusteeship, no credit was given him by virtue of his holding the title, and the property was conveyed before execution sale: Denny v. Schwabacher, 54 Wash. 689, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1140, 104 Pac. 137.

Judgment recovered in another state against the husband alone, on a contract relating to his separate estate, in an action wherein the wife appeared and her demurrer to the complaint was sustained, is the separate debt of the husband, and a judgment thereon in this state, against the husband alone, cannot be enforced against the wife's separate property: Bramel v. Ratliff, 54 Wash. 581, 103 Pac. 817.

As to the right of husband's creditors to attack marriage settlements, see note in 90 Am. St. Rep. 509.

As to right of husband's creditors to reach points of his management of or services in connection with wife's separate estate or business, see note in 23 L. R. A., N. S., 1124.

The title to land agreed to be conveyed to a builder in part consideration of his work does not pass to the community consisting of himself and wife before deed; and being held in trust, the deed of the trustee at request of the husband passes title without any conveyance by the wife: Empire State Surety Co. v. Ballou, 66 Wash. 76, 118 Pac. 923.

As to theory and tests of community property, see note in 126 Am. St. Rep. 100.

Where the husband had charge of a transaction whereby property was conveyed to the wife, as and for her sole and separate property, the form of the deed is binding upon him, and the property becomes her separate property: In re Tresidder's Estate, 70 Wash. 15, 125 Pac. 1034.

As to employment by husband to manage wife's separate estate, see note in 58 Am. St. Rep. 496.

The law of domicile controls personalty acquired during coverture: Colpe v. Lindblom, 57 Wash. 106, 106 Pac. 634.

Where a husband and wife, married in Arizona seventeen years ago, were keeping house at Nome, Alaska, where his earnings were his separate property, and there was nothing to show whether Nome was their domicile or merely their temporary abode, it will be presumed that the domiciliary law was the same as our own, and that the property was community property: Colpe v. Lindblom, 57 Wash. 106, 106 Pac. 634.

As to conflict of laws in respect to matrimonial property, see note in 29 L. R. A., N. S., 781. And see note in 85 Am. St. Rep. 556, as to law of the domicile.

The common property act of 1871, providing that the income or proceeds of the separate property of both husband and wife accruing during marriage shall be common property, did not impress separate property with a trust in favor of the common use of both, in view of other provisions of the act giving each the sole control, management, and power of disposition of their separate estates; but simply provides that the income thereof, when it comes into existence, shall be common property: Guye v. Guye, 63 Wash. 340, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 186, 115 Pac. 731.

The common property act of 1871, having provided that the income of separate property should be common property, the legislature would not have power by a subsequent act to declare income already accrued to be separate property, but it could so provide as to future income: Guye v. Guye, 63 Wash. 340, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 186, 115 Pac. 731.

The provision in the common property act of 1871, relating to both personal and real property, that the rents, profits, "interest" and income of separate property shall be common property, means only that the entire income thereof shall be common property, "interest" not having any further significance: Guye v. Guye, 63 Wash. 340, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 186, 115 Pac. 731.

As to power of legislature to change increment or income of separate property from community property to separate property, or vice versa, see note in 36 L. R. A., N. S., 1040.

While the laws of the United States control the ownership until title passes, after the patent to government land is issued, it becomes subject to state legislation, and the state, in passing the community property law and providing the rule of descent, is not acting in contravention of the laws of the United States: Kreig v. Lewis, 56 Wash. 196, 26 L. R. A., N. S., 1117, 105 Pac. 483.

Lands acquired under coal land entries by a husband are his separate property, in view of the act providing that each spouse may make an entry and acquire title, that the entryman must swear that the entry is made for his own benefit and not directly or indirectly for the benefit of any other person, and requiring no residence on the land: Guye v. Guye, 63 Wash. 340, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 186, 115 Pac. 731.

Mining claims acquired by a husband are his separate property, in view of the act permitting either spouse to make entry and acquire full title from the United States without the aid or intervention of the other: Guye v. Guye, 63 Wash. 340, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 186, 115 Pac. 731.

As to applicability of state community property laws to real property acquired from the United States, see note in 96 Am. St. Rep. 916. And see note in 26 L. R. A., N. S., 1117.

A chattel mortgage by a husband upon exempt personal property is valid without being signed by the wife, and a waiver of the exemption: First Nat. Bank v. Fowler, 54 Wash. 65, 102 Pac. 1038.

As to right of husband, as against wife, to dispose of his personalty during coverture, see note in 10 Ann. Cas. 1053.

Land settled upon by a husband and wife who were trespassers and without claim of right or title or any equity is not their community property by reason of pending negotiations for its purchase and improvements placed thereon by them; and where, after a decree of divorce which did not mention the property, the land was purchased by the husband, who had remained in possession, the same is his separate property, notwithstanding the purchase was made on the terms of the negotiations pending before divorce, and notwithstanding that, in an ejectment suit, the husband by his answer had made a claim of right antedating the divorce decree: Wingard v. Wingard, 56 Wash. 389, 25 L. R. A., N. S., 453, 105 Pac. 834.

The wife, having no equity, could not avail herself of any admissions by the husband in the ejectment suit: Wingard v. Wingard, 56 Wash. 389, 25 L. R. A., N. S., 453, 105 Pac. 834.

Upon the granting of a divorce without making any disposition of property, the community is dissolved and the parties become tenants in common of the community property: Barkley v. American Sav. Bank Trust Co., 61 Wash. 415, 112 Pac. 495.

After a divorce, whereby a husband's control over community property ceased and his interest became that of a tenant in common by operation of law, he can recover for a conversion prior to the divorce no more than the value of his half interest: Barkley v. American Sav. Bank & Trust Co., 61 Wash. 415, 112 Pac. 495.

As to effect of divorce upon tenancy by entireties, see note in 10 L. R. A., N. S., 463.

As to effect of divorce upon community property in the absence of adjudication, see note in 11 L. R. A., N. S., 103.

Upon the death of the wife, leaving children, a deed by the surviving husband purporting to convey the entire community property, which descended one-half to him and one-half to the children, is not void, but is effectual to convey his one undivided one-half interest, which on the wife's death became his separate property: Duvall v. Healy Lumber Co., 57 Wash. 446, 107 Pac. 357, 109 Pac. 305.

As to the validity of contract of husband alone with reference to homestead, see note in 9 L. R. A. 804.

A homestead, patent for which was issued to a married man, is community property, and upon the subsequent death of the wife, leaving one child, an undivided one-half interest descends to the child: Krieg v. Lewis, 56 Wash. 196, 26 L. R. A., N. S., 1117, 105 Pac. 483.

As to the law of community property as applied to land acquired from the government, see note in 126 Am. St. Rep. 116.

As to right of children, as against surviving husband, to homestead of parent, see note in 56 L. R. A. 70.

Under this section and section 4621, making one-half of the community property subject to the testamentary disposition of each spouse, the testator has the power to name the executor to administer the estate, which necessarily carries with it the administration of all community property for such length of time as necessary to pay debts and speedily close the estate: In re Güye's Estate, 54 Wash. 264, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1111, 103 Pac. 25.

The natural enhancement in value during marriage of the separate property of the spouses is not property acquired during marriage, within the spirit of the community property statutes, which provides that property acquired before marriage and in certain ways, together with the rents, issues, and profits thereof, shall be the separate property of the spouse acquiring it; and that all other property acquired after marriage shall be community property: Guye v. Guye, 63 Wash. 340, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 186, 115 Pac. 731.

Where the husband purchased land, took possession, made improvements, and paid at least part of the purchase price before marriage, it is his separate property, although he received the deed after marriage, in the absence of a showing that community funds entered into the purchase: Guye v. Guye, 63 Wash. 340, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 186, 115 Pac. 731.

Where the husband has separate income, it cannot be presumed that the taxes on his separate property during marriage were paid with community funds: Guye v. Guye, 63 Wash. 340, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 186, 115 Pac. 731.

It will be presumed that property once shown to be separate property continued to be such until the contrary is made to appear: Guye v. Guye, 63 Wash. 340, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 186, 115 Pac. 731.

The joinder of a husband and wife in a mortgage of real estate is not evidence that the property was community property: Guye v. Guye, 63 Wash. 340, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 186, 115 Pac. 731.

As to the character of property, in respect of being or not being community, where title is initiated before but not completed until after death of one spouse, see note in 17 L. R. A., N. S., 154.

Lots purchased by a husband with money received from his father, as an advance from his father's estate, are his separate property, even if he procured a loan to pay a very small portion of the purchase price, where such portion was too small to notice: Worthington v. Crasper, 63 Wash. 380, 115 Pac. 849.

The husband's petition for letters testamentary on the estate of his wife is not an admission that certain lots which she attempted to dispose of by her will were community property, where she had other property, and the lots in fact belonged to his separate estate: Worthington v. Crasper, 63 Wash. 380, 115 Pac. 849.

Where parties cohabited as husband and wife, without any marriage, there can be no community property or presumptions attending the marriage state; and the burden of proof is upon the one claiming an interest in property the title to which is vested in the other: Sloan v. West, 63 Wash. 623, 116 Pac. 272.

As to the right of common-law wife to dower, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 78.

Under the presumption that property acquired after marriage is community property, and in the absence of evidence that personal property was the separate property of the wife, her bill of sale thereof is a nullity, under this section: Blum v. Smith, 66 Wash. 192, 119 Pac. 183.

The execution of a deed by the wife, within the time required by a contract of sale made by the husband alone, ratifies the contract and renders it binding on the vendee: Heinemann v. Sullivan, 57 Wash. 346, 106 Pac. 911.

A trade of separate property of two wives, arranged by their husbands, is ratified by the wives by their joining in deeds of the property: Coonrod v. Studebaker, 53 Wash. 32, 101 Pac. 489.

The presumption that property acquired by purchase by the wife during marriage is community property can only be overcome by clear and satisfactory evidence: Denny v. Schwabacher, 54 Wash. 689, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1140, 104 Pac. 137.

A homestead upon which final proof was made before the death of the homesteader's wife is community property, although patent was issued to the husband, after the wife's death: Eckert v. Schmitt, 60 Wash. 23, 110 Pac. 635.

As to whether or not property is of the community sort when the title, though initiated before, was not completed until after the death of one spouse, see note in 17 L. R. A., N. S., 154.

Where a trustee held the title to community property, who, at the husband's request, executed a deed to the wife, the husband's community interest is not divested by his subsequent delivery of the deed to the wife with intent to invest her with a separate estate, since that could only be done by his deed: Carpenter v. Brackett, 57 Wash. 460, 107 Pac. 359.

A contract for the sale of community land not executed by the wife of the vendor is not void, but only voidable: Koth v. Kessler, 59 Wash. 641, 110 Pac. 540.

Where community real property, record title to which was in the wife, is attached in a suit for a community debt, brought against the husband alone, the attachment is not notice to a subsequent bona fide purchaser from the wife, and such purchaser is not bound to take notice of the attachment lien indexed in the name of the husband and not shown in an abstract of title: Anders v. Bouska, 61 Wash. 393, 112 Pac. 523.

A promise by a husband to pay rent is not an encumbrance of community real estate, within this section, providing that the husband cannot encumber the same without the wife's consent: Monroe v. Stayt, 57 Wash. 592, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 1102, 107 Pac. 517.

As to lease as encumbrance or conveyance within statute requiring joinder or consent of spouse, see note in 39 L. R. A., N. S., 675.

Bona fide purchasers from a married man, describing himself in the deed as single and unmarried, are not charged with notice that it was community property, although some of his associates knew that he was married, and diligent inquiry might have disclosed the fact, where for several years the grantor had lived in this state separate and apart from his family in a distant state, the community had never occupied the land or made conveyances, and there was no fact or circumstance which would raise a duty in the grantee to inquire: Daly v. Rizzutto, 59 Wash. 62, 29 L. R. A., N. S., 467, 109 Pac. 276.

As to right of one spouse, living apart from the other, to claim community rights in property as against persons ignorant of the relationship, see note in 29 L. R. A., N. S., 468.

A husband, to whom a loan of seven hundred dollars was made, secured by a note and mortgage upon community property executed by the wife alone, is not estopped to question the validity of the mortgage lien by the fact that he consented to the execution and delivered the mortgage, and that the community would be liable for money had and received: Olson v. Springer, 60 Wash. 77, 110 Pac. 807.

Where community property is acquired and sold in this state in defiance of the community rights of the wife in a distant state, proof that the grantee was a purchaser for value and that the title was clear makes out a prima facie case of bona fides and puts the burden upon the wife to prove notice of her equity: Daly v. Rizzutto, 59 Wash. 62, 29 L. R. A., N. S., 467, 109 Pac. 276.

In the absence of fraud or deceit, a mortgage upon community property executed by the wife alone is void: Olson v. Springer, 60 Wash. 77, 110 Pac. 807.

The wife is liable, as a member of the community, upon the husband's contract to pay a commission for securing a loan which was a community debt contracted in the management of the community estate: Philips & Co. v. Langlow, 55 Wash. 385, 104 Pac. 610.

In an action against a husband and wife for attorneys' fees, instructions that, if the contract was made by the husband and the services were rendered, the defendants were liable, are proper; and it is proper to instruct that the contract was presumptively for the benefit of the community, which presumption was conclusive, there being no evidence to overcome it: Peacock v. Ratliff, 62 Wash. 653, 114 Pac. 507.

TORTS.—Where a married man, engaged in the real estate business, acted as plaintiff's agent in the purchase of property, and misrepresented the price paid, thereby wrongfully making a profit over and above his commissions, the principal may recover a community judgment against the agent and his wife for the difference between the price actually paid by the agent and the amount represented by him as paid, since the wrongful profit made by the agent would be community property: McGregor v. Johnson, 58 Wash. 78, 27 L. R. A., N. S., 1022, 107 Pac. 1049.

In an action upon a note executed by the husband alone, personal judgment against the wife is unauthorized, the plaintiffs being confined to establishing the community character of the indebtedness: Anderson v. Burgoyne, 60 Wash. 511, 111 Pac. 777.

A judgment against L. R. and the community composed of L. R. and E. R., husband and wife, merely establishes the community character of the debt, and is not a personal judgment against the wife: White v. Ratliff, 61 Wash. 383, 112 Pac. 502.

The fact that an action in tort was prosecuted to judgment against a husband alone for his negligent acts in the conduct of the community business does not preclude the judgment creditor from asserting that the judgment was a community debt, in a subsequent action brought against the husband and wife to subject community property to the judgment: Woste v. Ruge, 68 Wash. 90, 122 Pac. 988.

A marriage between parties prohibited from contracting the marriage is void ab initio, and property acquired cannot be community property: Sortore v. Sortore, 70 Wash. 410, 126 Pac. 915.

In an action against a husband on a promissory note in which the wife was joined with a view of establishing the debt as their community debt, a judgment against the husband alone reciting that it is enforceable out of the separate and community property of the husband is not a judgment against the wife's community interest, or against the community: Alaska Banking & Safe Deposit Co. v. Simmons, 67 Wash. 673, 122 Pac. 319.

The community is liable to a passenger for the tort of the husband in negligently driving an automobile for hire, where the automobile was operated for the benefit of the community: Milne v. Kane, 64 Wash. 254, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 318, 36 L. R. A., N. S., 88, 116 Pac. 659.

The evidence sufficiently shows that an agreement between husband and wife that her personal earnings after marriage should be her separate property, where it appears that the money earned by her in teaching during four years after marriage was applied in completing the purchase and improving property purchased and partly paid for by her before marriage, that the proceeds of such property were thereafter invested and reinvested by her, the husband having nothing to do with the same, under a general understanding between them at all times that it and all her earnings were her separate property: Dobbins v. Dexter Horton & Co., 62 Wash. 423, 113 Pac. 1088.

As to the earnings of either party to a marriage in respect of whether or not community property, see note in 126 Am. St. Rep. 115.

A separation agreement, whereby the husband agreed to pay the wife three thousand dollars in monthly installments for the support, maintenance and education of their two children upon condition that the children be kept in school and continue their education during said period, and in the event of their failing to continue their attendance at school, the payments to cease, should be construed to require attendance at school only until their education, as contemplated by the parties at the time, is completed; and where they graduated from college before the end of the period, the wife is entitled to recover the whole sum, without further attendance in school by the children: Titus v. Titus, 66 Wash. 345, Ann. Cas. 1913C, 343, 119 Pac. 813.

As to the validity of separation agreements between husband and wife, see note in 83 Am. St. Rep. 859.

An agreement between husband and wife that the earnings of each while living together shall be the separate property of each cannot affect existing creditors of the community: Marsh v. Fisher, 69 Wash. 570, 125 Pac. 951.

A wife's personal earnings are her separate property only where she is living separate and apart from her husband, in the absence of any agreement between husband and wife with respect thereto: Marsh v. Fisher, 69 Wash. 570, 125 Pac. 951.

This section was not intended to authorize a wife to establish a domicile for herself, irrespective of her husband's domicile, during the existence of the marital relation: Buchholz v. Buchholz, 63 Wash. 213, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 395, 115 Pac. 88.

As to right of wife to acquire a separate domicile after abandonment of marriage relation, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 397.

This section, abolishing all laws which impose any disability upon a wife which are not imposed upon a husband, does not authorize the wife to sue the husband for a tort committed upon her person during coverture, since at common law the husband has no such right of action against the wife: Schultz v. Christopher, 65 Wash. 496, 38 L. R. A., N. S., 780, 118 Pac. 629.

As to right of persons who have intermarried to sue each other after severance of the relation, see note in 73 Am. St. Rep. 238.

This section raises a joint and several obligation therefor; and a divorced wife, who thereafter maintained a child awarded to her without provision for its support, is entitled only to contribution from the husband, and cannot recover from him the whole of the sums expended by her: Hector v. Hector, 51 Wash. 434, 99 Pac. 13.

As to burden of children's support when divorce decree silent on subject, see note in 114 Am. St. Rep. 700.

§ 5932.

See notes to § 3909.

§ 5933.

Repealed. See L. '13, p. 73, § 2.

§ 5933-1. Family Desertion.

Every person who,

1st: Having any child under the age of sixteen years dependent upon him or her for care, education or support, deserts such child in any manner whatever, with intent to abandon it;

2d: Willfully omits, without lawful excuse, to furnish necessary food, clothing, shelter, or medical attendance for his or her child or children or ward or wards;

3d: Having sufficient ability to provide for his wife's support, or who is able to earn the means for such wife's support, who willfully abandons and leaves his wife in a destitute condition, or who refuses or neglects to provide such wife with necessary food, clothing, shelter, or medical attendance, unless by her misconduct he is justified in abandoning her.

§ 5933-2. Punishment—Payment to Family—Suspension of Judgment—Working Prisoners.

In any case enumerated in the previous section, the court may render one of the following orders:

1st: Should a fine be imposed it may be directed by the court to be paid in whole or in part to the wife, or to the guardian, or to the custodian of the child or children, or to an individual appointed by the court as trustee.

2d: Before trial, or after conviction, with the consent of the defendant, the court, in its discretion, having regard to the circumstances and to the financial ability or earning capacity of the defendant, shall have the power to make an order, which shall be subject to change by it from time to time as circumstances may require, directing the defendant to pay a certain sum weekly during such time as the court may direct, to the wife or to the guardian, or custodian of the minor child or children, or to an individual appointed by the court, and to release the defendant from custody or probation during such time as the court may direct, upon his or her entering into a recognizance, with or without sureties, in such sum as the court may direct. The condition of the recognizance to be such that if the defendant shall make his or her appearance in court whenever ordered to do so, and shall further comply with the terms of the order and of any subsequent modification thereof, then the recognizance shall be void, otherwise to remain in full force and effect.

3d: Where conviction is had and sentence to imprisonment in the county jail is imposed, the court may direct that the person so convicted shall be compelled to work upon the public roads or highways, or any other public work, in the county where such conviction is had, during the time of such sentence. And it shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners of the county where such conviction and sentence is had, and where such work is performed by persons under sentence to the county jail, to allow and order the payment, out of the current fund, to the wife, or to the guardian, or the custodian of the child or children, or to an individual appointed by the court as trustee, at the end of each calendar month, for the support of such wife, child, or children, ward or wards, a sum not to exceed one and fifty one-hundredths dollars for each day's work of such person. [L. '13, p. 71, § 2.]

§ 5933-3. Prima Facie Proof.

Proof of the abandonment or nonsupport of a wife, or the desertion of a child or children, ward or wards, or the omission to furnish necessary food, clothing, shelter, or medical attendance for a child or children, ward or wards, is prima facie evidence that such abandonment or nonsupport, or omission to furnish food, clothing, shelter, or medical attendance is willful. The provisions of sections of section 5933-1 are applicable whether the parents of such child or children are married or divorced and regardless of any decree made in said divorce action relative to alimony or to the support of the wife or child or children. [L. '13, p. 72, § 3.]

TITLE XLIV.

INSPECTION.

CHAPTER I.

INSPECTION OF GRAIN AND HAY AND REGULATION OF WAREHOUSES.

The grain inspection law, entitled an act for the regulation of public warehouses, relating to the shipping, grading and inspection of grain, and defining the duties of railroads, warehousemen, etc., was designed to protect the owner or shipper of grain from frauds practiced by public warehousemen, and is not broad enough to cover the inspection of grain shipped by an owner to himself, the same not being stored in a public warehouse: Puget Sound Warehouse Co. v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 58 Wash. 322, 108 Pac. 955.

A tax for the inspection of grain shipped by the owner to himself cannot be sustained by reference to the police power, where the same was not to go through a public warehouse: Puget Sound Warehouse Co. v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 58 Wash. 322, 108 Pac. 955.

As to laws for protection of goods after receipt in warehouse, see note in 136 Am. St. Rep. 212.

§ 5980-1. Terms Defined.

The term public warehouse when used in this act, includes any elevator, mill, warehouse or structure in which grain or hay is received from the public for storage, shipment or handling, whenever such grain or hay is carried or intended to be carried to or from such warehouse, elevator, mill or structure by a common carrier.

The term terminal warehouse, when used in this act includes any public warehouse situate in Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane or other cities in the state which may be hereafter designated as inspection points.

The term warehouseman when used in this act includes any firm, person, company, corporation or association of persons owning, operating or controlling any public warehouse.

The term "commission" when used in this act means the railroad commission of Washington. [L. '11, p. 398, § 1.]

§ 5980-2. Investigation of Complaints.

The commission shall exercise general supervision over the handling, weighing, inspecting and storage of grain and hay, and the management of public and terminal warehouses. Such commission shall investigate all complaints of fraud or injustice in the grain and hay trade, fix the charges of public and terminal warehouses, and make all necessary rules and regulations for carrying out and enforcing the provisions of this act, and of all laws of the state relating to the subject. [L. '11, p. 398, § 2.]

§ 5980-3. Chief Inspector.

The commission, with the approval of the governor, shall appoint a chief inspector, who shall be thoroughly familiar with the grains of Washington, and shall have had at least five years experience in handling said grain and hay. He shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, give a surety bond (the cost of said bond to be paid by the state) to the state of Washington in the sum of ten thousand dollars, to be approved by the commission and the attorney general, and conditioned upon the faithful discharge of his duties, and take the usual oath required of state officers. He shall receive a salary of two thousand dollars per annum, and necessary traveling expenses, and shall reside at Tacoma. [L. '11, p. 399, § 3.]

§ 5980-4. Appointment of Deputies—Bonds.

The chief inspector, with the approval of the commission, shall appoint such number of deputies, inspectors, samplers and weighers as may be necessary to properly and thoroughly inspect and weigh grain and hay received and exported and to carry out the provisions of this act. One of such inspectors in each of the cities of Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, and such other cities as may be designated by the commission, shall be styled chief deputy inspector. Such chief deputy inspectors shall be expert grain and hay men with at least three years' experience in handling grain and hay in Washington. The chief deputy inspectors shall each give a surety bond (the cost of said bonds to be paid by the state) to the state of Washington in the sum of five thousand dollars, to be approved by the commission and the attorney general, conditioned upon the faithful discharge of their duties. Such chief deputies shall receive a salary of fifteen hundred dollars per annum, and necessary traveling expenses. All other inspectors, samplers and weighers shall give bond (the cost of said bonds to be paid by the state) to the state of Washington in the sum of three thousand dollars, to be approved by the commission and the attorney general, conditioned upon the faithful discharge of his duties; the salaries of such inspectors, samplers and weighers shall not exceed one hundred dollars per month. The chief deputy inspector, inspectors, samplers and weighers shall be required to take an oath to faithfully perform their duties; the duties of inspectors, samplers and weighers may be interchangeable. [L. '11, p. 399, § 4.]

§ 5980-5. Bonds Filed.

The bonds of the chief inspector, his deputies, samplers and weighers, and all warehousemen, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state of Washington, and any person injured by any official act or the neglect of duty of any such inspector, sampler or weigher, or by reason of neglect or failure of such inspector, sampler, weigher or warehouseman to comply with the provisions of this act or of the rules and regulations of the commission shall have a right of action upon such official bond for the recovery of all damages suffered thereby. [L. '11, p. 400, § 5.]

§ 5980-6. Interest of Officers.

No chief inspector, deputy inspector, sampler or weigher, shall during his term of office, be interested directly or indirectly in the handling, storing, shipping, purchasing or selling of grain or hay. [L. '11, p. 400, § 6.]

§ 5980-7. Neglect of Duty—Penalty.

Any inspector, sampler or weigher of grain or hay who shall be guilty of any neglect of duty, or who shall knowingly or carelessly inspect, sample or weigh any grain or hay improperly, or who shall directly or indirectly accept any money or other consideration for any neglect of duty or any improper performance of duty as such inspector, sampler or weigher of grain or hay, or any person, persons, corporation or agent who shall improperly influence or attempt to improperly influence any inspector, sampler or weigher of grain or hay, in the performance of his duties as such inspector, sampler or weigher, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not less than six months, nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. [L. '11, p. 400, § 7.]

§ 5980-8. Inspection Points.

The cities of Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane shall be provided with state inspection and weighing under this act. Such other cities and towns where grain and hay is received in carload lots or by water craft, and the shipments are such as would reasonably justify and render necessary the inspection of grain or hay, may be designated by the commission as inspection points and be provided with state inspection and weighing: Provided, That the expenditure for the inspection and weighing at the points designated by the commission shall not exceed the receipts of fees at such place or places. [L. '11, p. 400, § 8.]

§ 5980-9. Employees of Commission.

The chief inspector, his deputies, samplers and weighers, shall be employees of the commission and may be removed at any time by the commission. They shall be paid in the same manner as other employees of said commission. [L. '11, p. 401, § 9.]

§ 5980-10. Regulating Charges.

All charges made by any public warehouseman subject to the provisions of this act for the handling or storage of grain and hay shall be just, fair and reasonable; and the commission is hereby vested with power and authority upon the complaint of any person interested or by inquiry upon its own motion, after a full hearing, to declare any existing charge for the handling or storage of grain or hay, or any regulation whatsoever affecting such charge, or the receipt, handling or storage, to be unreasonable or unjust, and to declare and order what shall be a just and reasonable charge or regulation to be imposed or enforced in place of that found to be unreasonable or unjust. [L. '11, p. 401, § 10.]

§ 5980-11. Commissioners' Authority.

All provisions of law relating to the method of procedure by the commission in fixing the rates to be charged by railroad companies for the transportation of freight and passengers, or the promulgation or issuance of rules and regulations, and the review of the acts or orders of such commission with reference thereto, and the enforcement of such orders, shall, so far as the same are applicable, govern the procedure of such commission in regulating public or terminal warehouses, and the review and enforcement of the acts and orders of the commission under the provisions of this act. [L. '11, p. 401, § 11.]

§ 5980-12. Commission to Fix Grades—Witnesses' Salary—Placards.

The commission shall, on or before the first day of July, 1911, fix standard grades to apply to all grain and hay thereafter bought or handled by public or terminal warehouses in this state. Such grades shall be known as Washington grades and shall continue until changed by the commission after notice as provided for the establishment of such grades. Such grades shall be fixed only after a public hearing, notice thereof to be given by two weeks' publication in three principal daily newspapers of the state, one of which, at least, shall be in eastern Washington. All persons desiring to be heard shall have a right to be heard and give such testimony as they may desire to offer. Such witness may be subpoenaed as the commission may deem necessary. The persons subpoenaed by the commission as witnesses shall receive five dollars per diem for the time they are actually employed and necessary traveling expenses. The commission shall at such time, after such hearing, make and issue reasonable rules and regulations governing the dockage which shall be made on inferior grades of grain or hay and in all executory contracts thereafter entered into for the sale of grain or hay where the price or amount to be paid therefor depends upon terminal weight or grade, such rules and regulations shall control the dockage in so far as the same affects the price to be paid, and such rules and regulations shall become part of the contract of sale unless expressly agreed to the contrary in such executory contract.

It shall be the duty of the chief grain inspector immediately after the establishment of such grades and the promulgation of rules and regulations fixing dockage as herein provided, to supply all public and terminal warehousemen which the records in his office show are then or thereafter engaged in operating such warehouses, with a placard copy of such grades, rules and regulations. It shall be the duty of every public or terminal warehouseman to keep such placard posted in a conspicuous place in such warehouse, and if an office is conducted in connection with such warehouse, a copy shall be posted in a conspicuous place in such office. [L. '11, p. 401, § 12.]

§ 5980-13. Commission to Adjust Fees.

The commission shall fix the fees for inspection and weighing of grain and hay, such fees to be a lien upon such grain and hay and to be paid by the carrier transporting the same and treated by it as advanced charges, except when the bill of lading contains the notation "Not for terminal weight and grade" and the grain or hay is not unloaded at a terminal warehouse. The commission shall so adjust the fees to be collected under this act as to meet the expenses necessary to carry out the provisions thereof, provided that the fees fixed for inspection and weighing shall in no case exceed five cents per ton for sacked grain; three cents per ton for bulk grain, and eight cents per ton for hay. All moneys collected under the provisions of this act and all fines and penalties for violation thereof shall be paid into the state treasury. [L. '11, p. 402, § 13.]

§ 5980-14. Record of Cargoes and Grades—Certificate.

The chief inspector, his deputies and weighers, shall at the places provided for state inspection under this act have exclusive control of the weighing and grading of grain and hay which shall be inspected under the provisions of this act and the action and certificate of such inspectors and weighers in the discharge of their duties shall be conclusive upon all parties interested: Provided, however, An appeal may be taken to the commission whose decision shall be final. Suitable books and records shall be kept in which shall be entered a faithful and true record of every car or cargo or part of cargo of grain or hay inspected or weighed by them, showing the number or initial or other designation of such car or cargo or part of cargo, its weight, the kind of grain, or hay and its grade, and if graded below standard No. 1 grade, the reason for such grade, if of inferior grade the amount of such dockage, the amount of fees and forfeitures and disposition of same, and for each car, or cargo or part of cargo of grain or hay inspected they shall give a certificate of inspection showing the kind and grade of the same and the reason for all grades below No. 1, the amount to be allowed for dockage, if any, the number of sacks if sacked grain, or bales of hay, with the grade or grades and weight of same, if requested to do so by consignor or consignee. They shall also furnish the agent of the railroad company or other carrier over which grain was shipped or carried, a certificate showing the weight of the grain or hay, if requested to do so. They shall also keep a true record of all appeals, decisions and a complete record of every official act, which books and records shall be open to inspection by any party in interest. [L. '11, p. 403, § 14.]

§ 5980-15. Misconduct.

Upon written complaint filed with the commission charging any inspector, sampler or weigher with official misconduct, inefficiency, incompetency or neglect of duty, the commission shall investigate such charge, and if it be found sustained, shall remove such officer. [L. '11, p. 404, § 15.]

§ 5980-16. Appeal from Grading.

In case any owner, consignee or shipper of grain, or his agent or broker, or any public or terminal warehouseman shall be aggrieved at the grading of his grain or hay, such aggrieved person may appeal to the commission from such decision within thirty days from the date of certificate, and paying a fee to be fixed by the commission, which shall be refunded if the decision appealed is sustained. Such notice of appeal may be taken by a letter or notice to the commission that it appeals from the decision of the inspector. It shall be the duty of the commission upon receiving such notice to immediately notify the parties interested of the time and place designated by it for a hearing and at such time and place, which shall be within twenty days from the date of receiving such notice hold a hearing and inquire into the reasonableness and correctness of such original grading and such evidence shall be received as the parties thereto may desire to offer. After such hearing the commission shall make such order affirming or modifying the grade so established by the inspector as the facts and evidence may justify. [L. '11, p. 404, § 16.]

§ 5980-17. Fee Fixed by Commission.

All grain and hay received at terminal warehouses shall be inspected and weighed by a state inspector and when exported shall if requested be reinspected and graded in like manner and a certificate of grade issued, a reasonable fee to be charged for such reinspection, said fee to be fixed by the commission. All other grain and hay received in carload lots or, when shipped by water in lots containing more than thirty tons of grain or twelve tons of hay at inspection points, not unloaded at a terminal warehouse, shall be weighed, inspected and graded, unless the bill of lading contains a notation "not subject to inspection or terminal weight or grade." [L. '11, p. 404, § 17.]

§ 5980-18. To Procure License.

Any person, firm, company, corporation or association of persons owning or operating any public or terminal warehouse or warehouses in this state, shall on or before June 30th of each year, procure from the commission, a license for each such warehouse so owned or operated for the ensuing year before transacting business at such public warehouse or warehouses. Such license shall be posted in a conspicuous place in the office of each warehouse. The fee for such license shall be one dollar for each public warehouse, and the commission may revoke any such license for cause, upon notice and hearing. Any person, corporation or association operating any public or terminal warehouse in this state without a license shall forfeit to the state for each day's operation fifty dollars, and such operation may be enjoined upon complaint of the commission. [L. '11, p. 405, § 18.]

§ 5980-19. Post Schedule.

Every such warehouseman shall annually, during the first week in July, publish by posting in a conspicuous place in his warehouse, a schedule of storage rates for the ensuing year, which schedule shall be kept posted in a conspicuous place in said warehouse, and said rates shall not be increased during such year, and no discrimination in rates shall be made by any such warehouseman. [L. '11, p. 405, § 19.]

§ 5980-20. Privilege of Examining.

Every person having an interest in any grain or hay stored in any such warehouse, and every state grain inspector, shall have the right to examine at all times during ordinary business hours any grain or hay so stored, and all parts of such warehouse; and every warehouseman, his agents and servants shall furnish proper facilities for such examination. [L. '11, p. 405, § 20.]

If any public or terminal warehouseman subject to the provisions of this act shall, directly or indirectly, by any special charge, rebate, drawback or other device demand, collect or receive from any person or persons a greater or lesser compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered in the handling or storage of grain or hay than he demands, collects or receives from any other person or persons for doing for him or for them a like and contemporaneous service in the handling or storage of grain or hay under substantially similar circumstances or conditions, or if any such public or terminal warehouseman shall make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any person, company, firm or corporation in any respect whatsoever, or shall subject any particular person, company, firm or corporation to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever, such warehouseman shall be subject to a penalty as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 405, § 21.]

§ 5980-22. Receipt—Failure to Issue.

Every public warehouseman shall receive for storage and shipment, so far as the capacity of his warehouse will permit, all grain and hay in a warehouse used for this purpose, in suitable condition for storage, tendered him in the usual course of business, without discrimination of any kind. A warehouse receipt in form prescribed by the commission, consecutively numbered, shall be issued and delivered to the owner or his representative immediately upon receipt of each load or parcel of grain or hay, or as he may demand, giving the true and correct grade and weight thereof: Provided, That upon request of the owner, grain or hay may be put in a special pile without grading, and if grain or hay has been wet or damaged it shall be received and piled in a special pile, marked with a distinguishing mark, which shall be shown on the receipt for the same and given for the number of sacks only, or bales. The failure to issue, when requested, said receipt, or some slip, memoranda or other form of receipt shall be subject to a penalty as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 406, § 22.]

§ 5980-23. Deliver on Payment of Charges.

Upon the return of the receipt to the proper warehouseman, properly indorsed, and upon payment or tender of all advances and legal charges, grain or hay of the grade and quantity named therein shall be delivered to the holder of such receipt, within forty-eight hours after the facilities for receiving the same have been provided. If such warehouseman shall fail so to deliver it, he shall be liable to the owner in damages at the rate of one cent a bushel for each day's delay, unless he shall deliver the property to the several owners in the order of demand as rapidly as it can be done by ordinary diligence. If upon such demand and tender the warehouseman shall fail so to deliver such grain or hay, the person entitled thereto may recover the same by action; and such warehouseman or person or agent in charge thereof shall be subject to a penalty as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 406, § 23.]

§ 5980-24. Annual Report—Warehouse Inspection.

On June 30th of each year every warehouseman shall make report under oath to the commission on blanks or forms prepared by it showing the total number of sacks and weight of each kind of grain and bales and weight of hay, received and shipped from each warehouse licensed under this act, and also the amount of outstanding storage receipts on said date, and a statement of the amount of grain and hay on hand to cover the same. The commission may also require special reports from such warehouseman at such times as the commission may deem expedient. The commission may cause every such warehouse and business thereof and the mode of conducting the same to be inspected by one or more of its members or by its authorized agent whenever deemed proper, and the property, books, records, accounts, papers and proceedings of every such warehouseman shall at all times during business hours be subject to such inspection. Each person, firm, corporation or association of persons operating any public warehouse or warehouses subject to the provisions of this act shall, on or before the first day of July of each year, give a bond in good and sufficient surety to the state of Washington, in such sum as the commission may require, to be approved by such commission and the attorney general, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the acts and duties enjoined upon them by law. [L. '11, p. 407, § 24.]

Whenever required by the commission every railroad company shall construct and maintain at each station and siding in this state suitable facilities for the purpose of loading bulk grain direct from wagons into cars for shipment. The commission may require an increase in such facilities or additional facilities whenever it deems it necessary for the purpose of loading. [L. '11, p. 407, § 25.]

§ 5980-26. Inspected on Call.

In case grain or hay is sold for delivery on Washington grade to be shipped from places not provided with state inspection under this act, the buyer, seller or persons making the delivery may have it inspected out by notifying the chief inspector or a chief deputy, whose duty it shall be to have such grain inspected, and after it is inspected to issue to the buyer, seller or person delivering it on request, an inspector's certificate showing the grade of such grain. The person or persons calling for such inspection shall pay for such inspection a reasonable fee to be fixed by the commission. [L. '11, p. 408, § 26.]

§ 5980-27. Samples.

It shall be the duty of the chief inspector to transmit samples of grain showing the standards thereof adopted, to such foreign chambers of commerce, boards of trade, exporters and persons, firms, corporations or associations handling and dealing in Washington grain, as the commission may designate, and upon request he shall furnish such samples to similar parties in this state or the United States under such reasonable rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe. [L. '11, p. 408, § 27.]

§ 5980-28. Examination of Cars.

The chief inspector or any deputy inspector, sampler or weigher serving under him before opening the doors of any car containing grain or hay upon arrival at any of the places designated herein for inspection shall first ascertain the condition of such cars and determine whether any leakages have occurred while said cars were in transit, whether or not the doors were properly secured and sealed at point of shipment, and shall make a record of such facts in all cases, giving seal and plug numbers. After such examinations have been made and recorded, and the inspection of such grain or hay has been made, the said officials shall securely close and reseal such doors as have been opened by them, using the special seal of the said state grain inspection department for the purpose. A record of all original seals broken by said officials, and the date when broken, and also a record of all state seals substituted therefor, and the date and number of said seals shall be made by said officials. The chief inspector, his deputies, weighers or samplers shall break the seal, weigh and superintend the unloading of all cars of grain or hay subject to inspection, and any other person or persons breaking the seal or weighing such cars of grain or hay shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 408, § 28.]

§ 5980-29. Sidetracks—Cars—Annual Scale Test.

Any railroad delivering grain or hay in cars at any of the places provided with state inspection under this act shall provide convenient and suitable sidetracks at such places as the commission may designate, on which all cars of grain or hay delivered by them shall, upon arrival, be set and arranged convenient for inspection, and after inspection such railroad company shall promptly distribute all such cars of grain and hay and set them at the proper place or places to be unloaded as designated by the consignor or consignee. Such railroad company shall provide at such place or places as the commission may designate suitable track scales for weighing cars of grain or hay. Such scales shall be under the control of the chief inspector and his deputies. It shall be the duty of the chief inspector or his deputies to require the railroad company to correct all scales so provided as often as may be necessary to insure the correct weighing of grain or hay. Whenever scales have been installed by any railroad company as above provided, it shall be the duty of the chief inspector or his deputies to use such scales in weighing all grain or hay received over the line of such railway: Provided, That if any terminal warehouse in inspection cities are provided with proper scales and weighing facilities, the chief inspector or his deputies may weigh the grain upon the scales so provided. The chief inspector or one of his deputies shall, at least once each year, examine, test and require to be corrected all scales used in weighing grain or hay in any of the cities designated as inspection points in this act, or such places as may be hereafter designated, and after such scale is tested, if found to be correct and in good condition, to seal the weights with a seal provided for that purpose and issue to the owner or proprietor a certificate authorizing the use of such scales for weighing grain or hay for the ensuing year, unless sooner revoked by the chief inspector or his deputy. If such scales be found to be inaccurate or unfit for use, the chief inspector or his deputy shall notify the party operating or using them, and the party thus notified shall, at his own expense, thoroughly repair the same before attempting to use them, and until thus repaired to the satisfaction of the inspector or his deputy, the certificate of such party shall be suspended or revoked, in the discretion of the inspector or his deputy. The party receiving such certificate shall pay to the chief inspector or his deputy a reasonable fee for such inspection and certificate to be fixed by the commission, which sum shall be paid into the state treasury. It shall be the duty of the said commission to see that the provisions of this section are strictly enforced. [L. '11, p. 409, § 29.]

§ 5980-30. Police Protection.

All railroad companies and warehousemen operating in the cities provided for inspection by this act, shall furnish ample and sufficient police protection at all their several terminal yards and terminal tracks to securely protect all cars containing grain or hay, while the same are in their possession. They shall prohibit and restrain all unauthorized persons, whether under the guise of sweepers, or under any other pretext whatever, from entering or loitering in or about their railroad yards or tracks and from entering any car of grain or hay under their control, or removing hay or grain therefrom, and shall employ and detail such number of watchmen as may be necessary for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this section. [L. '11, p. 410, § 30.]

Any railroad company or common carrier, or other corporation, and any warehouseman, which shall violate or fail to comply with any provision of this act; or which fails, omits or neglects to obey, observe or comply with any order, rule, or any direction, demand or requirement of the commission made under the provisions of this act, shall be subject to a penalty of not to exceed the sum of one thousand dollars for each and every offense, and every such violation shall be a separate and distinct offense, and in case of a continuing violation, every day's continuance thereof shall be and be deemed to be a separate and distinct offense.

Every officer, agent or employee of any railroad company or common carrier, or other corporation, or any warehouseman, which shall violate or fail to comply with, or who procures, aids or abets any violation by any such railroad company or common carrier, or other corporation or warehouseman, of any provision of this act, or who shall fail to obey, observe or comply with any order of the commission, or any provision of any order of the commission; or who procures, aids or abets any such railroad company or common carrier, or other corporation, or any warehouseman, in its failure to obey, observe and comply with any such order or provision, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor.

Every person either individually or acting as an official or agent of any corporation other than a railroad company, common carrier or warehouseman, who shall violate any provision of this act, or fail to observe or comply with any order made by the commission under this act, so long as the same shall be or remain in force; or shall procure, aid or abet any such corporation in its violation of this act, or in its failure to obey, observe or comply with any such order, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 410, § 31.]

If any section or part of a section of this act shall be for any cause held to be unconstitutional, such fact shall not affect the remainder of this act. [L. '11, p. 411, § 32.]

CHAPTER IV.

HOTELS.

A contract requiring leased premises to be completely equipped for a restaurant kitchen is presumed to be made in contemplation of this section: Manvell v. Weaver, 53 Wash. 408, 102 Pac. 36.

This act does not provide an unreasonable classification and does not violate the constitutional prohibitions against class legislation, the deprivation of privileges, or of property without due process of law, the delegation of legislative powers, or the invasion of private rights: State v. McFarland, 60 Wash. 98, 140 Am. St. Rep. 909, 110 Pac. 792.

This section violates constitution, article 1, section 17, forbidding imprisonment for debt: State v. McFarland, 60 Wash. 98, 140 Am. St. Rep. 909, 110 Pac. 792.

The unconstitutionality of this section, providing imprisonment for failure to pay the hotel inspection fee, does not affect the validity of the balance of the act providing for the inspection of inns and hotels: State v. McFarland, 60 Wash. 98, 140 Am. St. Rep. 909, 110 Pac. 792.

As to the validity and construction of statute providing for official inspection of inns or hotels, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913B, 827.

CHAPTER V.

OILS.

Repealed. See L. '13, p. 201, § 14.

TITLE XLV.

INSURANCE CODE.

§ 6059-1. Insurance Defined.

Within the intent of this act the business of apportioning and distributing losses arising from specified causes among all those who apply and are accepted to receive the benefits of such service, is public in character and requires that all those having to do with it shall at all times be actuated by good faith in everything pertaining thereto; shall abstain from deceptive or misleading practices, and shall keep, observe, and practice the principles of law and equity in all matters pertaining to such business. Upon the insurer, the insured, and their representatives shall rest the burden of maintaining proper practices in said business.

Insurance is a contract whereby one party called the "insurer," for a consideration, undertakes to pay money or its equivalent, or to do an act valuable to another party called the "insured," or to his "beneficiary," upon the happening of the hazard or peril insured against, whereby the party insured or his beneficiary suffers loss or injury. [L. '11, p. 161, § 1.]

§ 6059-2. Terms Defined.

The terms "Company," "Corporation," or "Insurance Company" or "Insurance Corporation," in this act, unless the context otherwise requires, includes all corporations, associations, partnerships, or individuals engaged as insurers in the business of insurance.

"Domestic" designates those companies incorporated or formed in this state. "Foreign" designates those companies incorporated or formed under the laws of the United States or any other state in the United States, and "Alien" designates those companies incorporated or formed under the laws of any country other than the United States.

"Admitted Company" designates companies duly qualified and licensed to transact business under the provisions of this act. "Nonadmitted Companies" designates companies not licensed to transact business in this state under the provisions of this act.

"Commissioner" or "Insurance Commissioner," where used in this act, shall mean the "State Insurance Commissioner."

"Unearned Premiums," and "Net Value of Policies," severally means the liability of an insurance company upon its insurance contracts, other than accrued claims, computed by rules of valuation established by this act.

"Net Assets" means the property and funds of an insurance company available for the payment of its obligations; including uncollected premiums not more than three months past due on policies actually in force, and including in the case of a mutual company, its premiums, premium notes, and contingent liability of its policy-holders, after deducting from such funds all unpaid losses and claims and all other debts and liabilities except capital.

"Profits" of a mutual insurance company means that portion of its cash funds not required for payment of losses and expenses, nor set apart for any purpose allowed by law.

“Agent” or “Insurance Agent” is a person, copartnership, corporation, attorney, board or committee duly appointed and authorized by an insurance company, to solicit applications for insurance to be known as a soliciting agent, or to solicit applications and effect insurance in the name of the company, to be known as a recording or policy writing agent, and to discharge such other duties as may be vested in or required of the agent by the company.

“Solicitor” or “Insurance Solicitor” is a person duly appointed, authorized and employed by a duly commissioned agent to solicit, receive, and forward applications for insurance and to collect premiums for the agent.

“Broker” or “Insurance Broker” is any person, copartnership or corporation, who, for compensation, not being an appointed agent for the company in which insurance or reinsurance is effected, acts or aids in any manner in negotiating contracts of insurance or reinsurance or placing risks or effecting insurance or reinsurance for a party other than himself or itself.

“Adjuster” or “Insurance Adjuster” is a person, copartnership or corporation who undertakes to ascertain and report the actual loss or damage to the subject matter of the insurance due to the hazard or peril insured against.

“Surveyor” or “Insurance Surveyor” is a person, committee, board, bureau, copartnership, or corporation resident within the state, who, in person or by deputy, inspects and surveys the various municipalities and fire hazards in this state, and the means and facilities for preventing, confining and extinguishing fires, and for the purpose of estimating fair and equitable rates for insurance; who furnishes to municipalities and owners of property information and advice as to the measures to be adopted for the reduction of fire hazards on property in this state and lessening the cost of insurance thereon; and, as relating to marine insurance, who inspects vessels and reports on their seaworthiness.

“Director” within the intent of this act means trustee.

“Insurable Interest” is every interest in property, or any relation thereto, or liability in respect thereof, of such a nature that a contemplated peril might directly damnify the insured. “Insured Interest” in the matter of life and health insurance exists when the beneficiary, because of relationship, either pecuniary or from ties of blood or marriage, has reason to expect some benefit from the continuance of the life of the insured.

“Bottomry” is a contract by which a ship or freight is hypothecated as security for a loan which is to be repaid only in case the ship survives a particular risk, voyage or period.

“Double Insurance” exists where the same party is insured by several insurers separately, in respect to the same subject and interest.

“Over-insurance” exists where a party having an insurable interest in property has insurance thereon against the same hazard or peril in excess of the actual value of his interest therein.

“Reinsurance” means a contract by which an insurer procures a third party to insure it against loss or liability by reason of such original insurance. [L. '11, p. 161, § 2.]

§ 6059-3. State Insurance Commissioner.

There shall be an insurance commissioner of this state, who shall be elected at the same time and in the same manner as other state officers are elected. The insurance commissioner in office at the time of the taking effect of this act shall continue as such insurance commissioner until the expiration of the term for which he was elected and until his successor is duly elected and qualified. [L. '11, p. 164, § 3.]

§ 6059-4. Term of Office—Salary.

The term of office of the state insurance commissioner shall begin on the second Monday in January next after he is elected. The state insurance commissioner shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars per year, which shall be in full for all services performed by him. [L. '11, p. 164, § 4.]

§ 6059-5. Bond.

The state insurance commissioner shall have his office at the state capitol; and before entering upon his duties shall execute a bond to the state in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, to be approved by the state treasurer and the attorney general, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and he shall take and subscribe the oath of office as required by law. His bond, upon its approval, together with his oath of office, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. [L. '11, p. 164, § 5.]

§ 6059-6. Deputy Commissioner—Actuary—Examiner—Salaries.

The state insurance commissioner may appoint a deputy insurance commissioner, who shall take and subscribe the same oath of office as the state insurance commissioner, which oath shall be indorsed upon the certificate of his appointment and filed in the office of the secretary of state. Said appointment may be revoked at the will of the commissioner, who shall be held responsible for all official acts of his said deputy. The deputy insurance commissioner shall receive a salary of two thousand four hundred dollars per year. The commissioner may also appoint an actuary or examiner, who shall receive a salary of two thousand dollars per year. The commissioner may employ a chief clerk at a salary of not to exceed twelve hundred dollars per year, a stenographer at a salary not to exceed seventy-five dollars per month, and such additional clerks and stenographers as the public business in his office may require, at an expense not exceeding the amount appropriated by the legislature.

Neither the commissioner nor any deputy, nor any employee in his office, shall be directly or indirectly interested in any insurance company, except as an ordinary policy-holder. [L. '11, p. 165, § 6.]

§ 6059-7. Certificate of Authority—License—Examination.

The commissioner shall see that all laws respecting insurance companies are faithfully executed. He shall issue all certificates and licenses under the seal of his office provided for by the terms of this act. Before granting certificates of authority to any insurance company to issue policies or make contracts of insurance in this state, the commissioner shall be satisfied by such examination as he may make, or such evidence as he may require, that such company is otherwise duly qualified under the laws of this state to transact business herein. He shall require every domestic insurance company to keep its books, records, accounts and vouchers in such manner that he or his authorized representatives may readily verify its annual statements and ascertain whether the company is solvent and has complied with the provisions of law.

At least once each year, and whenever he determines it to be prudent to do so, he shall personally or by his deputy or examiner visit the home office of each domestic insurance company transacting insurance business and thoroughly inspect and examine its affairs to ascertain its true financial condition, its ability to meet and fulfill its obligations; whether it has complied with the provisions of law; and all other facts that he may require relating to its business methods and management, and its dealings with its policy-holders. Whenever he deems it advisable he shall cause a complete audit of the books and accounts of the company to be made by a disinterested expert accountant.

When he determines it to be prudent for the protection of policy-holders in this state, he shall in like manner visit and examine or cause to be visited and examined by some competent person or persons whom he may appoint for that purpose, any insurance company incorporated or organized in any other state, territory, district, or country, applying for admission or already admitted to do business in this state. For the purpose aforesaid, the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner making the examination shall have free access to all the books, records, accounts, vouchers, papers and files of an insurance company which relate to its business, and to books, records, accounts, vouchers, papers, and files kept by any of its agents, and for any of said purposes the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner conducting such investigation and examination shall have power to subpoena and administer the oath to, and examine as witnesses, the trustees, directors, officers, agents, servants and employees of any such company and any other persons relative to its affairs, transactions and conditions. Said subpoena shall have the same force and effect and shall be served in the same manner as if issued from a court of record. Any person who shall fail, neglect, or refuse to obey such subpoena, or, having obeyed such subpoena, shall refuse to be examined as a witness and give evidence concerning any and all matters relating to such investigation when so required, shall be liable to the same penalties as though such subpoena had been issued by, or such person had refused to give evidence in, a court having jurisdiction in equity and common law. Whenever any person shall fail, refuse or neglect to obey such subpoena, or shall refuse to give evidence concerning any and all matters pertaining to such investigation or examination, the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner having charge of such investigation or examination may forthwith report in writing such disobedience, and file such report and such subpoena with proof of service thereof in a court having said jurisdiction in session in the county where such investigation is being had, and if no court is in session, then with any judge of such court; thereupon such court or judge shall forthwith cause such person so subpoenaed or refusing to give evidence in such investigation to be brought before such court or judge, and such court or judge shall thereupon administer and impose like terms and penalties as though such person had been subpoenaed or had refused to testify or give evidence in any proceedings before such court.

Witness fees and mileage, if claimed, shall be allowed the same as to witnesses testifying in court, which witness fees and mileage with the actual expense, if any, necessarily incurred in securing the attendance of witnesses and their testimony, shall be itemized and charged against and be paid by the company so being examined. Every person shall be obliged to attend as a witness at the place of such investigation or examination when subpoenaed anywhere within this state. [L. '11, p. 165, § 7.]

§ 6059-8. Revocation of Certificate or License—Court Review.

If the commissioner is of the opinion upon examination or other evidence that any insurance company is in an unsound condition, or that it has failed to comply with the law or with the provisions of its charter or articles of incorporation or association, or that its condition is such as to render its proceedings hazardous to the public or to its policy-holders, or that its actual assets exclusive of its capital are less than its liabilities, or if its trustees, directors, officers, or agents refuse to submit to examination or to produce its books, records, accounts, and papers in its or their possession or control relating to its business or affairs, for examination and inspection of the commissioner, his deputy or examiner, when required, or shall refuse to perform any legal obligation relative to such examination, the commissioner shall revoke or suspend all certificates of authority and licenses granted to such insurance company, its officers or agents, and shall cause notice thereof to be given to such company and to each agent of such company in this state, and no new business shall thereafter be done by such company or for such company by its agents, in this state, while such revocation, suspension, or disability continues, nor until its authority to do business is restored by the commissioner.

Unless ground for revocation or suspension relates only to the financial condition or soundness of the company or to the deficiency in its assets, the commissioner shall notify such company not less than ten days before revoking its authority to do business in this state; and he shall specify in such notice the particulars of the alleged violation of law or of its charter or articles of incorporation or association, or grounds for revocation. The superior court, upon petition of such company, brought within twenty days, shall summarily hear and determine the question whether such violation has been committed, or whether it is solvent or in an unsound condition or has exceeded its powers or has failed to comply with any provisions of the law or of its charter or articles of incorporation or association, or that its condition is such as to render its further proceedings hazardous to the public and to its policy-holders, and the court upon such hearing and determination shall make and enter such order or decree as may be proper in the premises. If the order or decree be adverse to the petitioning company and an appeal therefrom is taken to the supreme court, such appeal shall be advanced upon the trial calendar of the supreme court and be heard at as early a date as it can conveniently be tried. In the case of such appeal, the commissioner may revoke the right of said petitioning company to do business in this state until the final determination of the appeal by the supreme court. [L. '11, p. 167, § 8.]

Whenever it appears to the commissioner from any showing or statement made to him or from any examination made by him, his deputy, or examiner, that the capital stock of any domestic insurance company is impaired, or that its assets are insufficient to justify its continuance in business, he shall at once determine the amount of such impairment or deficiency and thereupon issue his written notice and requisition to the company to require its stockholders to make good the amount of the impairment or deficiency with cash or investments authorized by this act, or reduction of its capital stock, not below statutory requirements, within ninety days from the service of the notice and requisition. If the amount of any such impairment or deficiency shall not be made good within the time specified in such notice and requisition and proof thereof filed in the office of the commissioner, the company shall be deemed insolvent and shall be proceeded against as an insolvent company by the attorney general in the manner authorized by this act. If the capital stock of any foreign or alien insurance company doing business in this state is found so impaired, the commissioner shall revoke the certificate of authority issued to such company and licenses issued to its agents, and shall give due notice thereof to such company and each of its agents, and thereupon such company and its agents shall discontinue the issuing of any new policies or contracts of insurance within this state. [L. '11, p. 169, § 9.]

§ 6059-10. Impairment — Mutual Company — Notice and Requisition — Director's Liability.

Whenever it appears to the commissioner from any statement or showing made to him or from an examination made by him, his deputy, or examiner, that the assets and resources of any mutual insurance company are insufficient to justify its continuance in business, he shall promptly determine the amount of such deficiency and thereupon issue his written notice and requisition to the trustees, directors and officers of such company requiring them to make good the amount of such deficiency within ninety days from the service of such notice and requisition. Such notice and requisition may be served by registered letter having affixed proper postage and directed to the company at its principal place of business in this state specified in its articles of incorporation or association. Upon the service of such notice and requisition, the trustees, directors and officers of such company shall forthwith cause such deficiency to be made good, and proof to be filed in the office of the commissioner within the time specified in the notice and requisition that the same has been made good.

For any losses accruing upon new risks taken after the expiration of such time, and before such deficiency shall have been made good, the trustees, directors and officers of the company shall jointly and severally be personally liable therefor. If such deficiency shall not be made good within the time specified in said notice and requisition and satisfactory proof thereof filed with the commissioner, he shall revoke the certificate of authority issued to such company and the license issued to each agent of said company and shall give due notice thereof by registered mail to such company and to each of its agents, and such company shall be deemed insolvent and may be proceeded against by the attorney general as an insolvent corporation in the manner authorized by this act. [L. '11, p. 169, § 10.]

§ 6059-11. Delinquent Insurance Company—Proceedings—Liquidation.

This section shall apply to all domestic companies, societies and orders to which any article of this act is applicable, and the word "company" as herein used shall also include all such associations, societies and orders.

(1) Whenever any such company is insolvent; or has refused to submit its books, papers, accounts or affairs to the reasonable inspection and examination of the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner; or has neglected or refused to observe an order of the commissioner to make good within the time prescribed by law, any deficiency, whenever the capital of a stock company, or the reserve or assets of a mutual company, shall have become impaired; or it has by contract of reinsurance or otherwise, transferred or attempted to transfer substantially its entire property or business, or entered into any transaction the effect of which is to merge substantially its entire property or business in the property or business of any other company without first having obtained the written approval of the commissioner; or if found, after an examination, to be in such condition that its further transaction of business would be hazardous to its policy-holders, or to its creditors, or to its stockholders, or to the public; or has willfully violated its articles of incorporation or association or any law of the state; or whenever any trustee, director, manager, or officer thereof has refused to be examined under oath touching its affairs, the commissioner may, the attorney general representing him, apply to the superior court or any judge thereof, in the county or judicial district in which the principal office of such company is located, for an order directing such company to show cause why the commissioner should not take possession of its property, records and effects and conduct or close its business, and for such other relief as the nature of the case and the interest of its policy-holders, creditors, stockholders or the public may require.

(2) On such application, or at any time thereafter such court or judge may, in its discretion issue an order restraining such company from the transaction of its business or disposition of its property, records and effects until the further order of the court. On the return of such order to show cause, and after a full hearing, the court shall either deny the application or direct the commissioner forthwith to take possession of the property, records and effects, and conduct the business of such company and retain such possession and conduct the business until, on the application of the commissioner, the attorney general representing him, or of such company, it shall, after a like hearing, appear to the court that the cause for such order directing the commissioner to take possession has been removed and that the company can properly resume possession of its property, records, and effects, and the conduct of the business.

(3) If, on a like application and order to show cause, and after a full hearing, the court shall order the liquidation of the business of such company, such liquidation shall be made by and under the direction of the commissioner, who may deal with the property, records, effects and business of such company in his own name as commissioner, or in the name of the company as the court may direct, and he shall be vested by the operation of law with title to all the property, effects, contracts, and rights of action of such company as of the date of the order so directing him to liquidate. The filing or recording of such order in the office of the auditor in any county where property is located in the state shall impart the same notice that a deed, bill of sale, or other evidence of title duly filed or recorded by such company would have imparted.

(4) For the purpose of this section, the commissioner shall have power to appoint, under his hand and official seal, one or more special deputy commissioners, as his assistant or assistants, and to employ such counsel, clerk and other assistants as may by him be deemed necessary, and give each of such persons such powers to assist him as he may consider proper. The compensation of such special deputy commissioners, counsel, clerks and assistants, and all expenses of taking possession of and conducting the business of liquidating any such company shall be fixed by the commissioner, subject to the approval of the court, and shall, on certificate of the commissioner, be paid out of the funds or assets of such company.

(5) For the purpose of this section, the commissioner shall have power, subject to the approval of the court, to make and prescribe such rules and regulations as to him shall seem proper.

(6) The commissioner shall transmit to the legislature, in his annual report, the names of the companies so taken possession of, whether the same have resumed business or have been liquidated, and such other facts as shall acquaint the policy-holders, creditors, stockholders and the public with his proceedings under this section; and, to that end, the special deputy commissioner in charge of any such company shall file annually with the commissioner a report of the affairs of such company.

(7) At any time after the court shall order the liquidation of the business of any such company, as provided in paragraph 3 of this section, the commissioner may apply for the dissolution of such company, and the same, after due notice and hearing and such other procedure as to the court shall seem proper, shall be dissolved. [L. '11, p. 170, § 11.]

§ 6059-12. Increase or Decrease of Capital.

The commissioner shall in person, or by his deputy, or examiner, examine the proceedings of every domestic insurance company to increase or reduce its capital stock, or to change its articles of incorporation or association, and, if found conformable to law, shall issue certificate of authority to such company to transact business upon such increased or reduced capital, or change in its articles of incorporation or association. [L. '11, p. 173, § 12.]

§ 6059-13. Foreign or Alien Company—Appointment of Attorney—Service of Process.

The commissioner shall not issue a certificate of authority to transact any business of insurance in this state to any foreign or alien insurance company until it has executed and filed in his office a written appointment of the insurance commissioner to be the true and lawful attorney of such company in and for this state, upon whom all lawful process in any action or proceedings against such company commenced in any county in this state may be served with the same effect as if it were a domestic company having its principal office in such county. The service upon such attorney shall thereafter be deemed service upon the company.

Service of process against any such insurance company may be had by serving duplicate copies upon the commissioner through the mail by a registered letter, or by an officer or person competent to serve a summons. Upon such service being made, the commissioner shall forthwith mail one of such duplicate copies of such process to such company at its home office or general agency, or in the case of an alien company, to the resident manager, if any, in this country.

In all cases of service of process against such insurance company by serving its said attorney, the commissioner shall collect two dollars, which shall be paid by the plaintiff at the time of such service, the same to be recovered by plaintiff as part of the taxable cost if he prevail in the suit.

The commissioner shall keep a record of all such processes which shall show the day and hour of service: Provided, That in such case no proceedings shall be had within forty days after the date of such service upon the commissioner. [L. '11, p. 173, § 13.]

§ 6059-13½. Venue of Action on Insurance Policy.

Any insurance company may be sued upon a policy of insurance in any county within this state where the cause of action arose, by serving the summons and a copy of the complaint upon the company, if a domestic company, or upon the commissioner, as attorney in fact of the company, if an alien or foreign company, or upon any duly licensed agent of the company residing in the county where the cause of action arose. [L. '11, p. 174, § 13½.]

§ 6059-14. Annual Statement Blanks.

The commissioner shall annually, in December, furnish to each insurance company authorized to do business in this state, two or more blank forms on which to make its annual statement. [L. '11, p. 174, § 14.]

§ 6059-15. Records of Commissioner—Certified Copy—Evidence.

The commissioner shall preserve in a permanent form a record of his proceedings, including a concise statement of the result of all investigations or examinations of insurance companies.

The commissioner shall furnish, when required for evidence in court, certificate under seal of the department relative to the authority of the company, agent or broker to transact business in this state upon any particular date, and such certificates shall be received by the court in lieu of the testimony of the commissioner, his deputy, or chief clerk. [L. '11, p. 175, § 15.]

§ 6059-16. Commissioner's Report—Contents and Printing.

The commissioner shall transmit to the legislature at the opening of its session, or as early thereafter, as is consistent with full and accurate preparation, a report of his official transactions and a report containing in a condensed form statements made to the commissioner by every insurance company authorized to do business in this state pursuant to the provisions of this act, and such statements and reports shall be audited and corrected by him, all arranged in tabular form or in abstracts, which report shall also contain:

(1) A statement of all insurance companies authorized to do business in this state during the year ending the thirty-first day of December next preceding, with their names, locations, amounts of capital, dates of incorporation and of the commencement of business, and kinds of insurance in which they are engaged respectively.

(2) A statement of the insurance companies whose business has been closed since making his last report and the reasons for closing the same, with the amount of their assets and liabilities so far as the same are known or can be ascertained by him.

(3) The names and compensation of the clerks employed by him and the whole amount, itemized, of the expenses of the department during such period.

(4) Any amendments to this act which in his judgment may be desirable.

In addition to two hundred fifty copies of the insurance report for the use of the legislature, there shall be printed and bound by the state printer the necessary number of copies of such report for the use of the insurance department.

The commissioner shall furnish each of the county clerks of this state, quarterly, a certified list of all insurance companies doing business in this state under and by authority of this act, and such certificates shall be posted in the office of the county clerk for the inspection of the public.

The commissioner shall compile and have printed at the expense of the state, all books, blanks, insurance laws in pamphlet form for distribution, and other matters necessary for the proper administration of the department. [L. '11, p. 175, § 16.]

§ 6059-17. Fees and Licenses.

The commissioner shall require in advance the following fees and licenses:

For filing articles of incorporation or charter, or certified copy of articles or charter, by-laws or other record of organization required to be filed in his office.....	$25.00
For filing amended articles of incorporation or charter, or certified copy thereof	10.00
For issuing certificate of authority.....	10.00
For each renewal certificate of authority.....	10.00
For filing annual statement of condition and report of Washington business	20.00
For filing other miscellaneous papers.....	1.00
For copy of papers filed in his office, per folio.....	.20
For certificate under seal	1.00
For each agent's license.....	2.00
For each solicitor's license.....	2.00
For each broker's license	100.00
For each agent's license for unauthorized companies.....	100.00 and such other fees as may be provided in this act.

All fees so collected shall be paid to the state treasurer, not later than the first business day following the receipt of such fees, and be placed to the credit of the general fund.

All agents', solicitors' and brokers' licenses to be transferable upon approval of the commissioner. Licenses issued to copartnerships or corporations to act as insurance agents or brokers shall permit each member of the copartnership or officer of the corporation to solicit or effect insurance, and the names of such members or officers shall be specified and appear in the license. [L. '11, p. 176, § 17.]

§ 6059-18. Application of General Laws.

The general provisions of law relating to the powers, duties and liabilities of corporations shall apply to all incorporated insurance companies, so far as such provisions are pertinent to and not in conflict with other provisions of law relating to such companies. [L. '11, p. 177, § 18.]

§ 6059-19. Name of Company to Appear on Policy.

Every insurance company shall conduct its business in this state in its own name, and the policies and contracts of insurance issued by it shall be headed or entitled by such name: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to any insurance company admitted to this state and issuing an underwriter's policy, prior to January 1, 1911; two or more companies may jointly issue an underwriters' policy upon which must appear the names of the companies guaranteeing the same and such companies shall be jointly and severally liable thereon. [L. '11, p. 177, § 19.]

§ 6059-20. Companies—Agent—Broker—Surveyor—Adjuster—Governed.

All domestic insurance companies, now or hereafter formed under the laws of this state, and every insurance agent, solicitor, broker, surveyor, or adjuster, doing business in this state, and all insurance business transacted in whole or in part within or outside of this state, the subject matter of which insurance is located wholly or in part in this state, and any marine insurance made, effected, or placed by any company through any agent or broker in this state, unless otherwise provided, shall be subject to and be governed by this act; and the records of each insurance company, agent, solicitor, broker, surveyor or adjuster doing business in this state shall be subject to the inspection and examination of the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner. [L. '11, p. 177, § 20.]

See notes to § 6059-235.

§ 6059-21. Preliminary Requirements—Papers to be Filed.

Every insurance company before engaging in the business of insurance in this state must file in the office of the insurance commissioner a legally authenticated duplicate or copy of its charter, articles of incorporation or association, or record of its organization and by-laws, as follows:

First. If a domestic company, a copy of its articles of incorporation or association, together with any amendments or alterations made therein.

Second. If a foreign or alien company, a copy of its articles of incorporation, charter, and by-laws, including all amendments or alterations made therein, with a certificate duly certified by the officer having custody of such articles or charter, under his seal of office, that such company is duly authorized under the laws of such state or country to do business therein, and a certificate showing the amount of capital stock and assets as required by this act.

Third. If not incorporated under the laws of this or any other state or country, a copy of the record of its organization, and a certificate setting forth the nature and character of the business, the location of the principal office, the name and address of persons composing the company, the amount of the capital therein employed, and the names and addresses of the officers of the company, and if such company be formed outside of the United States, the certificate must contain the name of the chief executive officer or manager in the United States, together with the trustees or directors appointed by the company to manage its affairs in the United States, and the certificates may be made by such manager: Provided, further, That such company must furnish a legally authenticated copy of the laws of the country of its organization applicable to its business and affairs, which laws shall be filed in the office of the insurance commissioner, and a certified copy thereof, under the seal of the commissioner, may be received in evidence in any cause or proceeding had in the courts of the state. [L. '11, p. 178, § 21.]

§ 6059-22. Capital and Assets Required—Deposits.

Every insurance company, except ocean marine insurance, before transacting any business of insurance in this state, must own, have and possess in its own exclusive name and right, paid-up, unimpaired capital, if a stock company; or must own, have and possess, in its own exclusive name and right, net assets unimpaired, of the kind required by this act, if it be a mutual company, fully equal to the minimum amount paid up in cash or assets required by the provisions of this act to entitle any insurance company to be authorized to transact like business. No part of said capital or assets shall consist of the capital stock, investments, property or assets of any other insurance company or organization, nor shall said capital or assets include any sum or thing of value not acquired, produced, earned, and owned exclusively by such company in its own right: Provided:

First. That each alien insurance company admitted to do business in this state, shall not transact any business of insurance in this state, unless it shall have within the United States deposited with insurance departments, or held in trust as hereinafter provided, not less than two hundred thousand dollars invested in like manner as the capital of a similar domestic insurance company is required to be invested;

Second. The capital of such alien insurance company admitted to do business in this state shall, for the purposes of this act, be the aggregate value of such sums or securities as such company shall have on deposit in the department of this state, and of the other states of the United States, for the benefit of policy-holders in the United States, excepting therefrom such sums as are held by other states for the special protection of policy-holders in such states, and of all bonds and mortgages for money loaned on real estate in this state, or in any state of the United States, if such loan shall be made in conformity with the laws of such state providing for the incorporation of insurance companies therein and the investment of their capital; and of all other assets and property in the United States, in which insurance companies may invest under provisions of this act, if such bonds and mortgages, assets and property shall be held in the United States by trustees who are citizens of the United States, approved by the commissioner, or deposited with a trust company to be approved by him for the general benefit and security of all its policy-holders in the United States; after making the same deductions from such aggregate value for losses, debts, and liabilities, in this and the other states of the United States, and for premiums upon risks therein not yet expired, as is authorized or required by the laws of this state, or the regulation of its insurance department with respect to insurance companies organized under the laws of this state;

Third. In addition to the reports required by law of any such alien insurance company, it shall annually, in the month of February, render to the commissioner a detailed statement of the items making up such capital, and the deductions to be made therefrom, signed and verified by the manager and a majority of the trustees, or, if a trust company, by the proper officers thereof, of the company residing in the United States, and the commissioner shall, thereupon, and from such examinations as he may make of the affairs of the company, determine the amount of such capital as of the first day of January, and issue to such company a certificate of the amount of its capital so determined; and, if it shall at any time appear that the net capital for which the last certificate shall be outstanding has been materially reduced, the commissioner may call in such certificate and issue another, reciting such reduced capital: Provided, The capital is not reduced below the sum of two hundred thousand dollars;

Fourth. When any part of its capital is held by trustees or by a trust company, pursuant to the provisions of this section, such trustees or trust company shall be appointed by the board of managers or directors of such alien insurance company, and a duly certified copy of the vote or resolution creating the trust shall, with a certified copy of such trust deed, be filed in the office of the insurance commissioner; and the commissioner may examine such trustees or the agent or attorney of the company in the same manner as he is authorized by this act to examine the affairs and funds of any domestic insurance company; but the commissioner shall, upon the written request of any such alien insurance company, transfer to trustees duly appointed by it, under the provisions of this section any excess of securities which it shall have deposited with him above the sum of two hundred thousand dollars;

Fifth. The deposit required of such company shall be reckoned and considered as the sum of two hundred thousand dollars, which shall be in approved securities, and deposited in the manner authorized by law. The commissioner may also allow such additional deposits as said alien company shall make, but any additional amounts now on deposit, or which may hereafter be deposited, shall be received and held as a voluntary deposit, in trust for all the policy-holders of said company in the United States, and any securities in excess of said two hundred thousand dollars as aforesaid shall, on the written request of said company, be transferred to the trustees appointed by said company, as by this section provided: Provided, further:

Sixth. That no alien company, except co-operative life and fraternal beneficiary insurance companies, shall transact any business of insurance in this state, unless, if it transact fire insurance in this state, it has deposited with the proper insurance department or legal custodian of such deposit in this or any other state or states or district of the United States, for the benefit and security of its policy-holders in the United States, a sum not less than two hundred thousand dollars, invested as in this act required; or if it transact in this state one or more of the other kinds of insurance business permitted by the provisions of this act to be transacted by any such company, it has deposited with the insurance department or legal custodian for like purposes, such amount as may be required of domestic insurance companies doing the same kind of business. Any alien company authorized to transact the business of fire insurance in this state may be authorized to transact the business of ocean marine insurance: Provided, That it has an additional capital of one hundred thousand dollars, and file with the insurance department annually a separate financial statement of each class of business. [L. '11, p. 179, § 22.]

§ 6059-23. Authorized Investment.

The capital stock of every domestic insurance company required to have a capital to the extent of the minimum capital required by law, shall be invested and kept invested as follows:

First. In the legally issued bonds, warrants, and securities of the United States, or the District of Columbia, or of any state of the United States, not estimated above their current market value; or,

Second. In the legally issued bonds, warrants, and securities, of any county, incorporated city, or incorporated school district in this state, which has not defaulted in the payment of interest on any of its bonds, warrants, or securities within three years, and which shall not be estimated above their par value, nor their current market value; or,

Third. In the legally issued bonds and mortgages on improved unencumbered real property in this state: Provided, That such encumbrance does not exceed fifty per centum of the reasonable cash market value of such real property at the time of said loan; and where buildings or other improvements constitute a material part of the value of the mortgaged premises, they shall be kept insured against loss or damage by fire in a reasonable amount for the benefit of the mortgagee.

Fourth. The capital of every foreign or alien insurance company to the extent of the minimum capital required of a like domestic corporation shall be invested and kept invested in the same class of securities specified for domestic insurance corporations, except that securities of the home state, or country, of such company may be recognized as legal investments for an amount of the minimum capital required by this act.

Fifth. The residue of the capital and the surplus money and funds of every domestic insurance company over and above the amount of the minimum capital and the deposit it is required to make through the office of the insurance commissioner with the state treasurer, may be invested in or loaned on the pledge of any of the securities in which such deposits are required to be invested:

Provided, That the amount loaned on mortgages or improved unencumbered real property does not exceed fifty per centum of the reasonable cash market value of such real property; and, when authorized and directed by a majority vote of all of the directors or trustees of the company, taken and recorded as an aye and nay vote in a board meeting duly called and convened, whereof each director or trustee must be given not less than one day's notice, may be invested in or loaned upon the legally issued bonds or warrants of, or local improvement bonds in any solvent municipal corporation, or in the legally issued bonds or securities of any solvent corporation incorporated under the laws of the United States or of any state thereof: Provided, That no investment or loan shall be made in or upon the stocks or bonds of any corporation unless the entire issue of its capital stock has been fully paid in in cash or property actually necessary for its use having a reasonable cash market value fully equal to the amount at which it is accepted by said corporation; and, when so authorized and directed by a majority vote of all of the directors or trustees of the company, may be invested in or loaned upon the legally issued bonds of any solvent irrigation district created as by law provided in this state or in any other state of the United States, whose water rights shall have been legally acquired and finally determined and shall be fully adequate to supply sufficient water to properly irrigate all lands within such district, and whose storage reservoirs, canals, ditches, flumes, feeders, machinery, equipment, and other works and improvements shall have been acquired, owned, and constructed and be unencumbered except as to such bond issue, and shall be reasonably adequate to fully supply and properly serve such district, and shall have been so far constructed and completed as to be in regular operation and use and adequately irrigating not less than thirty per centum of the lands within such irrigation district; and, may be loaned on mortgages on improved unencumbered real property in any state in the United States: Provided, The amount of such loan does not exceed fifty per centum of the reasonable cash market value of such real property at the time of such loan, and where buildings constitute a material part of the value of such mortgaged premises, they shall be kept insured against loss or damage by fire, lightning, windstorms and cyclones in a reasonable amount for the benefit of the mortgagee.

The capital and funds of a domestic insurance company shall not be invested in or loaned upon its own stock or the stock of any other insurance company, or the stock of any oil or mining company, or the stock of any fish, fruit, or vegetable canning company, nor shall they be invested in the stock of any corporation whose stockholders may be legally liable in excess of the par value of the stock for assessment to raise funds to pay the indebtedness of such corporation. Neither shall they be invested in or loaned upon the stock of any corporation in which any officer, director, or trustee of such insurance company is a stockholder or has any direct or indirect or contingent interest in such proposed investment or loan; but when authorized by the aye and nay vote of the majority of all the directors or trustees of such insurance company having no such interest, taken and recorded at a board meeting duly called and convened to pass upon such proposed investment or loan, whereof each director or trustee must be given not less than one day's notice, such funds may be loaned to any officer, director, or trustee of such insurance company or to any company or corporation in which either of them may be interested, upon any other securities authorized by this section.

Sixth. Every domestic company organized to make insurance against loss and damage by reason of defective titles to property or encumbrance thereon, and to guarantee the validity and legality of bonds or other evidence of indebtedness issued by any state, city, county, town, school dis-strict, municipality, or by any private or public corporation, or to guarantee or indemnify merchants or others engaged in business and giving credit, from loss and damage by reason of giving and extending credit to their customers, shall invest its capital and funds not required and permitted by this act to be invested in its plant, in the same kind of securities as the funds of a domestic insurance company are required by this section to be invested.

Seventh. Every domestic company doing business in other states of the United States or in foreign countries, may invest the funds required to meet its obligations, incurred in such other state or foreign country, and in conformity to the laws thereof, in the same kind of securities of such other state or foreign country that such company is by law allowed to invest in this state.

Eighth. Any life insurance company may lend a sum not exceeding the legal reserve which it owes, upon any policy upon the pledge to it of said policy and its accumulations as collateral security, but nothing in this section shall be held to authorize one insurance company to obtain by purchase or otherwise, the control of any other insurance company.

Ninth. A domestic insurance company may invest in such real property as shall be requisite for its home offices in the transaction of its business and may rent space therein not immediately required for its own use: Provided, That no such investment shall be made that will reduce the amount of the surplus assets, exclusive of such investment, to less than fifty per centum of the minimum capital required by law, of such company: Provided, further, That no such investment shall be made by a domestic mutual insurance company that will reduce the amount of the surplus assets, exclusive of such investment, of such company to less than fifty thousand dollars.

Tenth. No domestic insurance company shall make any investments or loan of its capital, surplus, or reserve to any one person, firm or corporation in excess of ten per centum of the amount of its paid-up capital and surplus, and no loan shall be made for a longer period than one year, which, upon proper showing and security, may be extended not to exceed one year, except that loans upon improved unencumbered real property may be made for any term, not exceeding ten years:.

Provided, That all investments and loans of the capital and funds of any domestic insurance company, except as provided in paragraph 9 of this section, shall be made and kept invested in and loaned on interest or dividend bearing securities, whereon default for interest has not been made during three years next prior to the making of such loan, and the regular annual dividends, in the case of investments in stocks, shall have been actually earned and paid out of the net profit, of not less than four per centum, of the par value of such stock during each of the five years next preceding the time of such investment: And,

Provided, further, That all property, securities, investments, and loans held by any domestic insurance company when this act takes effect, which investments in or loans on such property or securities are prohibited by or contrary to the provisions of this section, shall be sold and disposed of and the proceeds thereof invested as provided by this section, within two years from the time when this act shall take effect, and such property, securities, investments, or loans shall not be held for a longer period unless, owing to general financial and business depression, such investments may not be readily converted into funds and reinvested as by this section provided without material sacrifice, in which event, upon a proper showing and application made to the commissioner, he may extend the said period for a reasonable time, not exceeding two years.

With each investment or loan made of the capital and funds of any domestic insurance company shall be made and signed a written report by the officer, director, trustee, or acting chairman of the committee of directors or trustees making or authorizing such investment or loan on the part of such company, stating the amount so invested or loaned, a brief description of the securities or property in which such investment or loan is made, the reasonable cash market value thereof, and in case of a loan, the rate of interest, and amount of insurance carried to protect the mortgagee, and in case of an investment, the rate of interest or annual dividend earned and paid during the five years next preceding; whether any officer, director, or trustee of such insurance company has any direct, indirect, or contingent interest in the securities in which such investment, or on which such loan is made, or in the assets of the business, person, copartnership, or corporation in whose behalf such loan or investment is made, and if so, the name of the officer, director, or trustee, and the character and extent of such interest, the name of the attorney who passes upon such transaction and the substance of his report; the amount of the expense and commission, if any, on such investment or loan, by whom paid and to whom paid, which report shall be recorded in a book to be kept by the company known as "Reports on Loans and Investments," which shall be at all times open to the inspection of the commissioner or his deputy, and any stockholder of such company.

All investments, loans and deposits of the funds and securities of each domestic insurance company, and all purchases on behalf of every domestic insurance company, and all sales made of the property and effects of such company, shall be made in its corporate name, and no officer, director, or trustee thereof, and no agent, attorney, or member of a committee having any authority in the investment or disposition of its funds, shall accept, except for the company, or be the beneficiary of, either directly or remotely, any fee, brokerage, commission, gift, or other consideration for or on account of any loan, deposit, purchase, sale, payment or exchange made by or on behalf of such company, or be pecuniarily interested in any such purchase, sale, loan, or investment, either as borrower, principal, coprincipal, agent, attorney, or beneficiary, except that he may procure a loan from such company direct, as provided in paragraph 5 of this section, and if a policyholder, he shall be entitled to all the benefits accruing under the terms of his contract.

No investment, sale, or loan, except loans on its own policies, shall be made which has not first been authorized by the board of directors, or by a committee thereof charged with the duty of investing or loaning the funds of the company, nor shall any deposit be made in a bank or banking institution, unless such bank has first been approved as a bank of deposit by the board of directors or said committee thereof, and unless a vote authorizing such investment, sale, or loan, or approval of the place of deposit, has been duly recorded in the books of the company.

Every domestic insurance company shall have the right to acquire title to any property under the conditions of any mortgage owned by it, or by purchase or setoff on execution upon judgment for debts due it previously contracted in the course of its business, or by any process in settlement for debts; if such company acquires title to or lien upon any property or securities which it may not otherwise invest in, or loan its funds upon, under the provisions of this section, such company shall dispose of all such personal property within one year, and real property within three years, from the time of acquiring same, and the commissioner, upon proper showing and application, may extend such period a reasonable time, not exceeding two years. [L. '11, p. 182, § 23.]

Every foreign insurance company doing business in this state and required by this act to have a cash capital, shall deposit and keep on deposit with the state treasurer, through the office of the insurance commissioner of this state, the same amount and character of securities which a like domestic company is required to deposit with the depository for securities of insurance companies of the state by which laws such insurance company is incorporated.

When any state shall require insurance companies of other states to deposit with some officer of such other state securities in trust for policyholders of such company as a prerequisite to their transacting business in such state, the treasurer of this state shall receive on deposit from any domestic insurance company the securities required by the laws of such other state.

Every domestic insurance company required by this act to deposit securities to the amount as provided by this act shall deposit such securities with the state treasurer, and any domestic insurance company may deposit such securities with the state treasurer for the protection of all policyholders of such company. Every domestic insurance company hereafter organized shall deposit with the state treasurer authorized securities in the sum of fifty thousand dollars at or prior to the time it receives a certificate of authority to commence effecting insurance, and the commissioner shall within one year thereafter require such company to make further deposits of such securities sufficient to equal in the aggregate the amount of the minimum capital required by this act of such company.

Every insurance company, required by this act to have a cash capital, shall, on or before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and twelve, deposit and keep on deposit, with the state treasurer through the office of the commissioner, its funds and securities equal in amount and value to the minimum cash capital required by this act of such company, and which deposits shall be exchanged for investments authorized as provided by this act.

The funds, securities, and investments so deposited and kept on deposit with the state treasurer, or any trust company designated by him as herein authorized, shall be held as security for the protection of all policyholders having policies duly issued by such company, or by any of its agents.

During the time such company continues solvent, and complies with the law, it shall be permitted to collect the interest and dividends accruing on such securities, and such funds, securities, and investments so deposited, may be exchanged from time to time for other authorized securities of equal amount and value, at the election and upon the request of the company depositing the same: Providing, That if any such company now has on deposit, or shall hereafter deposit, with the proper insurance depositary, of similar securities in any other state, or district in the United States, or of the United States, in accordance with the laws thereof, the commissioner, upon proper showing and application, to be made by such company, may allow such company credit on account of the amount and value of the deposit required to be made by it in this state, to the amount and value of the securities so kept by it on deposit in such other state or district or government, and may allow such company to withdraw and transfer, of the securities deposited with the state treasurer, the amount so deposited, and kept on deposit in such other state, or district, or government.

The state treasurer may appoint and designate any solvent trust company organized under the laws of this state, and doing business in the city where the principal office of any domestic insurance company is located, the state treasurer's depositary, to receive and hold on deposit, any funds, securities and investments provided by this section to be deposited with the state treasurer. All funds, securities, and investments, deposited as provided by this act, shall be registered by the commissioner in accordance with such rules as he may promulgate. No transfer of securities, so held on deposit, shall be valid unless countersigned by the state treasurer, his deputy, or authorized agent.

The state treasurer shall keep in his office a book in which shall be entered the name of the company from whose account such transfer of securities is made, the name of the transferee, the par value of the securities transferred, and the amount for which every mortgage transfer is held. The state treasurer shall have access at all times, during office hours, to the books and records of the commissioner, for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of the entries upon the same, of any transfer; and the commissioner shall have access, during office hours, to the books or records herein kept by the state treasurer, to ascertain the correctness of the entries upon the same. The state treasurer shall state in his report to the legislature, the total amount of such deposits held by him and of such transfers countersigned by him.

Whenever any insurance company making such deposit of its securities with the state treasurer, shall sustain losses in excess of its other resources, the commissioner, upon proper showing and application, may authorize and direct the state treasurer to turn over and deliver so much of the securities of such company, to the commissioner, or such insurance company, or such person as the superior court of this state may appoint for such purpose, as shall be necessary to provide funds sufficient to pay its losses, and such securities shall not be used for any other purpose. The commissioner may allow such insurance company a reasonable time, to be determined by the commissioner, upon proper showing and application, to be made by such company, in which to deposit with the state treasurer, securities authorized by law, equal in amount and value to the securities so withdrawn: And provided, That any company entering into a reinsurance contract, whereby its entire business is to be reinsured as provided in this act, the commissioner may, upon application and proper showing, release the deposit securities held by the state treasurer to the credit of said company upon being satisfied that all outstanding obligations of said company have been paid or assumed by the reinsuring company. [L. '11, p. 188, § 24.]

§ 6059-25. State Responsible.

The state of Washington shall be responsible for the safekeeping and return of all securities deposited with it pursuant to the provisions of this act. [L. '11, p. 191, § 25.]

§ 6059-26. Annual Statement.

All insurance companies now doing business in this state, or that may hereafter do business in this state, unless otherwise provided in this act, must make and file with the commissioner annually, on or before the fifteenth day of February in each year, a statement under oath, upon a form to be prescribed and furnished by the commissioner, stating the amount of all premiums collected, or contracted for by the company making such statement, in this state, during the year ending December thirty-first, next preceding; the amounts actually paid policy-holders on losses; the amounts paid policy-holders as return premiums; the amounts paid policy-holders as dividends; the amount of insurance reinsured in other companies authorized to do business in this state, and the amount of premiums paid therefor; and the amount of insurance reinsured in companies, naming them, not authorized to do business in this state, and the amount of premiums paid therefor; and the amount of reinsurance accepted from admitted companies and the premiums received for such reinsurance on risks located in this state, with the name of the companies so reinsured.

The commissioner shall file a copy of such verified statement or schedule with the state treasurer, and said company shall pay to the state treasurer, through the insurance commissioner's office, a tax of two and one-quarter per centum on all premiums collected, or contracted for: Provided, That in the case of companies engaged in fire or marine insurance the tax shall be collected on such premiums, after deducting from the gross amount thereof the amounts paid to policy-holders as returned premiums and the amounts paid as premiums to admitted companies for reinsurance, and in the case of life insurance companies the tax shall be collected on the gross amount of premiums, after deducting therefrom the amounts paid as premiums to admitted companies for reinsurance: And provided, further, That if any such company, corporation or association shall have fifty per centum or more of its assets invested in any bonds or warrants of this state, or bonds or warrants of any county, city, or district within this state, or in taxable property within this state, or in first mortgages upon improved real estate within this state, then the tax shall be but one per centum on the amount so collected.

The taxes herein provided for shall be due and payable on the first day of March succeeding the filing of the statement provided for herein.

Any company, failing or refusing to render such statement and information, and to pay taxes herein specified, for more than thirty days after the time specified, shall be liable for a fine of twenty-five dollars for each additional day of delinquency, and such tax may be collected by distraint, and such fine may be recovered by an action, to be instituted by the commissioner, in the name of the state, the attorney general representing him, in any court of competent jurisdiction. The amount of the fine collected shall be paid to the state treasurer and credited to the general fund; and the commissioner may revoke and annul the certificate of authority of such delinquent company, until such taxes and fine, should any be imposed, are fully paid.

The annual statement made to the commissioner, pursuant to this section, or other provisions of law, shall at least include the substance of that required by what is known as the "Convention Blank Form," adopted from year to year, by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, and shall also include such other information as may be required by the commissioner. [L. '11, p. 192, § 26.]

No domestic insurance company shall pay any salary, compensation, or emolument to any officer, trustee or director thereof, nor any salary, compensation, or emolument, amounting in any year to more than five thousand dollars, to any person, firm, or corporation, unless such payment be first authorized and directed by a vote of two-thirds of the board of directors of such company, duly taken and recorded in the minutes of a board meeting.

No such company shall make any agreement with any of its officers, trustees, or salaried employees, whereby it agrees that for any service rendered, or to be rendered, they shall receive any salary, compensation, or emolument that will extend beyond a period of five years from the date of such agreement; nor shall it pay any pension whatsoever. [L. '11, p. 193, § 27.]

§ 6059-28. Vouchers for Expenditures.

No domestic insurance company shall make any disbursement of twenty-five dollars or more, unless the sum be evidenced by a voucher, signed by or on behalf of the person, firm, or corporation receiving the money, and accordingly describing the consideration for the payment, if the same be for services and disbursements, setting forth the service rendered and an itemized statement of the disbursements made, and if it be in connection with any matter pending before any legislature or public body, or before any department, or officer of any government, accordingly describing in addition the nature of the matter, and of the interest of such corporation or organization therein, or, if such a voucher cannot be obtained by an affidavit stating the reason for not obtaining such voucher, and setting forth the particulars above mentioned. [L. '11, p. 194, § 28.]

§ 6059-29. Business Authorized.

No domestic insurance company shall transact any business other than that specified in its articles of incorporation, and no foreign or alien insurance company, admitted to transact business in this state under the provisions of this act, shall transact any other kind of business than that which it has been authorized to transact. [L. '11, p. 194, § 29.]

§ 6059-30. Policy Provisions Voided.

No domestic, foreign, or alien insurance company transacting business in this state, shall hereafter make, issue, or deliver herein, any policy or contract of insurance, except policies or contracts of ocean marine insurance, containing any condition, stipulation, or agreement, requiring such contract of insurance to be construed according to the laws of any other state or country, or depriving the courts of this state of the jurisdiction of action against such company to a period of less than one year from the time when the cause of action accrues; and any such condition, stipulation, or agreement shall be void, and such policy shall be binding upon the company having issued it. [L. '11, p. 194, § 30.]

§ 6059-31. Policy—Application—Contract.

Every contract of insurance shall be construed according to the terms and conditions of the policy, except where the contract is made pursuant to a written application therefor, and such written application is intended to be made a part of the insurance contract, and the insurance company making such insurance contract, unless as otherwise provided by this act, shall deliver a copy of such application with the policy to the assured, and thereupon such application shall become a part of the insurance contract, and failing so to do it shall not be made a part of the insurance contract. [L. '11, p. 195, § 31.]

§ 6059-32. Combination and Agreements Prohibited.

If any insurance company authorized to transact business in this state, or any agent or representative thereof, shall, either within or outside of this state, directly or indirectly, enter into any contract, understanding, or combination, with any other insurance company, or any agent or representatives thereof, for the purpose of controlling the rates to be charged for insuring any risk, or class or classes of risks, in this state, the commissioner shall forthwith revoke its license, and those of its agents, and no renewal of the licenses shall be granted until after the expiration of three years from the date of final revocation. [L. '11, p. 195, § 32.]

No insurance company, by itself or any other party, and no licensed insurance agent, solicitor, or broker, personally or by any other party, shall offer, promise, allow, give, set off, or pay, directly or indirectly, any rebate of, or part of, the premium payable on the policy, or on any policy, or agent's commission thereon, or earnings, profit, dividends, or other benefit founded, arising, accruing or to accrue thereon, or therefrom, or any other valuable consideration or inducement to or for insurance, on any risk in this state now or hereafter to be written, which is not specified in the policy contract of insurance; nor shall any such company, agent, solicitor, or broker, personally or otherwise, offer, promise, give, sell, or purchase any stocks, bonds, securities, or property, or any dividends or profits accruing or to accrue thereon, or other thing of value whatsoever as inducement to insurance or in connection therewith which is not specified in the policy. The license of any insurance company, agent, solicitor, or broker who violates the provisions of this section shall be revoked and no license shall be issued to such company, agent, solicitor, or broker within one year from the date of the revocation of the license.

No insured person or party shall receive or accept, directly or indirectly, any rebate of premium or part thereof, or agent's, solicitor's, or broker's commission thereon payable on the policy, or on any policy of insurance, or any favor or advantage or share in the dividend or other benefits to accrue thereon, or any valuable consideration or inducement, not specified in the policy contract of insurance; the amount of the insurance whereon the insured has received or accepted, either directly or indirectly, any rebate of the premium or agent's, solicitor's, or broker's commission thereon, shall be reduced in such proportion as the amount or value of such rebate, commission, dividend, or other consideration so received by the insured, bears to the total premium on such policy, and any such insured shall be liable, in addition to having the insurance reduced, to a fine of not more than two hundred dollars. No person shall be excused from testifying, or from producing any books, papers, contracts, agreements, or documents at the trial of any person charged with violating any provision of this act, on the ground that such testimony or evidence may tend to incriminate himself, but no person shall be prosecuted for any act concerning which he shall be compelled so to testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, except for perjury committed in so testifying. Rebates affecting life insurance shall be governed by section 180 of this act. [L. '11, p. 195, § 33.]

§ 6059-34. Warranty not to Avoid Policy Unless Deceptive.

No oral or written misrepresentation or warranty made in the negotiation of a contract or policy of insurance, by the assured or in his behalf, shall be deemed material or defeat or avoid the policy or prevent it attaching, unless such misrepresentation or warranty is made with the intent to deceive. The breach of a warranty or condition in any contract or policy of insurance shall not avoid the policy nor avail the insurer to avoid liability unless such breach shall exist at the time of the loss and contribute to the loss; anything in the policy or contract of insurance to the contrary notwithstanding. In case a loss occurs while a breach of warranty exists, if it contribute to the loss, the insured shall only be entitled to recover the amount of insurance the premium paid would purchase at the rate that would be charged without the warranty. This section shall be liberally construed. [L. '11, p. 197, § 34.]

§ 6059-35. Additional Information to Commissioner.

Every insurance company admitted to do business in this state shall at such time as the commissioner requires, in addition to all returns now by law required of it, or its agents or managers, make a return to the commissioner, in such form and detail as he may prescribe, of all reinsurance contracted for or effected by it, directly or indirectly, upon property located in this state, such return to be under oath of its president and secretary, if a foreign company, and if an alien company, under oath of the person, officer, or representative who verifies its annual statement.

If any insurance company refuse or neglect to make the returns required by this section, the commissioner may revoke its authority to transact business in this state, or report the facts to the attorney general to be dealt with as otherwise provided by this act. [L. '11, p. 197, § 35.]

§ 6059-36. Insurance to be Placed Through Agents.

It shall be unlawful for any insurance company admitted to do business in this state to write, place or cause to be written or placed, any policy of insurance covering risks located in this state, except through or by a duly authorized licensed agent of such company residing and doing business in this state: Provided, That where the insured calls at the principal office of the company and requests a policy, the risk may be covered and the policy procured through the duly authorized agent in the territory wherein risk is located. [L. '11, p. 197, § 36.]

§ 6059-38. Political Contributions Forbidden.

No insurance company, including fraternal beneficiary associations, doing business in this state shall, directly or indirectly, pay, or use, or offer, consent or agree to pay, or use any money, property or other thing of value for or in aid of any political party, committee, or organization; nor for or in aid of any corporation, joint stock or any other association, organized or maintained for political purposes; nor for or in aid of any candidate for any political office, nor for the nomination for such office, nor for any other political purpose whatever, nor for the reimbursement or indemnification of any person or institution for money or property so used.

Any officer, director, stockholder, attorney, or agent of any insurance company which violates any of the provisions of this section, who participates in, aids, abets, advises, or consents to any such violation, and any person who solicits or knowingly receives any money, property or thing of value, in violation of this section, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor, and punished by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or both, which fine, when collected, shall be paid to the state treasurer and credited to the general fund; and any officer, director, stockholder, attorney, or agent aiding or abetting in any contribution made in violation of this section, shall be liable to the insurance company for the amount so contributed. [L. '11, p. 198, § 38.]

§ 6059-39. Dividends to be Paid from Earnings.

It shall be unlawful for the officers, directors, trustees, or managers of any domestic insurance company to declare or pay any dividends, except from the surplus profits arising from its business, which shall be estimated and ascertained in accordance with the requirements and provisions of this act. [L. '11, p. 198, § 39.]

§ 6059-40. Company—Lien on Stock.

Every domestic insurance company shall have a lien on every share of capital stock issued by it and all profits and dividends accruing thereon, for any balance unpaid of the par value and surplus to be paid thereon in like amount as is paid or agreed to be paid on all other shares of capital stock in such company and also for any debt owing to such company for premiums by the holder of such stock. [L. '11, p. 199, § 40.]

§ 6059-41. Prohibiting Publicity of Unauthorized Statements.

No insurance company, or agent thereof, doing business in this state, shall anywhere publish, represent, or advertise assets except those actually owned and possessed by it in its own exclusive right, available for the payment of losses and claims, and held for the protection of its policy-holders and creditors. [L. '11, p. 199, § 41.]

§ 6059-42. Advertisement to Show Actual Paid-up Capital and Surplus.

Every advertisement or public announcement, and every sign, circular or card issued by any insurance company doing business in this state purporting to show its financial condition, shall correspond with or include its last verified statement made to the commissioner.

For violation of this or the preceding section by a company, it shall forfeit, for the first offense, to the people of the state, the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, and for every subsequent offense the sum of five hundred dollars, which sums may be recovered by an action prosecuted by the commissioner, the attorney general representing him, and which sums when recovered shall be paid to the state treasurer and credited to the general fund. [L. '11, p. 199, § 42.]

§ 6059-43. Place of Business to be Designated.

Every agent of an insurance company doing business in this state shall, in his advertisements of that company, give the location of the company, the name of the state, and town in which it has its principal office, and the state or government under the laws of which it is organized. [L. '11, p. 199, § 43.]

§ 6059-44. Agents to Procure License must Act Only for Admitted Companies.

No person, firm, or corporation, shall act as agent for any insurance company, in the transaction of any business of insurance within this state, or negotiate for, or place risks for any such company, or in any way or manner aid such company in effecting insurance, or otherwise in this state, except as provided in section 6059-75, unless such company shall in all things have complied with the provisions of this act. Every insurance agent shall annually, on or before the first day of April, procure an agent's license from the commissioner, who shall make and keep a record thereof. [L. '11, p. 200, § 44.]

§ 6059-45. Application for License.

No license shall be issued to any applicant for an agent's, solicitor's, or broker's license until such applicant shall have first made and filed in the commissioner's office an application therefor upon a form to be prescribed and furnished by the commissioner, which must show the applicant's name, business and residence address, name of company to be represented, whether as solicitor, agent, or general agent; present occupation, occupation for last twelve months, portion of time to be devoted to the work, previous insurance experience, and name of employers during five years next preceding, and such other information as the commissioner may require. The statements and answers made in the application shall be warranted by the applicant and shall have the same force and effect as if such statements and answers had been made by the applicant as a sworn witness testifying in a superior court in this state. Such application must be approved by the company to be so represented; and in the case of an application for an insurance broker's license it must also show how long applicant has been engaged in the insurance business and in what branches, under whom applicant received his training, what income, if any, applicant has other than to be derived from such business, and financial condition of applicant. It shall be the duty of the commissioner to withhold any license applied for, or revoke any license issued to any person or party, or to his or their employee, when he is satisfied that the principal use of such license is to effect insurance upon the property or liability of such person or party, or to circumvent the enforcement of the anti-rebate law: Provided, That each agent shall be required to file but one application, regardless of the number of companies he represents: And provided, further, That no person shall act as agent unless each company, corporation or association represented by such person shall have paid a license fee as provided in this act; and the agent's license fee provided for in section 6059-17, shall be paid by each company, corporation or association represented by him; and if in the agent's application the names of several companies appear, then and in that event, each company so represented must pay the agent's license fee provided for in this act. [L. '11, p. 200, § 45.]

§ 6059-46. Embezzlement by Agent—Solicitor—Broker.

All funds received by any agent, solicitor or broker, as premium or return premium on or under any policy of insurance, shall be received by such agent, solicitor, or broker in his fiduciary capacity, and any agent, solicitor, or broker who diverts or appropriates such funds to his own use shall be guilty of larceny by embezzlement and shall be punished as provided in the criminal statutes of this state. [L. '11, p. 201, § 46.]

§ 6059-47. Reciprocal Obligations.

If, by the laws of any other state, any taxes, fines, penalties, licenses, fees, deposits, or other obligations or prohibitions, in the aggregate, additional to or in excess of those imposed by the laws of this state, upon foreign insurance companies and their agents and solicitors, are imposed on insurance companies of this state and their agents doing business in such state, like obligations and prohibitions shall be imposed upon all insurance companies of such state and their agents doing business in this state, so long as such laws remain in force. [L. '11, p. 201, § 47.]

Associations of individuals, citizens of the United States, whether organized within this state or elsewhere within the United States, formed upon the plan known as "Lloyds," whereby each associate underwriter becomes liable for a proportionate part of the whole amount insured by the group, may be authorized to transact insurance, other than life, in this state, in like manner and upon the same terms and conditions as insurance companies of other of the United States. [L. '11, p. 202, § 48.]

§ 6059-49. Licenses—Extension of.

All licenses and certificates of authority, in effect at the time of the passage of this act, shall continue in force until April first, nineteen hundred and twelve, unless sooner revoked for cause by the commissioner. [L. '11, p. 202, § 49.]

§ 6059-50. Frauds in Organization of Companies.

A person who:

First—Without authority, subscribes the name of another to, or inserts the name of another in any prospectus, circular or other advertisement of any domestic insurance company, existing or intended to be formed, with intention to permit the same to be published, and thereby lead persons to believe that the person whose name is so subscribed is an officer, agent, member, or promoter of such company; or,

Second—Signs the name of a fictitious person to any subscription for or agreement to take stock in any corporation existing or proposed; or,

Third—Signs to any such subscription or agreement the name of any person, knowing, or having good reason to believe, that such person does not intend in good faith to comply with the terms thereof, or enter into any agreement or understanding, that the terms of such subscription or agreement are not to be complied with or enforced, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 202, § 50.]

§ 6059-51. Frauds in Procuring Organization of Companies.

Any officer, agent, or clerk of a company, or of persons proposing to organize a company, or to increase the capital stock of a company, who knowingly exhibits false, forged, or altered books, papers, vouchers, securities, or other instruments of evidence to any public officer or board authorized by law to examine the organization of such company, or to investigate its affairs or to allow the increase of capital, with intent to deceive such officer or board in respect thereto, shall be guilty of a felony. [L. '11, p. 203, § 51.]

§ 6059-52. Fraudulent Issue of Stocks and Bonds.

An officer, agent, or other person in the service of any company, formed or existing under the laws of this state, or of the United States, or of any state or territory thereof or of any foreign government or country, who willfully and knowingly with intent to defraud:

First—Sells, pledges, or issues, or causes to be sold, pledged, or issued; or signs or executes, or causes to be signed or executed with intent to sell, pledge, or issue, or causes to be sold, pledged, or issued, any certificate or instrument purporting to be a certificate or evidence of the ownership of any share or shares of said company, or any bond or evidence of debt, or writing purporting to be a bond or evidence of debt of such company, without being first duly authorized by such company, or contrary to the articles of incorporation, charter or laws under which such company exists, or in excess of the power of such company, or of the limit imposed by law or otherwise upon its power to create or issue stock or evidence of debt; or,

Second—Reissues, sells, pledges, or disposes of, or causes to be reissued, sold, pledged, or disposed of any surrendered or canceled certificates or other evidence of a transfer of ownership of any such share or shares, shall be guilty of a felony. [L. '11, p. 203, § 52.]

§ 6059-53. Misconduct of Directors of Stock Companies.

A director of a company, who concurs in any vote or act of the directors of such company, or any of them by which it is intended:

First—To make a dividend except from the surplus profits arising from the business of the company, and in the cases and manner allowed by law; or,

Second—To divide, withdraw, or in any manner pay to the stockholders, or to any of them, any part of the capital stock of the company, or to reduce such capital stock in any manner other than as authorized by law; or,

Third—To discount or receive any note, or other evidence of debt, in payment of an installment of capital stock actually called in, and required to be paid, or with intent to provide the means of making such payment; or,

Fourth—To receive or discount any note or other evidence of debt with intent to enable any stockholder to withdraw any part of the money paid in by him on his stock; or,

Fifth—To apply any portion of the funds of such company, except surplus profits, directly or indirectly, to the purchase of shares of its own stock, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 203, § 53.]

§ 6059-54. Misconduct of Officers and Directors of Stock Companies.

An officer or director of a stock company, who:

First—Issues, participates in issuing, or concurs in the vote to issue any increase of its capital stock beyond the amount of the capital stock thereof, duly authorized by or in pursuance of law; or,

Second—Sells, or agrees to sell or is directly or indirectly interested in the sale of any share of stock of such corporation, or in any agreement to sell the same, unless at the time of such sale or agreement he is either the actual owner, or the duly authorized agent for such purpose of the actual owner of such shares, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 204, § 54.]

§ 6059-55. Directors, Officers, Agents and Employees of Companies—Misconduct of.

A director, officer, agent, or employee of any company who:

First—Knowingly receives or possesses himself of any of its property, otherwise than in payment for a just demand, with intent to defraud, omits to make, or to cause or direct to be made, a full and true entry thereof in its books and accounts; or,

Second—Makes or concurs in making any false entry, or concurs in omitting to make any material entry, in its books or accounts; or,

Third—Knowingly concurs in making or publishing any written report, exhibit or statement of its affairs or pecuniary condition containing any material statement which is false, or omits or concurs in omitting any statement required by law to be contained therein; or,

Fourth—Having the custody or control of its books, willfully refuses or neglects to make any proper entry in the stock-book of such company, as required by law, or to exhibit or allow the same to be inspected, and extracts to be taken therefrom by any person entitled by law to inspect the same, or take extracts therefrom; or,

Fifth—If a notice of an application for an injunction or other legal process affecting or involving the property or business of such company is served upon him, omits to disclose the fact of such service and the time and place of such application to the other directors, officers, and managers thereof; or,

Sixth—Refuses or neglects to make any report or statement lawfully required by a public officer, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 204, § 55.]

Any person who:

First—Being entitled to vote at a meeting of the stockholders of a stock company, sells his vote, or issues a proxy to vote, to a person for any sum of money or thing of value, except as expressly authorized by law; or,

Second—Acts as an inspector of election at any such meeting and violates an oath taken by him in pursuance of law as such inspector, or violates the provisions of an oath required by law to be taken by him as such inspector, or is guilty of any dishonest or corrupt conduct as such inspector, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 205, § 56.]

§ 6059-57. False Statement in Application for Insurance.

Any solicitor, agent, examining physician, or other person, who knowingly and willfully makes a false or fraudulent statement, or representation, in or relative to an application for life, accident or health insurance, or who makes any such statement for the purpose of obtaining a fee, commission, money, or benefit in a company transacting such business under the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 206, § 57.]

§ 6059-58. Present False Proofs of Loss.

Any person, who, knowing it to be such:

First—Presents, or causes to be presented, a false or fraudulent claim, or any proof in support of such a claim, for the payment of a loss upon a contract of insurance; or,

Second—Prepares, makes, or subscribes false or fraudulent account, certificate, affidavit, or proof of loss, or other document or writing, with intent that the same be presented or used in support of such a claim, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 206, § 58.]

§ 6059-59. Destroying Property Insured.

Any person, who, with intent to defraud or prejudice the insurer thereof, willfully burns, or in any manner injures or destroys property, which is insured at the time against loss or damage by fire or by any other casualty, under such circumstances not making the offense arson, is guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 206, § 59.]

§ 6059-60. Persons not Excused from Testifying.

No person shall be excused from attending and testifying or producing any books, papers, or other documents before any court or magistrate, upon any investigation, proceeding, or trial, for the violation of any of the provisions of this act, upon the ground or for the reason that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise required of him, may tend to convict him of crime or subject him to penalty or forfeiture; but no person shall be prosecuted or subject to any penalty or forfeiture for, or on account of any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may so testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, and no testimony so given or produced shall be received against him upon any criminal investigation or proceeding. [L. '11, p. 206, § 60.]

It is no defense to the prosecution for the violation of the provisions of sections 6059-50, 6059-51, 6059-52, 6059-53, 6059-54, 6059-55, 6059-56, 6059-57, 6059-58, 6059-59, and 6059-60, that the company is either an alien, a foreign, or a domestic company, if it carries on business or occupies offices therefor in this state.

A director of a company is deemed to have such knowledge of the affairs of the company as to enable him to determine whether any act, proceeding, or omission of its directors is a violation of the provisions of either of said sections 6059-50 to 6059-60, inclusive. If present at a meeting of directors at which any act, proceeding, or omission of its directors is a violation of the provisions of said sections or either of them occurs, he must be deemed to have concurred therein, unless he at the time causes or in writing requires his dissent therefrom to be entered on the minutes of the directors. If absent from such meeting, he must be deemed to have concurred in any such violation, if the facts constituting such violation appear on the records or minutes of the proceedings of the board of directors, and he remains a director of the company for six months thereafter without causing or in writing requiring his dissent from such violation to be entered upon such record or minutes. [L. '11, p. 207, § 61.]

§ 6059-62. Violations to be Reported.

Every insurance company, agent, solicitor, or broker, and every person or party having knowledge of a violation of this act, is required to promptly report the facts and circumstances pertaining thereto to the commissioner; which report and the name of the informant shall be held as confidential by the commissioner and shall not be made public. [L. '11, p. 207, § 62.]

§ 6059-63. Annual Meetings.

Every domestic company shall hold an annual meeting in the month of January or February, of its stockholders, if a stock company, or members, if a mutual company, for the purpose of receiving the report of its officers and trustees, and to elect trustees. Each share of stock in a stock company, and each policy-holder in a mutual company, shall be entitled to one vote in the election of trustees, and if unable to attend in person, may appoint any stockholder or member his proxy to vote his stock or policy, but no officer of said company shall be allowed to vote the proxy of any stockholder or member thereof: Providing, however, Officers of stock companies may so do when the majority of the trustees vote to permit such action. [L. '11, p. 208, § 63.]

§ 6059-64. Insurance Applied to Insured's Own Interest.

When the name of a party intended to be insured is specified in a policy, such insurance can be applied only to his own proper interest. [L. '11, p. 208, § 64.]

§ 6059-65. Insurance—To Agent or Trustee.

When insurance is issued to an agent or trustee the fact that his principal or beneficiary is the person really insured is sufficiently indicated by describing him as agent or trustee or by other general words in the policy. [L. '11, p. 208, § 65.]

§ 6059-66. Insurance Effected—Joint or Company Interest.

To render an insurance effected by one partner or part owner, applicable to the interest of his copartner or other part owner, it is necessary that the terms of the policy should be such as are applicable to the joint or company interest. [L. '11, p. 208, § 66.]

§ 6059-67. Insured Intended—Must Prove.

When the description of the insured in the policy is so general that it may comprehend any person or class of persons, he, only, can claim the benefit of the policy, who can show that it was intended to include him. [L. '11, p. 208, § 67.]

§ 6059-68. Policies Subject to Inspection of Commissioner.

The commissioner, his deputy, or examiner, shall have the right at any time to inspect any policy, covering any risk in this state, and every policyholder shall produce and exhibit any policy in his possession or control when required for the inspection of the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner. Any person who violates the provisions of this section shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. [L. '11, p. 209, § 68.]

§ 6059-69. Policy Fee Forbidden.

It shall be unlawful hereafter for any insurance company or for any officer, manager, agent, or other representative of any such company, to include in the sum charged or designated in any policy as the consideration for insurance, any fee, compensation, charge, or perquisite whatsoever, not specified in the policy. When collected, the same shall be reported as premium. [L. '11, p. 209, § 69.]

§ 6059-70. Agent to Report Exact Consideration.

Every agent or other representative of any insurance company issuing a policy on its own behalf in this state, shall report to the company the exact consideration charged and written in the policy, as a premium for the risk assumed. [L. '11, p. 209, § 70.]

§ 6059-71. Penalty for Charging Policy Fee.

Any insurance company violating the provisions of section 6059-69, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 209, § 71.]

§ 6059-72. Penalty for Failure to Report.

Any officer, manager, agent, solicitor, or other representative of any insurance company violating the provisions of section 6059-70, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 209, § 72.]

§ 6059-73. Rating Schedules—Filing—Use.

Every fire insurance company before it shall receive a license to transact the business of making insurance as an insurer in this state, must file in the office of the insurance commissioner a copy of its rating schedules. Every such company and its agents shall observe said rating schedules and shall not deviate therefrom in making insurance until amended or corrected rating schedules shall have been filed in the office of the insurance commissioner. Any company which shall make fire insurance in this state according to the advisory rates, or a stated deviation therefrom, furnished by a rating bureau as provided in the following section, may receive a license to transact the business of making fire insurance in this state, without filing a rating schedule, by filing written notice in the office of the insurance commissioner of its adoption of such advisory rates, stating the deviation therefrom, if any, at which it will make insurance, which deviation, if any, shall be uniformly applied to all purchasers of insurance from such company in this state. [L. '11, p. 209, § 73.]

§ 6059-74. Rating Bureau—Rates.

Any person or persons or copartnership, resident within this state, or a domestic corporation, may organize or maintain a rating bureau, for the purpose of inspecting and surveying the various municipalities and fire hazards in this state, and the means and facilities for preventing, confining, and extinguishing fires, for the purpose of estimating fair and equitable rates for insurance, and to furnish to municipalities, owners of property, insurance companies, agents, solicitors, or brokers information and advice as to measures to be adopted for the reduction of fire hazards on property within this state, and lessening the cost of insurance thereon. The business of conducting a rating bureau in this state is public service in character and shall be conducted without profit to any party, except that fair and reasonable compensation shall be paid for all services actually rendered, and necessary to the business. Every rating bureau shall, before publishing or furnishing any rates, file in the office of the insurance commissioner its rating schedules, and shall not deviate therefrom until amended or corrected rating schedules shall have been filed in the office of the insurance commissioner. The services of such rating bureau shall be available, equally and ratably in proportion to the service rendered, to any and all insurance companies, agents, brokers, and property owners.

Each rating bureau shall keep an accurate and complete record of all work performed by it, which record must show all receipts and disbursements, and be open at all times to the inspection and examination of the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner.

No rating bureau operating under the provisions of this act shall, directly or indirectly, examine, stamp, or pass upon any "daily report" of policies issued by any company on property located within this state.

Any person or party who knowingly violates any provision of this or the preceding section shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. [L. '11, p. 210, § 74.]

§ 6059-75. Unauthorized Companies—Agents—Surplus Line—Service.

The commissioner, in consideration of the yearly payment of one hundred dollars, and the furnishing of a bond as hereinafter provided, may issue to any citizen in this state, not exceeding fifty in any one city, a license revocable at any time, permitting the party named in such license to place or effect insurance upon risks located in this state with insurance companies not licensed to do business in this state. No person, firm, or corporation, shall place, procure or effect insurance upon any risk located in this state in any company not licensed to do business in this state, or place, procure, or effect insurance in any marine risk destined for or departing from any port in this state, until such person, firm, or corporation shall have first procured a license from the commissioner as provided in this section, and has furnished a bond to the state of Washington in the penal sum of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than two thousand dollars, the amount thereof to be fixed by the commissioner, with sureties thereon to be approved by the commissioner, conditioned that he or it will conduct such business in accordance with the provisions of this section, and will pay to the state treasurer through the insurance commissioner's office the taxes provided by this section. Every such agent must keep a true and complete record of the business transacted by him, showing: First, The exact amount of such insurance; second, the gross premiums charged therefor; third, the return premium paid thereon; fourth, the rate of premium charged for such insurance upon the different items of the property; fifth, the date of such insurance and terms thereof; sixth, the name and address of the company making such insurance; seventh, the name and address of the assured, and a brief and general description of the property insured, where located, and if a marine risk, the name of the ship, vessel, boat, or craft, and voyage covered by such insurance; and such other facts and information as the commissioner may direct and require; which record shall at all times be open and subject to the inspection and examination of the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner.

Every policy procured and delivered under the provisions of this section shall have stamped upon it and be initialed by the agent clearing the same in this state, the following: "This policy is registered and delivered at —, Washington, this — day of —, 19—, under the provisions of section seventy-five of chapter —, of the Session Laws of the State of Washington for nineteen hundred eleven."

Every agent who places, procures, effects, or delivers any insurance or insurance policy, as provided in this section, shall annually on or before the fifteenth day of February in each year, make and file with the commissioner a verified statement upon a form to be prescribed and furnished by the commissioner, which shall exhibit the true amount of all such business transacted by such agent during the year ending on the thirty-first day of December next preceding the making of such annual statement, showing the gross amount of each kind of insurance, the gross premiums charged for such insurance, the aggregate amount of returned premiums paid to the insured, the amount of the net premiums, and such other facts and information as the commissioner may prescribe and require.

The commissioner shall file a copy of such verified statement with the state treasurer, and the agent making such statement shall pay to the state treasurer, through the commissioner's office, the same tax that is required of admitted companies, which tax shall be due and payable on the first day of March succeeding the filing of such statement.

Before any insurance, except marine insurance, shall be procured or effected, under or by virtue of said license, there shall be executed by such licensed agent and by the party or his authorized agent desiring insurance, an affidavit which shall be filed with the commissioner within thirty days after the procuring of such insurance. Such affidavit shall set forth that the party desiring insurance is, after diligent effort, unable to procure the insurance required to protect the property owned or controlled by him, from the companies licensed to transact business in this state. Every company making insurance under the provisions of this section, shall be deemed and held to be doing business in this state as an unlicensed company and may be sued upon any cause of action, arising under any policy of insurance so issued and delivered by it, in the superior court of the county where the agent who registered or delivered such policy resides, or transacts business, by the service of summons and complaint made upon such agent for such company. Any such agent, being served with summons and complaint in any such cause, shall forthwith mail such summons and complaint, or a true and complete copy thereof, by registered letter with proper postage affixed, properly addressed to the company sued, and such company shall have forty days from the date of the service of such summons and complaint upon said agent in which to plead, answer or defend any such cause; upon service of summons and complaint being had upon such agent for such company the court in which such action is begun shall be deemed to have duly acquired jurisdiction in personam of the defendant company so served.

Every such agent who fails or refuses to make and file said annual statement, and to pay the taxes required to be paid thereon, prior to the first day of April after such tax is due, shall be liable for a fine of twenty-five dollars for each day of said delinquency, beginning with the first day of April, and said tax may be collected by distraint, or such tax and such fine may be recovered by an action, to be instituted by the commissioner, in the name of the state, the attorney general representing him, in any court of competent jurisdiction, and the fine, when so collected, shall be paid to the state treasurer, and placed to the credit of the general fund. If any such agent shall fail to make and file said annual statement and pay the said taxes, or shall refuse to allow the commissioner to inspect and examine his records of the business transacted by him, pursuant to this section, or keep such records in manner as required by the commissioner, or shall refuse or neglect to immediately notify the insurance company for whom he has placed, registered, or delivered a policy, of the commencement of any action or proceeding in any court in this state against such company, the license of such agent shall be immediately revoked by the commissioner, and no license shall be issued to such agent within one year from the date of such revocation, nor until all taxes and fines are paid and the commissioner shall be satisfied that full compliance with the provisions of this section will be had. [L. '11, p. 211, § 75.]

§ 6059-76. Business to be Placed with Solvent Companies—Penalties.

Every agent, or broker, transacting business under the provisions of the preceding section shall ascertain the financial condition of each company before he procures a policy of insurance from or places any insurance with such company. Any such agent, or broker, who shall knowingly place any insurance except marine with, or procure any insurance from, any insurance company whose unimpaired capital and surplus assets, after providing a reinsurance reserve on the pro rata basis, are less than two hundred thousand dollars, or from any insurance company, other than a stock company, whose cash assets are less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, of which amount not less than fifty thousand dollars must be net surplus, after providing for a reinsurance reserve on the pro rata basis, shall be fined in any sum not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars, and his license shall be immediately revoked by the commissioner, and no license shall be issued to such agent within two years from the date of revocation for such cause. [L. '11, p. 214, § 76.]

§ 6059-77. Examinations—Expense—How Paid.

The expense of every examination, or other investigation of the affairs of any insurance company, doing business in this state, which the commissioner is by law authorized or required to investigate or examine, shall be paid by the state out of the general fund. The commissioner, his deputy, or examiner, in making such investigation or examination, shall be allowed only his actual traveling and necessary expenses required by such examination, and shall not charge any fee, nor receive any compensation, for such examination other than the salary allowed by law. In cases where the examination is made by other than an employee of the department he shall be compensated for his services in addition to the expenses as stated herein. The commissioner, his deputy, or examiner, upon making such examination or investigation, shall prepare an itemized statement of the expenses involved in making such examination, and upon the presentation of such vouchers to the state auditor, properly signed by the person making such examination and countersigned by the commissioner, the state auditor is hereby authorized to draw his warrants against the general fund in the same manner in which warrants are drawn for the payment of other bills: Provided, That the provisions of this section shall apply to those companies only that are required to pay tax on their premium income.

Any company not required to pay taxes on its premium income shall pay the expense of any examination required by law. [L. '11, p. 215, § 77.]

§ 6059-78. Policies may be Issued in Other States.

Any domestic insurance company doing business in any other state may frame and issue policies in such other states in accordance with the laws thereof, anything in its articles of incorporation or by-laws to the contrary notwithstanding. [L. '11, p. 216, § 78.]

§ 6059-79. Existing Companies—Continue.

Every domestic insurance company previously organized, and licensed to transact insurance business in this state at the time this act goes into effect, is hereby recognized as an existing company, and shall have the right to continue such business under the provisions of this act: Provided, That such company whose capital does not meet the requirements of this act shall have four years from the first day of January, nineteen hundred and twelve, in which to conform to the requirements of this act relating thereto. [L. '11, p. 216, § 79; L. '13, p. 318, 1.]

See note to section 6059-84.

This section does not authorize a fire insurance company formerly doing also a plate glass insurance business, to continue issuing both fire and plate glass insurance in violation of the act, especially in view of a further proviso expressly excepting pre-existing life companies from restrictions against issuing both life, accident, health and liability insurance, the specific exception in favor of life companies being an implication against any other exception not expressed: State ex rel. North Coast Fire Ins. Co. v. Schively, 68 Wash. 148, 122 Pac. 1020.

§ 6059-80. Policy Requirements—In Effect—When.

Every insurance company admitted and doing business in this state, at the time this act goes into effect, shall have until the first day of January, nineteen hundred and twelve, in which to comply with the requirements of this act relating to policies or contracts of insurance. [L. '11, p. 216, § 80.]

§ 6059-81. Retiring Companies—Approval of Reinsurance.

No insurance company, impaired, insolvent, or retiring from business in this state, shall reinsure its business in this state until its plan to effect such reinsurance shall have been first submitted to the commissioner, and approved by him, and no such reinsurance shall be effected in a company not admitted to this state. In effecting such reinsurance, the reinsuring company shall become liable to the original insured, for any loss or damage occurring under the policies reinsured, and shall, within a reasonable time, replace such policies with its own, or by indorsement thereon acknowledge liability thereunder; and, in case of cancellation, shall be liable to the original insured for all return premiums. [L. '11, p. 217, § 81.]

§ 6059-82. Liability of Stockholders.

Each stockholder of a domestic insurance company shall be individually and personally liable, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts and engagements of such company accruing while they remain such stockholders, to the extent of the amount of their stock therein at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares. The assets of such company shall be first applied in the payment and discharge of the debts and liabilities of the company and the remainder thereof remaining unpaid shall be paid by the stockholders, equally and ratably, and not one for another. [L. '11, p. 217, § 82.]

§ 6059-83. Insurance Classified.

All insurance business in this state is hereby classified as follows:

(1) Fire and marine insurance, upon buildings and other property against loss or damage by fire, lightning, wind storms, cyclones, tornadoes, hail, or earthquakes, water from the breakage or leakage of sprinklers, pumps, or other apparatus erected for extinguishing fires, and water-pipes; and against accidental injury to such sprinklers, pumps or other apparatus; and against loss or damage arising from the prevention or suspension of rent or use and occupation of any building, plant or manufacturing establishment due to the hazard or peril insured against; and upon vessels, boats, cargoes, goods, merchandise, freight and other property against loss or damage by the risks of lake, river, canal and inland transportation and navigation, including insurance upon automobiles, whether stationary or being operated under their own power, and reinsurance of any risks taken in this class; but not upon ocean marine risks, and other casualty insurance risks.

(2) Marine insurance, being ocean and inland risks, transportation and automobiles, but not including any other casualty insurance as hereinafter provided.

(3) Life insurance, being [including] endowments and annuities, but not including health, or accident or sickness insurance or any other casualty insurance as hereinafter provided.

(4) Accident insurance, and either sickness or health insurance being insurance against injury, disablement, or death resulting from travel or general accident, and against disablement resulting from sickness; and every insurance appertaining thereto.

(5) Fidelity and surety insurance, being the guaranteeing of persons holding the places of public or private trust; guaranteeing the performance of contracts other than insurance policies; or guaranteeing and executing all bonds, undertakings and contracts of suretyship.

(6) Liability insurance, being all insurance against loss or damage resulting from accident to or injury, fatal or nonfatal, suffered by an employee or other person and for which the insurer is liable.

(7) Plate-glass insurance, being all insurance against breakage of glass, whether local or in transit.

(8) Boiler and machinery insurance, being insurance upon steam boilers and upon pipes, engines and machinery connected therewith and operated thereby, against explosion and accident, and against loss or damage to life, person or property, resulting therefrom.

(9) Burglary insurance, being insurance against loss by burglary, house-breaking or theft.

(10) Sprinkler insurance, being insurance against loss or damage by water to any goods or premises arising from the breakage or leakage of sprinklers or water-pipes.

(11) Credit insurance, being insurance, or guaranty either by agreement to purchase incollectible [uncollectable] debts, or otherwise to insure against loss or damage from the failure of persons indebted or to become indebted to the insured, or to meet existing or contemplated liabilities.

(12) Title insurance, insuring or guaranteeing owners of property or others interested therein, against loss by encumbrance, or defective titles, or adverse claim to title, either together with or without examination of title or furnishing information relative thereto.

(13) Team and vehicle insurance, being insurance against loss, damage or legal liability for loss, because of damage to property or persons caused by the use of teams or vehicles operated by power not generated in or upon the vehicle, whether by accident or collision, and including insurance against theft of the whole or any part of any vehicle. The term vehicle, as herein used, includes elevators and bicycles.

(13½) Motor vehicle insurance, being insurance on motor vehicles operated by power generated within or withon such vehicles, except those operating on water or on rails, against loss or damage or loss of use of or to the vehicle, furnishings, tools, appliances and equipment; or legal liability for loss or damage to persons or property resulting through the operation of the vehicle; caused by fire, self-ignition and explosion, theft, collision, or other insurable hazards, including all hazards incident to transporting such vehicle by land or by water.

(14) Miscellaneous insurance, being insurance upon any risk not included within or under either of the foregoing classes, and which is a proper subject of insurance, not prohibited by law or contrary to sound public policy. [L. '11, p. 217, § 83; L. '13, p. 318, § 2.]

A domestic fire insurance company has no right to issue plate glass insurance after the adoption of the insurance code, in view of this and the next section, dividing insurance companies into classes, and limiting fire insurance companies to other classes of insurance (marine and team and vehicle insurance): State ex rel. North Coast Fire Ins. Co. v. Schively, 68 Wash. 148, 122 Pac. 1020.

§ 6059-84. Class or Classes of Insurance Permitted.

Any insurance company having the required amount of capital, or assets, when permitted by its articles of incorporation or charter, may be authorized and licensed by the commissioner to make insurance in this state under one or more of the classes prescribed in the several paragraphs in section 6059-83, as follows:

(1) Fire and Inland Marine Companies; Qualifications.—No stock company shall make insurance in this state under class one of section 6059-83, without having capital stock of at least two hundred thousand dollars, of which not less than one-half must be paid in in cash or like securities authorized by this act, and the remainder, in cash or like securities, paid within one year after the company is incorporated, and a surplus of not less than fifty thousand dollars, nor shall such company make insurance in this state, in any other of said classes of insurance specified in said section, except in classes two, seven, ten and thirteen and one-half; and is not to make insurance in class two or thirteen and one-half without having additional capital of at least one hundred thousand dollars for each of said classes, and is not to make insurance in classes seven, ten and thirteen and one-half (excepting against the hazard of injury to persons) in addition to class one without having additional capital of at least fifty thousand dollars; or in addition to classes one and two without having a capital stock of at least three hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

(2) Marine Insurance Company; Qualifications.—No stock insurance company shall make insurance in this state under class two of section 6059-83 without having a capital stock of at least one hundred thousand dollars fully paid and a surplus of not less than fifty thousand dollars, nor shall such company make insurance in this state in any other of said classes of insurance excepting in classes one and thirteen and one-half (excepting against the hazard of injury to persons); nor make insurance in class one without having additional capital of at least one hundred thousand dollars; nor make insurance in class thirteen and one-half (excepting against the hazard of injury to persons) in addition to class two without having additional capital of at least fifty thousand dollars, nor in addition to classes one and two without having a capital stock of at least three hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

(3) Life Insurance Companies; Qualifications.—No stock insurance company shall make insurance in this state under class three of section 6059-83 without having a capital stock fully paid of at least one hundred thousand dollars with a surplus of not less than fifty thousand dollars, nor shall such company make insurance in this state in any other of said classes of insurance except in classes four and six; nor to make insurance in class four without having additional capital of at least fifty thousand dollars; nor to make insurance in class six without having additional capital of at least two hundred thousand dollars; nor to make insurance in classes four and six without having additional capital of at least two hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

(4) Title Insurance Companies; Qualifications.—No company shall issue contract of guaranty or title insurance in this state, under class twelve of section 6059-83, until and unless it deposit and maintain on deposit through the office of the insurance commissioner, with the state treasurer, a guaranty fund in securities authorized by this act as legal investments for the capital or funds of insurance companies, in amounts as follows: (a) In counties having a population of five hundred thousand or more as evidenced by the last official census of the United States or of the state of Washington, the guaranty fund shall be not less than two hundred thousand dollars; (b) In counties having a population of not less than three hundred thousand nor more than five hundred thousand as evidenced by said census, the guaranty fund shall not be less than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; (c) In counties having a population of not less than one hundred and fifty thousand nor more than three hundred thousand, as evidenced by said census, the guaranty fund shall not be less than one hundred thousand dollars; (d) In counties having a population of not less than one hundred thousand nor more than one hundred and fifty thousand, as evidenced by said census, the guaranty fund shall be not less than seventy-five thousand dollars; (e) In counties having a population of not less than sixty thousand nor more than one hundred thousand, as evidenced by said census, the guaranty fund shall be not less than fifty thousand dollars; (f) In counties having a population of not less than thirty-five thousand nor more than sixty thousand, as evidenced by said census, the guaranty fund shall be not less than twenty-five thousand dollars; (g) In counties having a population of not less than fifteen thousand nor more than thirty-five thousand, as evidenced by said census, the guaranty fund shall be not less than fifteen thousand dollars; (h) And in counties having a population of less than fifteen thousand, as evidenced by said census, the guaranty fund shall be not less than ten thousand dollars. Any company authorized to issue contracts of guaranty, or title insurance in any county of this state shall be permitted and authorized to issue contracts of guaranty and title insurance in one or more other counties of this state: Provided, Its guaranty fund on deposit with the state treasurer is equal to the maximum amount hereinbefore required of a company issuing contracts of guaranty or title insurance in any of such counties: Provided further, If any company shall have complied or shall thereafter comply with the provisions of this act for the county in which it has its principal place of business no other company authorized to issue contracts of guaranty or title insurance in any other county of this state shall be permitted to issue contracts of guaranty or title insurance therein after the expiration of its certificate of authority then held unless it has deposited or shall thereafter deposit with the state treasurer through the office of the insurance commissioner securities in addition to those then required of such company in the same amount as required for such county: Provided further, That when any company authorized to issue contracts of guaranty or title insurance in any county of the state shall have and maintain on deposit with the state treasurer a guaranty fund in securities authorized by this act in the total amount of two hundred thousand dollars, such company shall be permitted and authorized to issue contracts of guaranty and title insurance in all of the counties of this state: Provided further, That nothing herein contained shall prevent any company authorized to issue contracts of guaranty or title insurance in any county of this state from underwriting or reinsuring in whole or in part contracts of guaranty or title insurance by any other company. The provisions of this act shall in no wise be interpreted to apply to persons, copartnerships, or corporations engaged in the business of preparing and issuing abstracts of, but not guaranteeing or insuring, title to property and certifying to the correctness thereof.

(5) Fidelity and Surety Insurance Companies; Qualifications.—No stock insurance company shall make insurance in this state under class five of section 6059-83 without having a capital stock fully paid of at least two hundred thousand dollars and a surplus of not less than one hundred thousand dollars, nor shall such company make insurance in this state in any other of said classes of insurance specified in section 6059-83, excepting classes four, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, thirteen, thirteen and one-half, and fourteen; and it shall not make insurance in classes six or thirteen and one-half without having additional capital of at least one hundred thousand dollars for each of said classes; such company may make insurance in classes seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, thirteen, thirteen and one-half (excepting against the perils of fire), and fourteen when it has additional capital of at least fifty thousand dollars.

(6) Liability Insurance Companies; Qualifications.—No stock insurance company shall make insurance in this state under class six of section 6059-83 without having a capital stock of at least two hundred thousand dollars fully paid and a surplus of not less than one hundred thousand dollars; nor shall such company make insurance in this state in any other of said classes of insurance specified in this section except in classes four, five, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, thirteen, thirteen and one-half and fourteen; and it shall not make insurance in classes five or thirteen and one-half without having additional capital of at least one hundred thousand dollars for each of said classes. Such company may make insurance in one or all of the following classes: four, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, thirteen, thirteen and one-half (excepting against the perils of fire), or fourteen when it has additional capital of at least fifty thousand dollars.

(6½) Motor Vehicle Insurance Companies; Qualifications.—No stock insurance company shall make insurance in this state under class thirteen and one-half of section 6059-83 without having a capital stock of at least two hundred thousand dollars fully paid and a surplus of not less than one hundred thousand dollars.

(7) Other Companies; Requirements.—No stock insurance company shall make insurance in this state in either of the following classes specified in section 6059-83, four, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, thirteen and fourteen, without having a capital stock of at least one hundred thousand dollars fully paid and a surplus of not less than twenty-five thousand dollars, nor shall such company make insurance in more than one of said classes

unless it shall have additional capital of not less than fifty thousand dollars: Provided, however, That the requirement of a surplus as provided in this section shall only apply to domestic insurance companies organizing and commencing to transact the business of making insurance and that such companies may use such surplus in establishing the company in business without impairment of the company.

(8) Assessment. Mutual—Fraternal Companies.—The provisions of this section shall not apply to life or fire insurance companies operating on the mutual, or assessment, or fraternal plan. [L. '11, p. 219, § 84; L. '13, p. 321, § 3.]

Section 6059-79 of the insurance code, having provided that domestic corporations previously organized having a certain amount of capital may continue to transact their business under the provisions of the act, the clause in this section prohibiting all companies from engaging in both a life and liability business "except as provided in section 79," does not authorize such double business by foreign companies previously doing business in this state, since the proviso and exemption of section 6059-79 is expressly restricted to domestic companies only: State ex rel. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Schively, 68 Wash. 503, 123 Pac. 784.

§ 6059-85. Incorporation of Companies.

The following number of citizens of the United States, two-thirds of which number shall be residents of the state of Washington, may incorporate a company as follows: For a stock company, not less than five; for a mutual company, not less than ten; for an organization on the plan known as "Lloyds," not less than twenty; for an organization of "Inter-Insurers," not less than twenty-five; for one or more of the purposes specified in section 6059-83 by making and subscribing written articles of incorporation in quadruplicate and acknowledging the same before an officer authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds, and after having the same approved by the commissioner, by filing one of such articles in the office of the secretary of state, another in the office of the insurance commissioner, another in the office of the auditor of the county in which the principal office of the company is to be located, and retaining the fourth in the possession of the company, which articles shall state:

First. The names and the addresses of the incorporators.

Second. The name of the company.

Third. (a) The object for which the company is formed; (b) whether it is a stock or mutual company, and if a mutual company, whether it will insure on the cash premium or assessment plan; (c) the class or classes of risks wherein it will make insurance, according to the divisions made in this act.

Fourth. (a) If a stock company, the amount of the capital stock, and the number of shares, which shall be of the par value of one hundred dollars each; (b) if it be a mutual company, the minimum and maximum liability of its members or policy-holders for the payment of losses occurring under its policies, which liability shall be not less than two nor more than six times the amount of the premium usually charged by solvent stock insurance companies for insuring like or similar risks for the same term, and if that premium is not known, then the premium used shall be according to either the "Dean" schedule or the "Universal Mercantile" schedule for fire risks, and such schedule for other class or classes of risks as may be approved by the commissioner.

Fifth. The time of its existence, not to exceed fifty years: Provided, That this limit of existence shall not apply to any life insurance company.

Sixth. The number of trustees or directors, which shall not be less than five nor more than eleven, and their names and addresses, who shall manage the affairs of the company for such length of time, not less than two nor more than six months, as may be designated in such articles of incorporation.

Seventh. The name of the city or town in which the principal place of business of the company is to be located in this state, and in what country or countries it intends to transact business.

Amendments may be made to the articles of incorporation of a stock company, by a majority vote of its trustees or directors, and the vote or written assent of two-thirds of the capital stock of the company, and, if a mutual company, by the majority vote of its trustees or directors and the vote or written assent of two-thirds of the members or policy-holders of such company. If the written assent of two-thirds of the capital stock of a stock company, or members or policy-holders of a mutual company has not been obtained, then the vote of the said stock, or of said members may be taken, at any regular meeting of the stockholders or members called for that purpose in the manner provided in the by-laws of such company for special meetings of stockholders or members.

The president and secretary of said company shall certify said amendments in quadruplicate under the seal of said company to be correct, and shall file and keep the same as in the case of original articles of incorporation, and from the time of filing said amendments such company shall have the same powers, and the stockholders thereof shall be subject to the same liabilities as if said amendments had been embraced in the original articles of incorporation. A policy-holder in a mutual insurance company has the same character of interest and occupies the same relation to the company as the stockholder has and occupies to a stock insurance company.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to cure or amend any defect existing in any articles of incorporation in that such articles did not set forth the matters required to make the same valid at the time of filing, nor to cure or amend any defect in the execution thereof. The time of existence of such company shall not be extended by amendments beyond the time fixed in the original articles of incorporation.

No such company shall take the name of a domestic company theretofore organized, nor that of an alien or foreign company admitted to this state, nor one so nearly resembling that of either as to be misleading. The expenses of incorporation and organization, including the placing of the capital stock of any such company incorporated after January first, 1911, shall not exceed seven and one-half per centum of the par value of the stock actually sold. [L. '11, p. 223, § 85.]

No domestic mutual insurance company hereafter formed under the laws of this state shall be authorized to transact business as an insurer until it shall have first qualified itself as follows:

First. If it is formed to transact as insurer, a general fire insurance business on the cash premium plan, it must have bona fide written applications severally signed by applicants for fire insurance for one year, and, on risks usually written for a term, not more than five years, from residents of this state, on property owned by the applicant, situate within this state, in separate risks of not to exceed two thousand dollars each, amounting in the aggregate to not less than five hundred thousand dollars; and must have, own, and possess in its own name and exclusive right premiums actually received in cash, to an amount of at least eight thousand dollars and six thousand dollars must be on hand above all liabilities except reinsurance reserve, estimated on the pro rata basis, and premium liability due in installments as demanded, severally and unconditionally executed and delivered by a solvent applicant for the insurance he applies for, all in the aggregate amount, unimpaired, of not less than twenty-five thousand dollars: Provided, That when a mutual fire insurance company accumulates from its underwriting and earnings cash assets of not less than two hundred thousand dollars, of which amount not less than one hundred thousand dollars shall be surplus assets which it must maintain in securities deposited as required of domestic stock insurance companies, and while it maintains such surplus assets on deposit it may issue its policies without liability on the part of its policy-holders, other than to pay the amount of the premium stated in the policy, and which premium shall be not less than the premium charged by solvent stock companies for insuring similar risks. The company may classify its risks according to the various hazards covered, and any saving experienced by the company in loss ratio, expense of management, or from any other source, may be returned to the policy-holders in the various classifications, according to the experience of the company in said classes and as determined by the board of directors of the company: Provided, That such saving must be apportioned equitably among the policy-holders in the classifications in which it is actually earned.

Second. If it is formed to transact, as insurer, a fire insurance business under the cash premium plan on one stated specific kind or class of manufacturing, mercantile, or other business or property, it must have bona fide written applications severally signed by applicants for fire insurance for one year on property owned by the applicant and situate within this state in separate risks of not to exceed two thousand dollars each, amounting in the aggregate to not less than three hundred thousand dollars; and must have, own, and possess in its own name and exclusive right, premiums received in cash to an amount of at least eight thousand dollars and six thousand dollars must be on hand, above all liabilities, except reinsurance, reserve, and premium liability, settled by premium notes due in installments as demanded, severally and unconditionally executed and delivered by a solvent applicant for the insurance he applies for to the aggregate amount of not less than twenty-five thousand dollars: Provided, That when any ten or more persons, partnerships, corporations, or associations engaged in a like class of manufacturing, mercantile or other business shall have organized a company hereunder, it may begin to issue policies under such conditions as may be provided by the board of trustees or managing board thereof, and shall be approved by the commissioners.

Third. If it is formed to transact as insurer, a general fire insurance business on the assessment plan, it must have bona fide written applications severally signed by applicants for fire insurance for one year, and, on risks usually written for a term, not more than five years, from residents of this state on property owned by the applicant situate within this state in separate risks of not to exceed twelve hundred and fifty dollars each, and amounting in the aggregate to not less than five hundred thousand dollars; and must have, own, and possess in its own name and exclusive right premiums on the insurance applied for, of which not less than fifty per centum thereof must be paid in cash to the aggregate amount of not less than four thousand dollars, which sum shall be on hand, above liabilities except reinsurance reserve, and the remainder and additional premium liability of the applicant must be paid as provided in the by-laws of the company: Provided, That any domestic fire insurance company doing business on the assessment plan and composed exclusively of members of a specified fraternal society, which conducts its business and secures its membership on the lodge system, having ritualistic form of work and ceremonies in such society shall be exempt from the provisions of this act governing the amount of insurance a company may carry on a single risk, financial qualifications, annual meeting, taxes, fees, and licenses, except that it shall pay for its annual license and filing its annual statement the sum of ten dollars.

Fourth. If it is formed to transact as insurer a fire insurance business on the assessment plan outside of incorporated towns in this state, it must have bona fide written applications severally signed by applicants for fire insurance for one year, and, on risks usually written for a term, not more than five years, from residents of this state on property owned by the applicant situate within this state in separate risks of not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars each, amounting in the aggregate to not less than two hundred thousand dollars; and must have, own, and possess in its own name and exclusive right premiums on the insurance applied for of which not less than fifty per centum thereof must be paid in cash and to be on hand above liabilities except reinsurance reserve, and the remainder, and the additional premium liability of the applicant must be paid as provided in the by-laws of the company.

Fifth. If it is formed to transact business as inter-insurers only between the parties forming the company and all parties who shall become members and inter-insurers therein, no such company shall be formed nor transact any business as insurers until not less than twenty-five persons or parties, each of whom must be worth in his or its own right not less than twenty thousand dollars above all liabilities, in property located within this state, such fact to be determined by the commissioner, and in determining the same he may take the verified statement of such parties, and the signed reports of a reputable commercial agency having upwards of one hundred thousand subscribers, which persons or parties shall first prescribe and adopt the terms and conditions upon which they will be governed and become inter-insurers each with the other, and each shall be individually liable with every other solvent member of such company to ratably pay and discharge all losses and legal claims accruing against such company: Provided, That the terms and conditions prescribed, adopted and entered into by such persons in becoming inter-insurers shall embrace the terms and conditions which experience of similar companies has found to be efficient and adequate to promptly and equitably pay and discharge its obligations of which the commissioner shall be the judge: Provided further, That the provisions of this paragraph shall only apply to inter-insurers associations hereafter organized or hereafter applying for admission and authority to transact business in this state as inter-insurers.

Sixth. If it is formed to transact business as insurer in this state upon the plan known as "Lloyds," no such company shall be formed with less than twenty-persons or copartnerships, citizens of the United States and two-thirds of them residents of this state, each of whom must be worth not less than twenty thousand dollars above all liabilities in real property and securities such as an insurance company is authorized to invest its capital and funds in as provided in this act, such fact to be determined by the commissioner and in determining the same he may take the verified statement of such parties and the signed reports of a reputable commercial agency having upwards of one hundred thousand subscribers, which persons or parties shall first prescribe and adopt the terms and conditions upon which they will be governed and become insurers. If such company be formed to transact business as insurer as specified in class one of section 6059-83 it must have not less than one hundred fifty thousand dollars, in bona fide unimpaired assets in excess of all liabilities, of which assets not less than seventy-five thousand dollars must be in cash and securities such as the funds of an insurance company may be invested in as provided in this act, and the remainder of said assets must consist of cash or such authorized securities, or the legal promissory notes severally made, signed, and delivered by solvent parties payable to the company whenever required for the payment and discharge of losses or legal obligations accruing against such company; and where notes are used to make up the amount of said assets the commissioner shall determine the sufficiency of each note, and he shall have the right to require that the payment of any note shall be secured by good and sufficient collateral, and it shall be his duty to require ample security to be furnished for the payment of such note when the makers thereof are not personally known by him to be solvent and good for the payment of the same. Such company shall deposit not less than two-thirds of its assets and keep the same on deposit through the insurance commissioner's office with the state treasurer in the same manner as deposits are required to be made and kept by stock insurance companies as provided in this act.

Such company may make insurance in any other class specified in said section 6059-83 when permitted by the commissioner upon furnishing additional assets of the kind herein specified in the amounts required of a stock insurance company to make insurance in like classes as provided by this act.

The plan, terms, and conditions prescribed and adopted by such company must be such as the experience of similar companies has found to be efficient and adequate to promptly and equitably pay and discharge its obligations and successfully conduct its business, of which the commissioner shall be the judge. [L. '11, p. 226, § 86.]

§ 6059-87. Mutual Company—By-laws.

The directors of a mutual insurance company shall adopt such by-laws, not in conflict with the laws of this state, as they may deem proper for the government of its officers and the conduct of its business. Said by-laws shall provide for the liability of its members or policy-holders for the payment of its losses and expenses, which liability, including the amount of the premium, shall not be less than two times the amount of the premium nor more than six times the amount of the premium charged by solvent stock companies for like risks and terms. The by-laws shall limit the expenses to not more than forty per centum of the net premiums charged and collected for insurance, which expense must include all sums paid by the insured for his insurance including any membership, policy, survey, or inspection fee, or other fee or charge, if any. [L. '11, p. 231, § 87.]

§ 6059-88. Qualifications—Foreign—Alien—Mutuals.

No alien, or foreign mutual insurance company shall be licensed to make insurance in this state until it shall have accumulated from its underwriting business and earnings surplus assets of not less than one hundred thousand dollars, and shall have a reinsurance reserve computed on a pro rata basis, which surplus assets, if an alien, shall be maintained on deposit in a depository or depositories for insurance company funds in some state or states of the United States. Such company shall not carry insurance on a single risk for an amount in excess of ten per centum of its surplus assets, as shown by the last report to the insurance commissioner, without protecting such excess by reinsurance in a solvent company. [L. '11, p. 231, § 88.]

§ 6059-89. Impairment—Reduction of Capital Stock.

When the capital stock of any domestic insurance company shall be impaired, it may reduce its capital stock as provided herein to such an amount as shall be justified by its assets; but no part of its assets shall be distributed to its stockholders, and no reduction shall be made except upon the vote of the stockholders approved by at least two-thirds of the directors and certified under the corporate seal by the secretary, a duly certified copy of which shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and in the office of the insurance commissioner, and in the office of the auditor of the county in which the principal office of the company is located, and one retained at the principal office of the company. The directors, after such reduction of capital, may require each stockholder to surrender his stock, and, in lieu thereof, may issue a new certificate for such number of shares as he shall be entitled to: Provided, That the capital of such company when so reduced shall not be less than the minimum capital required of a company to transact like business in this state. [L. '11, p. 232, § 89.]

§ 6059-90. Increase of Capital Stock.

Any domestic insurance company may at any time increase the amount of its capital stock, by giving notice once a week for four consecutive weeks, in any newspaper having a general circulation, published in the county where the company is located, of such intention; and by filing with the secretary of state a copy of such advertisement with due proof of publishing the same, together with the declaration under its corporate seal, signed by its president and two-thirds of its board of directors, and by the stockholders representing three-fourths of its capital stock, of their desire to increase the capital, and file like copies and proof in the office of the insurance commissioner, and in the office of the auditor of the county in which the principal office of such company is located, and retain a similar copy and proof in its principal office: Provided, That such increase of capital stock shall be fully subscribed and paid for in lawful money of the United States within six months after the date of filing such papers in the office of the secretary of state, and, when said increase of capital shall have been fully subscribed and paid in full in cash, the president and secretary of such company shall make and verify under oath a certificate under the seal of the company stating that such increase in stock has been fully subscribed and paid in full in cash, as required by this act, and file such certificate in the office of the secretary of state and in the office of the insurance commissioner, and in the office of the auditor of the county in which the principal office of the company is located, and retain a similar copy in its principal office, and thereupon such increase in capital shall be effectual. [L. '11, p. 232, § 90.]

§ 6059-91. Examination—Reserve—Liability.

In ascertaining the condition of a fire insurance company, under the provisions of this act, or in any examination made by the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner, he shall allow as assets only such investments, cash, and accounts as are authorized by the laws of this state at the date of the examination, but unpaid premiums on policies written within three months shall be admitted as available resources. In ascertaining its liability, there shall be charged in addition to the capital stock and all outstanding claims, a sum equal to the total unearned premiums on the policies in force, computed on a pro rata basis. [L. '11, p. 233, § 91.]

§ 6059-92. Life—Legal Reserve.

The commissioner shall annually make valuation of all outstanding policies, additions thereto, unpaid dividends, and all other obligations of every life insurance company doing business in this state; and all such valuations made by him or his authority shall be according to the standard of valuation adopted by the company: Provided, That in either case the standard of valuation employed shall be stated in his annual report: Provided further, That no such standard of valuation whether on the net level premium, preliminary term, or select and ultimate reserve basis, for policies issued after the passage of this act shall be less than that determined upon such basis according to the American Experience Table of Mortality with three and one-half per centum interest. The commissioner may vary the standard of valuation in particular cases of invalid lives and other extrahazards: Provided, The same is on basis of at least three and one-half per centum, value policies in groups, use approximate average for fractions of a year, and assume as accurate the valuation of the department of insurance of any other state or country, if the insurance officer of such other state or country likewise accredits the valuation made by the commissioner of this state: Provided, That when the preliminary term basis is used it shall not exceed one year.

The legal minimum standard for the valuation of annuities issued after January first, nineteen hundred and twelve, shall be "McClintock's Table of Mortality Among Annuitants," or the American Experience Table of Mortality, with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum, but annuities deferred ten or more years and written in connection with life or term insurance shall be valued in the same mortality table from which the consideration or premiums were computed, with interest not higher than three and one-half per centum per annum.

The legal minimum standard for the valuation of annuity policies issued after the first day of January, nineteen hundred and twelve, shall be the American Experience Table of Mortality with interest and three and one-half per centum per annum: Provided, That any life insurance company may voluntarily value its industrial policies written on the weekly premium payment plan according to the "Standard Industrial Mortality Table" or the "Sub-Standard Industrial Mortality Table."

Any life insurance company may voluntarily value its policies, or any class thereof, according to the American Experience Table of Mortality; or if industrial, at its option, according to the "Standard Industrial Mortality Table," or "Sub-Standard Industrial Mortality Table," at a lower rate of interest than that above prescribed, but not lower than three per centum per annum, and in such case shall report the standards used by it in making the same, to the commissioner in its annual statement: Provided, That no such standards, if adopted, shall be abandoned without the consent of the commissioner first being obtained in writing. [L. '11, p. 233, § 92.]

§ 6059-93. Investments Allowed—Life.

In estimating the condition of any life insurance company, under the provisions of this act, or in any examination made by the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner, he shall allow as assets only such investments, cash, and accounts as are authorized by the laws of this state, at the date of examination, and shall charge as liabilities in addition to the capital stock, all outstanding indebtedness of the company, and the premium reserve on policies, and additions thereto in force computed according to the table of mortality and rate of interest prescribed in this act. The total assets invested and otherwise in every domestic life insurance company shall be held to be accumulations for the exclusive benefit of policy-holders, and no payment to stockholders shall be made therefrom, until all obligations to policy-holders, and creditors have been fully provided for including the reserve required by the preceding section of this act to be determined by the commissioner. [L. '11, p. 235, § 93.]

§ 6059-94. Health—Reserve.

The commissioner shall annually make valuations of all outstanding policies of every company insuring against disablement by sickness, on the net premium basis, according to the "British Friendly Society Tables, eighteen hundred and eighty," or the "Manchester Unity Friendly Society Tables," eighteen hundred and ninety-three to eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, with interest at three and one-half per centum per annum. He may, in his discretion, vary the standard in particular cases, and may also require additional reserve because of hazardous occupations, impairment of the lives of the insured or insufficient net premiums. This provision shall not apply to policies insuring for not longer than one year without privileges of renewal. [L. '11, p. 235, § 94.]

§ 6059-95. Liability—Reserve.

The indebtedness for outstanding losses under insurance against loss or damages resulting from accident to or injuries suffered by employees or other person and for which the insured is liable, and under insurance against loss from liability on account of the death of or injury to an employee not caused by the negligence of the employer, shall be determined as follows: Each corporation which writes policies covering any of said kinds of insurance shall include in the annual statement required by section 6059-26 a schedule of its experience thereunder, in the United States and foreign countries in the case of corporations organized in the United States, and in the United States only in the case of corporations organized outside of the United States, giving each calendar year's experience separately, and crediting or charging each item to the year in which the policy to which it relates was written, as follows: (1) the earned premiums on all such policies written during the period of ten years immediately preceding the date as of which the statement is made, being the gross premiums on all such policies including excess and additional premiums and premiums in course of collection, less return premiums and premiums on canceled policies, and less the unearned premiums on policies in force as shown in such annual statement; (2) the amount of all payments of whatsoever nature made by reason or on account of injuries covered by such policies written during said period. This amount shall include medical and surgical attendance, payments to claimants, legal expenses, salaries and expenses of investigators, adjusters, and field men, rents, stationery, telegraph and telephone charges, postage, salaries and expenses of office employees, home-office expenses, and all other payments made on account of such injuries, whether such payments are allocated to specific claims or are unallocated; (3) the number of suits being defended at the date as of which the statement is made under policies written during said period, except suits in which liability is not dependent upon negligence of the insured, and a charge of seven hundred and fifty dollars for each suit; (4) the number of deaths for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written during said period, and not paid for at the date as of which the statement is made and a charge of the amount necessary to pay for such deaths; (5) the number of unpaid claims at the date as of which the statement is made on account of nonfatal injuries for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written during said period, and a charge equal to the present value of the estimated future payments; (6) the loss ratio determined from the foregoing as to each year separately, using as the divisor the earned premiums shown in item (1) and as the dividend the amount of payments shown in item (2) plus the amounts charged in items (3), (4) and (5); (7) the number of suits being defended at the date as of which the statement is made under policies written more than ten years prior to such date, except suits in which liability is not dependent upon negligence of the insured; (8) the number of deaths for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written more than ten years prior to the date as of which the statement is made, and not paid for at such date; (9) the number of unpaid claims at the date as of which the statement is made on account of nonfatal injuries for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written more than ten years prior to such date.

All unallocated payments in item (2) made in a given calendar year subsequent to the first four years in which a corporation has been issuing such policies shall be distributed as follows: thirty-five per centum shall be charged to the policies written in that year, forty per centum to the policies written in the preceding year, ten per centum to the policies written in the second year preceding, ten per centum to the policies written in the third year preceding and five per centum to the policies written in the fourth year preceding; and such payments made in the first four calendar years in which a corporation has been issuing such policies shall be distributed as follows: in the first calendar year one hundred per centum shall be charged to the policies written in that year; in the second calendar year fifty per centum shall be charged to the policies written in that year and fifty per centum to the policies written in the preceding year; in the third calendar year forty per centum shall be charged to the policies written in that year, forty per centum to the policies written in the preceding year and twenty per centum to the policies written in the second year preceding; and in the fourth calendar year thirty-five per centum shall be charged to the policies written in that year, forty per centum to the policies written in the preceding year, fifteen per centum to the policies written in the second year preceding and ten per centum to the policies written in the third year preceding, and a schedule showing such distribution shall be included in such annual statement.

Each such corporation shall be charged with indebtedness for outstanding losses upon such policies determined as follows: (10) for all suits being defended under policies written more than ten years prior to the date as of which the statement is made, except suits in which liability is not dependent upon negligence of the insured, one thousand dollars for each suit; (11) for all suits being defended under policies written more than five years and less than ten years prior to the date as of which the statement is made, except suits in which the liability is not dependent upon negligence of the insured, seven hundred and fifty dollars for each suit; (12) for all deaths for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence covered by policies written more than five years prior to the date as of which the statement is made, the amount necessary to pay for such deaths; (13) for all unpaid claims on account of nonfatal injuries for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence under policies written more than five years prior to the date as of which the statement is made, the present value of the estimated future payments; (14) for the policies written in the five years immediately preceding the date as of which the statement is made an amount determined as follows: multiply the earned premiums of each of such five years as shown in item (1) by the loss ratio ascertained as in item (6) on all the policies written in the first five years of the said ten-year period, using as the divisor the sum of the earned premiums shown in item (1) for such first five years, and as the dividend the sum of the payments shown in item (2) for such first five years plus the sum of the charges in items (3), (4) and (5) for such first five years; but the ratio to be used shall in no event be less than fifty per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and eleven, nor less than fifty-one per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and twelve, nor less than fifty-two per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and thirteen, nor less than fifty-three per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, nor less than fifty-four per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and fifteen, nor less than fifty-five per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and sixteen; and from the amount so ascertained in each of the last five years of said ten-year period deduct all payments made under policies written in the corresponding year as shown in item (2), and the remainder in the case of each year shall be deemed the indebtedness for that year: Provided, however, That if the remainder in the case of any year of the first three years of the five years immediately preceding the date as of which the statement is made shall be less than the sum of the three following items for that year at that date,—(a) the number of suits, except suits in which liability is not dependent upon negligence of the insured, being defended under policies written in that year, and a charge of seven hundred and fifty dollars for each suit; (b) the amount necessary to pay for all deaths for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written in that year; and (c) the present value of estimated unpaid claims on account of nonfatal injuries for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written in that year—then the sum of said items (a), (b) and (c) shall be the indebtedness for that year.

A corporation which has been issuing such policies for a period of less than ten years shall nevertheless include in its annual statement a schedule as hereinbefore required for the years in which it shall have issued such policies, and shall be charged with an indebtedness determined in the same manner; but in determining the indebtedness for policies written in the five years immediately preceding the date as of which the statement is made, the minimum ratios hereinbefore prescribed shall be used, subject to the same deductions and provisions as in the case of corporations that have been issuing such policies for ten years or more.

In estimating and ascertaining the assets, liabilities, and financial condition of all other insurance companies, not otherwise provided for by the provisions of this act, the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner shall allow as assets only such investments, cash, and accounts as are authorized by the existing laws of this state, or under the existing laws of the state or country under which such company is organized and which investments he may approve or reject, at the date of the investigation, and in estimating the liabilities there shall be added, in addition to the capital stock, all outstanding claims and a sum equal to the unearned premiums on the policies in force, calculated on the gross sum without any deduction on any account, charged to the policy-holder on each respective risk from the date of the issuance of the policy.

If the commissioner finds this rule to be impracticable in estimating and ascertaining the condition of certain kinds of insurance companies, he shall formulate such rules as he shall deem proper and efficient and consistent with law, having due regard to such rules as may be used in other states or approved by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners or Superintendents: Provided, That in relation to the affairs of any foreign company, he may, in lieu of such examination and investigation, accept a certificate of the insurance commissioner or superintendent of such state or district, as to its condition. [L. '11, p. 236, § 95.]

The provisions of this act relating to the valuation of policies shall not apply to policies issued prior to the date at which this act goes into effect. [L. '11, p. 241, § 96.]

§ 6059-97.—Liabilities of Directors and Corporators.

The directors, corporators, and organizers of any company organized under this act, and those entitled to a participation of the profits of such company, shall be jointly and severally liable for all debts or liabilities of such company, until it has qualified and been admitted to make insurance in this state. [L. '11, p. 241, § 97.]

§ 6059-98. Reinsurance in Nonadmitted Alien Companies Prohibited.

No insurance company authorized to transact business in this state and no manager or agent thereof shall reinsure, transfer, or cede in any manner whatsoever the whole or any part of its liability under a policy covering property within this state, except marine risks, in any alien company not having a duly appointed attorney in fact in the United States to accept service of legal process, or not admitted to transact business in the United States and having a deposit in some state in the United States.

Any company, or manager, or agent who violates the provisions of this section, shall be fined in any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, and the license of such company, manager or agent shall be revoked during the time such fine remains unpaid. [L. '11, p. 241, § 98.]

§ 6059-99. Attorney General—Prosecuting Attorneys—Duties.

In all proceedings instituted in any court, or otherwise, under the provisions of this act, it shall be and hereby is made the duty of the attorney general and of the several prosecuting attorneys throughout the state, to prosecute or defend all such proceedings when requested by the commissioner, his deputy, or examiner so to do. [L. '11, p. 241, § 99.]

§ 6059-100. Brokerage—License Required—Agents may Exchange Business.

Any person or party who solicits fire, marine, casualty, liability, or surety business to be placed in an insurance company other than represented by him shall be deemed and considered as transacting a brokerage business and shall be required to procure a broker's license: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be considered as prohibiting an exchange of business between duly licensed recording agents. [L. '11, p. 242, § 100.]

§ 6059-101. Inspection Bureau.

After the first day of January, nineteen hundred thirteen, the commissioner, if he deem it necessary for the detection and correction of errors or discovery of violations of this act in effecting insurance, if any be committed, may permit an inspecting or stamping bureau to be maintained under the supervision of a deputy commissioner for the purpose of inspecting all daily reports of fire insurance risks located in this state. [L. '11, p. 242, § 101.]

§ 6059-102. General Penalties.

Any company or person who knowingly violates any provision of this act for which no penalty is provided, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished as provided by law. [L. '11, p. 242, § 102.]

ARTICLE II.

§ 6059-103. Over-insurance—Unlawful.

It shall be unlawful for any insurance company or any agent to knowingly issue any fire insurance policy upon property within this state for an amount which with any existing insurance exceeds the fair value of the property or of the interest of the insured therein, or for a longer time than for five years. [L. '11, p. 242, § 103.]

§ 6059-104. Over-insurance—Procuring—Unlawful.

It shall be unlawful for any party having an insurable interest in property located in this state to knowingly procure any fire insurance policy upon his interest in such property for an amount in excess of the fair value of his interest in the property, or for an amount which, with any existing insurance thereon, exceeds the fair value of his interest in the property. [L. '11, p. 242, § 104.]

§ 6059-105. Over-insurance—Penalties.

Every insurer who makes insurance upon any building or property or interest therein against loss or damage by fire, and every agent who issues a fire insurance policy covering on any building or property or interest therein, and every insured who procures a policy of fire insurance upon any building or property or interest therein owned by him, is presumed to know the insurable value of such building or property or interest therein at the time such insurance is effected. Any insurer who knowingly makes insurance on any building or property or interest therein against loss or damage by fire in excess of the insurable value thereof, shall be fined in a sum not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. Any agent who knowingly effects insurance on a building or property or interest therein in excess of the insurable value thereof, shall be fined in a sum not less than fifteen nor more than twenty-five dollars. Any person or party who knowingly procures insurance against loss or damage by fire on any building or property or interest therein owned by him in excess of its insurable value shall be fined in a sum not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. [L. '11, p. 243, § 105.]

§ 6059-105½. Total Loss—Measure of Damages—Replacing.

Whenever any policy of insurance shall be hereafter written or renewed insuring real property or any building or structure erected thereon or connected therewith, and the property insured shall be wholly destroyed, without criminal fault on the part of the insured, or his assigns, the amount of insurance written in such policy shall be taken conclusively to be the true value of the property when insured, and the true amount of the loss and measure of damages when destroyed. In case there is a partial destruction of the property insured, no greater amount shall be collected than the injury sustained: Provided, That the insurer shall have the option to repair, rebuild or replace the property lost or damaged with other of like kind and quality if he gives notice of his intention so to do within twenty days after the receipt of notice of loss: Provided, Such insurer shall, within thirty days from the receipt of notice above, commence such rebuilding or replacing and shall diligently prosecute the same to completion, and shall pay to the insured the reasonable rental value of the premises with the buildings thereon from the date of loss to the date of such completion. [L. '11, p. 243, § 105½.]

§ 6059-106. Policy Standard Form—What to Contain.

On and after January first, nineteen hundred and twelve, no fire insurance company shall issue any fire insurance policy covering on property or interest therein in this state other than on form known as the New York Standard as now or may be hereafter constituted, except as follows:

First. A company may print on or in its policy its name, location and date of incorporation, plan of operation, whether stock or mutual, and if mutual whether on cash premium or assessment plan; and if it be a stock company, the amount of its paid-up capital stock, the names of its officers and agents, the number and date of the policy, and, if it is issued by an agent, the words, "This policy shall not be valid until countersigned by the duly authorized agent of the company at —," and, if a mutual company, must state the contingent mutual liability of its policy-holders or members for payment of losses and expenses not provided for by its cash funds until it shall have accumulated surplus assets of not less than fifty thousand dollars, which it must maintain in securities deposited as required of stock companies, and, while it maintains such surplus assets on deposit, it may issue its policies with the statement thereon that the liability of the policy-holder is limited to the premium paid, as hereinafter provided.

Second. A company may print or use in its policies printed forms of description and specifications of the property insured.

Third. A company insuring against damage by lightning may print in the clause enumerating the perils insured against, the additional words, "also any damage by lightning whether fire ensues or not," and in the clause providing for an apportionment of loss in case of other insurance the words, "whether by fire, lightning or both."

Fourth. A domestic company may print in its policies any provisions which it is authorized or required by the law to insert therein, and any foreign or alien company may, with the approval of the commissioner, so print any provision required by its charter or deed of settlement, or by the laws of its own state or country, not contrary to the laws of this state; but the commissioner shall require any provision which, in his opinion, modifies the contract of insurance in such a way as to affect the question of loss to be appended to the policy by an indorsement or rider as hereinafter provided.

Fifth. The blanks in said standard form may be filled in in print or writing.

Sixth. A company may print upon policies issued in compliance with the preceding provisions of this section the words, "Washington Standard Policy."

Seventh. A company may write upon the margin or across the face of the policy, or write or print in type not smaller than nonpareil upon a slip, slips, rider or riders to be attached thereto, provisions adding to or relating to those contained in the Standard Form; and all such slips, riders, indorsements, and provisions must be signed by the officers or agents of the company so using them.

Eighth. If the policy be made by a mutual or other company having special regulations lawfully applicable to its organization, membership, policies or contracts of insurance such regulation shall apply to and form a part of the policy as the same may be written or printed upon, attached, or appended thereto.

Ninth. If the policy be made by a company operating on the plan known as "Lloyds" it shall have the name and address of each underwriter printed on the back of the policy.

Tenth. Every policy shall have legibly inscribed upon its face and filing back suitable words to designate whether the company making such insurance be a stock, or mutual company, or "Lloyds," or Inter-Insurers Association.

The word "noon" occurring in the policy shall be construed to be the noon of standard time of the place where the property covered by the policy is situated. [L. '11, p. 244, § 106.]

§ 6059-107. Limitation of Risk.

No insurance company authorized to transact business in this state, unless otherwise provided by this act, shall insure a single risk, or a single block in the congested district of any city or town, for a larger amount than one-tenth of its paid-up capital in the United States, unless it provides for reinsurance of the excess simultaneously with the original contract; and if any insurance company violates this provision, the commissioner may revoke its authority to transact business in this state. [L. '11, p. 246, § 107.]

§ 6059-108. Policy—Canceled—Return Premium.

Any fire insurance policy may be canceled at any time by the insurer giving the insured or his representative in charge of the property insured, and the mortgagee, if the insurance is for the benefit of the mortgagee, five days' notice of such cancellation, and if the premium has been actually paid, by paying in cash or mailing by registered letter with proper postage affixed thereto, addressed to the insured at his usual or last known postoffice address, a postoffice or express company money order or bank draft for the return premium computed at pro rata rate for the time the insurance has yet to run, or customary short rate where the insurance is canceled by the insured, or, where the premium has not been paid, by the insured giving the insurer or its agents or agency, who issued the policy notice of such cancellation and paying the premium for the time the insurance has been in force computed at the customary short rate: Provided, That in case the insurer is a mutual company, such cancellation shall not relieve the insured from his statutory liability in common with every other policy-holder of such company for losses sustained by such company at or prior to the time of the cancellation. [L. '11, p. 246, § 108.]

§ 6059-109. Premium—To be Stated.

Every fire insurance policy must state on its face the amount and the rate of the premium. [L. '11, p. 247, § 109.]

§ 6059-110. Foreign Inter-insurance.

Associations of individuals, citizens of the United States, incorporated within the United States to transact business as inter-insurers only between the parties forming the association, and all parties forming the association and all parties who shall become members and inter-insurers therein, may be authorized to transact insurance in this state in like manner and upon the same terms and conditions as required of domestic inter-insurance associations. [L. '11, p. 247, § 110.]

§ 6059-111. Demoralization of Business—Prohibited.

Any company which precipitates, or aids in precipitating or conducting a rate war and by so doing writes or issues a policy of insurance at a less rate than permitted under their schedules filed with the commissioner, or below the rate deemed by him to be proper and adequate to cover the class of risk insured, shall have its license, and those of its agents, to do business in this state, suspended until such time as the commissioner is satisfied that it is charging a proper rate of premium. [L. '11, p. 247, § 111.]

§ 6059-112. Rate War—Offending Company—Agent's Commission.

Any company which has precipitated, or aided in precipitating or conducting a rate war for the purpose of punishing or eliminating competitors or stifling competition, or demoralizing the business, or for any other purpose, and has ordered the cancellation or rewriting of policies at a rate lower than that provided by its rating schedules where such rate war is not in operation, and has paid or attempted to pay to the assured any return premium, on any risk so to be rewritten, on which their agent has received or is entitled to receive his regular commission, such company shall not be allowed to charge back to such agent any portion of his commission on the ground that the same has not been earned. [L. '11, p. 247, § 112.]

§ 6059-113. Adjuster to Report Violations.

Every adjuster, who investigates any loss claim in this state, shall ascertain whether there be double or over-insurance upon such risk and the facts and circumstances so far as practical pertaining to the origin or happening of the hazard or peril insured against, and in case he believes fraud has been committed or attempted to be committed, he shall promptly report the premises to the commissioner, and in case of fire insurance, to the fire marshal as well. [L. '11, p. 248, § 113.]

§ 6059-114. Insurable Interest in a Ship.

The owner of a ship has in all cases an insurable interest in it, even when it has been chartered by one who covenants to pay him its value in case of loss. [L. '11, p. 248, § 114.]

§ 6059-115. Interest Reduced by Bottomry.

The insurable interest of the owner of a ship hypothecated by bottomry is only the excess of its value over the amount secured by bottomry. [L. '11, p. 248, § 115.]

§ 6059-116. Freight—What.

Freight, in the sense of a policy of marine insurance, signifies all the benefit derived by the owner, either from the chartering of the ship or its employment for the carriage of his own goods or those of others. [L. '11, p. 248, § 116.]

§ 6059-117. Expected Freight.

The owner of a ship has an insurable interest in expected freight which he would have certainly earned but for the intervention of the peril insured against. [L. '11, p. 248, § 117.]

§ 6059-118. Interest in Expected Freight—What.

The interest mentioned in the last section exists, in the case of a charter-party, when the ship has broken ground on the chartered voyage, and if a price is to be paid for the carriage of goods they are actually on board or there is some contract for putting them on board, and both ship and goods are ready for the specified voyage. [L. '11, p. 248, § 118.]

§ 6059-119. Insurable Interest in Profits.

One who has an interest in the thing from which profits are expected to proceed, has an insurable interest in the profits. [L. '11, p. 249, § 119.]

§ 6059-120. Insurable Interest of Charterer.

The charterer of a ship has an insurable interest in it, to the extent that he is liable to be damnified by its loss. [L. '11, p. 249, § 120.]

§ 6059-121. Information—Communicated.

In marine insurance each party is bound to communicate, in good faith, all facts within his knowledge which are, or which he believes to be, material to the contract, and which the other has not the means of ascertaining, and as to which he makes no warranty, and all the information which he possesses, material to the risk, except that neither party to a contract of marine insurance is bound to communicate information of the matters following, unless it be in answer to the inquiries of the other:

First. Those which the other knows;

Second. Those which, in the exercise of ordinary care, the other ought to know, and of which the former has no reason to suppose him ignorant;

Third. Those of which the other waives communication;

Fourth. Those which prove or tend to prove the existence of a risk excluded by a warranty, and which are not otherwise material; and Fifth. Those which relate to a risk excepted from the policy, and which are not otherwise material.

He shall also state the exact and whole truth in relation to all matters that he represents, or upon inquiry assumes to disclose. [L. '11, p. 249, § 121.]

§ 6059-122. Material Information.

In marine insurance, information of the belief or expectation of a third person, in reference to a material fact, is material. [L. '11, p. 249, § 122.]

§ 6059-123. Presumption of Knowledge of Loss.

A person insured by a contract of marine insurance is presumed to have had knowledge, at the time of insuring, of a prior loss, if the information might possibly have reached him in the usual mode of transmission, and at the usual rate of communication. [L. '11, p. 250, § 123.]

§ 6059-124. Concealment Affecting Risk Only.

A concealment in a marine insurance, in respect of any of the following matters, does not vitiate the entire contract, but merely exonerates the insurer from a loss resulting from the risk concealed;

First. The national character of the insured.

Second. The liability of the thing insured to capture and detention;

Third. The liability to seizure from breach of foreign laws of trade;

Fourth. The want of necessary documents; and,

Fifth. The use of false and simulated papers. [L. '11, p. 250, § 124.]

§ 6059-125. Intentional Falsity—Effect.

If a representation, by a person insured under a contract of marine insurance, is intentionally false in any respect, whether material, or immaterial, the insurer may rescind the entire contract. [L. '11, p. 250, § 125.]

§ 6059-126. Representation of Expectation.

The eventual falsity of a representation as to expectation does not, in the absence of fraud, avoid a contract of insurance. [L. '11, p. 250, § 126.]

§ 6059-127. Seaworthiness—Warranty.

In every marine insurance upon a ship or freight, or freightage, or upon anything which is the subject of marine insurance, a warranty is implied that the ship is seaworthy. [L. '11, p. 250, § 127.]

§ 6059-128. Seaworthiness—What.

A ship is seaworthy when reasonably fit to perform the services, and to encounter the ordinary perils of the voyage, contemplated by the parties to the policy. [L. '11, p. 250, § 128.]

§ 6059-129. Seaworthiness—Compliance With—Exceptions.

An implied warranty of seaworthiness is complied with if the ship be seaworthy at the time of the commencement of the risk, except in the following cases:

First. When the insurance is made for a specified length of time, the implied warranty is not complied with, unless the ship be seaworthy at the commencement of every voyage she may undertake during that time; and,

Second. When the insurance is upon the cargo, which, by the terms of the policy, or the description of the voyage, or the established custom of the trade, is to be transshipped at an intermediate port, the implied warranty is not complied with, unless each vessel upon which the cargo is shipped, or transshipped, be seaworthy at the commencement of its particular voyage. [L. '11, p. 251, § 129.]

§ 6059-130. Seaworthiness—Constitute—Things.

A warranty of seaworthiness extends not only to the condition of the structure of the ship itself, but requires that it be properly laden, and provided with a competent master, a sufficient number of competent officers and seamen, and the requisite appurtenances and equipments, such as ballast, cables, and anchors, cordage, and sails, food, water, fuel, and lights, and other necessary or proper stores and implements for the voyage. [L. '11, p. 251, § 130.]

§ 6059-131. Seaworthiness—Degrees—Stages—Voyage.

Where different portions of the voyage contemplated by a policy, differ in respect to the things requisite to make the ship seaworthy therefor, a warranty of seaworthiness is complied with if, at the commencement of each portion, the ship is seaworthy with reference to that portion. [L. '11, p. 251, § 131.]

When a ship becomes unseaworthy during the voyage to which an insurance relates, an unreasonable delay in repairing the defect exonerates the insurer from liability from any loss arising therefrom. [L. '11, p. 251, § 132.]

§ 6059-133. Seaworthiness—As to Insurance on Cargo.

A ship which is seaworthy for the purpose of an insurance upon the ship may, nevertheless, by reason of being unfit to receive the cargo, be unseaworthy for the purpose of insurance upon the cargo. [L. '11, p. 252, § 133.]

§ 6059-134. Neutral Papers.

Where the nationality or neutrality of a ship or cargo is expressly warranted, it is implied that the ship will carry the requisite documents to show such nationality or neutrality, and that it will not carry any documents which cast reasonable suspicion thereon. [L. '11, p. 252, § 134.]

§ 6059-135. Voyage Insured—Determined.

When the voyage contemplated by a policy is described by the places of beginning and ending, the voyage insured is one which conforms to the course of sailing fixed by mercantile usage between those places. [L. '11, p. 252, § 135.]

§ 6059-136. Sailing—Course—Determined.

If the course of sailing is not fixed by mercantile usage, the voyage insured by a policy is the way between the places specified which, to a master of ordinary skill and discretion, would seem the most natural, direct, and advantageous. [L. '11, p. 252, § 136.]

§ 6059-137. Deviation—What.

Deviation is a departure from the course of the voyage insured, mentioned in the last two sections, or an unreasonable delay in pursuing the voyage, or the commencement of an entirely different voyage. [L. '11, p. 252, § 137.]

§ 6059-138. Deviation—Proper.

A deviation is proper:

First. When caused by circumstances over which neither the master nor the owner of the ship has any control;

Second. When necessary to comply with a warranty, or to avoid a peril, whether insured against or not;

Third. When made in good faith, and upon reasonable grounds of belief in its necessity to avoid a peril; or,

Fourth. When made in good faith, for the purpose of saving human life, or relieving another vessel in distress. [L. '11, p. 252, § 138.]

§ 6059-139. Deviation—Improper.

Every deviation not specified in the last section is improper. [L. '11, p. 253, § 139.]

§ 6059-140. Proper Deviation Exonerates Insurer.

An insurer is not liable for any loss happening to a thing insured subsequently to an improper deviation. [L. '11, p. 253, § 140.]

§ 6059-141. Total—Partial—Loss.

A loss may be either total or partial. [L. '11, p. 253, § 141.]

§ 6059-142. Actual and Constructive Total Loss.

A total loss may be either actual or constructive. [L. '11, p. 253, § 142.]

§ 6059-143. Actual Total Loss—What.

An actual total loss is caused by:

First. A total destruction of the thing insured;

Second. The loss of the thing by sinking, or by being broken up;

Third. Any damage to the thing which renders it valueless to the owner for the purposes for which he held it; or,

Fourth. Any other event which entirely deprives the owner of the possession, at the port of destination, of the thing insured. [L. '11, p. 253, § 143.]

§ 6059-144. Constructive Total Loss.

A constructive total loss is one which gives to a person insured a right to abandon, as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 253, § 144.]

§ 6059-145. Actual Loss—Presumed.

An actual loss may be presumed from the continued absence of a ship without being heard of; and the length of time which is sufficient to raise this presumption depends on the circumstances of the case. [L. '11, p. 253, § 145.]

§ 6059-146. Insurance—Cargo—Voyage Broken.

When a ship is prevented, at an intermediate port, from completing the voyage, by the perils insured against, the master must make every exertion to produce, in the same or contiguous port, another ship, for the purpose of conveying the cargo to its destination; and the liability of a marine insurer thereon continues after they are thus reshipped. [L. '11, p. 253, § 146.]

§ 6059-147. Reshipment—Cost, etc.

In addition to the liability mentioned in the last section, a marine insurer is bound for damages, expenses of discharging, storage, reshipment, extra freight, and all other expenses incurred in saving cargo reshipped pursuant to the last section, up to the amount insured. [L. '11, p. 254, § 147.]

§ 6059-148. Insured—Entitled—Payment—When.

Upon an actual total loss, a person insured is entitled to payment without notice of abandonment. [L. '11, p. 254, § 148.]

§ 6059-149. Average Loss.

Where it has been agreed that an insurance upon a particular thing, or class of things, shall be free from particular average, a marine insurer is not liable for any particular average loss not depriving the insured of the possession, at the port of destination, of the whole of such thing, or class of things, even though it become entirely worthless; but he is liable for his proportion of all general average loss assessed upon the thing insured. [L. '11, p. 254, § 149.]

§ 6059-150. Insurance Against Total Loss.

An insurance confined in terms to an actual total loss, does not cover a constructive total loss, but covers any loss which necessarily results in depriving the insured of the possession, at the port of destination, of the thing insured. [L. '11, p. 254, § 150.]

§ 6059-151. Abandonment—What.

Abandonment is the act by which, after a constructive total loss, a person insured by contract of marine insurance declares to the insurer that he relinquishes to him his interest in the thing insured. [L. '11, p. 254, § 151.]

§ 6059-152. Insured may Abandon.

A person insured by a contract of marine insurance may abandon the thing insured, or any particular portion thereof separately valued by the policy, or otherwise separately insured, and recovered for a total loss thereof, when the cause of the loss is a peril insured against:

First. If more than half thereof in value is actually lost, or would have to be expended to recover it from the peril;

Second. If it is injured to such an extent as to reduce its value more than one-half;

Third. If the thing insured, being a ship, the contemplated voyage cannot be lawfully performed without incurring an expense to the insured of more than half the value of the thing abandoned, or without incurring a risk which a prudent man would not take under the circumstances; or,

Fourth. If the thing insured, being cargo or freight, the voyage cannot be performed nor another ship procured by the master, within a reasonable time and with reasonable diligence, to forward the cargo, without incurring the like expense or risk. But freight cannot in any case be abandoned, unless the ship is also abandoned. [L. '11, p. 254, § 152.]

§ 6059-154. Abandonment—When may be.

Abandonment must be made within a reasonable time after the information of the loss, and after the commencement of the voyage, and before the party abandoning has information of its completion. [L. '11, p. 255, § 154.]

§ 6059-155. Abandonment—When Defeated.

Where the information upon which an abandonment has been made proves incorrect, or the thing insured was so far restored when the abandonment was made that there was then in fact no total loss, the abandonment becomes ineffectual. [L. '11, p. 255, § 155.]

§ 6059-156. Abandonment—How Made.

Abandonment is made by giving notice thereof to the insurer, which may be done orally, or in writing. [L. '11, p. 255, § 156.]

§ 6059-157. Notice—Requisition of.

A notice of abandonment must be explicit, and must specify the particular cause of the abandonment, but need state only enough to show that there is probable cause thereof, and need not be accompanied with proof of interest or loss. [L. '11, p. 225, § 157.]

§ 6059-158. Abandonment—Sustained—Cause Specified.

An abandonment can be sustained only upon the cause specified in the notice thereof. [L. '11, p. 256, § 158.]

§ 6059-159. Abandonment—Effect.

An abandonment is equivalent to a transfer, by the insured, of his interest, to the insurer, with all the chances of recovery and indemnity. [L. '11, p. 256, § 159.]

§ 6059-160. Abandonment—Formal Waiver.

If a marine insurer pays for a loss as if it were an actual total loss, he is entitled to whatever may remain of the thing insured, or its proceeds, or salvage, as if there had been a formal abandonment. [L. '11, p. 256, § 160.]

§ 6059-161. Agent—Insured—Become Agent—Insurer.

Upon an abandonment, acts done in good faith by those who were agents of the insured in respect to the thing insured, subsequent to the loss, are at the risk of the insurer, and for his benefit. [L. '11, p. 256, § 161.]

§ 6059-162. Acceptance not Necessary.

An acceptance of an abandonment is not necessary to the rights of the insured, and is not to be presumed from the mere silence of the insurer, upon his receiving notice of abandonment. [L. '11, p. 256, § 162.]

§ 6059-163. Acceptance Conclusive.

The acceptance of an abandonment, whether expressed or implied, is conclusive upon the parties, and admits the loss and the sufficiency of the abandonment. [L. '11, p. 256, § 163.]

§ 6059-164. Abandonment—Accepted—Irrevocable.

An abandonment once made and accepted is irrevocable, unless the ground upon which it was made proves to be unfounded. [L. '11, p. 256, § 164.]

§ 6059-165. Abandonment—Freight—Affected.

On an accepted abandonment of a ship, freight earned previous to the loss belongs to the insurer thereof; but freight subsequently earned belongs to the insurer of the ship. [L. '11, p. 256, § 165.]

§ 6059-166. Refusal to Accept.

If an insurer refuses to accept a valid abandonment, he is liable as upon an actual total loss, deducting from the amount any proceeds of the thing insured which may have come to the hands of the insured. [L. '11, p. 157, § 166.]

§ 6059-167. Omission to Abandon.

If a person insured omits to abandon, he may nevertheless recover his actual loss. [L. '11, p. 257, § 167.]

§ 6059-168. Valuation—When Conclusive.

A valuation in a policy of marine insurance is conclusive between the parties thereto in the adjustment of either a partial or total loss, if the insured has some interest at risk, and there is no fraud on his part; except that when a thing has been hypothecated by bottomry or respondentia, before its insurance, and without the knowledge of the person actually procuring the insurance, he may show the real value. But a valuation fraudulent in fact entitles the insurer to rescind the contract. [L. '11, p. 257, § 168.]

§ 6059-169. Loss—Partial.

A marine insurer is liable upon a partial loss only for such proportion of the amount insured by him as the loss bears to the value of the whole interest of the insured in the property insured. [L. '11, p. 257, § 169.]

§ 6059-170. Profits.

When profits are separately insured in a contract of marine insurance, the insured is entitled to recover, in case of loss, a proportion of such profits equivalent to the proportion which the value of the property lost bears to the value of the whole. [L. '11, p. 257, § 170.]

§ 6059-171. Valuation—Apportioned.

In case of a valued policy of marine insurance on freight or cargo, if a part only of the subject is exposed to risk, the valuation applies only in proportion to such part. [L. '11, p. 257, § 171.]

§ 6059-172. Valuation—Profits.

[When profits are valued and insured by a contract of marine insurance, a loss of them is conclusively presumed from a loss of the property out of which they were expected to arise, and the valuation fixes their amount. [L. '11, p. 257, § 172.]

§ 6059-173. Estimating Loss—Open Policy.

In estimating a loss under an open policy of marine insurance, unless otherwise provided in the policy, the following rules are to be observed:

First. The value of a ship is its value at the beginning of the risk, including all articles or charges which add to its permanent value, or which are necessary to prepare it for the voyage insured;

Second. The value of the cargo is its actual cost to the insured, when laden on board, or where that cost cannot be ascertained, its market value at the time and place of lading, adding the charges incurred in purchasing and placing it on board, but without reference to any losses incurred in raising money for its purchase, or to any drawback on its exportation or to the fluctuations of the market at the port of destination, or to expenses incurred on the way or on arrival;

Third. The value of freight is the gross freight, exclusive of primage, without reference to the cost of earning it; and,

Fourth. The cost of insurance is in each case to be added to the value thus estimated. [L. '11, p. 258, § 173.]

§ 6059-174. Arrival—Damaged.

If the cargo insured against partial loss arrives at the port of destination in a damaged condition, unless otherwise provided in the policy, the loss of the insured is deemed to be the same proportion of the value which the market price at that port, of the thing so damaged, bears to the market price it would have brought if sound. [L. '11, p. 258, § 174.]

§ 6059-175. Insurer—Liable—Expenses.

A marine insurer is liable for all the expenses attendant upon a loss which forces the ship into port to be repaired; and where it is agreed that the insured may labor for the recovery of the property, the insurer is liable for the expense incurred thereby, such expense, in either case, being in addition to a total loss if that afterward occurs. [L. '11, p. 258, § 175.]

§ 6059-176. Insurer—Liable—Contribution—General Average.

A marine insurer, unless otherwise provided in the policy, is liable for a loss falling upon the insured, through a contribution in respect to the thing insured, required to be made by him toward a general average loss called for by a peril insured against. [L. '11, p. 259, § 176.]

§ 6059-177. Contribution.

Where a person insured by a contract of marine insurance has a demand against others for contribution, he may claim the whole loss from the insurer, subrogating him to his own right to contribution. But no such claim can be made upon the insurer after the separation of the interests liable to contribution, nor when the insured, having the right and opportunity to enforce contribution from others, has neglected or waived the exercise of that right. [L. '11, p. 259, § 177.]

§ 6059-178. One-third—New—Old.

In the case of a partial loss of a ship or its equipment, the old materials are to be applied towards payment for the new, and whether the ship is new or old, a marine insurer is liable for only two-thirds of the remaining cost of the repairs, except that he must pay for anchors and cannon in full, and for sheathing metal at a depreciation of only two and one-half per centum for each month that it has been fastened to the ship. [L. '11, p. 259, § 178.]

§ 6059-179. Other Laws—Usages Made Applicable by Contract.

A policy of marine insurance may provide that it shall be interpreted and applied according to the laws, usages and practices of any other government, and when so provided the policy shall be interpreted and applied according to the laws, usages and practices of such government. [L. '11, p. 259, § 179.]

No life insurance company doing business in this state shall make or permit any distinction or discrimination in favor of individuals, between insurants of the same class and equal expectation of life, in the amount of payment of premiums or rates charged for policies of life or endowment insurance, or in the dividends or other benefits payable thereon, or in any other of the terms and conditions of the contracts it makes; nor shall any company or agent, subagent, or broker, make any contract of insurance or agreement as to such contract, other than is plainly expressed in the policy issued thereon; nor shall any such company or agent, subagent, or broker, pay or allow, or offer to pay or allow, as inducement to insurance, any rebate of premium payable on the policy, or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefits to accrue thereon, or any other valuable consideration or inducement whatsoever not specified in the policy contract of insurance.

No life insurance company shall issue in this state, nor permit its agents, officers, or employees to issue in this state, agency company stock, or other stock or securities, or any special or advisory board contract, or other contract of any kind promising returns and profits, as an inducement to insurance; and no life insurance company shall be authorized, nor permitted to do business, in this state, which issues or permits its agents, officers, or employees, to issue in this state or in any other state or territory, agency company stock, or other stock or securities, or any special advisory board contract, or other contract of any kind promising returns and profits, as an inducement to insurance; and no corporation or stock company, acting as agent of a life insurance company nor any of its agents, officers, or employees, shall be permitted to agree to sell, offer to sell, or give or offer to give, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatsoever, any share of stock, securities, bonds, or agreement of any form or nature, promising returns and profits, as an inducement to insurance or in connection therewith. [L. '11, p. 260, § 180.]

§ 6059-181. Policies—By Whom Signed.

All life insurance policies delivered in this state shall be signed by the secretary or assistant secretary; or, in their absence, by a secretary pro tempore, and by the president or vice-president, or, in their absence, by two directors, of the company issuing same. [L. '11, p. 261, § 181.]

§ 6059-182. Medical Examination must be Made.

No life insurance company organized under the laws of, or doing business in, this state, shall enter into any contract of insurance upon lives within this state, except industrial insurance or where premiums are payable monthly or oftener, without having previously made, or caused to be made, a prescribed medical examination of the insured by a legally qualified practicing physician. [L. '11, p. 261, § 182.]

§ 6059-183. Policy must be Filed.

On and after January first, nineteen hundred twelve, no policy of life or endowment insurance shall be issued or delivered in this state until a copy of the form thereof has been filed at least thirty days with the commissioner, unless before the expiration of said thirty days the commissioner shall have approved the same in writing; nor if the commissioner notifies the company in writing, that, in his opinion, the form of said policy does not comply with the requirements of the laws of this state, specifying the reasons for his opinion: Provided, That upon the petition of the company the opinion of the commissioner shall be subject to review by any court of competent jurisdiction. [L. '11, p. 261, § 183.]

No life insurance policy, except policies of industrial insurance or where the premiums are payable monthly or oftener, shall be issued or delivered in this state on and after January first, nineteen hundred and twelve, unless it contains in substance the following provisions:

(1) A provision that the insured is entitled to a grace of at least thirty days within which the payment of any premium after the first year may be paid, subject, at the option of the company, to an interest charge not in excess of six per centum per annum for the number of days of grace elapsing before the payment of the premium, during which period of grace the policy shall continue in force, but in case the policy becomes a claim during the said period of grace before the overdue premium or the deferred premiums of the policy year, if any, are paid, the amount of such premiums, with interest on any overdue premium, may be deducted from any amount payable under the policy in settlement.

(2) A provision that [the] policy, so far as it relates to life or endowment insurance, shall be incontestable after two years from its date of issue except for nonpayment of premiums, and except for violation of the conditions of the policy relating to military or naval service in time of war.

(3) A provision that the policy and the application therefor shall constitute the entire contract between the parties and that all statements made by the insured shall, in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties.

(4) A provision that if the age of the insured has been misstated the amount payable under the policy shall be such as the premium would have purchased at the correct age.

(5) A provision that the policy shall participate in the surplus of the company annually or quinquennially.

(6) A provision specifying the option to which the policy-holder is entitled in the event of default in a premium payment after three full annual premiums shall have been paid.

(7) A provision that after the policy has been in force for three full years, the company at any time, while the policy is in force, will advance, on proper assignment or pledge of the policy and on the sole security thereof, at a specified rate of interest not exceeding six per centum per annum, a sum equal to, or at the option of the owner of the policy less than, ninety per centum of the reserve at the end of the current policy year on the policy and on any dividend additions thereto, less a sum not more than two and one-half per centum of the amount insured by the policy and of any dividend additions thereto; and that the company will deduct from such loan value any existing indebtedness on the policy and any unpaid balance of the premium for the current policy year and may collect interest in advance on the loan to the end of the current policy year; which provision may further provide that such loan may be deferred for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made.

(8) A table showing in figures the loan value, if any, and the options available under the policy each year upon default in premium payments, during at least the first twenty years of the policy, or for its life if maturity is less than twenty years, beginning with the year in which such values and options first become available.

(9) In case the proceeds of a policy are payable in installments or as an annuity, a table showing the amounts of the installments or annuity payments.

(10) A provision that the holder of a policy shall be entitled to have the policy reinstated at any time within three years from the date of default, unless the cash value has been duly paid, or the extension period expired, upon the production of evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company and the payment of all overdue premiums and any other indebtedness to the company upon said policy with interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum payable annually.

Any of the foregoing provisions or portions thereof not applicable to single premium or nonparticipating or term policies shall to that extent not be incorporated therein. [L. '11, p. 261, § 184.]

§ 6059-185. Policy Binding on Company.

In any claim arising under a policy which has been issued in this state by any life insurance company, without previous medical examination, or without the knowledge and consent of the insured, or, if said insured is under eighteen years of age, without the consent of the parent, guardian or other person having legal custody of the said minor, the statements made in the application as to age, physical condition, and family history of the insured, shall be held to be valid and binding upon the company, but the company shall not be debarred from proving as a defense to such claim that said statements were willfully false, fraudulent, or misleading. Every policy, except industrial or those calling for premiums monthly or oftener, shall have attached thereto a correct copy of the application, including all answers made by the applicant, and unless so attached the same shall not be considered a part of the policy or received in evidence. [L. '11, p. 263, § 185.]

§ 6059-186. Assessment Life Insurance.

No life insurance company or association, other than fraternal beneficiary associations, which issues contracts, the performance of which is contingent upon the payment of assessments or calls made upon its members, shall do business within this state, except such companies or associations as are now licensed to do business within this state, and which shall value their assessment policies, or certificates of membership as yearly renewable term contracts according to the standard of valuation of life insurance policies prescribed by the laws of this state.

Every such company or association must have assets of at least two hundred thousand dollars invested in securities such as are approved by this act, and must have paid in full all legal death claims for the last twelve months.

Every such company or association shall, on or before February fifteenth of each year, file with the commissioner a statement, upon a form to be prescribed and furnished by him, showing the true condition of the company or association as of December thirty-first next preceding, and shall pay a premium tax as otherwise provided in this act. [L. '11, p. 264, § 186.]

No policy of insurance against loss or damage from disease or by bodily injury by accident, or both, of the assured, shall be issued or delivered in this state until a copy of the form thereof and the table of rates or manual of risks of the company has been filed at least thirty days with the commissioner, unless before the expiration of said thirty days the commissioner shall have approved the same in writing; nor if the commissioner notifies the company in writing that in his opinion the form of said policy does not comply with the requirements of the laws of this state, specifying the reasons for his opinion: Provided, That upon the petition of the company, the opinion of the commissioner shall be subject to review by any court of competent jurisdiction; nor shall such policy be so issued or delivered unless every portion except the questions and answers in the application is plainly printed in type not smaller than long primer or ten point type, nor unless all exceptions and conditions are printed with the same prominence as the benefits to which such exceptions and conditions apply, nor unless it contains in substance the following provisions:

(1) A provision that such policy, with a copy of the application thereof, if any, and of such other papers as may be attached thereto or indorsed thereon shall constitute the entire contract of insurance; except as it may be affected by any table of rates or classification of risks filed by the company with the commissioner; and except that this provision shall not be required upon policies of industrial insurance, or where the premiums are payable monthly or oftener.

(2) A provision that specifies the time within which notice of accident or disability shall be given, which time shall be not less than ten days from the date of the accident or the beginning of the disability from sickness upon which claim is based: Provided, however, That in case of accidental death, immediate notice thereof may be required; unless the notices herein specified may be shown not to have been reasonably possible.

(3) A provision that notice of a claim for indemnity shall be deemed sufficient when given to the company.

(4) If a past due premium shall be accepted by the company, or by a branch office, or by an authorized agent of the company in the city, town, or county in which the insured shall reside, such acceptance shall reinstate the policy in full as to disability resulting from accidental bodily injuries thereafter sustained, but shall only reinstate the policy as to disability from disease beginning more than ten days after the date of such acceptance.

(5) A provision that if the insured is injured or contracts disease after having changed his occupation to one classified by the company as more hazardous than that stated in the policy, or while he is doing any act pertaining to any occupation so classified, the company shall pay such proportion of the indemnities provided in the policy as the premium paid would have purchased at the rate, but within the limits fixed by the company, for such more hazardous occupation according to the company's rates and classification of risks filed with the commissioner in this state at, or prior to the date of issuance of the policy under which indemnity is claimed.

(6) A provision that the company will pay the benefits promised within sixty days of the receipt by it of due proofs of death or disability.

(7) A provision that the policy may be canceled at any time by the company by giving the insured written notice of cancellation, and paying in cash or mailing by registered letter with proper postage affixed thereon, addressed to the insured at his usual or last known postoffice address, a postoffice or express company money order or bank draft for the unearned portion of the premium, but that the cancellation shall be without prejudice to any claim arising on account of disability commencing prior to the date on which the cancellation takes effect. [L. '11, p. 264, § 187.]

No such policy insuring against accidental bodily injuries or disease or death shall be issued or delivered in this state, if it contains in substance any of the following provisions:

(1) A provision limiting the time within which proofs of claims shall be furnished to the company to a period less than ninety days from the date of death, dismemberment, or loss of sight or from the termination of any other disability.

(2) A provision that such policy shall authorize the deduction of any premium or assessment from any indemnity payable under the terms of the policy, except such premium or assessment as may be due or covered by written order or note at the time of payment of the indemnity.

(3) A provision limiting the amount of indemnity to be paid to a sum less than the indemnity as stated in the policy and for which the premium has been paid: Provided, however, If the assured shall carry other insurance covering the same hazard without giving written notice to the companies issuing the policies, then, and in that case, each company shall be liable only for such proportionate amount of benefits as the indemnity promised bears to the total amount of indemnity in all the policies covering such hazard, and for the return of such part of the premium paid as shall exceed the pro rata of the premium for the benefits paid. [L. '11, p. 266, § 188.]

§ 6059-189. Blanket Policies not Affected.

Nothing in this act shall affect any general or blanket policy of insurance issued to any municipal corporation or department thereof, or to any corporation, copartnership, association, or individual employer, police or fire department, underwriters' corps, salvage bureau, or life associations or organizations, when the officers, members, or employees or classes or departments thereof are insured against specified accidental bodily injuries or diseases while exposed to the hazards of the occupation or otherwise, for a premium intended to cover the risks of all persons insured under such policy; nor shall anything in sections 6059-187 and 6059-188 apply to or affect contracts of life insurance, or contracts supplemental thereto, which shall contain provisions intended to safeguard such life insurance against lapse, or that shall provide a special surrender value therefor in the event that the assured thereunder shall, by reason of accidental bodily injury or disease, be unable to continue the premium payments thereon. [L. '11, p. 267, § 189.]

§ 6059-190. Immediate Disposal of Notes Prohibited.

It shall be unlawful for any company or agent thereof to hypothecate, sell, or dispose of a promissory note, received in payment for any part of a premium on a policy of insurance applied for under the provisions of this article, prior to the delivery of the policy to the applicant. [L. '11, p. 268, § 190.]

§ 6059-191. Penalties.

Any insurance company knowingly and willfully violating any of the provisions of this article shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one thousand dollars.

Any insurance agent knowingly and willfully violating any of the provisions of this article shall be fined in any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars and shall have his license revoked. [L. '11, p. 268, § 191.]

§ 6059-192. Fraternal Exempt.

Nothing in this article shall be construed as applying to fraternal beneficiary associations, societies, or orders with representative form of government, operating on a lodge system, or the beneficiary certificate or policy issued by them. [L. '11, p. 268, § 192.]

§ 6059-193. Surety Companies may Execute Bond, etc.

Whenever any bond, recognizance, obligation, stipulation, or undertaking is by law, state, municipal, or otherwise, or by the rules, or regulations of any board, court, judge, body, or organization, or officer, state, municipal, or otherwise, required or permitted to be made, given, tendered, or filed, for the security or protection of any person or persons, corporation, municipality, state, or any department thereof, or any other organization whatever, conditioned for the doing or not doing of anything in such bond, recognizance, obligation, stipulation, or undertaking, specified, any and all heads of departments, public officers, state, county, town, school district, or other municipality, and any and all boards, courts, judges, and municipalities, now or hereafter required or permitted to accept or approve of the sufficiency of any such bond, recognizance, obligation, stipulation, or undertaking, may, in the discretion of such head of department, court, judge, public officer, board, or municipality, accept such bond, recognizance, obligation, stipulation, or undertaking, and approve the same whenever the same is executed, or the conditions thereof are guaranteed, solely by a company admitted and authorized to transact such business in this state in accordance with the requirements of this act, but no such security shall be accepted on any bond for an amount in excess of ten per cent of the paid-up cash capital, and surplus.

Whenever any such bond, recognizance, obligation, stipulation, or undertaking is so required to be made, given, tendered, or filed with one surety, or with two or more sureties, the execution of the same, or the guaranteeing of the performance of the conditions thereof, shall be sufficient when executed or guaranteed solely by such company, so authorized, and shall be in all respects a full and complete compliance with every requirement of every law, ordinance, rule or regulation, that such bond, undertaking, recognizance, obligation or stipulation shall be executed or guaranteed by one surety, or by two or more sureties, or that such sureties shall be residents, householders, or freeholders, or both, and a full and complete compliance with every other requirement of every law, ordinance, rule, or regulation, relating to the same, and no justification by such company shall be necessary or required, and any and all heads of departments, court, judges, public officers, boards, and municipalities, whose duties it may be, or shall hereafter be, to accept or approve the sufficiency of any such bond, recognizance, obligation, stipulation, or undertaking, may accept and approve the same, when executed or guaranteed solely by such company. [L. '11, p. 268, § 193.]

§ 6059-194. Premium—May be Taxed as Costs.

Any receiver, assignee, trustee, guardian, executor, administrator, committee, or other fiduciary, required by law to give bonds as such, may include as a part of his lawful expenses, such reasonable sum paid to such a corporation for such suretyship not exceeding one per cent per annum on the amount of said bond, as the head of the department, court, judge, or officer by whom, or the court or body by which he was appointed, allows, and in all actions and proceedings, the party entitled to recover costs may include therein such reasonable sum as may have been paid such company for executing or guaranteeing any such bond or undertaking therein as may be allowed by the court or judge before whom the action or proceeding is pending: Provided, That the premium or charge for bonds given by surety companies for appointive or elective officers of the state, counties and cities of the first, second and third class and towns shall be paid by the state, county, city or town respectively: Provided further, That no such premium or charge shall exceed one-half of one per cent per annum on the amount of such bond, and validating such payments heretofore made. [L. '11, p. 270, § 194; L. '13, p. 138, § 1.]

§ 6059-195. Release from Liability.

Any company executing any bond, recognizance, obligation, stipulation, or undertaking, and any such surety may be released from its liability on the same terms and conditions as are or may be by law prescribed for the release of individuals upon any such bond, recognizance, obligation, stipulation, or undertaking; it being the true intent and meaning of this act to enable companies created for the purpose to execute and become surety on bonds, recognizances, obligations, stipulations, or undertakings, required, or permitted by law, state, or municipal, or otherwise, or by the rules or regulations of any court, judge, officer, board, city charter, village, town, organization, or otherwise to be released from liability thereon in like manner and upon like terms and conditions as sureties are or may be. [L. '11, p. 270, § 195.]

§ 6059-196. Failure to Discharge Contract—Forfeiture.

If any such company shall neglect, fail, or refuse to pay any final judgment or decree, rendered against it, upon any such recognizance, bond, stipulation, or undertaking made or guaranteed by it, in this state, for the period of thirty days after any such judgment or decree shall have been finally determined in case of an appeal, or within thirty days after the time for taking an appeal has expired when no appeal is taken from such judgment or decree, or in case an appeal be taken and the same be dismissed before final determination on appeal, then within thirty days from such dismissal, it shall forfeit all right to do business in this state and the commissioner shall thereupon revoke its license and the license of its agent. [L. '11, p. 270, § 196.]

Every domestic or foreign company organized for the purpose of insuring or guaranteeing the owners or encumbrancers of property within this state against loss by reason of any incorrect statement in the guaranteed certificate of title or policy of title insurance, or other guaranty of title, issued thereon, or by reason of any unexcepted lien or encumbrance upon, or defect in the title thereto, shall from and after the taking effect of this act and before issuing any guaranteed certificate of title, or policy of title insurance, or other guaranty of title deposit with the state treasurer, as a guaranty fund, securities to the amount specified in this act and of the character hereinafter set forth: Provided, That every such company must, before it may issue any policy of title insurance or guaranteed certificates of title, and for so long a time as it may continue to issue any policies of title insurance or guaranteed certificates of title, own and maintain a complete set of tract indexes of the county in which its principal office within this state is located. [L. '11, p. 271, § 197.]

§ 6059-198. Classes of Securities.

Such guaranty fund shall be composed of securities specified as authorized investments in this act: Provided, That any domestic company, owning, at the time this act takes effect, stocks of any national or state bank doing business in this state, which according to its latest report to the comptroller of the currency or the state bank examiner, has its capital fully paid, and has in addition thereto a surplus fund amounting to not less than twenty per cent of its capital, may deposit such stocks at par value thereof with the state treasurer, in lieu of the securities authorized by this act, until the same under the provisions of this act, can be exchanged or converted into securities authorized by this act: Provided, however, That not to exceed forty per cent of the total capital stock of any such bank shall be deposited with the state treasurer as part or whole of any such guaranty fund. All such securities shall be registered in the name of or indorsed or assigned to said state treasurer officially, as the occasion and the due and orderly course of business may require. The securities so deposited shall be held by the state treasurer as a special guaranty fund, securing the faithful performance on the part of any such company of all its undertakings and liabilities upon its guaranteed certificates of title, policies of title insurance, or other guaranties of title to property and to the extent of any outstanding liabilities thereon, shall not be subject to any other outstanding liabilities of the company. [L. '11, p. 271, § 198.]

§ 6059-199. Conditions of Deposit.

That such deposit shall be by the state treasurer held subject to the following conditions:

(1) The state treasurer shall deliver to the company depositing such guaranty fund a receipt in full for all securities so deposited with him. The company may from time to time withdraw securities or any part thereof on depositing with said state treasurer cash or other authorized securities, so as at all times to maintain the value of said guaranty fund deposit at not less than the amount required by this act.

(2) All interest or dividends accruing on said securities deposited with the state treasurer under authority of this act shall belong to and at all times be available to the company making said deposit and the said state treasurer shall permit said company so long as it shall continue solvent to collect the interest or dividends on said securities so deposited. The state treasurer shall be the agent of both parties to receive, receipt for and pay over said interest or dividends when the same are paid to him by reason of the custody of said deposit, and he is hereby authorized to make such indorsements on said securities as the occasion and the due and orderly course of business may require. The rights of said company to demand of and receive from the state treasurer said interest or dividends, shall be subject, however, to the provisions of the following paragraph.

(3) If, pursuant to liability on a guaranteed certificate of title, or policy of title insurance or other guaranty of title to property, a judgment shall be entered in a court of general jurisdiction in this state against a company which has made a deposit of securities with the state treasurer subject to the provisions of this act and such judgment shall have become final either by failure to appeal, dismissal of appeal, or by affirmance on appeal, or otherwise, and such judgment shall not be paid and satisfied in full within thirty days after the finality of said judgment has become fixed, then in every such case said judgment may be enforced against said securities so deposited with the state treasurer upon petition of the judgment creditor in the same cause wherein judgment was obtained, setting forth the facts aforesaid, whereupon it shall be the duty of the court wherein said judgment is entered to direct the issuance of a special execution directed to the sheriff of the county in which the capital of the state is situated, which execution shall be as near as may be in the usual form and shall require on the part of said sheriff, the sale of said securities or so much thereof as may be necessary to the satisfaction of said judgment. When application is made for the issuance of said special execution herein provided for, and the court allows the same, the order in which said special execution is authorized, shall direct that service of a copy of the said judgment and the said petition shall be made within five days thereafter upon the state treasurer. All proceedings relating to the enforcement of said writ of execution against said securities shall conform as near as may be to the practice in ordinary cases except as herein otherwise specially provided. Proceedings under said execution shall be a sufficient authority where notices aforesaid have been served on said state treasurer for the delivery by said state treasurer to the sheriff of the securities to be sold upon said execution.

(4) Except as herein provided, the state treasurer shall hold intact the securities deposited with him and shall retain the same until such time as all liabilities under any guaranteed certificate of title, or policy of title insurance, or other guaranty of title, issued by the company having deposited such securities, shall have legally terminated, or until such time as all liabilities of said company under such guaranteed certificates of title or policies of title insurance or other guaranties of title, shall have been assumed by some other title insurance company of equal financial standing and responsibility, authorized to transact business in this state, upon which conditions alone and on application of said company verified by the oath of its president and of its secretary, and upon satisfactory examination of its books, and of its officers under oath that such conditions have been met, the state treasurer is authorized and it shall be his duty to forthwith return the securities to the said company. On return of the securities, the certificates of authority issued to said company by the state insurance commissioner shall be revoked and notice thereof given in the same manner as provided for in the next succeeding paragraph:

(5) Provided, however, That if the aforesaid guaranty fund is at any time impaired by reason of the payment of any judgment against the company depositing such funds or by reason of the nonpayment of the annual fee as herein provided, or at all, and remains so impaired for a period of thirty days after notice to the company, the commissioner is hereby authorized and it shall be his duty to immediately revoke the certificate of authority granted said company, and to publish a notice of such revocation in a daily paper of general circulation, published in the city wherein said company has its principal office at least once in each week for six successive weeks, the expense of such publication to be chargeable against the said guaranty fund of said company. [L. '11, p. 272, § 199.]

§ 6059-200. Annual Fee.

That the company so depositing such securities shall on or before the second Monday in January of each year that such securities or any part thereof remain on deposit with the state treasurer as provided by this act, pay to the state treasurer for the use of the state an annual fee equal in amount to one-tenth of one per centum of the value of the securities so deposited by it, and should the same not be paid within thirty days thereafter, the state treasurer is hereby authorized to sell sufficient of said securities to pay the same. [L. '11, p. 275, § 200.]

It shall be unlawful for any company to engage in said business of insuring or guaranteeing the owners or encumbrancers of property against loss as hereinbefore specified, unless such company shall have complied with all of the provisions of this act; and if any company, its agent or attorney shall issue any guaranteed certificate of title, or policy of title insurance, or other guaranty of title to property, or guarantee or insure any owner or encumbrancer of property against loss as hereinbefore specified, without having complied with the laws of this state with regard thereto, such company, or its agent, or attorney, issuing such guaranteed certificate of title, or policy of title insurance, or other guaranty of title, or undertaking such guaranty or insurance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each such offense, in the discretion of the court. [L. '11, p. 275, § 201.]

Every company engaged in part or wholly in said business of insuring or guaranteeing the owners or encumbrancers of property against loss as hereinbefore specified, shall on or before the first day of February in each and every year make and file with the commissioner a statement verified by oath of the president and secretary of such company, showing the financial condition of such company on the thirty-first day of December next preceding, and shall show:

- (1) The amount of the capital stock of the company.
- (2) The property or assets held by the same, including securities on deposit with the state treasurer as a guaranty fund.
- (3) The income of said company from title insurance during the preceding year.
- (4) The amount and character of risks written during the same period, the amount and character of risks expired during the same period, and the total amount and character of risks outstanding on the thirty-first day of December next preceding.

If the provisions of this section are not complied with on or before the fifteenth day of February in each year, the commissioner shall revoke the certificate of authority issued to the company. [L. '11, p. 275, § 202.]

§ 6059-203. Expiration of Certificate of Authority—Renewal—Suspension.

Every certificate of authority granted in pursuance of the provisions of this act to a company engaged wholly or in part in said business of insuring or guaranteeing the owners or encumbrancers of property against loss as hereinbefore specified, shall expire on the first day of April after the date of issue. The certificate of authority may be renewed from year to year upon application to the commissioner and upon evidence of compliance by the company with the provisions of this act. If the commissioner is not satisfied that the securities composing the guaranty fund of any such company remain secure, he may suspend the authority of such company to do a title insurance business until any impairment or depreciation of such guaranty fund is made good. [L. '11, p. 276, § 203.]

Every such company engaged wholly or in part in said business of insuring or guaranteeing the owners or encumbrancers of property against loss as hereinbefore specified, shall be taxed on the basis of the physical property owned by it in the county where such property is located, in accordance with the general laws relating to taxation in this state, and not otherwise. [L. '11, p. 277, § 204.]

§ 6059-205. Owner and Encumbrancer Defined.

The terms "owner" and "encumbrancer" as used throughout this article shall be construed to include anyone having an insurable interest in property. [L. '11, p. 277, § 205.]

§ 6059-206. Fraternal Benefit Societies Defined.

Any corporation, society, order, or voluntary association, without capital stock, organized and carried on solely for the mutual benefit of its members and their beneficiaries, and not for profit, and having a lodge system with ritualistic form of work and representative form of government, and which shall make provision for the payment of benefits in accordance with section 6059-210 hereof, is hereby declared to be a fraternal benefit society. [L. '11, p. 277, § 206.]

§ 6059-207. Lodge System Defined.

Any society having a supreme governing or a legislative body and subordinate lodges or branches by whatever name known, in which members shall be elected, initiated, and admitted in accordance with its constitution, laws, rules, regulations, and prescribed ritualistic ceremonies, which subordinate lodges or branches shall be required by the laws of such societies to hold regular or stated meetings at least once in each month, shall be deemed to be operating on the lodge system. [L. '11, p. 277, § 207.]

§ 6059-208. Representative Form of Government Defined.

Any such society shall be deemed to have a representative form of government when it shall provide in its constitution and laws for a supreme legislative or governing body, composed of representatives elected either by the members or by delegates elected directly or indirectly by the members, together with such other members as may be prescribed by its constitution and laws: Provided, That the elective members shall constitute a majority in the number and have not less than two-thirds of the votes, nor less than the votes required to amend its constitution and laws: Provided, further, That the meetings of the supreme or governing body, and the election of officers, representatives, or delegates shall be held as often as once in four years. The members, officers, representatives, or delegates of a fraternal benefit society shall not vote by proxy. [L. '11, p. 277, § 208.]

Except as herein provided, such societies shall be governed by the provisions of this article and shall be exempt from all other provisions of the insurance laws of this state, not only in governmental relations with the state, but for every other purpose, and no law hereinafter enacted shall apply to them unless they be expressly designated therein. [L. '11, p. 278, § 209.]

(1) Every society transacting business under this article shall provide for the payment of death benefits, and may provide for the payment of benefits in case of temporary or permanent physical disability, either as the result of disease, accident, or old age: Provided, That the period of life at which the payment of benefits for disability on account of old age shall commence, shall not be under seventy years, and may provide for monuments or tombstones to the memory of the deceased members and for the payment of funeral benefits. Such society shall have the power to give a member, when permanently disabled or on attaining the age of seventy, all or such portion of the face value of his certificates as the laws of the society may provide: Provided, That nothing in this article contained shall be so construed as to prevent the issuing of benefit certificates for a term of years less than the whole of life which are payable upon the death or disability of the member occurring within the terms for which the benefit certificate may be issued. Such society shall, upon written application of the members, have the power to accept a part of the periodical contributions in cash, and charge the remainder, not exceeding one-half of the periodical contributions, against the certificate with interest payable or compounded annually at a rate not lower than four per cent per annum: Provided, That this privilege shall not be granted except to societies which have readjusted or may hereafter readjust their rates of contribution and to contracts affected by such readjustment.

(2) Any society which shall show by the annual valuation hereinafter provided for, that it is accumulating and maintaining the reserve necessary to enable it to do so, under a table of mortality not lower than the American Experience Table and four per cent interest, may grant to its members, extended and paid-up protection or such withdrawal equities as its constitution and laws may provide: Provided, That such grants shall in no case exceed in value the portion of the reserve to the credit of such members to whom they are made. [L. '11, p. 278, § 210.]

The payment of death benefits shall be confined to wife, husband, relative by blood to the fourth degree ascending or descending, father in law, mother in law, son in law, daughter in law, stepfather, stepmother, stepchildren children by legal adoption, or to a person or persons dependent upon the member: Provided, That if after the issuance of the original certificate the member shall become dependent upon a home maintained by the society for the dependent members or upon a subordinate lodge or society of the order of which he is a member, or upon an incorporated charitable institution, he shall have the privilege with the consent of the society, of making such home, lodge, society or institution his beneficiary. Within the above restrictions each member shall have the right to designate his beneficiary, and, from time to time, have the same changed in accordance with the laws, rules, or regulations of the society, and no beneficiary shall have or obtain any vested interest in the said benefit until the same has become due and payable upon the death of the said member: Provided, That any society may, by its laws, limit the scope of beneficiaries within the above classes. [L. '11, p. 279, § 211.]

§ 6059-212. Qualifications for Membership.

Any society may admit to beneficiary membership any person not less than sixteen and not more than sixty years of age, who has been examined by a legally qualified practicing physician and whose examination has been supervised and approved in accordance with the laws of the society: Provided, That any beneficiary member of such society who shall apply for a certificate providing for disability benefits, need not be required to pass an additional medical examination therefor. Nothing herein contained shall prevent such society from accepting general or social members. [L. '11, p. 280, § 212.]

§ 6059-213. Certificate.

Every certificate issued by any such society shall specify the amount of benefit provided thereby, and shall provide that the certificate, the charter, or articles of incorporation, or, if a voluntary association, the articles of association, the constitution and laws of the society and the application for membership and medical examination, signed by the applicant, and all amendments to each thereof, shall constitute the agreement between the society and the member, and copies of the same certified by the secretary of the society, or corresponding officer, shall be received in evidence of the terms and conditions thereof, and any changes, additions, or amendments to said charter or articles of incorporation, or articles of association, if a voluntary association, constitution, or laws duly made or enacted subsequent to the issuance of the benefit certificates, shall bind the member and his beneficiaries, and shall govern and control the agreement in all respects the same as though such changes, additions, or amendments had been made prior to and were in force at the time of the application for membership. [L. '11, p. 280, § 213.]

(1) Any society may create, maintain, invest, disburse, and apply an emergency, surplus, or other similar fund in accordance with its law. Unless otherwise provided in the contract, such funds shall be held, invested, and disbursed for the use and benefit of the society, and no member or beneficiary shall have or acquire individual rights therein or become entitled to any apportionment or the surrender of any part thereof, except as provided in section 6059-210 of this article. The funds from which benefits shall be paid and the funds from which the expenses of the society shall be defrayed, shall be derived from periodical or other payments by the members of the society and accretions of said funds: Provided, That no society, domestic or foreign, shall hereafter be incorporated or admitted to transact business in this state, which does not provide for stated periodical contributions sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligations contracted, when valued upon the basis of the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress, August twenty-third, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, or any higher standard with interest assumption not more than four per cent per annum, nor write or accept members for temporary or permanent disability benefits except upon tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent per annum.

(2) Deferred payments or installments of claims shall be considered as fixed liabilities on the happening of the contingency upon which such payments or installments are thereafter to be paid. Such liability shall be the present value of such future payments or installments upon the rate of interest and mortality assumed by the society for valuation, and every society shall maintain a fund sufficient to meet such liability regardless of proposed future collections to meet any such liabilities. [L. '11, p. 281, § 214.]

Every society shall invest its funds only in securities permitted by the laws of this state for the investment of the assets of life insurance companies:

Provided, That any foreign society permitted or seeking to do business in this state, which invests its funds in accordance with the laws of the state in which it is incorporated, shall be held to meet the requirements of this article for the investment of funds. [L. '11, p. 282, § 215.]

§ 6059-216. Distribution of Funds.

Every provision of the laws of the society for payment by members of such society, in whatever form made, shall distinctly state the purpose of the same and the proportion thereof which may be used for expenses, and no part of the money collected for mortuary or disability purposes, or the net accretions of either or any of said funds, shall be used for expenses. [L. '11, p. 282, § 216.]

Seven or more persons, citizens of the United States, and a majority of whom are citizens of this state, who desire to form a fraternal benefit society, as defined by this article, may make and sign, giving their addresses, and acknowledge before some officer competent to take acknowledgment of deeds, articles of incorporation, in which shall be stated:

First. The proposed corporate name of the society, which shall not so closely resemble the name of any society or insurance company already transacting business in this state as to mislead the public or to lead to confusion.

Second. The purpose for which it is formed, which shall not include more liberal powers than are granted in this article: Provided, That any lawful social, intellectual, educational, charitable, benevolent, moral, or religious advantages may be set forth among the purposes of the society, and the mode in which its corporate powers are to be exercised.

Third. The names, residences, and official titles of all the officers, trustees, directors, or other persons who are to have and exercise the general control and management of the affairs and funds of the society for the first year or until the ensuing election at which all such officers shall be elected by the supreme legislative or governing body, which election shall be held not later than one year from the date of the issuance of the permanent certificate. Such articles of incorporation and duly certified copies of the constitution and laws, rules and regulations, and copies of all proposed forms of benefit certificates, applications therefor and circulars to be issued by such society, and a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, with sureties approved by the commissioner, conditioned upon the return of the advanced payments, as provided in this section, to applicants, if the organization is not completed within one year, shall be filed with the commissioner, who may require such further information as he deems necessary, and if the purposes of the society conform to the requirements of this article, and all provisions of law have been complied with, the commissioner shall so certify and retain and record, or file, the articles of incorporation, and furnish the incorporators a preliminary certificate authorizing said society to solicit members as hereinafter provided.

Upon receipt of said certificate from the commissioner, said society may solicit members for the purpose of completing its organization and shall collect from each applicant the amount of not less than one regular monthly payment, in accordance with its table of rates as provided by its constitution and laws, and shall issue to each such applicant, a receipt for the amount so collected. But no such society shall incur any liability other than for such advanced payments, nor issue any benefit certificate, nor pay or allow, or offer or promise to pay or allow, to any person any death or disability benefit until actual bona fide applications for death benefit certificates have been secured upon at least five hundred lives for at least one thousand dollars each, and all such applicants for death benefits shall have been regularly examined by legally qualified practicing physicians, and certificates of such examinations have been duly filed and approved by the chief medical examiner of such society, nor until there shall be established ten subordinate lodges or branches into which said five hundred applicants have been initiated, nor until there has been submitted to the commissioner, under oath of the president and secretary, or corresponding officers of such society, a list of such applicants, giving their names, addresses, date examined, date approved, date initiated, name and number of the subordinate branch of which each applicant is a member, amount of benefits to be granted, rate of stated periodical contributions which shall be sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligation contracted, when valued for death benefits upon the basis of the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality, as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress, August twenty-third, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, or any higher standard at the option of the society, and for disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience and for combined death and permanent total disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent per annum, nor until it shall be shown to the commissioner by the sworn statement of the treasurer, or corresponding officer of such society, that at least five hundred applicants have each paid in cash at least one regular monthly payment as herein provided per one thousand dollars of indemnity to be effected, which payments in the aggregate shall amount to at least twenty-five hundred dollars, all of which shall be credited to the mortuary or disability fund on account of such applicants, and no part of which may be used for expenses.

Said advanced payments shall, during the period of organization, be held in trust, and, if the organization is not completed within one year as hereinafter provided, returned to said applicants.

The commissioner may make such examination and require such further information as he deems advisable, and upon presentation of satisfactory evidence that the society has complied with all the provisions of law, he shall issue to such society a certificate to that effect. Such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such society at the date of such certificate. The commissioner shall cause a record of such certificate to be made and a certified copy of such record may be given in evidence with like effect as the original certificate.

No preliminary certificate granted under the provisions of this section shall be valid after one year from its date, or after such further period, not exceeding one year, as may be authorized by the commissioner, upon cause shown, unless the five hundred applicants herein required have been secured and the organization has been completed as herein provided, and the articles of incorporation and all proceedings thereunder shall become null and void in one year from the date of said preliminary certificate, or at the expiration of said extended period, unless such society shall have completed its organization and commenced business as herein provided. When any domestic society shall have discontinued business for the period of one year, or has less than four hundred members, its charter shall become null and void.

Every society shall have the power to make a constitution and by-laws for the government of the society, the admission of its members, the management of its affairs, and the fixing and readjusting of the rates of contribution of its members from time to time; and it shall have the power to change, alter, add to or amend such constitution and by-laws and shall have such other powers as are necessary and incidental to carrying into effect the objects and purposes of the society. [L. '11, p. 282, § 217.]

§ 6059-218. Powers Retained—Reincorporation—Amendments.

Any society now engaged in transacting business in this state may exercise, after the passage of this act, all of the rights conferred thereby, and all of the rights, powers and privileges now exercised or possessed by it under its charter or articles of incorporation not inconsistent with this act, if incorporated; or, if it be a voluntary association, it may incorporate hereunder. But no society already organized shall be required to reincorporate hereunder, and any such society may amend its articles of incorporation from time to time in the manner provided herein or in its constitution and laws and all such amendments shall be filed as original articles of incorporation are required to be filed, and shall become operative upon such filing, unless a later time be provided in such amendments or in its articles of incorporation, constitution or laws. [L. '11, p. 285, § 218.]

No domestic society shall merge with or accept the transfer of the membership or funds of any other society unless such merger or transfer is evidenced by a contract in writing, setting out in full the terms and conditions of such merger or transfer which shall be filed as original articles of incorporation are required to be filed, together with a sworn statement of the financial condition of each of said societies, by its president and secretary, or corresponding officers, and a certificate of such officers duly verified under oath of said officers of each of the contracting societies, that such merger or transfer has been approved by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the supreme legislative or governing body of each of said societies.

Upon the submission of said contract, financial statements and certificates, the commissioner shall examine the same, and, if he shall find such financial statements to be correct and the said contract to be in conformity with the provisions of this section, and that such merger or transfer is just and equitable to the members of each of said societies, he shall approve said merger or transfer, issue his certificate to that effect and thereupon the said contract of merger or transfer shall be of full force and effect.

In case such contract is not approved, the fact of its submission and its contents shall not be disclosed by the state insurance commissioner. [L. '11, p. 286, § 219.]

Societies which are now authorized to transact business in this state may continue such business until the first day of April next succeeding the passage of this act, and the authority of such societies may thereafter be renewed annually, but in all cases to determine on the first day of the succeeding April: Provided, That the license shall continue in full force and effect until the new license be issued or specifically refused. For each such license or renewal the society shall pay the commissioner ten dollars. A duly certified copy or duplicate of such license shall be prima facie evidence that the licensee is a fraternal benefit society within the meaning of this article. [L. '11, p. 287, § 220.]

§ 6059-221. Admission of Foreign Society.

No foreign society now transacting business, organized prior to the passage of this act, which is not now authorized to transact business in this state, shall transact any business herein without a license from the commissioner. Any such society shall be entitled to a license to transact business within this state upon filing with the commissioner a duly certified copy of its charter or articles of association; a copy of its constitution and laws, certified by its secretary or corresponding officer, a power of attorney to the commissioner as hereinafter provided; a statement of its business under oath of its president and secretary, or corresponding officers, in the form required by the commissioner, duly verified by an examination made by the supervising insurance official of its home state or other state satisfactory to the commissioner of this state; a certificate from the proper official in its home state, province, or country that the society is legally organized; a copy of its contract, which must show that benefits are provided for by periodical, or other payments by persons holding similar contracts, and upon furnishing the commissioner such other information as he may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working, and upon showing that its assets are invested in accordance with the laws of the state, territory, district, province, or country where it is organized, he shall issue a license to such society to do business in this state until the first day of the succeeding April: Provided, That such license shall continue in full force and effect until the new license be issued or specifically refused. Any foreign society desiring admission to this state shall have the qualifications required of domestic societies organized under this article and have its assets invested as required by the laws of the state, territory, district, country, or province where it is organized. For each such license or renewal the society shall pay the commissioner ten dollars. When the commissioner refuses to license any society, or revoke its authority to do business in this state, he shall reduce his ruling, order or decision to writing and file the same in his office, and shall furnish a copy thereof, together with a statement of his reasons, to the officers of the society, upon request, and the action of the commissioner shall be reviewable by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction within the state: Provided, That nothing contained in this or the preceding section shall be taken or construed as preventing any such society from continuing in good faith all contracts made in this state during the time such society was legally authorized to transact business herein. [L. '11, p. 287, § 221.]

§ 6059-222. Power of Attorney and Service of Process.

Every society, whether domestic or foreign, now transacting business in this state shall, within thirty days after this act takes effect, and every such society hereafter applying for admission, shall before being licensed, appoint in writing the insurance commissioner and his successors in office to be its true and lawful attorney, upon whom all legal process in any action or proceeding against it shall be served, and in such writing shall agree that any lawful process against it which is served upon such attorney shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served upon the society and that the authority shall continue in force so long as any liability remains outstanding in this state.

Copies of such appointment, certified by said commissioner, shall be deemed sufficient evidence thereof, and shall be admitted in evidence with the same force and effect as the original thereof might be admitted. Service shall only be made upon such attorney, must be made in duplicate upon the commissioner, in his absence upon the person in charge of his office, and shall be deemed sufficient service upon such society: Provided, That no such service shall be valid or binding against any such society when it is required thereunder to file its answer, pleading or defense in less than forty days from the date of mailing the copy of such service to such society. When legal process against any such society is served upon said commissioner, he shall forthwith forward by registered mail, one of the duplicate copies prepared and directed to its secretary or corresponding officer. Legal process shall not be served upon any such society except in the manner provided herein. [L. '11, p. 288, § 222.]

§ 6059-223. Place of Meeting—Location of Office.

Any domestic society may provide that the meetings of its legislative or governing body may be held in any state, district, province, or territory wherein such society has subordinate branches and all business transacted at such meetings shall be as valid in all respects as if such meetings were held in this state. But its principal office shall be located in this state. [L. '11, p. 289, § 223.]

§ 6059-224. No Personal Liability.

Officers and members of the supreme, grand, or any subordinate body of any such incorporated society shall not be individually liable for the payment of any disability or death benefit provided for in the laws and agreements of such society, but the same shall be payable only out of the funds of such society and in the manner provided by its laws. [L. '11, p. 289, § 224.]

§ 6059-225. Waiver of the Provisions of the Laws.

The constitution and laws of the society may provide that no subordinate body, nor any of its subordinate officers or members shall have the power or authority to waive any of the provisions of the laws and constitution of the society, and the same shall be binding on the society and each and every member thereof and on all beneficiaries of members. [L. '11, p. 290, § 225.]

No money or other benefit, charity or relief or aid to be paid, provided, or rendered by any such society shall be liable to attachment, garnishment, or other process, or to be seized, taken, appropriated, or applied by any legal or equitable process, or operation of law to pay any debt or liability of a member or beneficiary, or any other person who may have a right thereunder, either before or after payment. [L. '11, p. 290, § 226.]

§ 6059-227. Constitution and Laws—Amendment.

Every society transacting business under this act, shall file with the commissioner a duly certified copy of all amendments of or additions to its constitution and laws, within ninety days after the enactment of the same. Printed copies of the constitution and laws as amended, changed, or added to, certified by the secretary or corresponding officer of the society shall be prima facie evidence of the legal adoption thereof. [L. '11, p. 290, § 227.]

Every society transacting business in this state, shall annually, on or before the fifteenth day of February, file with the commissioner, in such form as he may require, a statement under oath of its president and secretary or corresponding officers, of its condition and standing on the thirty-first day of December next preceding, and of its transactions for one year ending on that date and also shall furnish such other information as the commissioner may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working. The commissioner may at other times require any further statement he may deem necessary to be made relating to such society.

In addition to the annual report herein required, each society shall annually report to the commissioner, a valuation of its certificates in force on the thirty-first day of December, last preceding, excluding those issued within the year for which the report is filed, in cases where the contributions for the first year in whole or in part are used for current mortality and expenses: Provided, That the first report of valuation shall be made as of December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and twelve. Such report of valuation shall show, as contingent liabilities, the present mid-year value of the promised benefits provided in the constitution and laws of such society under certificates then subject to valuation; and, as contingent assets, the present mid-year value of the future net contributions provided in the constitution and laws as the same are in practice actually collected. At the option of any society, in lieu of the above, the valuation may show the net value of the certificates subject to valuation hereinbefore provided, and said net value, when computed in case of monthly contributions, may be the mean of the terminal values for the end of the preceding and of the current insurance years.

Such valuation shall be certified by a competent accountant or actuary, or, at the request and expense of the society, verified by the actuary of the department of insurance of the home state of the society, and shall be filed with the commissioner within ninety days after the submission of the last preceding annual report. The legal minimum standard of valuation for all certificates, except for disability benefits, shall be the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress, August twenty-third, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, or, at the option of the society, any higher table, or at its option, it may use a table based upon the society's own experience of at least twenty years and covering not less than one hundred thousand lives with interest assumption not more than four per cent per annum. Each such valuation report shall set forth clearly and fully the mortality and interest basis and the method of valuation. Any society providing for disability benefits shall keep the net contributions for such benefits in a fund separate and apart from all other benefit and expense funds and the valuation of all other business of the society: Provided, That where a combined contribution table is used by a society for both death and permanent total disability benefits, the valuation shall be according to tables of reliable experience and in such case a separation of the funds shall not be required.

The valuation herein provided for shall not be considered or regarded as a test of the financial solvency of the society, but each society shall be held to be legally solvent so long as the funds in its possession are equal to or in excess of its matured liabilities.

Beginning with the year nineteen hundred and fourteen, a report of such valuation and an explanation of the facts concerning the condition of the society thereby disclosed shall be printed and mailed to each beneficiary member of the society not later than June first of each year, or, in lieu thereof, such report of valuation and showing of the society's condition as thereby disclosed may be published in the society's official paper and the issue containing the same mailed to each beneficiary member of the society. The laws of such society shall provide that if the stated periodical contributions of the members are insufficient to pay all matured death and disability claims in full and to provide for the creation and maintenance of the funds required by its laws additional, increased or extra rates of contribution shall be collected from the members to meet such deficiency; and such laws may provide that, upon the written application or consent of the member, his certificate may be charged with its proportion of any deficiency disclosed by valuation, with interest not exceeding five per cent per annum. [L. '11, p. 290, § 228.]

If the valuation of the certificates, as hereinbefore provided, on December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, shall show that the present value of future net contributions, together with the admitted assets, is less than ninety per cent of the present value of the promised benefits and accrued liabilities, such society shall be required thereafter to reduce such deficiency not less than five per centum of the total deficiency on said December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, at each succeeding triennial valuation. If at any succeeding triennial valuation such society does not show such percentage of improvement, the commissioner shall direct that it thereafter comply with the requirements herein specified. If the next succeeding triennial valuation after the receipt of such notice shall show that the society has not made the percentage of improvement required herein, the commissioner may, in the absence of good cause shown for such failure, institute proceedings for the dissolution of such society, in accordance with the provision of section 6059-230, or, in the case of a foreign society, he may cancel its license to transact business in this state.

Any such society, shown by any triennial valuation subsequent to December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, not to have made the improvement herein required shall, within one year thereafter, complete such deficient improvement, or thereafter, as to all new members admitted, be subject, so far as stated rates of contribution are concerned, to the provisions of section 6059-217, applicable in the organization of new societies: Provided, That the contributions and funds of such new members shall be kept separate and apart from the other funds of the society until the required improvement shall be shown by valuation. If such required improvement is not shown by the succeeding triennial valuation, then the said new members may be placed in a separate class and their certificate valued as an independent society in respect to contributions and funds. [L. '11, p. 292, § 229.]

§ 6059-230. Examination of Domestic Societies.

The commissioner, or his deputy or examiner shall have the power of visitation and examination into the affairs of any domestic society. He may employ assistants for the purpose of such examinations, and he or his deputy, or examiner, shall have free access to all the books, papers, and documents that relate to the business of the society and may summon and qualify as witness under oath and examine its officers, agents, and employees or other persons in relation to the affairs, transactions, and condition of the society.

The expense of such examination shall be paid by the society examined, upon statement furnished by the commissioner, and the examination shall be made at least once in three years.

Whenever after examination the commissioner is satisfied that any domestic society has failed to comply with any provisions of this act, or is exceeding its powers, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith, or is transacting business fraudulently, or whenever any domestic society, after the existence of one year or more, shall have a membership of less than four hundred, or shall determine to discontinue business, the commissioner may present the facts relating thereto to the attorney general, who shall, if he deem the circumstances warrant, commence an action in quo warranto in a court of competent jurisdiction, and such court shall thereupon notify the officers of such society of a hearing, and if it shall then appear that such society should be closed, said society shall be enjoined from carrying on any further business, and the commissioner shall be appointed receiver of such society, as is provided in case of insolvency of insurance companies, and shall proceed at once to take possession of the books, papers, moneys and other assets of the society, and shall forthwith, under the direction of the court, proceed to close the affairs of the society and to distribute its funds to those entitled thereto.

No such proceedings shall be commenced by the attorney general against any such society until, after notice has been duly served on the chief executive officers of the society and a reasonable opportunity given to it, on a date to be named in said notice, to show cause why such proceedings should not be commenced. [L. '11, p. 293, § 230.]

No application for injunction against or proceedings for the dissolution of or appointment of a receiver for any such domestic society or branch thereof shall be entertained by any court in this state unless the same is made by the attorney general. [L. '11, p. 295, § 231.]

§ 6059-232. Examination of Foreign Societies.

The commissioner, or any person whom he may appoint, may examine any foreign society transacting or applying for admission to transact business in this state. The said commissioner may employ assistants, and he, or any person he may appoint, shall have free access to all the books, papers, and documents that relate to the business of the society, and may summon and qualify as witness under oath and examine its officers, agents, and employees and other persons in relation to the affairs, transactions and condition of the society. He may, in his discretion, accept in lieu of such examinations, the examination of the insurance department of the state, territory, district, province, or country where such society is organized. The actual expenses of examiners making any such examination, shall be paid by the society upon statement furnished by the commissioner.

If any such society or its officers refuses to submit to such examination or to comply with the provisions of the section relative thereto, the authority of such society to write new business in this state shall be suspended or license refused until satisfactory evidence is furnished the commissioner, relating to the condition and affairs of the society, and during such suspension the society shall not write new business in this state. [L. '11, p. 295, § 232.]

§ 6059-233. No Adverse Publications.

Pending, during or after an examination or investigation of any such society, either domestic or foreign, the commissioner shall make public no financial statement, report or finding, nor shall he permit to become public any financial statement, report, or finding affecting the status, standing, or rights of any such society, until a copy thereof shall have been served upon such society, at its home office, nor until such society shall have been afforded a reasonable opportunity to answer any such financial statement, report, or finding and to make such showing in connection therewith as it may desire. [L. '11, p. 295, § 233.]

§ 6059-234. Revocation of License.

When the commissioner on investigation is satisfied that any foreign society transacting business under this act has exceeded its powers, or has failed to comply with any provisions of this act, or is conducting business fraudulently, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith he shall notify the society of his findings, and state in writing the grounds of his dissatisfaction and after reasonable notice require said society, on a date named, to show cause why its license should not be revoked. If on the date named in said notice such objections have not been removed to the satisfaction of the said commissioner or the society does not present good and sufficient reasons why its authority to transact business in this state should not at that time be revoked, he may revoke the authority of the society to continue business in this state. All decisions and findings of the commissioner made under the provisions of this section may be reviewed by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction as provided in section 6059-221. [L. '11, p. 296, § 234.]

§ 6059-235. Exemption of Certain Societies.

Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to affect or apply to grand or subordinate lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows, or Knights of Pythias, exclusive of the insurance department of the Supreme Lodge of Knights of Pythias, and the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, exclusive of the beneficiary degree or insurance branch of the National Council Junior Order United American Mechanics, or societies which limit their membership to any one hazardous occupation, nor to similar societies which do not issue insurance certificates, nor to any association of local lodges of a society now doing business in this state which provides death benefits not exceeding three hundred dollars to any one person, or disability benefits not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year to any one person, or both, nor to any contracts of reinsurance business on such plan in this state, nor to domestic societies which limit their membership to the employees of a particular city or town, designated firm, business house or corporation, nor to domestic lodges, orders, or associations of a purely religious, charitable, and benevolent description, which do not provide for a death benefit of more than one hundred dollars, or for disability benefits of more than one hundred and fifty dollars to any one person in any one year: Provided, always, That any such domestic order or society which has more than five hundred members, and provides for death or disability benefits, and any such domestic lodge, order, or society which issues to any person a certificate providing for the payment of benefits, shall not be exempt by the provisions of this section, but shall comply with all the requirements of this article. The commissioner may require from any society such information as will enable him to determine whether such society is exempt from the provisions of this article.

No society, which is exempt by the provisions of this section from the requirement of this article shall give or allow or promise to give or allow, to any person any compensation for procuring new members.

Any fraternal benefit society, heretofore organized and incorporated and operating within the definition set forth in sections 6059-206, 6059-207, and 6059-208, providing for benefits in case of death or disability resulting solely from accidents, but which does not obligate itself to pay death or sick benefits, may be licensed under the provisions of this act, and shall have all the privileges and shall be subject to all the provisions and regulations of this article, except that the provisions of this article requiring medical examinations, valuations of benefit certificates, and that the certificate shall specify the amount of benefits, shall not apply to such society. [L. '11, p. 296, § 235.]

A domestic fire insurance company authorized to and doing a fire and plate glass insurance business prior to the adoption of the insurance code is subject to the restrictions of the code after its adoption, in view of this section and section 6059-20, providing that all domestic insurance companies then or thereafter formed, and every person doing an insurance business in the state shall be subject thereto: State ex rel. North Coast Fire Ins. Co. v. Schively, 68 Wash. 148, 122 Pac. 1020.

As to plate glass insurance, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1091.

§ 6059-236. Taxation.

Every fraternal benefit society organized or licensed under this act is hereby declared to be a charitable and benevolent institution, and all of its funds shall be exempt from all and every state, county, district, municipal, and school tax, other than taxes on real estate and office equipment. [L. '11, p. 298, § 236.]

Any person who shall solicit membership for, or in any manner assist in procuring membership in any fraternal benefit society not licensed to do business in this state, or who shall solicit membership for, or in any manner assist in procuring membership in any such society not authorized as herein provided, to do business as herein defined in this state, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars.

Any society, or any officer, agent, or employee thereof neglecting or refusing to comply with, or violating any of the provisions of this article, the penalty for which neglect, refusal, or violation is not specified in this section shall be fined not exceeding two hundred dollars upon conviction thereof. [L. '11, p. 298, § 237.]

§ 6059-238. Existing Insurance Laws Repealed.

This act may be referred to and shall be known as "The Insurance Code" and shall supersede all prior acts on the subject of the organization and government of insurance companies and insurance business, and all such prior acts are hereby repealed. [L. '11, p. 298, § 238.]

§§ 6059—6249.

Repealed. See § 6059-238.

This section merely requires the insurance commissioner to designate two papers from the class of papers having the largest circulation, and vests a discretion in him to designate any two papers belonging to that class, although the difference in their circulation may be considerable, which discretion will not be controlled by the courts except for abuse: State ex rel. Cowles v. Schively, 63 Wash. 103, 114 Pac. 901.

Under this section, vesting in the insurance commissioner a discretion to designate a newspaper in eastern Washington from the class of papers having the largest general circulation for the publication of the annual insurance reports, the commissioner's act in designating a paper having a circulation of from six thousand to nine thousand when another paper had five times that circulation is not so arbitrary and capricious as to call for interference by the courts: State ex rel. Cowles v. Schively, 63 Wash. 103, 114 Pac. 901.

Repealed. See § 6059-238.

Laws of 1905, page 373, prohibiting insurance rebates does not invalidate a note given for the premiums in violation of the statute, as against a holder of the note in due course, since it is not the policy of the law to render negotiable paper void in the hands of innocent holders where the statute has not so expressly declared: Gray v. Boyle, 55 Wash. 578, 133 Am. St. Rep. 1042, 104 Pac. 828.

As to the validity, in hands of bona fide holder, of negotiable contract void by statute between original parties, see notes in 4 Ann. Cas. 353, and 11 Ann. Cas. 1181.

Repealed. See § 6059-238.

An accident policy with premiums payable monthly, expiring one year after issuance, which made provision for weekly indemnity for disability and referred to the special class of employment in which the insured was engaged, although it also covers loss of life from "external, violent and purely accidental means," is an "industrial" or accident policy and not a "life" insurance policy, within the meaning of this section and section 6159; hence in an action thereon, evidence as to the insured's assignment of his wages for the payment of premiums is admissible, although not part of the application: Pride v. Continental Casualty Co., 69 Wash. 428, 125 Pac. 787.

As to life insurance as distinguished from other kinds of insurance, see note in 128 Am. St. Rep. 303.

Repealed. See § 6059-238.

This section, declaring that the beneficiary shall be entitled to life insurance as against creditors, except that the amount of premiums paid in fraud of creditors shall inure to their benefit from the proceeds of the policy, does not impliedly repeal section 569, providing that all life and accident insurance shall be exempt from all liability for debt, although the title of the later act is broad enough to cover the whole subject of insurance; since repeals by implication are not favored and exemption laws are favored, and the two acts are not inconsistent: Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Chehalis County Bank, 65 Wash. 374, 118 Pac. 326.

As to the liability of proceeds of life insurance for debts of beneficiary, see note in 2 Ann. Cas. 91.

This section, providing that the amount of premiums paid in fraud of creditors shall inure to their benefit from the proceeds of the policy, has no application to insurance the premiums on which were not paid by the deceased: Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Chehalis County Bank, 65 Wash. 374, 118 Pac. 326.

As to transfer of insurance policy on debtor's life as transfer in fraud of creditor, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912B, 896.

§ 6159.

See notes to § 6155.

§ 6199.

Repealed. See § 6059-238.

Under the terms of a policy of fire insurance and this section, limiting liability for loss by fire to three-fourths of the actual value of bar fixtures, two hundred and eighty dollars, judgment for the full sum is excessive, and should be reduced to two hundred and ten dollars: Olympia Brewing Co. v. Pioneer Mut. Ins. Assn., 53 Wash. 16, 101 Pac. 371.

Repealed. See § 6059-238.

Under this section, costs on appeal will be allowed for the premium paid for a surety company's bond upon appeal given by a receiver, trustee, etc.: Church v. Wilkeson-Tripp Co., 58 Wash. 262, 108 Pac. 596, 137 Am. St. Rep. 1059, 109 Pac. 113.

TITLE XLVI.

The discounting of a note, which was originally free from the taint of usury, is not usurious where no recovery was sought against the assignee and he did not render himself liable thereon, within this section: Thomson v. Koch, 62 Wash. 438, 113 Pac. 1110.

The discounting of a "wheat" note obligating the maker to grow and deliver certain wheat is not usurious, within this section, providing that the discounting of "commercial" paper shall be considered as a loan within the usury laws; since it is not commercial paper, within sections 3392, 3396, providing that an instrument to be negotiable must be payable in money without any promise to do any additional act: Thomson v. Koch, 62 Wash. 438, 113 Pac. 1110.

As to the definition and tests of usury, see note in 46 Am. St. Rep. 179.

Interest is recoverable on earned premiums on an indemnity policy, from the date the balance becomes due, although the legal basis for the recovery was a subject of controversy; since the amount was due on a specific contract for the payment of money and was determinable by computation: Empire State Surety Co. v. Moran Brothers Co., 71 Wash. 171, 127 Pac. 1104.

Where a tender was insufficient in amount, interest is recoverable on the amount due: Kleeb v. McInturff, 71 Wash. 419, 128 Pac. 1076.

The defense of usury is personal to the parties and cannot be set up by strangers who were not creditors and who took property from one of the parties subject to and with notice of an alleged usurious transaction, which created a lien on the property: Grubb v. Stewart, 47 Wash. 103, 91 Pac. 562.

The defense of usury is personal to the debtor and cannot be set up by a creditor to gain priority over other creditors: Fenby v. Hunt, 53 Wash. 127, 101 Pac. 492.

The usurious discounting of a note and mortgage is no defense to a suit by the transferee against the maker: Thomson v. Koch, 62 Wash. 438, 113 Pac. 1110.

As to purchase of accommodation paper at discount, in excess of legal rate without notice of method thereof, as usury, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 887.

The defense of usury cannot be raised unless it is pleaded, especially where it does not appear on the face of the record: Grubb v. Stewart, 47 Wash. 103, 91 Pac. 562.

Usury to be available as a defense must be pleaded: Fenby v. Hunt, 53 Wash. 127, 101 Pac. 492.

As to the doctrine that usury, as a defense, must be distinctly set up and must be proved as laid, see note in 5 L. R. A. 465.

See notes to § 6255.

A note for five hundred dollars, given as a bonus or fee for procuring a state contract at a public sale and for furnishing nine hundred and sixty dollars to buy the land, for which latter sum a note with the maximum rate of interest was also taken, is usurious, under sections 6251, 6255, especially where the value of the service was inconsiderable, since the contract was entire and part of the consideration was illegal, and a contract usurious in part is illegal as to the whole: Inland Trading Co. v. Edgcombe, 57 Wash. 257, 106 Pac. 768.

Since, under this section, usury does not render a note void, the defense of usury is not available against a holder acquiring the notes before maturity in good faith for value: American Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Helgesen, 64 Wash. 54, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 390, 116 Pac. 837.

TITLE XLVII INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

CHAPTER II. LICENSE AND REGULATION.

§ 6263.

See notes to § 6269.

This section does not require the licensee to personally pay the county treasurer before issuance of the license is ordered by the county commissioners; but the same is to be paid to the treasurer by the auditor with whom the fee is deposited upon making application, after the application is granted: Skagit County v. American Bonding Co., 59 Wash. 8, 109 Pac. 199.

The sale of intoxicating liquors outside of the corporate limits of a city or town, without any license from the county commissioners, is punishable as a misdemeanor, under this section, and section 2673, providing that the doing of any act without a license, when one is required by law, shall be a misdemeanor, notwithstanding section 2962, making it a misdemeanor to sell intoxicating liquors without a license, was repealed by section 2304: State v. Ray, 62 Wash. 245, 113 Pac. 634.

This section, providing that the mayor and council of each city shall have the sole and exclusive authority to license or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors is impliedly repealed by section 7507, conferring upon cities of the first class power to frame their own charters and to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors: Hartig v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 432, 102 Pac. 408.

The unearned portion of a county liquor license can be recovered by the licensee when his license has become inoperative by reason of the incorporation as a town of the territory in which his saloon was conducted, where the same has not passed beyond the county's control: Bart v. Pierce County, 60 Wash. 507, 31 L. R. A., N. S., 1151, 111 Pac. 582.

A county cannot escape repayment of the unearned portion of a liquor license, which has become inoperative, by the fact that the same has been transferred to the county school fund, and transferred to the school districts, since the school fund is a continuing fund under the control of the county, and the rule against a multiplicity of suits forbids separate actions against each school

This section, being primarily a revenue measure, is not in pari materia and to be construed in connection with the general act of 1888 (section 6275, etc.), for the regulation of the liquor traffic, which exempted from its operation druggists dispensing liquors on the written prescription of a reputable physician; hence the provisions of both acts may be enforced and druggists must procure a state license under the revenue act, although not required to do so under the regulative act: State v. Putnam, 60 Wash. 386, 111 Pac. 239.

As to the licensing of druggists, see note in 129 Am. St. Rep. 294.

Under this section and section 6263, giving the county commissioners of each county the sole and exclusive authority to regulate the sale of spirituous liquors outside of the corporate limits of a town, a license is required from each county in which the steamboat sells intoxicating liquors; and the same is not excused by a state or by a federal license: State v. Falkenstine, 64 Wash. 432, 117 Pac. 254.

The requirement that a steamboat secure a county license for the sale of intoxicating liquors in each county through which it passes is not objectionable because it is unreasonable or prohibitory, as the legislature has the right to prohibit the sales: State v. Falkenstine, 64 Wash. 432, 117 Pac. 254.

As to validity of statute prohibiting drinking of intoxicating liquor or being intoxicated on passenger conveyance, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1061.

See notes to §§ 6269, 8459.

§ 6288.

The right to sell or drink liquor is not a constitutional right and may be granted to one class of citizens and denied to others: State v. Nicolls, 61 Wash. 142, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1088, 112 Pac. 269.

As to discrimination in respect of persons or localities in enforcing liquor license laws, see note in 9 L. R. A. 781.

SELLING OR FURNISHING LIQUORS. This section, prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors to Indians, is a valid exercise of the police power, inherent in state sovereignty; and accordingly does not violate the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution in so far as it prohibits sale to Indians who are citizens; nor article 1, section 8 of the constitution conferring authority on the general government to regulate commerce with Indian tribes, in so far as it prohibits sales to Indian wards of the United States: State v. Mamlock, 58 Wash. 631, 137 Am. St. Rep. 1085, 109 Pac. 47.

The element of intent is not a necessary ingredient of the offense of selling liquor to an Indian of the mixed blood, the statute not using the word "knowingly" or any qualifying words: State v. Nicolls, 61 Wash. 142, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1088, 112 Pac. 269.

Under the police power the legislature can prohibit the sale of liquor to an Indian of mixed blood, although he be a citizen of the United States, without violating the rights and privileges guaranteed by section 1 of the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution: State v. Nicolls, 61 Wash. 142, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1088, 112 Pac. 269.

A statute prohibiting the sale of liquor to an Indian of mixed blood having more than one-eighth Indian blood applies to all such Indians, regardless of the legal status of his white father: State v. Nicolls, 61 Wash. 142, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1088, 112 Pac. 269.

The words in this section, "which produces intoxication," refer only to the antecedent essences, compounds, etc.; and an information for giving away "spirituous" liquors need not allege that it "produces intoxication," as all spirituous liquors are intoxicating: State v. Bailey, 67 Wash. 336, 121 Pac. 821.

A conviction of giving liquor to an Indian is sustained where there was evidence that defendant walked to a wagon with the Indian, concealing a bottle of alcohol under his coat and handed it to the Indian, who put it in the front end of the wagon concealed in a gunny-sack, although the evidence was denied by the Indian and defendant, the credibility of the witnesses being for the jury: State v. Bailey, 67 Wash. 336, 121 Pac. 821.

Upon a prosecution for giving liquor to an Indian, the defendant's statement that he bought the alcohol for medicinal use in treating rheumatism may be impeached by testimony that he made the purchase for "mechanical purposes," where his purpose in making the purchase had a direct bearing upon his intent in giving it to the Indian and whether for use or for carriage as claimed by defendant: State v. Bailey, 67 Wash. 336, 121 Pac. 821.

As to validity and construction of statute forbidding sale of liquor to Indians, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1090.

In a prosecution for selling liquor in a dry unit in violation of the local option law, samples of liquor taken from defendant's place of business a few days after the unlawful sale are admissible in evidence as tending to show the character of his business, the samples being in the same condition as when taken: State v. Baker, 67 Wash. 595, 122 Pac. 335.

In a prosecution for unlawful sales of intoxicating liquors shipped into dry territory, expense bills and freight receipts issued by a railway agent tending to show shipments of casks of bottled beer from a brewery to defendant are admissible in evidence, although only carbon copies, where the originals had been delivered to the defendant and could not be produced, and the casks had been delivered to him by a drayman: State v. Baker, 67 Wash. 595, 122 Pac. 335.

One who, with money furnished by an Indian, procures intoxicating liquor and delivers the same to him, is guilty of a felony within this section: State v. Reese, 69 Wash. 437, 125 Pac. 363.

As to loan of intoxicating liquor as sale within a prohibition statute, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913A, 471.

CHAPTER III.

CIVIL REMEDIES AGAINST LIQUOR DEALERS.

Under either Ballinger's Code, section 2945, or Laws of 1905, page 120, a saloon-keeper is liable to a minor child for the damages sustained by reason of the death of her father, where he sold liquor to the deceased under circumstances which would have led a man of ordinary intelligence to believe that intoxication would probably result, and where deceased became intoxicated and involved in a quarrel and was killed while making a deadly and unprovoked assault upon another; and a finding of damages in the sum of four hundred dollars will not be disturbed where the evidence was conflicting: Woodring v. Jacobino, 54 Wash. 504, 103 Pac. 809.

As to wife's right of action at common law against one selling liquor to her husband, see note in 40 L. R. A., N. S., 360.

CHAPTER IV.

LOCAL OPTION LAW.

§ 6292.

The local option law of this state is constitutional: State v. Donovan, 64 Wash. 209, 112 Pac. 260.

The local option law of 1909, being a general law applicable to all counties of the state, prevails over previous enactments, and applies to counties that had already adopted township government whereby a different system of regulation was provided, notwithstanding that an amendment to the township government act (passed previously at the same session of the legislature) provided that no act thereafter passed shall be construed as altering, amending or repealing any of its provisions since repeals by implication cannot be thus prevented: Gunther v. Huneke, 58 Wash. 494, 108 Pac. 1078.

This act is in direct conflict with, and being the later enactment controls, the act of March 3, 1909 (section 9339½), providing that each township in counties in which the township government has been adopted shall have the power to determine whether licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors shall be issued therein: Gunther v. Huneke, 58 Wash. 494, 108 Pac. 1078.

Under the local option law making a separate unit or district of all that portion of a county outside of incorporated cities and towns, and which failed to contemplate the situation where a new town is subsequently incorporated within the prohibition district, such newly incorporated town may license the sale of intoxicating liquors within the municipality, as it might have done if previously incorporated, and without first submitting the matter to a vote: State v. Donovan, 61 Wash. 209, 112 Pac. 260.

The local option law of 1909 prohibits sales of intoxicating liquors by wholesalers in dry units, notwithstanding the proviso that wholesalers may deliver unbroken packages at residences in dry units, in view of the restrictions against all sales in any quantity whatsoever in dry units or the taking or soliciting of orders therein, and the often repeated use of the term "sale" whenever and wherever it was intended to permit a sale in a dry unit, which do not include sales of wholesalers, and also the safeguarding of sales by druggists in dry territory, and the general purpose and spirit of the act, all of which require that the proviso be strictly construed to conform to the language of the general provisions; consequently "sales" by wholesalers, whether located within or without the dry unit, must be made outside of the district: State v. Robinson, 67 Wash. 425, 121 Pac. 848.

The local option law of 1909, entitled an act to provide for the submission of the question whether the "sale" of intoxicating liquors shall be licensed or prohibited, and providing for the enforcement of the result of elections and defining offenses thereunder, relates to but one subject sufficiently expressed in its title; and penalties for the "giving away" of liquor within a dry unit, except to guests in private houses, are germane to the subject, the word "sale" in the title not being determinative of the acts to be punished: State v. Jones, 66 Wash. 229, 119 Pac. 384.

In a prosecution for selling liquor in dry territory in violation of the local option laws, it is not error to refuse to give instructions as to defendant's right to sell liquor as a physician, where there was no evidence of such right or any justification for the sale: State v. Polk, 66 Wash. 411, 119 Pac. 846.

The uncontradicted statement of one witness that a sale of liquor was made in a town in dry territory is sufficient to support a conviction of selling liquor in violation of the local option law, although the exact place or boundaries of the town were not shown: State v. Polk, 66 Wash. 411, 119 Pac. 846.

A special election upon the local option question cannot be held after the general election in November, 1910, except biennially on the general election day, under this section: State ex rel. Eckdahl v. Dykeman, 65 Wash. 580, 118 Pac. 732.

Under the local option law by which the legislature intended to allow an immediate election if the people of any unit desired it, and thereafter an election should be had only at a general county or state election, a city election is a "general election" within the meaning of this section, especially in view of the history of the passage of the act showing that the several possible times for general elections were considered, and the last election preceding the regular biennial election was adopted, as giving the fairest index of the number of voters who will exercise the franchise: State ex rel. Griffin v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 545, 127 Pac. 120.

A city election for the purpose of electing city officers to carry out the change to a commission form of government is a "general election," within this section: State ex rel. Forgues v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 670, 127 Pac. 313.

This section is substantially complied with by giving the name of the town as their postoffice address, without specifying any precinct, street or house number, where there was only one voting precinct in the town, and the houses were not numbered: State ex rel. Quillen v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 343, 126 Pac. 899.

This section is mandatory, and a signature to the petition failing to give the street and house number, if any, is invalid, and cannot be counted in determining whether sufficient electors have signed the petition: State ex rel. Czerny v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 592, 127 Pac. 207.

This section, providing that every signer of the petition in a city, as distinguished from a town, shall give his "street and house number, if any, of his residence," requires him to give his street, if any, although he has no house number: State ex rel. Czerny v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 592, 127 Pac. 207.

Under this section the clerk's certificate reciting the final result is sufficient and admissible, without a certified copy of the details of the canvass: State v. Polk, 66 Wash. 411, 119 Pac. 846.

The clerk's certificate required by this section is sufficient prima facie evidence that local option was in force in the precinct: State v. Polk, 66 Wash. 411, 119 Pac. 846.

The giving away of liquor on the streets of a town within a dry unit is a violation of this section, notwithstanding the further provision aimed at gifts by dealers for the obvious purpose of evading the penalties against sales: State v. Jones, 66 Wash. 229, 119 Pac. 384.

As to local option laws as unconstitutional delegation of legislative power, see note in 1 L. R. A., N. S., 483.

A citizen has no inherent right to treat another to intoxicating liquors in a licensed saloon: Tacoma v. Keisel, 68 Wash. 685, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 757, 124 Pac. 137.

Under this section prohibiting the giving away or delivery of intoxicating liquor by any storekeeper, or the taking or soliciting of orders for a sale, in a dry unit, one may be guilty of taking or soliciting orders without being a "storekeeper": State v. Holmes, 68 Wash. 7, 122 Pac. 345.

A dealer who wrote and mailed a letter in a license city, addressed to a person in a dry district, quoting prices of liquors which it agreed to deliver at the party's address in the dry unit, and inclosing an order blank with return envelope, is guilty of taking or soliciting orders for the sale and delivery of liquors within the limits of a dry unit, within the meaning of this section, since the unlawful act was committed in the city where the letter was delivered: State v. Holmes, 68 Wash. 1, 122 Pac. 345.

In such case, both cities being in this state, no question of interstate commerce is involved: State v. Holmes, 68 Wash. 7, 122 Pac. 345.

A demijohn of whisky, drawn from a barrel by a wholesale dealer within a wet district, and brought into, and delivered to a customer in, a dry district, is an "unbroken package," within the meaning of this section: State v. Maire, 66 Wash. 591, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 1051, 120 Pac. 87.

A brewery in a no-license unit is not authorized to make a delivery of a case of bottled beer at its brewery to a person calling there for it by this section: State v. Bellingham Bay Brewery, 70 Wash. 650, 127 Pac. 297.

This section does not permit the manufacturer to make sales in a no-license unit, in view of the restrictions in the act against all sales in such units: State v. Bellingham Bay Brewery, 70 Wash. 654, 127 Pac. 298.

TITLE XLVIII. IRRIGATION AND WATER RIGHTS.

CHAPTER I. APPROPRIATION OF WATERS.

The right to waters by a prior appropriation thereof obtains only in the case of waters upon public lands, and not to waters upon land where the title from the government had been obtained or initiated, since the common-law doctrine of riparian rights prevails in this state and would attach to lands acquired from the government, preventing appropriation thereof: Mason v. Yearwood, 58 Wash. 276, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 1158, 108 Pac. 608.

School lands in a territory reserved by the federal government for the use of the common schools of the future state are public lands of the United States, within the rule that the waters of streams on public lands are subject to appropriation under the acts of Congress, 14 Stats. at Large, 253, and 16 Stats. at Large, 218, granting the right as to all public lands generally: State ex rel. Olding v. Stampfly, 69 Wash. 368, 125 Pac. 148.

The right to obstruct the outlet of a lake, acquired by appropriation in 1883, is lost by disseizin and adverse possession, where the dam was removed in 1892, and thereafter the shores of the lake were held in open, exclusive, notorious and adverse possession for more than ten years, and until a new dam was built in 1909, without any obstruction of the lake except by permission in 1907 for four months, and except that once each year during the rainy season, without the knowledge of the owners, a few stones and pieces of wood were thrown into the narrow outlet of the lake (the work requiring about fifteen minutes) and removed in April or May thereafter: Thomas v. Spencer, 69 Wash. 433, 125 Pac. 361.

A speculating squatter on relinquished government land, who made no entry on his own behalf during two years, is not a bona fide settler and is not entitled to appropriate waters for irrigation: Avery v. Johnson, 59 Wash. 332, 109 Pac. 1028.

No right to appropriate the waters of a creek for irrigation within an Indian reservation could antedate the opening of the reservation to settlement, nor could it antedate actual bona fide settlement upon contiguous lands capable of being irrigated thereby: Avery v. Johnson, 59 Wash. 332, 109 Pac. 1028.

As to the appropriation of waters and watercourses, see note in 60 Am. St. Rep. 799.

As to ancient and modern doctrine of the relative rights of states and of riparian owners, see note in 127 Am. St. Rep. 41.

As to right to water of new spring, see note in 30 L. R. A., N. S., 1158.

Waters of a creek already appropriated are not subject to appropriation under the statute: Weidensteiner v. Mally, 55 Wash. 79, 104 Pac. 143.

Where impounded waters were allowed to flow off the owner's land into a watercourse with intent to recapture it below, no more can be taken out than was allowed to flow in, as against prior appropriation of the flow of the stream, after making due allowance for waste: Miller v. Wheeler, 54 Wash. 429, 23 L. R. A., N. S., 1065, 103 Pac. 641.

In such a case, in reclaiming the impounded water, the owner cannot cut off any original sources or tributary springs so as to diminish the perennial flow already appropriated: Miller v. Wheeler, 54 Wash. 429, 23 L. R. A., N. S., 1065, 103 Pac. 641.

Where the first appropriator of water on public land has perfected his title, and proceeded with reasonable diligence in extending his cultivated area, he is entitled to the quantity of water needed to irrigate his land to the exclusion of subsequent appropriators or riparian owners: Avery v. Johnson, 59 Wash. 332, 109 Pac. 1028.

Where a dispute arose as to the absolute right to use for irrigation the waters of a creek, and the parties agreed to divide the water half and half, and acted thereon, uninterrupted use of one-half of the water under the agreement for the period of nineteen years ripens into title thereto by adverse possession, even as against a prior appropriation; and it is immaterial that such adverse use was by a lower proprietor, the agreement being a distinct recognition of his claim and fixing the extent of it: Allen v. Roseberg, 70 Wash. 422, 126 Pac. 900.

As to irrigation rights of riparian owners, see note in 20 Am. St. Rep. 225; also note in 17 Ann. Cas. 829.

Intent to abandon surplus waters is not shown by the fact that the surplus was allowed to run into a natural waterway, when it appears that contracts were made with reference to the use of the accumulated waters after the swamps developed, and the water was actually used for eleven years, and made the subject of conveyance:

An appropriation of water, prior to the vesting of riparian rights in 1897, by the application of water to irrigation purposes, is not established, reasonable diligence being lacking, where an irrigation company first started an appropriation in 1893, which was forfeited by the failure of the company and abandonment of the work, and that was followed by slight efforts toward the use of water in 1897, and an appropriation and considerable diligence in 1897: Still v. Palouse Irr. & Power Co., 64 Wash. 606, 117 Pac. 466.

As to abandonment of right to water, see note in 59 L. R. A. 845.

Waters appropriated from another watershed for irrigation may be turned into and conveyed by a natural watercourse without becoming subject to the use of others, and is not lost to the appropriators by reason of the loss of identity: Miller v. Wheeler, 54 Wash. 429, 23 L. R. A., N. S., 1065, 103 Pac. 641.

PRESCRIPTIVE RIGHTS.—A prescriptive right to the use of water for irrigation purposes, diverted from its natural channel by an upper proprietor, is not acquired by a lower proprietor, where he and his predecessors in interest used the water for domestic and culinary purposes for five years, then for two years used it for watering stock, and then for eight years constantly used the water for the purposes of irrigation: Hollett v. Davis, 54 Wash. 326, 103 Pac. 423.

Waters appropriated from another watershed for irrigation, and discharged upon the owner's land, forming swamps and accumulations which percolate to and artificially augment the waters of another stream, may be impounded and used by the appropriators as their property, before it leaves their lands, as against a prior appropriator on the augmented stream: Miller v. Wheeler, 54 Wash. 429, 23 L. R. A., N. S., 1065, 103 Pac. 641.

No prescriptive right is acquired under a permission to use water by tapping a water company's line on the lands of a third person, the user paying therefor by keeping a dam in repair, since the user of the water was not a proprietor, and the use was permissive and not hostile: Rhoades v. Barnes, 54 Wash. 145, 102 Pac. 884.

*The initiation in 1898 of a prescriptive right to take water from a pipe on the lands of another is prevented from ripening by the acts of the owner in 1905, claiming the water and stopping the flow: Rhoades v. Barnes, 54 Wash. 145, 102 Pac. 884.

A permissive use of the surplus of appropriated waters will not ripen into rights by prescription, or under the statute of limitations, as the use must be adverse:

An attempt to make a statutory appropriation of water, used under a license, does not amount to an adverse claim, where it was not so intended, being merely to prevent appropriation by others, and the licensor had no notice of any adverse claim: Weidensteiner v. Mally, 55 Wash. 79, 104 Pac. 143.

The use of a ditch to convey waters for the statutory period, given by a license, will not ripen into a prescriptive right, where there was no repudiation of the license with notice thereof to the licensor: Weidensteiner v. Mally, 55 Wash. 79, 104 Pac. 143.

As to prescriptive title to water, see note in 93 Am. St. Rep. 712; see, also, note in 21 L. R. A. 607.

As to prescriptive right to dam water, see note in 59 L. R. A. 838.

The right to appropriate land for an irrigation project depends upon the appropriator's right to the water to be used in such project: State ex rel. Ham, Yearsley & Ryrie v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 442, 126 Pac. 945.

One who failed to post any notice of appropriation of water as required by statute cannot, in the absence of any physical appropriation of the water, claim any prior appropriation thereof, as against one who had posted notice and prosecuted preliminary work: State ex rel. Ham, Yearsley & Ryrie v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 442, 126 Pac. 945.

Under these sections, the rights after posting notice depend upon such reasonable diligence in prosecuting the work as to clearly show an intent not to abandon the appropriation, as by the expenditure of ten thousand dollars in preliminary work of great magnitude, requiring an entire season; and no want of diligence short of abandonment can be asserted by anyone except a subsequent appropriator: State ex rel. Ham, Yearsley & Ryrie v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 442, 126 Pac. 945.

The posting of notices of appropriation of the waters of a lake upon the unoccupied land of another near the shore line of the lake is not such a trespass as to amount to an unlawful initiation of the appropriation: State ex rel. Ham, Yearsley & Ryrie v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 442, 126 Pac. 945.

As to abandonment or loss of rights of prior appropriators, see note in 30 L. R. A. 265.

An agreement for water for irrigation, calling for a certain number of miner's inches for specific tracts of land, which was binding on each parcel of land separate and apart from the others, the conditions to be binding upon heirs and assigns, runs with the land, and places a purchaser of a tract in the situation of the original contractee: Ulrich v. Pateros Water Ditch Co., 67 Wash. 328, 121 Pac. 818.

A contract for a certain number of "miner's inches" of water to be taken from an irrigation ditch is ambiguous, and may be shown by parol evidence to mean in that locality a quantity of water which would flow through an orifice one-inch square under at least a four-inch pressure; and when so explained, is sufficiently definite to admit of specific performance: Ulrich v. Pateros Water Ditch Co., 67 Wash. 328, 121 Pac. 818.

As to passing of irrigation rights by conveyance and the method thereof, see note in 65 L. R. A. 407.

The right to condemn rights of way for irrigation is not limited to the owners of arid land; and sufficient benefit will result to warrant condemnation for irrigation where it appears that the land is semi-arid, raising only a light crop of wheat or wheat hay or crops maturing early in July, while with irrigation it will produce abundantly almost any crop and will be increased one hundred and twenty-five dollars to one hundred and fifty dollars per acre in value: State ex rel. Galbraith v. Superior Court, 59 Wash. 621, 140 Am. St. Rep. 893, 110 Pac. 429.

Condemnation for an irrigation canal by a water company owning the lands which it seeks to irrigate cannot be defeated by the fact that the company intends to sell the irrigated lands and that its purpose is speculative: State ex rel. Galbraith v. Superior Court, 59 Wash. 621, 140 Am. St. Rep. 893, 110 Pac. 429.

The right to condemn rights of way for irrigation contemplates irrigation by gravity, and cannot be defeated by the fact that the land could be irrigated by pumping: State ex rel. Galbraith v. Superior Court, 59 Wash. 621, 140 Am. St. Rep. 893, 110 Pac. 429.

In condemnation of waters of a lake for irrigation purposes, part of which are already used by littoral owners for irrigating their lands, an offer of the petitioner to exempt sufficient water to irrigate the lands of the littoral owners is not an attempt to pay damages in compensation other than money, in contravention of constitution, article 1, section 16, in view of the statute prohibiting the condemnation of waters needed for irrigation: Spokane Valley Land & Water Co. v. Jones & Co., 53 Wash. 37, 101 Pac. 515.

In eminent domain proceedings for a right of way for an irrigation ditch, draining an arm of a lake, in which defendants' present and future loss was measured by the market value of the land at the time of the trial, it is proper to reject an offer of proof that, in preceding years while plaintiff was unlawfully draining the lake, the defendants' land not taken for the ditch was of much less value with the arm of the lake drained than it was without such drainage, since the sole purpose of the offer was to show damages prior to the proceeding in addition to the compensation to be awarded and claimed for the appropriation: Spokane Valley Land & Water Co. v. Jones & Co., 68 Wash. 534, 123 Pac. 1014.

The riparian owner on a navigable lake is not given any right superior to others to appropriate the water thereof for the purpose of irrigation, by this and the next section, in the act entitled an act providing for condemnation proceedings for right of way for irrigation and relating to the right of appropriation of water: State ex rel. Ham, Yearsley & Ryrie v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 442, 126 Pac. 945.

As to the principle of eminent domain as applied to irrigation, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1004. See, also, notes in 1 Ann. Cas. 3041 and 22 L. R. A., N. S., 162.

Constitution, article 1, section 16, prohibiting the taking of private property for private use, except for drains, flumes or ditches for agricultural, etc., purposes, and article 21, section 1, providing that irrigation, etc., purposes shall be deemed a public use, confer legislative authority for this section, authorizing the condemnation of land for irrigation ditches by a private owner of agricultural lands: State ex rel. Galbraith v. Superior Court, 59 Wash. 621, 140 Am. St. Rep. 893, 110 Pac. 429.

The common-law doctrine of riparian rights in the use of waters of a stream has become a rule of property in this state: Nesalious v. Walker, 45 Wash. 621, 88 Pac. 1032.

A riparian right to the flow of water is subject to a reasonable use for domestic and agricultural purposes by a prior riparian owner: Hayward v. Mason, 54 Wash. 653, 104 Pac. 141.

As to diligence in applying water to useful purposes, see note in 60 Am. St. Rep. 811.

An upper riparian owner may not impound all the waters of a natural water-course for fourteen hours out of every twenty-four without the consent of lower proprietors or the condemnation of their rights: Tacoma Eastern R. Co. v. Smithgall, 58 Wash. 445, 108 Pac. 1091.

Equity will not, at the suit of a riparian owner, restrain the use of water diverted from a creek and required for irrigation by an adjoining owner, where ample water is left for all uses of the riparian owner, who suffers no damage from the diversion complained of: Methow Cattle Co. v. Williams, 64 Wash. 457, 117 Pac. 239.

A lower riparian owner is entitled to the natural flow of the stream at regular flood seasons beneficially flooding his lands, and can restrain the impounding of such flood waters by an upper riparian owner, and their release during the summer months, to his damage, where such waters are not extraordinary and unprecedented but a usual and natural condition: Still v. Palouse Irr. etc. Co., 64 Wash. 606, 117 Pac. 466.

The doctrine of riparian rights for irrigation purposes as to lands acquired from the government subsequent to March 3, 1877, has not been abrogated by the act of that date (19 Stats. at Large, 377), providing that surplus waters over and above actual appropriation and use, and waters in all lakes and rivers upon the public domain, shall remain and be free from the appropriation and use of the public for irrigation, mining, and manufacturing purposes, subject to existing right, since the act relates only to the reclamation of desert lands: Still v. Palouse Irr. etc. Co., 64 Wash. 606, 117 Pac. 466.

As to the correlative rights of upper and lower proprietors of streams, see note in 41 L. R. A. 737.

The owner of a small tract of land upon which there were springs, forming a pond about twenty feet wide by forty feet long, cannot be enjoined by a lower riparian owner from use of the same for a few geese, and horses and cattle at pasture, as the same is a reasonable use, and pollution of the stream thereby is a natural incident to proper and reasonable use thereof: McEvoy v. Taylor, 56 Wash. 357, 26 L. R. A., N. S., 222, 105 Pac. 851.

One who is not a riparian owner, but who diverted the waters of a spring to his own land by pipes, cannot enjoin the pollution of the waters by an upper riparian owner who had used the waters on his own lands for ten years prior to the diversion: McEvoy v. Taylor, 56 Wash. 357, 26 L. R. A., N. S., 222, 105 Pac. 851.

An upper proprietor, by the diversion of a natural watercourse into another channel or creek for the period of thirty years, is estopped from preventing the flow of the waters in its new course, where it appears that during such time lower proprietors had acquired title and made valuable improvements bordering upon the creek, relying on the flow of water for irrigation, and that without such irrigation their lands would be valueless, although their use had not been for the statutory prescriptive period: Hollett v. Davis, 54 Wash. 326, 103 Pac. 423.

As to acquisition by artificial stream of character of natural watercourse, see note in 14 Ann. Cas. 909.

In an action to prevent the diversion of waters used for irrigation, the court cannot make a division of the waters between the upper and lower proprietors where there is no evidence as to the proportion to which each was entitled: Hollett v. Davis, 54 Wash. 326, 103 Pac. 423.

In an action to enjoin the diversion of waters of a creek by a riparian owner and for damages, there is no defect of parties defendant because the plaintiff failed to join upper appropriators of the waters: Beck v. Bono, 59 Wash. 479, 110 Pac. 13.

As to injunction as remedy for wrongful diversion of watercourse, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 124.

The measure of damages for diverting water from a mill power, where electrical machinery was installed to operate the mill, is the cost of operating the same: Dement Brothers Co. v. Walla Walla, 58 Wash. 60, 107 Pac. 1038.

An owner of a mill may recover damages for the diversion of the waters of a stream used for power purposes, although the mill formerly shut down during the dry season because of insufficient water to run the mill, where it appears that while there was a general shortage through the winter months, even during the dry season there had been power enough to elevate and clean grain and run a feed-mill: Dement Brothers Co. v. Walla Walla, 58 Wash. 60, 107 Pac. 1038.

Where springs, the principal source of a city supply, are fed by waters diverted by the city from a stream, so that the diverted waters can be traced as a part of the surface flow, a lower proprietor on the stream may recover his damages caused by the diversion: Dement Brothers Co. v. Walla Walla, 58 Wash. 60, 107 Pac. 1038.

As to riparian proprietor's right to use and detain water and to the natural flow of the stream, see note in 79 Am. Dec. 638.

As to equitable estoppel as defense to restrain diversion, see note in 2 Ann. Cas. 786.

A city raising the waters of a lake above high-water mark is liable to littoral owners for damages resulting from overflow or seepage through and under adjoining soil: Austin v. Bellingham, 69 Wash. 677, 126 Pac. 59.

As to liability of a municipality for overflow of stream used by it as a sewer, see note in 3 L. R. A., N. S., 1053.

As to liability of a municipality for tort in connection with its waterworks system, see note in 25 L. R. A., N. S., 239.

No riparian rights can be claimed by a lower proprietor in or to the waters of a new spring that breaks out upon the lands of another and flows therefrom across his land, riparian rights attaching only to streams that are wont to flow from time immemorial: Mason v. Yearwood, 58 Wash. 276, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 1158, 108 Pac. 608; notes, 19 L. R. A. 92, 64 L. R. A. 236.

Riparian rights cannot be asserted to the flow of surplus waters of a swamp or marsh which has no outlet, and where there is no natural stream or waterway: Hayward v. Mason, 54 Wash. 653, 104 Pac. 141.

As to what is a watercourse, see notes in 3 L. R. A. 609, and 5 L. R. A. 392.

Riparian rights to the waters of a creek are lost by adverse possession, where, for more than the statutory period, an upper proprietor continuously appropriated and diverted the waters in good faith under a claim of right adverse to the lower owner: Farwell v. Brisson, 66 Wash. 305, 119 Pac. 814.

As to adverse possession of use of water under claim of right, see note in 93 Am. St. Rep. 722.

Permission to divert the waters of a creek on defendants' land by a ditch for domestic and irrigation purposes, the defendants refusing to either sell or convey a permanent right of way, is a license merely, revocable at will: Weidensteiner v. Mally, 55 Wash. 79, 104 Pac. 143.

A deed conveying a right of way for a drainage ditch along a line as at present laid out to drain off surplus water on to grantor's land, with the right of ingress and egress to keep the ditch in repair, creates an easement only; but gives the grantor no right to control the drainage: Hayward v. Mason, 54 Wash. 653, 104 Pac. 141.

The grant of a right of way for a ditch to carry water for irrigation does not prevent the grantor from using the same ditch without interfering with the grantee's use, where the grant does not appear to be exclusive, and the ditch had theretofore been used in common: Hayward v. Mason, 54 Wash. 649, 104 Pac. 139.

As to right of way for irrigation ditch and right of fee owner to cross it, see note in 3 L. R. A., N. S., 1148.

A railroad company seeking to condemn a right of way may, when the owners make an unanticipated claim to special damages by reason of injury to a reservoir site and water-power, limit the rights sought to be acquired by filing a stipulation or waiver respecting the use of the site, thereby reducing the special damages claimed; and it is error to refuse to instruct the jury that they should take the stipulation into consideration in determining the amount of the award: Tacoma Eastern R. Co. v. Smithgall, 58 Wash. 445, 108 Pac. 1191.

Laws of 1895, page 142, authorizes condemnation proceedings by a county to acquire a right of way for a drainage ditch completed under the unconstitutional act, Laws of 1890, page 652: Lewis County v. McCutcheon, 53 Wash. 367, 101 Pac. 1083.

Accretions added by the alluvion of a stream belong to the owner of the contiguous bank of the stream: Spinning v. Pugh, 65 Wash. 490, 118 Pac. 635.

As to riparian rights to accretions, see note in 19 Am. St. Rep. 234.

Where the owner of lands gave a right of way for a ditch in consideration of an agreement for water for irrigation purposes, the water to be taken out on his own land, the owner of the ditch cannot defeat such taking and use by invoking the rule that permission to maintain the ditch was revocable at will as a parol license, or void as attempting to create an interest in lands by parol, within the statute of frauds, since the water in the ditch was subject to an agreement for its use as any other personal property: Methow Cattle Co. v. Williams, 64 Wash. 457, 117 Pac. 239.

A lower riparian owner may not go above an upper proprietor and divert the water already appropriated by such upper proprietor, to be used on lands down the stream or on contiguous lands that are not riparian to the stream, to the exclusion of the upper proprietor, as each is entitled to a reasonable use only; and such right is not given by this section: Miller v. Baker, 68 Wash. 19, 122 Pac. 604.

CHAPTER II.

APPORTIONMENT AND CONDEMNATION.

§ 6338.

This section does not give a riparian owner any right to appropriation superior to the right of the owners not bordering upon the lake, other than the right of appropriation common to all: State ex rel. Ham, Yearsley & Ryrie v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 442, 126 Pac. 945.

This section has no application to fountain heads of watercourses which have been appropriated by others: Miller v. Wheeler, 54 Wash. 429, 23 L. R. A., N. S., 1065, 103 Pac. 641.

This section has no application to springs having sufficient flow to form watercourses, and the common-law rule governs riparian rights on such a watercourse: Hollett v. Davis, 54 Wash. 326, 103 Pac. 423.

Where new springs broke out upon the defendant's land, and the flow constantly increased from year to year, an adjoining owner, who for twenty-five years diverted and continuously used water from the springs, acquired a prescriptive right to the use of so much of the water as she had adversely used during the statutory period of ten years immediately preceding defendant's obstruction thereof, since easements may be acquired by adverse use; but the plaintiff could not enjoin the defendant's use and diversion of the increased flow not diverted and adversely used by the plaintiff ten years previously: Mason v. Learwood, 58 Wash. 276, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 1158, 108 Pac. 608.

In an action to establish the right to use springs, claimed by defendant through adverse possession, plaintiff's evidence of an intention not to abandon the springs is inadmissible where he did not succeed to his title until after defendant's title had ripened: Church v. State, 65 Wash. 50, 117 Pac. 711.

Springs which were originally open to appropriation may become the subject of a prescriptive right acquired by the public for a watering trough in the highway through adverse use for the statutory period: Kiser v. Douglas County, 70 Wash. 242, 126 Pac. 622.

The obligations of an irrigation company in the arid district are quasi public, and arbitrary action in the guise of regulations will not be tolerated: Shafford v. White Bluffs Land etc. Co., 63 Wash. 10, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 133, 114 Pac. 883.

As to power of courts to fix rates of irrigation companies, see note in 16 Ann. Cas. 799.

A regulation of an irrigation company providing for an intermittent rather than a constant flow of water cannot be declared unreasonable as a matter of law: Shafford v. White Bluffs Land etc. Co., 63 Wash. 10, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 133, 114 Pac. 883.

A water contract permitting an irrigation company to adopt reasonable rules and regulations is not controlled by a custom in that locality to supply water in a constant rather than an intermittent flow, since the same depends on the irrigator's necessities and beneficial use: Shafford v. White Land etc. Co., 63 Wash. 10, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 133, 114 Pac. 883.

A contract giving an irrigation company the right to make reasonable rules and regulations, where the water was furnished by pumping, cannot be controlled by the prevailing custom among users of a natural flow, so long as the company supplied the amount contracted for: Shafford v. White Bluffs Land etc. Co., 63 Wash. 10, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 133, 114 Pac. 883.

A water contract providing for a certain amount of water per second of time for each one hundred and sixty acres of land, subject to reasonable rules and regulations of the company as to the time and manner of delivery, is mutual and to be construed in the light of the necessities of the parties, rather than their arbitrary desires; and a regulation providing for an intermittent flow is not unreasonable, as a matter of law, unless it did not give the amount contracted for: Shafford v. White Bluffs Land and Irr. Co., 63 Wash. 10, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 133, 114 Pac. 883.

As to state regulation of tolls for use of appropriated water, see note in 33 L. R. A. 180.

This section establishes the policy of this state for a joint user in many instances of waters sought to be condemned for irrigation purposes: Spokane Valley Land & Water Co. v. Jones & Co., 53 Wash. 37, 101 Pac. 515.

CHAPTER IV.

REGULATION OF STORED AND FLOWING WATERS.

This section, authorizing the superior court to appoint a water commissioner, prescribes only ministerial or administrative duties, and not judicial or quasi-judicial duties, and has no relation to judicial proceedings, where removal was the only power that the court could exercise over him; hence the supreme court has no jurisdiction to prevent the appointment by writ of prohibition: State ex rel. Bennett v. Taylor, 54 Wash. 150, 102 Pac. 1029.

CHAPTER VI.

USE OF STATE WATERS.

§ 6415-1. Dams and Works for Irrigation and Power Purposes.

There is hereby granted to persons, firms and corporations organized among other things, for irrigation and power purposes, the right to construct and maintain dams and works incident thereto over, upon and across the beds of the rivers of the state of Washington in connection with such power and irrigation purposes, and there is hereby granted to such persons, firms and corporations an easement over, upon and across the beds of such rivers for such purposes. Such easement shall be limited however, to so much of the beds of such rivers as may be reasonably convenient and necessary for such uses. All such dams and works shall be completed within five years after the commencement of construction work upon the same. The rights and privileges granted by this act shall inure to the benefit of such persons, firms or corporations from the date of the commencement of construction work upon such dams and works incident thereto, and such construction work shall be diligently prosecuted to completion, and the rights, privileges and easements granted by this act shall continue so long as the same shall be utilized by the grantees for the purposes herein specified, and the failure to maintain and use such dams and works after the same shall have been constructed, for a continuous period of two years, shall operate as a forfeiture of all the rights hereby granted and the same shall revert to the state of Washington: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be construed in such a way as to interfere with the use of said rivers for navigation purposes, and all of such rights, privileges and easements granted hereby shall be subject to the paramount control of such rivers for navigation purposes by the United States: And, provided, further, That the use and enjoyment of the grants and privileges of this act shall not interfere with the lawful and rightful diversion of the waters of said rivers by other parties under water appropriations in existence at the time any such persons, firms or corporations shall avail themselves of the benefits and privileges of this act, but no such persons, firms or corporations shall have any right to construct any such dams or works over, upon or across the land between ordinary high water and extreme low water of any river of this state without first having acquired the right to do so from the owner or owners of the lands adjoining the land between ordinary high water and extreme low water over or across which said dam or works are constructed. [L. '11, p. 436, § 1.]

CHAPTER VII.

IRRIGATION DISTRICTS.

§ 6416.

The title of an act to amend an act providing for the organization and government of irrigation districts and the sale of bonds arising therefrom, the same being sections — (specifying certain sections amended), sufficiently expresses the subject of the act without such enumeration of the amended sections, which may be treated as surplusage; hence the amendment of another section not specified in the title of the amendatory act is not void as not embraced within the title of the act, as required by constitution, article 2, section 19: Sorenson v. Kittitas Rec. Dist., 70 Wash. 528, 127 Pac. 102.

For the purpose of organizing an irrigation district, a petition, signed by the required number of holders of title or evidence of title to land within the proposed district, shall be presented to the board of county commissioners of the county in which the lands, or the greater portion thereof, are situated, which petition shall set forth and particularly describe the proposed boundaries of such district, and shall pray that the territory embraced within the boundaries of such proposed district may be organized as an irrigation district. The petition must be accompanied by a good and sufficient bond, to be approved by the board of county commissioners, in double the amount of the probable cost of organizing the district, and conditioned that the bondsmen will pay all of the costs in case such organization shall not be effected. Said petition shall be presented at a regular meeting of the said board, or at any special meeting ordered to consider and act upon said petition, and shall be published once a week, for at least two weeks before the time at which the same is to be presented, in some newspaper of general circulation printed and published in the county where said petition is to be presented, together with a notice by the petitioners stating the time of the meeting at which the same will be presented; and if any portion of the lands within said proposed district lie within another county or counties, then said petition and notice shall be published for the time above provided in one newspaper printed and published in each of said counties. When the petition is presented, the board of county commissioners shall hear the same, and may adjourn such hearing from time to time, not exceeding four weeks in all, and on the final hearing may make such changes in the proposed boundaries as it may find to be proper and just, and shall establish and define the boundaries of the district: Provided, That said board shall not modify the boundaries so as to except from the operation of this chapter any territory within the boundaries of the district proposed by said petitioners, which is susceptible of irrigation by the same system of works applicable to other lands in such proposed district; nor shall any lands which, in the judgment of said board, will not be benefited by irrigation by said system, or have a sufficient water supply for irrigation from some other source, be included within such district: And provided further, That any owner, whose lands are susceptible of irrigation from the same source, and in the judgment of the board it is practicable to irrigate the same by the proposed district system, shall, upon application to the board at the time of the hearing, be entitled to have such lands included in the district. The board of county commissioners shall, as soon as it has established the boundaries of said proposed district, enter an order establishing and defining such boundaries, and ordering that three directors for such district be elected from the district at large, and designating a name for the proposed district, and calling an election to be held in such proposed district for the purpose of determining whether or not the same shall be organized under the provisions of this act, and for the purpose of electing three directors at large. The clerk of the board of county commissioners shall then give notice of the election ordered to be held as aforesaid, which notice shall describe the district boundaries as established, and shall give the name by which said proposed district has been designated, and shall state the purposes and objects of said election, and shall be published once a week, for at least two weeks prior to said election, in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county where the petition aforesaid was presented; and if any portion of said proposed district lie within another county or counties, then said notice shall be published in a like manner in a newspaper within each of said counties. Said election notice shall also require the electors to cast ballots which shall contain the words "Irrigation District—Yes," or "Irrigation District—No," and also the names of persons to be voted for as directors of the district. [L. '13, p. 558, § 1.]

For the purposes of the election above provided for, the board of county commissioners must establish a convenient number of election precincts in the proposed district and define the boundaries thereof, and designate a polling place for, and appoint the necessary election officers for each of said precincts, but said precincts may thereafter be changed by the board of directors of said district. Such election shall be conducted as nearly as may be practicable in the manner provided in the election of directors for the district.

The board of county commissioners shall meet on the second Monday next succeeding such election and proceed to canvass the returns of the votes cast thereat, and if upon such canvass it appears that at least two-thirds of all the votes cast are "Irrigation District—Yes," the board shall, by an order entered on its minutes, declare such territory duly organized as an irrigation district, under the name and style theretofore designated, and shall declare the three persons receiving the highest number of votes to be duly elected directors of such district, and shall cause a copy of such order, duly certified, to be filed for record in the office of the county clerk of each county in which any portion of the district may lie. From and after the date of the filing of such order, the organization of the district shall be complete and the directors thereof shall be entitled to enter immediately upon the duties of their office, upon qualifying in accordance with law, and shall hold office until their successors are elected and qualified.

Any person of the age of twenty-one (21) years, being a citizen of the United States and a resident for ninety days of the county in which any of the lands of the district may lie, and who holds title to land or evidence of title to land embraced within the boundaries of any irrigation district, or proposed district in the case of an election for the organization thereof, shall be entitled to vote at any election held therein, called for any purpose. Additional qualifications for voting, required by the general election laws of the state shall not apply, provided there shall be no denial of the right to vote on account of sex. An elector resident within the district shall vote in the precinct in which he resides; and an elector not residing in the district shall vote in the precinct nearest his place of residence. [L. '13, p. 560, § 2.]

§ 6419. Election of Directors—Oath and Bond—Secretary.

There shall be elected in each organized irrigation district of this state, a board of three (3) directors who are electors of the district. An annual election to the office of director shall be held on the first Tuesday of December of each and every year, and the term of each director shall be three years from and after the first Tuesday of January next succeeding his election: Provided, That in the case of the three directors elected at any organization election called by the board of county commissioners, the three directors so elected shall serve until the first Tuesday of January following the first annual election; and at the first annual election there shall be elected three directors, one to serve for a term ending one year from the first Tuesday of January next following such election, and one to serve for a term of two years from the first Tuesday of January next following such election, and one to serve for a term of three years from the first Tuesday of January next following such election; and an election shall be held in each district thereafter on the second Tuesday in December in each year, at which election one director shall be elected for the full term of three years, or until his successor is elected and qualified: And provided further, That in any irrigation district organized and existing under any law of this state prior to the taking effect of this act, the directors elected at the last election held therein shall hold office, and their terms of office, shall be as follows: That one of the three receiving the lowest number of votes at the election last aforesaid, shall hold his office until the first Tuesday of January, 1914, the one receiving the next highest number of votes shall hold his office for one year from and after the first Tuesday of January, 1914, and the one receiving the highest number of votes shall hold his office for a term of two years from and after the first Tuesday of January, 1914; and an election shall be held in each of the districts last aforesaid on the second Tuesday of December of the year 1913, and on the second Tuesday of December in each year thereafter, at which one director shall be elected for the full term of three years, or until his successor is elected and qualified. In case of any vacancy occurring in the office of director, such vacancy shall be filled by appointment by the board of county commissioners of the county in which the proceedings for the organization of the district were had, and the person so appointed shall serve until the next annual election of directors, when an election by the district shall be had to fill the vacancy for the remainder of the unexpired term. Each director shall take and subscribe an official oath for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and shall execute an official bond to the district in the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500.00), conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, which bond shall be approved by the judge of the superior court of the county where the organization of the district was affected, and said oath and bond shall be recorded in the office of the county clerk of said county and filed with the secretary of the board of directors. The secretary of the district shall take and subscribe a written oath of office and execute an official bond in the sum of not less than twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500.00), to be fixed by the board of directors, and which said bond shall be approved and filed as in the case of the bond of a director. [L. '13, p. 562, § 3.]

§ 6425. Statement of Result—Certificate—Vacancy.

The secretary of the board of directors must, as soon as the result is declared, enter in the records of such board a statement of such result, which statement must show:

1. The whole number of votes cast in the district;
2. The name of the persons voted for;
3. The office to fill which each person was voted for;
4. The number of votes given in each precinct to each of such persons;
5. The number of votes given in each precinct for and against any proposition voted upon.

The board of directors must declare elected the person having the highest number of votes given for each office. The secretary must immediately make out, and deliver to such person a certificate of election signed by him and authenticated by the seal of the district. [L. '13, p. 563, § 4.]

§ 6426. Powers and Duties of Board—By-laws, etc.

The three directors of the district shall constitute the board of directors of such district, and shall elect a president from their number, and appoint a secretary, who shall keep a record of their proceedings. The office of the board and principal place of business of the district shall be at some place in the county in which the organization was effected, to be designated by the board. The board of directors shall hold a regular monthly meeting, at its office, on the first Tuesday in every month, and may adjourn any meeting from time to time as may be required for the proper transaction of business. Special meetings may be called at any time by a majority of the board, but in case the three members of the board do not join in said order, the secretary shall give the number not joining five (5) days' notice of such meeting. The order or notice calling any special meeting shall specify what business shall be transacted, and none other than that specified shall be transacted at such special meeting. All meetings of the board must be public. Two members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, but in all matters requiring action by the board there shall be a concurrence of at least two members of said board. All records of the board shall be open to the inspection of any elector during business hours. The board shall have the power, and it shall be its duty to adopt a seal of the district, to manage and conduct the business and affairs of the district, to make and execute all necessary contracts, to employ and appoint such agents, officers and employees as may be necessary and prescribe their duties, and to establish equitable by-laws, rules and regulations for the government and management of the district, and for the distribution of water to the lands within the district, and generally to perform all such acts as shall be necessary to fully carry out the provisions of this chapter. The by-laws, rules and regulations must be printed in convenient form for distribution in the district. All water distributed for irrigation purposes shall be apportioned ratably to each land owner upon the basis of the ratio which the last assessment of such land owner, for district purposes, within said district, bears to the whole sum assessed upon the district, and any land owner may assign the right to the whole or any portion of waters so apportioned to him for use upon such lands and under such regulations as may be designated and prescribed by the board of directors. All leases, contracts, or other form of holding any interest in any state or other public lands shall be, and the same are hereby, declared to be title to and evidence of title to lands, and all leasehold, contractual or possessory interests in any such state or public lands, situated within the limits of any irrigation district, and held by any person, shall be valued, assessed and equalized in the manner provided for the valuation and assessment of other property, and shall be charged with their proportional parts of the taxes and assessments of the district, and such leasehold, contractual or possessory interest, for all purposes of the assessment and collection of taxes, shall be treated as the private property of the lessee or owner of the contractual or possessory interest: Provided, That nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the title of the state or other public ownership, nor shall any lien for such assessment attach to the fee simple title of the state or other public ownership. The board of directors shall have power to lease or rent the use of water for delivery to occupants of public lands situated within the district, at such prices and on such terms as it deems best, but the rental shall be as near as practicable the amount of the district tax for which said land would be annually liable if held as private property: Provided, That as soon as any public land situated within the limits of the district shall be acquired by any private person, or held under any title of private ownership, the owner thereof shall be entitled to receive his ratable proportion of water as in case of other land owners, upon payment by him of such sums as shall be determined by the board, and at the time to be fixed by the board, which sum shall be such equitable amount as such lands should pay having regard to placing said lands on the basis of equality with other lands in the district as to benefits received, and giving credit for any sums paid as water rent by the occupant of said lands prior to the vesting of private ownership, and such lands shall also become subject to all taxes and assessments of the district thereafter imposed. [L. '13, p. 564, § 5.]

§ 6427. Meetings—Notice of Special—Authority.

The board, and its agents and employees, shall have the right to enter upon any land to make surveys, and may locate the necessary irrigation works and the line for any canal or canals, and the necessary branches or laterals for the same, on any lands which may be deemed best for such location. Said board shall also have the power to acquire, either by purchase or condemnation, or other legal means, all lands, waters, water rights, and other property necessary for the construction, use, supply, maintenance, repair and improvements of said canal or canals and irrigation works, including canals and works constructed or being constructed by private owners, or any other person, lands for reservoirs for the storage of needful waters, and all necessary appurtenances. The board may also construct the necessary dams, reservoirs and works for the collection of water for said district, and may enter into contracts for a water supply to be delivered to the canals and works of the district, and do any and every lawful act necessary to be done that sufficient water may be furnished to the lands in the district for irrigation purposes; and may enter into any obligation or contract with the United States for the construction, operation and maintenance of the necessary works for the delivery and distribution of water therefrom under the provisions of the federal reclamation act and all amendments thereof, and the rules and regulations established thereunder, or it may contract with the United States for a water supply under any act of Congress providing for and permitting such contract; and in the purchase of any of the property or property rights aforesaid, or in acquiring or contracting for a water supply for the district, the bonds of the district may be used by the board, at not less than ninety per cent par value, in payment. The use of all water required for the irrigation of the lands, within any district, together with rights of way for canals, laterals, ditches, sites for reservoirs and all other property required in fully carrying out the purposes of the organization of the district is hereby declared to be a public use; and in condemnation proceedings to acquire any property or property rights for the use of the district, the board of directors shall proceed in the name of the district, in the manner provided in this state in cases of appropriation of land, real estate and other property by private corporations. [L. '13, p. 566, § 6.]

§ 6431. Bonds, How and When Sold.

The board may sell the bonds of the district from time to time in such quantities as may be necessary and most advantageous to raise money for the construction of such canals and works, the acquisition of said property and property rights, and otherwise to fully carry out the objects and purposes of the district organization, and may sell such bonds, or any of them, at private sale whenever the board deems it for the best interests of the district so to do. The board of directors shall also have the power to sell said bonds, or any portion thereof, at private sale, and accept in payment therefor labor and material necessary for the construction of its proposed canals or irrigation works, whenever the board deems it for the best interests of the district so to do. If the board shall determine to sell the bonds of the district, or any portion thereof, at public sale, the secretary shall publish a notice of such sale for at least three (3) weeks in such newspaper or newspapers as the board may order. The notice shall state that sealed proposals will be received by the board, at its office, for the purchase of the bonds to be sold, until the day and hour named in the notice. At the time named in the notice, the board shall open the proposals and award the purchase of the bonds to the highest responsible bidder and may reject all bids: Provided, That such bonds shall not be sold for less than ninety per cent of their face value. [L. '13, p. 567, § 7.]

§ 6432. Bonds and Interest, How Paid.

Said bonds and interest thereon shall be paid by revenue derived from an annual assessment upon the real property of the district, and all the real property in the district shall be and remain liable to be assessed for such payments as hereinafter provided. And in addition to this provision and the other provisions herein made for the payment of said bonds and interest thereon as the same may become due, said bonds shall become a lien upon all the water rights and other property acquired by any irrigation district formed under the provisions of this chapter, and upon any canal or canals, ditch or ditches, flumes, feeders, storage reservoirs, machinery and other works and improvements acquired, owned or constructed by said irrigation district, and if default shall be made in the payment of the principal of said bonds or interest thereon, according to the terms thereof, the holder of said bonds, or any part thereof, shall have the right to enter upon and take possession of all the water rights, canals, ditches, flumes, feeders, storage reservoirs, machinery, property and improvements of said irrigation district, and to hold and control the same, and enjoy the rents, issues and profits thereof, until the lien hereby created can be enforced in a civil action in the same manner and under the same proceedings as given in the foreclosure of a mortgage on real estate. This section shall apply to all bonds heretofore issued, or which may hereafter be issued by any district. [L. '13, p. 568, § 8.]

§ 6433. Assessments, How and When Made.

The secretary must, between the first Monday in March and the first Monday in June, in each year, ascertain the value of the land in such district, and the persons who own, claim, and have possession or control thereof, at its cash value, and he must prepare an assessment-book, with appropriate headings, in which must be listed all such property within the district. In such book must be specified, in separate columns, under the appropriate headings:

First. The name of the person to whom the property is assessed. If the name is not known to the secretary the property shall be assessed to "unknown owners";

Second. Land by township, range, section or fractional section, and when such land is not a legal subdivision, by metes and bounds or other description sufficient to identify it, giving an estimate of the number of acres;

Third. City and town lots, naming the city or town, and the number and block, according to the system of numbering in such city or town;

Fourth. The cash value of all land, other than city or town lots;

Fifth. The cash value of city and town lots;

Sixth. The total value of all property assessed;

Seventh. The total value of all property after equalization by the board of directors;

Eighth. Such other things as the board of directors may require. Any property which may have escaped the payment of any assessment for any year, shall, in addition to the assessment for the then current year, be assessed for such year with the same effect and with the same penalties as are provided for such current year. [L. '13, p. 569, § 9.]

§ 6437. Amount of Levy—Procedure in Case of Failure.

The board of directors shall then levy an assessment sufficient to raise the ensuing annual interest on the outstanding bonds, and at the expiration of ten years after the issuing of the bonds of any issue, the board must, from year to year, increase said assessment for the ensuing years in an amount sufficient to pay and discharge the outstanding bonds as they mature. The secretary of the board must compute and enter in a separate column of the assessment-book the respective sums in dollars and cents to be paid as assessments on property therein enumerated. The assessments, when collected by the county treasurer, shall constitute a special fund to be called the "Bond Fund of — Irrigation District." In case of neglect or refusal of the board of directors to cause such assessment or levy to be made as herein provided, then the assessment of property made by the county assessor and the county board of equalization shall be adopted, and shall be the basis of assessments for the district; and the board of county commissioners of the county in which the office of the board of directors is situated shall cause an assessment-roll for the said district to be prepared, and shall make the levy required by this chapter in the same manner and with like effect as if the same had been made by said board of directors, and all expenses incident thereto shall be borne by the district. In case of neglect or refusal of the secretary of the district to perform the duties imposed by law, then the treasurer of the county in which the office of the board of directors is situated must perform such duties, and shall be accountable therefor, on his official bond, as in other cases. [L. '13, p. 570, § 10.]

§ 6438. Lien of Assessment.

The assessment upon real property shall be a lien against the property assessed, from and after the first Monday in March for any year, which lien shall be paramount and superior to any other lien theretofore or thereafter created, whether by mortgage or otherwise, except for a lien for prior assessments and for general taxes, and such lien shall not be removed until the assessments are paid or the property sold for the payment thereof as provided by law. [L. '13, p. 571, § 11.]

§ 6439. Collection of Assessments—Notice.

On or before the first day of November the secretary must deliver the assessment-book to the county treasurer of the county in which the office of the board of directors is situated, who shall within twenty days publish a notice in a newspaper published in each county in which any portion of the district may lie, that said assessments are due and payable at the office of said county treasurer, and will become delinquent at 6 o'clock in the afternoon on the 31st day of December next thereafter, and that unless paid prior thereto, five per cent will be added to the amount thereof. The notice shall be published once a week for four successive weeks, and posted for the same length of time in some public place in said district. The county treasurer must mark the date of payment of any assessment in the assessment-book, opposite the name of the person paying, and give a receipt to such person, specifying the amount of the assessment and the amount paid, with the description of the property assessed. On the 31st day of December of each year, all unpaid assessments are delinquent, and thereafter the treasurer must collect thereon for the use of the district an addition of five per cent. The district shall pay to the county from the five per cent penalties and other costs received by the treasurer in the collection of delinquent taxes, the amounts actually expended by the treasurer in performing the duties of ex-officio collector and treasurer of the district. [L. '13, p. 571, § 12.]

§ 6440. Publication of Delinquent List—How Made.

On or before the first day of February, the county treasurer must publish the delinquency list, which must contain the names of the persons and a description of the property delinquent, and the amount of the assessments and costs due opposite each name and description. He must append to and publish with the delinquent list a notice that unless the assessments delinquent, together with costs and percentage are paid, the real property upon which such assessments are a lien will be sold at public auction. The publication must be made once a week for three successive weeks, in a newspaper published in each of the counties comprised in the district. The publication must designate the time and place of sale. The time of sale must not be less than twenty-one nor more than twenty-eight days from the first publication, and the place must be at some point designated by the treasurer. [L. '13, p. 572, § 13.]

§ 6441. Sales, When and How Made.

The county treasurer must collect, in addition to the assessment due on the delinquent list, five per cent of the amount thereof. On the day fixed for the sale, or some subsequent day to which he may have postponed it, of which he must give notice, the county treasurer, between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 3 o'clock P. M. must commence the sale of the property advertised, commencing at the head of the list, and continuing alphabetically or in the numerical order of the lots or blocks, until completed. He may postpone the day of commencing sale, or the sale from day to day, but the sale must be completed within three weeks from the day first fixed. [L. '13, p. 572, § 14.]

§ 6442. Sales, How Conducted—Certificates.

The owner or person in possession of any real estate offered for sale for assessments due thereon may designate in writing to the county treasurer, prior to the sale, what portion of the property he wishes sold, if less than the whole; but if the owner or possessor does not, then the treasurer may designate it, and the person who will take the least quantity of the land, or in case an undivided interest is assessed, then the smallest portion of the interest, and pay the assessment and cost due, including one dollar to the treasurer for duplicate of certificate of sale, is the purchaser. The treasurer shall account to the district for said one dollar. If the purchaser does not pay the assessment and costs before 10 o'clock A. M. the following day, the property on the next sale day must be resold for the assessments and costs. But in case there is no purchaser in good faith for the same on the first day that the property is offered for sale, then when the property is offered thereafter for sale, and there is no purchaser in good faith for the same, the whole amount of the property assessed shall be struck off to the irrigation district as the purchaser, and the duplicate certificate delivered to the secretary of the district, and filed by him in the office of the district. No charge shall be made for the duplicate certificate where the district is the purchaser, and in such case the treasurer shall make an entry, "Sold to the district," and he will be credited with the amount thereof in settlement. An irrigation district, as a purchaser at such sale, shall be entitled to the same rights as a private purchaser, and the title so acquired by the district, subject to right of redemption herein provided, may be conveyed by deed, executed and acknowledged by the president and secretary of the board: Provided, That authority to so convey must be conferred by resolution of the board, entered on its minutes, fixing the price at which such sale may be made, and such conveyance shall not be made for a less sum than the reasonable market value of such property. After receiving the amount of assessments and costs, the county treasurer must make out in duplicate a certificate, dated on the day of sale, stating (when known) the names of the persons assessed, a description of the land sold, the amount paid therefor, that it was sold for assessments, giving the amount and year of the assessment and specifying the time when a purchaser will be entitled to a deed. The certificate must be signed by the treasurer and one copy delivered to the purchaser, and the other filed in the office of the county auditor of the county in which the land is situated: Provided, That upon the sale of any lot, parcel or tract of land not larger than an acre, the fee for a duplicate certificate shall be twenty-five cents, and in case of a sale to a person or a district of more than one parcel or tract of land, the several parcels or tracts may be included in one certificate. [L. '13, p. 573, § 15.]

§ 6443. Sales, Secretary to Keep Record of.

The county treasurer, before delivering any certificate, must in a book enter a description of the land sold corresponding with the description in the certificate, the date of the sale, purchasers' names and amount paid, regularly number the description on the margin of the book and put a corresponding number on each certificate. Such book must be open to public inspection without fee during office hours, when not in actual use. On filing the certificate with such county auditor the lien of the assessment vests in the purchaser and is only divested by the payment to him, or to the county treasurer, for his use, of the purchase money and one per cent per month from the day of sale until redemption. [L. '13, p. 574, § 16.]

§ 6444. Redemption, When Made—Deeds.

A redemption of the property sold may be made by the owner or any party in interest within twelve months from the date of purchase. Redemption must be made in gold or silver coin, as provided for the collection of state and county taxes, and when made to the treasurer he must credit the amount paid to the person named in the certificate and pay it on demand to the person or his assignee. In each report the treasurer makes to the board of directors he must name the persons entitled to redemption money and the amount due each. On receiving the certificate of sale the county auditor must file it and make an entry in a book similar to that required of the treasurer. On the presentation of the receipt of the person named in the certificate, or of the treasurer for his use, of the total amount of the redemption money, the auditor must mark the word "redeemed," the date and by whom redeemed, on the certificate and on the margin of the book where the entry of the certificate is made. If the property is not redeemed within twelve months from the sale the treasurer must make to the purchaser, or his assignees, a deed of the property, reciting in the deed substantially the matters contained in the certificate, and that no person redeemed the property during the time allowed by law for its redemption. The treasurer shall receive from the purchaser, for the use of the district, one dollar for making such deed: Provided, If redemption is not made of any lot, parcel or tract of land not larger than one acre, the fee for a deed shall be twenty-five cents and any person or district holding a duplicate certificate covering more than one tract of land, the several parcels or tracts of land mentioned in the certificate may be included in one deed. [L. '13, p. 574, § 17.]

§ 6448.

Any person to whom a contract may have been awarded for the construction of a canal or any of the works of the district, or any portion thereof, or for the furnishing of labor or material, shall enter into a bond with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the board of directors, payable to said district for its use, for at least twenty-five per cent of the amount of the contract price, conditioned for the faithful performance of said contract, and with such further conditions as may be required by law in the case of contracts for public work, and as may be required by resolution of the board.

All works shall be done under the direction and to the satisfaction of the engineer of the district, and be approved by the board. Whenever in the construction of the district canal or canals, or other works, or the furnishing of materials therefor, the board of directors shall determine to let a contract or contracts for the doing of said work or the furnishing of said materials, a notice calling for sealed proposals shall be published in a newspaper in the county in which the office of the board is situated, and in any other newspaper which may be designated by the board, and for such length of time, not less than two weeks, as may be fixed by the board. At the time and place appointed in the notice for the opening of bids, the sealed proposals shall be opened in public, and as soon as convenient thereafter, the board shall let said work or the contract for the purchase of materials, either in portions or as a whole, to the lowest responsible bidder, or the board may reject any or all bids and readvertise, or may proceed to construct the work under its own superintendence: Provided, That the provisions of this section in regard to public bidding shall not apply in cases where the board is authorized to exchange bonds of the district in payment for labor and material. [L. '13, p. 575, § 18.]

§ 6451. Claims, How Paid.

The county treasurer of the county in which is located the office of any irrigation district shall be and is hereby constituted ex-officio district treasurer of said district, and said county treasurer shall be liable upon his official bond and to criminal prosecution for malfeasance and misfeasance, or failure to perform any duty herein prescribed as county treasurer or district treasurer, as is provided by law in other cases as county treasurer. It shall be his duty to collect and receipt for all assessments and taxes levied as in this chapter provided. There shall be deposited with said county treasurer all sums collected for the defraying of the expenses of the district, whether said sums are collected by tolls or special assessments, and they shall be placed by the county treasurer in the expense fund of the district. The said county treasurer shall also keep such other funds as may be required by law governing irrigation districts, or provided for by this chapter, and shall place therein moneys collected for said funds. The county treasurer shall pay out the moneys received or deposited with him, or any portion thereof, upon warrants drawn on the several funds, signed by the president and countersigned by the secretary of the district, except the sums to be paid out of the bond fund upon the coupons and bonds presented to the treasurer. The said treasurer shall report, in writing, on the first Monday in each month to the board of directors of the district, the amount of money held by him, the amount in each fund, the amount of receipts for the month preceding in each fund, and the amount or amounts paid out of each fund, and said report shall be filed with the secretary of the board. The secretary shall also report to the board, in writing, on the first Monday in each month, the amount deposited with the county treasurer belonging to the district during the preceding month, the amount of receipts for the month preceding, and the amount and items of expenditures during the preceding month, and said report shall be filed in the office of the board. [L. '13, p. 576, § 19.]

Under this section authorizing the board of directors and secretary to receive and pay out the funds of an irrigation district, the district treasurer, as disbursing officer, is not a necessary party to proceedings in mandamus to compel the district to sell bonds to satisfy a judgment against the district: State ex rel. Dyer v. Middle Kittitas Irr. Dist., 56 Wash. 488, 106 Pac. 203.

§ 6452. Constructing and Operating Fund—Tolls.

The cost and expense of purchasing and acquiring property, and constructing the works and improvements herein provided for, and the expenses incidental thereto, and for the carrying out of the purposes of this chapter, may be paid by the board of directors out of the funds received from bond sales. For the purpose of defraying the expenses of the organization of the district, and of the care, operation, management, repair and improvement of such portions of said canal and works as are completed and in use, the board may either fix rates or tolls and charges, and collect the same from all persons using said canal for irrigation and other purposes, or they may provide for the payment of said expense by a levy of assessment therefor, or by both said tolls and assessment; if by the latter method, such levy shall be made on the completion and equalization of the assessment-roll each year, and the board shall have the same powers and functions for the purposes of said levy as possessed by it in case of levy to pay bonds of the district. The procedure for the collection of assessments by such levy shall in all respects conform to the provisions of this chapter, relating to the payment of principal and interest of bonds herein provided for, and shall be made at same time. [L. '13, p. 577, § 20.]

§ 6466. Payment of Past Assessments Required.

The board of directors, as a condition precedent to the granting of the petition to include other lands in the district, shall require that the petitioners severally pay to such district such respective sums as shall be determined by the board at the hearing above provided for, which sums shall be such equitable amount as such lands shall pay having regard to placing said lands on the basis of equality with other lands in the district as to benefits received, and such lands shall also become subject to all taxes and assessments of the district thereafter imposed. [L. '13, p. 578, § 21.]

§§ 6484, 6485.

§ 6488. Assessments Refunded.

In case of the exclusion of any lands under the provisions of this act, the board of directors shall determine what refund, if any, shall be made to any person or persons who have paid any assessments to such district on any lands so excluded, but such refund, if any, shall be on a basis equitable alike to lands remaining in the district and lands excluded therefrom. Such payment shall be made in the same manner as other claims against the district, and from such fund or funds as the board of directors may designate, and which may be legally applied to such payments. [L. '13, p. 578, § 22.]

§ 6488-1. Effect on Pending Proceedings.

All irrigation districts in the state of Washington, and all proceedings had for the organization of any irrigation district, and all proceedings now pending in or relating to any irrigation district, shall be governed and controlled by the terms of this act, and this act shall not be construed as abridging or abrogating any of the rights or privileges of any irrigation district now organized, or being organized, and any contract, obligation, lien or charge, or bonds of any district, which may have been made, incurred, authorized or issued, prior to the taking effect of this act shall not be abridged or impaired by the terms of this act, but this act shall be construed as being a continuation of, and in aid of the previously existing laws relating to irrigation districts, except as to the sections specially repealed; and if in any instance relating to an existing district or any of its proceedings, the term of this amendatory act shall not be legally applicable, the district may proceed, and any contract, obligation, lien or charge against it may be enforced, under the terms and provisions of the law relating to irrigation districts in force and in effect prior to the taking effect of this act. [L. '13, p. 579, § 23.]

TITLE XLIX.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE AND CONSTABLES.

CHAPTER III.

JUSTICES AND CONSTABLES IN CITIES AND TOWNS.

§ 6531.

Under this section, as qualified by section 6532, two justices of the peace are to be elected in a city formerly having less than five thousand inhabitants until it is officially determined that the city has more than that number; and such justices hold office until the next biennial election, although thereafter it was officially determined that at the time of their election the city had over five thousand inhabitants: State ex rel. Williams v. Brooks, 58 Wash. 648, 109 Pac. 211.

§ 6533-1. Number in Cities of Over Fifty Thousand Population.

After the taking effect of this act, there shall be in cities of fifty thousand population two justices of the peace and two constables, and one additional justice and one additional constable in such cities for each additional fifty thousand population or a major fraction thereof, to be elected at the general election to be held in November, 1914, and quadrennially thereafter, whose term of office shall be for the term of two years from the second Monday of January following the election: Provided, There shall not be more than five justices in any city unless the same has a population of 300,000 or more: And provided further, That nothing in this act shall be construed to affect justices of the peace or constables or the offices of justices of the peace or constables in cities having a population of less than fifty thousand inhabitants. [L. '13, p. 103, § 1.]

§ 6533-2. Commissioners to Appoint.

Whenever it shall appear to the board of county commissioners of any county containing a city of fifty thousand or more that such city is entitled to an additional justice and constable as provided in this act, the board of county commissioners are hereby authorized and directed immediately after this act goes into effect to appoint such additional justice and constable in such city, who shall hold office until his successor is elected and qualified at the next general election. [L. '13, p. 103, § 2.]

§ 6533-3. Salaries in Cities Over One Hundred Thousand.

The salaries of such justices of the peace in all cities having a population in excess of 100,000 according to the census of the federal government last taken shall be eighteen hundred (1800) dollars per annum. [L. '13, p. 103, § 3.]

§ 6533-4. Future Salaries.

The salaries of justices of the peace and constables hereafter elected or appointed shall be and remain the same as are now provided by law. [L. '13, p. 104, § 4.]

§ 6571-8. Minor Defined.

For the purposes of this act a minor is defined to be a person of either sex under the age of eighteen (18) years. [L. '13, p. 604, § 8.]

§ 6571-9. Hearing—Witnesses.

The commission shall specify times to hold public hearings, at which times employers, employees or other interested persons may appear and give testimony as to the matter under consideration. The commission shall have power to subpoena witnesses and to administer oaths. All witnesses subpoenaed by the commission shall be paid the same mileage and per diem allowed by law for witnesses before the superior court in civil cases. [L. '13, p. 604, § 9.]

§ 6571-10. Arbitration Conference—Report.

If, after investigation, the commission shall find that in any occupation, trade or industry, the wages paid to female employees are inadequate to supply them necessary cost of living and to maintain the workers in health, or that the conditions of labor are prejudicial to the health or morals of the workers, the commission is empowered to call a conference composed of an equal number of representatives of employers and employees in the occupation or industry in question, together with one or more disinterested persons representing the public; but the representatives of the public shall not exceed the number of representatives of either of the other parties; and a member of the commission shall be a member of such conference and chairman thereof. The commission shall make rules and regulations governing the selection of representatives and the mode of procedure of said conference, and shall exercise exclusive jurisdiction over all questions arising as to the validity of the procedure and of the recommendations of said conference. On request of the commission, it shall be the duty of the conference to recommend to the commission an estimate of the minimum wage adequate in the occupation or industry in question to supply the necessary cost of living, and maintain the workers in health, and to recommend standards of conditions or labor demanded for the health and morals of the employees. The findings and recommendations of the conference shall be made a matter of record for the use of the commission. [L. '13, p. 604, § 10.]

§ 6571-11. Commission to Fix Wages—Minimum.

Upon the receipt of such recommendations from a conference, the commission shall review the same and may approve any or all of such recommendations, or it may disapprove any or all of them and recommit the subject or the recommendations disapproved of, to the same or a new conference. After such approval of the recommendations of a conference the commission shall issue an obligatory order to be effective in sixty (60) days from the date of said order, or if the commission shall find that unusual conditions necessitate a longer period, then it shall fix a later date, specifying the minimum wage for women in the occupation affected, and the standard conditions of labor for said women; and after such order is effective, it shall be unlawful for any employer in said occupation to employ women over eighteen (18) years of age for less than the rate of wages, or under conditions of labor prohibited for women in the said occupation. The commission shall send by mail so far as practicable to each employer in the occupation in question a copy of the order, and each employer shall be required to post a copy of said order in each room in which women affected by the order are employed. When such commission shall specify a minimum wage hereunder the same shall not be changed for one year from the date when such minimum wage is so fixed. [L. '13, p. 605, § 11.]

Whenever wages or standard conditions of labor have been made mandatory in any occupation, upon petition of either employers or employees, the commission may at its discretion reopen the question and reconvene the former conference or call a new one, and any recommendations made by such conference shall be dealt with in the same manner as the original recommendations of a conference. [L. '13, p. 605, § 12.]

§ 6571-13. Exceptions to Minimum Scale.

For any occupation in which a minimum rate has been established, the commission through its secretary may issue to a woman physically defective or crippled by age or otherwise, or to an apprentice in such class of employment or occupation as usually requires to be learned by apprentices, a special license authorizing the employment of such licensee for a wage less than the legal minimum wage; and the commission shall fix the minimum wage for said person, such special license to be issued only in such cases as the commission may decide the same is applied for in good faith and that such license for apprentices shall be in force for such length of time as the said commission shall decide and determine is proper. [L. '13, p. 606, § 13.]

§ 6571-14. Investigate Employment of Minors—Minimum Wage.

The commission may at any time inquire into wages, and conditions of labor of minors, employed in any occupation in the state and may determine wages and conditions of labor suitable for such minors. When the commission has made such determination in the cases of minors it may proceed to issue an obligatory order in the manner provided for in section 6571-11 and after such order is effective it shall be unlawful for any employer in said occupation to employ a minor for less wages than is specified for minors in said occupation, or under conditions of labor prohibited by the commission for said minors in its order. [L. '13, p. 606, § 14.]

§ 6571-15. Statistics.

Upon the request of the commission the commissioner of labor of the state of Washington shall furnish to the commission such statistics as the commission may require. [L. '13, p. 606, § 15.]

§ 6571-16. Witnesses Protected.

Any employer who discharges, or in any other manner discriminates against any employee because such employee has testified or is about to testify, or because such employer believes that said employee may testify in any investigation or proceedings relative to the enforcement of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of from twenty-five dollars ($25.00) to one hundred dollars ($100) for each such misdemeanor. [L. '13, p. 606, § 16.]

§ 6571-8. Minor Defined.

For the purposes of this act a minor is defined to be a person of either sex under the age of eighteen (18) years. [L. '13, p. 604, § 8.]

§ 6571-9. Hearing—Witnesses.

The commission shall specify times to hold public hearings, at which times employers, employees or other interested persons may appear and give testimony as to the matter under consideration. The commission shall have power to subpoena witnesses and to administer oaths. All witnesses subpoenaed by the commission shall be paid the same mileage and per diem allowed by law for witnesses before the superior court in civil cases. [L. '13, p. 604, § 9.]

§ 6571-10. Arbitration Conference—Report.

If, after investigation, the commission shall find that in any occupation, trade or industry, the wages paid to female employees are inadequate to supply them necessary cost of living and to maintain the workers in health, or that the conditions of labor are prejudicial to the health or morals of the workers, the commission is empowered to call a conference composed of an equal number of representatives of employers and employees in the occupation or industry in question, together with one or more disinterested persons representing the public; but the representatives of the public shall not exceed the number of representatives of either of the other parties; and a member of the commission shall be a member of such conference and chairman thereof. The commission shall make rules and regulations governing the selection of representatives and the mode of procedure of said conference, and shall exercise exclusive jurisdiction over all questions arising as to the validity of the procedure and of the recommendations of said conference. On request of the commission, it shall be the duty of the conference to recommend to the commission an estimate of the minimum wage adequate in the occupation or industry in question to supply the necessary cost of living, and maintain the workers in health, and to recommend standards of conditions or labor demanded for the health and morals of the employees. The findings and recommendations of the conference shall be made a matter of record for the use of the commission. [L. '13, p. 604, § 10.]

§ 6571-11. Commission to Fix Wages—Minimum.

Upon the receipt of such recommendations from a conference, the commission shall review the same and may approve any or all of such recommendations, or it may disapprove any or all of them and recommit the subject or the recommendations disapproved of, to the same or a new conference. After such approval of the recommendations of a conference the commission shall issue an obligatory order to be effective in sixty (60) days from the date of said order, or if the commission shall find that unusual conditions necessitate a longer period, then it shall fix a later date, specifying the minimum wage for women in the occupation affected, and the standard conditions of labor for said women; and after such order is effective, it shall be unlawful for any employer in said occupation to employ women over eighteen (18) years of age for less than the rate of wages, or under conditions of labor prohibited for women in the said occupation. The commission shall send by mail so far as practicable to each employer in the occupation in question a copy of the order, and each employer shall be required to post a copy of said order in each room in which women affected by the order are employed. When such commission shall specify a minimum wage hereunder the same shall not be changed for one year from the date when such minimum wage is so fixed. [L. '13, p. 605, § 11.]

Whenever wages or standard conditions of labor have been made mandatory in any occupation, upon petition of either employers or employees, the commission may at its discretion reopen the question and reconvene the former conference or call a new one, and any recommendations made by such conference shall be dealt with in the same manner as the original recommendations of a conference. [L. '13, p. 605, § 12.]

§ 6571-13. Exceptions to Minimum Scale.

For any occupation in which a minimum rate has been established, the commission through its secretary may issue to a woman physically defective or crippled by age or otherwise, or to an apprentice in such class of employment or occupation as usually requires to be learned by apprentices, a special license authorizing the employment of such licensee for a wage less than the legal minimum wage; and the commission shall fix the minimum wage for said person, such special license to be issued only in such cases as the commission may decide the same is applied for in good faith and that such license for apprentices shall be in force for such length of time as the said commission shall decide and determine is proper. [L. '13, p. 606, § 13.]

§ 6571-14. Investigate Employment of Minors—Minimum Wage.

The commission may at any time inquire into wages, and conditions of labor of minors, employed in any occupation in the state and may determine wages and conditions of labor suitable for such minors. When the commission has made such determination in the cases of minors it may proceed to issue an obligatory order in the manner provided for in section 6571-11 and after such order is effective it shall be unlawful for any employer in said occupation to employ a minor for less wages than is specified for minors in said occupation, or under conditions of labor prohibited by the commission for said minors in its order. [L. '13, p. 606, § 14.]

§ 6571-15. Statistics.

Upon the request of the commission the commissioner of labor of the state of Washington shall furnish to the commission such statistics as the commission may require. [L. '13, p. 606, § 15.]

§ 6571-16. Witnesses Protected.

Any employer who discharges, or in any other manner discriminates against any employee because such employee has testified or is about to testify, or because such employer believes that said employee may testify in any investigation or proceedings relative to the enforcement of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of from twenty-five dollars ($25.00) to one hundred dollars ($100) for each such misdemeanor. [L. '13, p. 606, § 16.]

§ 6571-17. Penalty.

Any person employing a woman or minor for whom a minimum wage or standard conditions of labor have been specified, at less than said minimum wage, or under conditions of labor prohibited by the order of the commission; or violating any other of the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) nor more than one hundred dollars ($100.00). [L. '13, p. 607, § 17.]

§ 6571-17½. Complaints.

Any worker or the parent or guardian of any minor to whom this act applies may complain to the commission that the wages paid to the workers are less than the minimum rate and the commission shall investigate the same and proceed under this act in behalf of the worker. [L. '13, p. 607, § 17½.]

§ 6571-18. Civil Actions by Employee.

If any employee shall receive less than the legal minimum wage, except as hereinbefore provided in section 6571-13, said employee shall be entitled to recover in a civil action the full amount of the legal minimum wage as herein provided for, together with costs and attorney's fees to be fixed by the court, notwithstanding any agreement to work for such lesser wage. In such action, however, the employer shall be credited with any wages which have been paid upon account. [L. '13, p. 607, § 18.]

§ 6571-19. No Appeal from Commission on Facts.

All questions of fact arising under this act shall be determined by the commission and there shall be no appeal from its decision upon said question of fact. Either employer or employee shall have the right of appeal to the superior court on questions of law. [L. '13, p. 607, § 19.]

§ 6571-20. Biennial Report.

The commission shall biennially make a report to the governor and state legislature of its investigations and proceedings. [L. '13, p. 607, § 20.]

CHAPTER IV.

HOURS OF LABOR.

This section is violated by requiring city teamsters to harness and hitch their teams, collect their tools, and be at the place of work before the legal day begins, so as to put in eight hours "on the job," and thereafter return to the barn and unhitch and unharness their teams, putting in about an hour in excess of the lawful eight hour day: Davies v. Seattle, 67 Wash. 532, 121 Pac. 987.

As to statutory restriction of hours of labor on public works, see Ann. Cas. 1912A, 773.

As to violation of the eight hour law by an employer in the aspect of a crime, see note in 78 Am. St. Rep. 244.

For penalty, see § 6568.

This section is not unconstitutional as depriving employers and employees in the enumerated callings of their right to contract without due process of law, all doubts being resolved in favor of the validity of the law: State v. Somerville, 67 Wash. 638, 122 Pac. 324.

As to the constitutionality of statutes limiting hours of day's labor, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 393.

The unconstitutionality of this act as an arbitrary and unwarranted exercise of the police power cannot be shown by evidence that defendant's factory was sanitary and healthful, the labor of female employees light and harmless, and that they could be employed for nine hours a day without endangering or impairing their health or physical condition, since the courts can look only to the law itself and scientific facts of which it can take judicial notice: State v. Somerville, 67 Wash. 638, 122 Pac. 324.

As to validity of statute regulating employment of adult females in other respects than number of hours of labor, see note in 12 Ann. Cas. 799.

§ 6580a. Eight Hour Day for Females.

No female shall be employed in any mechanical or mercantile establishment, laundry, hotel or restaurant in this state more than eight hours during any day. The hours of work may be so arranged as to permit the employment of females at any time so that they shall not work more than eight hours during the twenty-four: Provided, however, That the provisions of this section in relation to the hours of employment shall not apply to, nor affect, females employed in harvesting, packing, curing, canning or drying any variety of perishable fruit or vegetables, nor to females employed in canning fish or shell-fish. If it shall be adjudicated that the foregoing proviso and exception shall be unconstitutional and invalid for any reason, an adjudication of invalidity of said proviso or of any part of this act shall not affect the validity of the act as a whole or any other part thereof. [L. '11, p. 131, § 1.]

Act of Congress of March 4, 1907, making it unlawful for any common carrier to require employees to remain on duty for a longer period than sixteen consecutive hours, and providing that the act shall "take effect and be in force one year after its passage," did not take effect as a law until the end of such period; and it did not supersede this section during such year upon any principle of comity, or upon the theory that Congress had occupied the field of statutory regulation and fixed a reasonable time to allow carriers to comply with the regulations: State ex rel. Atkinson v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 53 Wash. 673, 17 Ann. Cas. 1013, 102 Pac. 876.

CHAPTER V.

HEALTH AND SAFETY TO EMPLOYEES IN FACTORIES, ETC.

§ 6587.

This section applies to a main power shaft in a printing-shop: Berger v. Metropolitan Press Printing Co., 61 Wash. 35, 111 Pac. 872.

The purpose and effect of this section is to make it negligence, as a matter of law, to fail to comply with the requirements of the statute: Kreymborg v. Thurston, 63 Wash. 219, 115 Pac. 77.

The factory act requiring machinery to be guarded is not limited to employees working with the machine, but applies to any employee whose work makes it possible for him to be injured: Cook v. Danaher Lumber Co., 61 Wash. 118, 112 Pac. 245.

Assumption of risks, under the factory act, should be withdrawn from the jury, where reasonable minds cannot differ as to the master's failure to comply with the act: Cook v. Danaher Lumber Co., 61 Wash. 118, 112 Pac. 245.

As to the liability of employer for failure to comply with statute requiring guards for machinery, see note in 131 Am. St. Rep. 437.

An employee does not assume the risk from the failure of the master to guard machinery as required by the factory act: Benner v. Wallace Lumber & Mfg. Co., 55 Wash. 679, 105 Pac. 145; Anderson v. Pacific National Lumber Co., 60 Wash. 415, 111 Pac. 337.

As to assumption of risk by employee in respect of dangerous machinery, see note in 119 Am. St. Rep. 434.

This section can have no application to an accident in which a boy was injured while voluntarily using a shaft as a horizontal bar for gymnastic exercises, and did not come in contact with it in the performance of his duties; and the defense of assumption of risks accordingly applies: Talkington v. Washington Veneer Co., 61 Wash. 137, 112 Pac. 261.

Under this section, the defense of assumption of risks does not apply unless the court can say, as a matter of law, that the employee was not in the performance of duty when he came in contact with an unguarded shaft; and this the court cannot do, where there was a conflict in the testimony as to whether an employee, injured on an unguarded shaft, had to reach over the shaft in order to clean up and remove sticks from a conveyor chain: Cook v. Danaher Lumber Co., 61 Wash. 118, 112 Pac. 245.

A head sawyer in a mill assumes the risks, and cannot recover for injuries received by coming in contact with the rock saw, under which he walked when it had been lowered, where the master had made an honest effort to guard the saw, providing such a guard as was in general use within this section, and the sawyer had used the same in that condition without complaint, even if it were practicable to have provided some other kind of guard that might have prevented the accident: Burns v. Leudinghaus, 65 Wash. 448, 118 Pac. 305.

Whether it was practicable for the rollers in front of an edger in a sawmill to have been guarded under the factory act, is for the jury, where it appears that they might have been effectively guarded by a stationary rod across the front of the edger and a dead roller in front of the live roller: Lepper v. Stetson & Post Lumber Co., 61 Wash. 523, 112 Pac. 514.

Where the question of practicability is in issue, it is not error to allow the defendant to show by experts that other mills under similar circumstances had found a certain guard for a shingle saw to be impracticable, under this section, requiring guards for all machinery which it is practicable to guard: Shaw v. Woodland Shingle Co., 61 Wash. 56, 111 Pac. 1070.

The factory act, Laws of 1903, page 40, requiring the safeguarding of certain specified machines of various kinds, "and machinery of other or similar description" in factories, will not be confined to the subjects mentioned on the theory of ejusdem generis, but includes friction wheels not named, since the rule has no application where the specified subjects greatly differ from one another and where such construction would violate the evident intent of the legislature: Ward v. National Lumber & Box Co., 54 Wash. 304, 103 Pac. 1.

Where the uncontradicted evidence shows that an accident could not have happened if a saw had been properly guarded, and that a reasonably safe guard would not have interfered with its efficient operation, the master is chargeable with negligence as a matter of law: Young v. Aloha Lumber Co., 63 Wash. 600, 116 Pac. 4.

In an action for personal injuries, a special verdict finding that plaintiff's act of stepping into a conveyor near a cut-off saw was very dangerous from the fact that the cut-off saw was not properly guarded, and that the method employed was safe provided the cut-off saw had been properly guarded, does not show contributory negligence and is not inconsistent with a general verdict for the plaintiff, in the absence of any finding that the danger was known to the plaintiff or so obvious and apparent that a person of ordinary prudence would not have attempted the act: Kreymborg v. Thurston, 63 Wash. 219, 115 Pac. 77.

As to the distinction between the defenses of assumption of risk and contributory negligence, see note in 18 Ann. Cas. 960.

§§ 6594, 6595, 6596.

§ 6595.

A notice of an injury is sufficient to authorize a recovery under the factory act, where it was prepared at a meeting by appointment with the defendant, retained without objection, and a few days later plaintiff asked for a copy, which was refused, and the defendant did not affirmatively allege a defective notice, but merely denied the giving of any notice and misled the plaintiff as to the issue: Berger v. Metropolitan Press Printing Co., 55 Wash. 422, 104 Pac. 617.

Where an employee was injured while assisting to place a belt upon a pulley, his notice of the injury stating that he came to work at 6:30 P. M. on a certain date, that one C. started the motor, the belt slipped off, C shut off the power, and while trying to put on the belt, his hand was caught, is sufficient under the factory act, since the purpose of the law to give notice of the time, place and cause is fulfilled, and technical accuracy is not required: Berger v. Metropolitan Press Printing Co., 55 Wash. 422, 104 Pac. 617.

Notice of an accident is a condition precedent to an action for personal injuries under this section; and where the injured person became insane, a notice in his behalf signed by an unauthorized person, after the expiration of the six months, no general guardian having been appointed is not such a notice as is required by the statute: Nelson v. Young-Cole Lumber Co., 58 Wash. 56, 107 Pac. 873.

In an action for injuries sustained in a coal mine, it is not material that no claim was made by plaintiff before suit commenced, during some four months after the accident, there being no attempt to show the purpose of such evidence, claimed on appeal to be relevant as showing false testimony by the plaintiff at the coroner's inquest: Starck v. Washington Union Coal Co., 61 Wash. 213, 112 Pac. 235.

As to the construction of the provision in employer's liability act, requiring notice of injury to be given to the employer, see note in 15 Ann. Cas. 292.

CHAPTER VII.

WORKINGMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

§ 6604-1. Declaration of Police Power.

The common-law system governing the remedy of workmen against employers for injuries received in hazardous work is inconsistent with modern industrial conditions. In practice it proves to be economically unwise and unfair. Its administration has produced the result that little of the cost of the employer has reached the workman and that little only at large expense to the public. The remedy of the workman has been uncertain, slow and inadequate. Injuries in such works, formerly occasional, have become frequent and inevitable. The welfare of the state depends upon its industries, and even more upon the welfare of its wage-worker. The state of Washington, therefore, exercising herein its police and sovereign power, declares that all phases of the premises are withdrawn from private controversy, and sure and certain relief for workmen, injured in extrahazardous work, and their families and dependents is hereby provided regardless of questions of fault and to the exclusion of every other remedy, proceeding or compensation, except as otherwise provided in this act; and to that end all civil actions and civil causes of action for such personal injuries and all jurisdiction of the courts of the state over such causes are hereby abolished, except as in this act provided. [L. '11, p. 345, § 1.]

The constitutional provisions against class legislation does not take from the state the power to classify in the adoption of police regulations, and permits of a wide discretion in that respect: State ex rel. Davis-Smith Co. v. Clausen, 65 Wash. 156, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 466, 117 Pac. 1101.

The workingmen's compensation act, Laws of 1911, page 345, does not violate the constitutional restrictions against class legislation in that its contributions exacted from the numerous industries are diverted to the relief of that particular class of injured and disabled workmen, instead of being applied to the use of injured workmen generally or the state at large, that being one of the prerogatives of legislation: State ex rel. Davis-Smith Co. v. Clausen, 65 Wash. 156, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 466, 117 Pac. 1101.

Such act requiring employers in hazardous employments to create a fund out of which losses to employees shall be paid is not a denial to owners of property of the equal protection of the laws: State ex rel. Davis-Smith Co. v. Clausen, 65 Wash. 156, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 466, 117 Pac. 1101.

The workingmen's compensation act, Laws of 1911, page 345, assessing employers in extrahazardous employments fixed sums based upon the amount of their pay-rolls, to create a fund to reimburse injured employees, does not violate the constitutional provisions designed to secure equal and uniform taxation of property, since the same is not a general tax, but is in the nature of a license tax for revenue and regulation and not subject to the constitutional limitations in question: State ex rel. Davis-Smith Co. v. Clausen, 65 Wash. 156, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 466, 117 Pac. 1101.

Article 1, section 3, of the state constitution and the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution, which provide that no person shall be deprived of property without due process of law, are not violated by the workingmen's compensation act, Laws of 1911 page 345, in that it creates a liability without fault on the part of employers in extrahazardous employments to contribute fixed sums based upon their pay-rolls to create a fund to reimburse all employees injured in such employments without regard to negligence or common-law liability therefor, and also takes the property of one employer to pay the obligations of another; since it is within the police power as a reasonable enactment in support of economic and moral considerations affecting the protection of the public health, safety or welfare, although it incidentally deprives some persons of property without fault; and since it is not so utterly unreasonable or extravagant as to capriciously interfere with or destroy private rights: State ex rel. Davis-Smith Co. v. Clausen, 65 Wash. 156, 37 L. R. A., N. S. 466, 117 Pac. 1101.

As to the constitutionality of workingmen's compensation acts, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912B, 174.

It is competent for the legislature, in the reasonable exercise of the police power, to regulate extrahazardous industries by compelling employers engaged therein to pay a fixed sum to be used for the compensation of injured employees, and to require such employees to accept specified sums for certain injuries in lieu of their common-law right of damages; and the abolition of all such rights of action and defenses therein, and the substitution in lieu thereof of the schedule of damages provided in the act, to be paid employees out of the fund created, does not violate the constitutional provision guaranteeing the right to trial by jury, if the state in the exercise of the police power can abolish the right of action entirely: State ex rel. Davis-Smith Co. v. Clausen, 65 Wash. 156, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 466, 117 Pac. 1101.

The workingmen's compensation act, Laws of 1911, page 345, which requires employers in extrahazardous employments to contribute fixed sums based upon their pay-rolls to create a fund to reimburse all employees injured in such employments, without regard to negligence or common-law liability therefor, and provides that no employer shall exempt himself from the burden or waive the benefits of the act by any contract or regulation, and that any such contract or regulation shall be void pro tanto, is not unconstitutional as interfering with the right of contract, since "liberty" to contract is not absolute, and means absence from arbitrary restraint, not immunity from reasonable regulation and prohibition enforced in the interests of the community by public policy: State ex rel. Davis-Smith Co. v. Clausen, 65 Wash. 156, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 466, 117 Pac. 1101.

§ 6604-2. Enumeration of Extrahazardous Works.

There is a hazard in all employment, but certain employments have come to be, and to be recognized as being inherently constantly dangerous. This act is intended to apply to all such inherently hazardous works and occupations, and it is the purpose to embrace all of them, which are within the legislative jurisdiction of the state, in the following enumeration, and they are intended to be embraced within the term "extrahazardous" wherever used in this act, to wit:

Factories, mills and workshops where machinery is used; printing, electrotyping, photo-engraving and stereotyping plants where machinery is used; foundries, blast furnaces, mines, wells, gasworks, waterworks, reduction-works, breweries, elevators, wharves, docks, dredges, smelters, powder-works; laundries operated by power; quarries; engineering works; logging, lumbering and ship-building operations; logging, street and interurban railroads; buildings being constructed, repaired, moved or demolished; telegraph, telephone, electric light or power plants or lines, steam heating or power plants, steamboats, tugs, ferries and railroads. If there be or arise any extrahazardous occupation or work other than those hereinabove enumerated, it shall come under this act, and its rate of contribution to the accident fund hereinafter established, shall be, until fixed by legislation, determined by the department hereinafter created, upon the basis of the relation which the risk involved bears to the risks classified in section 6604-4. [L. '11, p. 346, § 2.]

§ 6604-3. Definitions.

In the sense of this act words employed mean as here stated, to wit:

Factories mean undertakings in which the business of working at commodities is carried on with power-driven machinery, either in manufacture, repair or change, and shall include the premises, yard and plant of the concern.

Workshop means any plant, yard, premises, room or place wherein power-driven machinery is employed and manual labor is exercised by way of trade for gain or otherwise in or incidental to the process of making, altering, repairing, printing or ornamenting, finishing or adapting for sale or otherwise any article or part of article, machine or thing, over which premises, room or place the employer of the person working therein has the right of access or control.

Mill means any plant, premises, room or place where machinery is used, any process of machinery, changing, altering or repairing any article or commodity for sale or otherwise, together with the yards and premises which are a part of the plant, including elevators, warehouses and bunkers.

Mine means any mine where coal, clay, ore, mineral, gypsum or rock is dug or mined underground.

Quarry means an open cut from which coal is mined, or clay, ore, mineral, gypsum, sand, gravel or rock is cut or taken for manufacturing, building or construction purposes.

Engineering work means any work of construction, improvement or alteration or repair of buildings, structures, streets, highways, sewers, street railways, railroads, logging roads, interurban railroads, harbors, docks, canals; electric, steam or water power plants; telegraph and telephone plants and lines; electric light or power lines, and includes any other works for the construction, alteration or repair of which machinery driven by mechanical power is used.

Except when otherwise expressly stated, employer means any person, body of persons, corporate or otherwise, and the legal personal representatives of a deceased employer, all while engaged in this state in any extrahazardous work.

Workman means every person in this state, who, after September 30, 1911, is engaged in the employment of an employer carrying on or conducting any of the industries scheduled or classified in section 6604-4, whether by way of manual labor or otherwise, and whether upon the premises or at the plant or, he being in the course of his employment, away from the plant of his employer: Provided, however, That if the injury to a workman occurring away from the plant of his employer is due to the negligence or wrong of another not in the same employ, the injured workman, or if death result from the injury, his widow, children, or dependents, as the case may be, shall elect whether to take under this act or seek a remedy against such other, such election to be in advance of any suit under this section; and if he take under this act, the cause of action against such other shall be assigned to the state for the benefit of the accident fund; if the other choice is made, the accident fund shall contribute only the deficiency, if any, between the amount of recovery against such third person actually collected, and the compensation provided or estimated by this act for such case. Any such cause of action assigned to the state may be prosecuted, or compromised by the department, in its discretion. Any compromise by the workman of any such suit, which would leave a deficiency to be made good out of the accident fund, may be made only with the written approval of the department.

Any individual employer or any member or officer of any corporate employer who shall be carried upon the pay-roll at a salary or wage not less than the average salary or wage named in such pay-roll and who shall be injured, shall be entitled to the benefit of this act as and under the same circumstances as and subject to the same obligations as a workman.

Dependent means any of the following named relatives of a workman whose death results from any injury and who leaves surviving no widow, widower, or child under the age of sixteen years, viz.: invalid child over the age of sixteen years, daughter, between sixteen and eighteen years of age, father, mother, grandfather, grandmother, stepfather, stepmother, grandson, granddaughter, stepson, stepdaughter, brother, sister, half-sister, half-brother, niece, nephew, who, at the time of the accident, are dependent, in whole or in part, for their support upon the earnings of the workman. Except where otherwise provided by treaty, aliens, other than father or mother, not residing within the United States at the time of the accident, are not included.

Beneficiary means a husband, wife, child or dependent of a workman, in whom shall vest a right to receive payment under this act.

Invalid means one who is physically or mentally incapacitated from earning.

The word "child," as used in this act, includes a posthumous child, a child legally adopted prior to the injury, and an illegitimate child legitimated prior to the injury.

The words injury or injured, as used in this act, refer only to an injury resulting from some fortuitous event as distinguished from the contraction of disease. [L. '11, p. 346, § 3.]

§ 6604-4. Schedule of Contribution.

Insomuch as industry should bear the greater portion of the burden of the cost of its accidents, each employer shall, prior to January 15th of each year, pay into the state treasury, in accordance with the following schedule, a sum equal to a percentage of his total pay-roll for that year, to wit: (the same being deemed the most accurate method of equitable distribution of burden in proportion to relative hazard):

The application of this act as between employers and workmen shall date from and include the first day of October, 1911. The payment for 1911 shall be made prior to the day last named, and shall be preliminarily collected upon the pay-roll of the last preceding three months of operation. At the end of each year an adjustment of accounts shall be made upon the basis of the actual pay-roll. Any shortage shall be made good on or before February 1st, following. Every employer who shall enter into business at any intermediate day shall make his payment for the initial year or portion thereof before commencing operation; its amount shall be calculated upon his estimated pay-roll, an adjustment shall be made on or before February 1st of the following year in the manner above provided.

For the purpose of such payments accounts shall be kept with each industry in accordance with the classification herein provided and no class shall be liable for the depletion of the accident fund from accidents happening in any other class. Each class shall meet and be liable for the accidents occurring in such class. There shall be collected from each class as an initial payment into the accident fund as above specified on or before the 1st day of October, 1911, one-fourth of the premium of the next succeeding year, and one-twelfth thereof at the close of each month after December, 1911: Provided, Any class having sufficient funds credited to its account at the end of the first three months or any month thereafter, to meet the requirements of the accident fund, that class shall not be called upon for such month. In case of accidents occurring in such class after lapsed payment or payments said class shall pay the said lapsed or deferred payments commencing at the first lapsed payment, as may be necessary to meet such requirements of the accident fund.

The fund thereby created shall be termed the "accident fund" which shall be devoted exclusively to the purpose specified for it in this act.

In that the intent is that the fund created under this section shall ultimately become neither more or less than self-supporting, exclusive of the expense of administration, the rates in this section named are subject to future adjustment by the legislature, and the classifications to rearrangement following any relative increase or decrease of hazard shown by experience.

It shall be unlawful for the employer to deduct or obtain any part of the premium required by this section to be by him paid from the wages or earnings of his workmen or any of them, and the making or attempt to make any such deduction shall be a gross misdemeanor. If, after this act shall have come into operation, it is shown by experience under the act, because of poor or careless management, any establishment or work is unduly dangerous in comparison with other like establishments or works, the department may advance its classification of risks and premium rates in proportion to the undue hazard. In accordance with the same principle, any such increase in classification or premium rate, shall be subject to restoration to the schedule rate. Any such change in classification of risks or premium rates, or any change caused by change in the class of work, occurring during the year shall, at the time of the annual adjustment, be adjusted by the department in proportion to its duration in accordance with the schedule of this section. If, at the end of any year, it shall be seen that the contribution to the accident fund by any class of industry shall be less than the drain upon the fund on account of that class, the deficiency shall be made good to the fund on the 1st day of February of the following year by the employers of that class in proportion to their respective payments for the past year.

For the purposes of such payment and making good of deficit the particular classes of industry shall be as follows:

CONSTRUCTION WORK.

Class 1. Tunnels; sewer; shaft sinking; drilling wells.

Class 2. Bridges; mill wrighting; trestles; steeples; towers or grain elevators not metal framed; tanks, water-towers, windmills not metal framed.

Class 3. Subaqueous works; canal other than irrigation or docks with or without blasting; pile-driving; jetties; breakwaters; marine railways.

Class 4. House moving; house wrecking; safe moving.

Class 5. Iron or steel frame structures or parts of structures; fire-escapes; erecting fireproof doors or shutters; blast furnaces; concrete chimneys; freight or passenger elevators; fire-proofing of buildings; galvanized iron or tin work; marble, stone or brick work; roof work; slate work; plumbing work; metal smokestack or chimneys; advertising signs; ornamental metal work in buildings; carpenter work not otherwise specified; marble, stone or tile setting; mantel setting; metal ceiling work; painting of buildings or structures; concrete laying in floors or foundations; glass setting; building hothouses; lathing; paper-hanging; plastering; wooden stair building.

Class 6. Electric light and power plants or system; telegraph or telephone systems; cable or electric railways with or without rock work or blasting; waterworks or systems; steam-heating plants; gasworks or systems; installation of steam boilers or engines; placing wires in conduits; installing dynamos; putting up belts for machinery; installation of automatic sprinklers; covering steam-pipes or boilers; installation of machinery not otherwise specified; installing electrical apparatus or fire-alarm systems in buildings; house heating or ventilating systems.

Class 7. Steam railroads; logging railroads.

Class 8. Road making; street or other grading; concrete laying in street paving; asphalt laying.

Class 9. Ship or boat building with scaffolds; ship wrighting; ship or boat rigging; floating docks.

OPERATION (INCLUDING REPAIR WORK) OF

Class 10. Logging; sawmills; shingle-mills; lath-mills; masts and spars with or without machinery.

Class 12. Dredges; dry or floating docks.

Class 13. Electric light or power plants or systems; steam heat or power plants or systems; electric systems not otherwise specified.

Class 14. Street railways.

Class 15. Telegraph systems; telephone systems.

- Class 16. Coal mines.
- Class 17. Quarries; stone crushing; mines other than coal.
- Class 18. Blast furnaces; smelters; rolling-mills.
- Class 19. Gasworks.
- Class 20. Steamboats; tugs; ferries.
- Class 21. Grain elevators.
- Class 22. Laundries.
- Class 23. Waterworks.
- Class 24. Paper or pulp-mills.
- Class 25. Garbage works; fertilizer.

FACTORIES (USING POWER-DRIVEN MACHINERY).

- Class 26. Stamping tin or metal.
- Class 27. Bridge work; making steam shovels or dredges; tanks; water-towers.
- Class 28. Railroad car or locomotive making or repairing.
- Class 29. Cooperage; staves; veneer; box; packing cases; sash[,] door or blinds; barrel; keg; pail; basket; tub; woodware or wood fibre ware; kindling wood; excelsior; working in wood not otherwise specified.
- Class 30. Asphalt.
- Class 31. Cement; stone with or without machinery; building material not otherwise specified.
- Class 32. Canneries of fruits or vegetables.
- Class 33. Canneries of fish or meat products.
- Class 34. Iron, steel, copper, zinc, brass or lead articles or wares; hardware; boiler works; foundries; machine shops not otherwise specified.
- Class 35. Tile; brick; terra cotta; fire clay; pottery; earthenware; porcelain ware.
- Class 36. Peat fuel; brickettes.
- Class 37. Breweries; bottling works.
- Class 38. Cordage; working in wool, cloth, leather, paper, brush, rubber or textile not otherwise specified.
- Class 39. Working in food stuffs, including oils, fruits, vegetables.
- Class 40. Condensed milk; creameries.
- Class 41. Printing; electrotyping; photo-engraving; engraving; lithographing; making jewelry.
- Class 42. Stevedoring; longshoring; wharf operation.
- Class 43. Stock yards; packing-houses; making soap, tallow, lard, grease; tanneries.
- Class 44. Artificial ice, refrigerating or cold storage plants.
- Class 45. Theater stage employees.
- Class 46. Fireworks manufacturing; powder works.
- Class 47. Creosoting works; pile-treating works.

If a single establishment or work comprises several occupations listed in this section in different risk classes, the premium shall be computed according to the pay-roll of each occupation if clearly separable; otherwise an average rate of premium shall be charged for the entire establishment, taking into consideration the number of employees and the relative hazards. If an employer besides employing workmen in extrahazardous employment shall also employ workmen in employments not extrahazardous the provisions of this act shall apply only to the extrahazardous departments and employments and the workmen employed therein. In computing the pay-roll the entire compensation received by every workman employed in extrahazardous employment shall be included, whether it be in the form of salary, wage, piece work, overtime, or any allowance in the way of profit-sharing, premium or otherwise, and whether payable in money, board, or otherwise. [L. '11, p. 349, § 4.]

§ 6604-5. Schedule of Awards.

Each workman who shall be injured whether upon the premises or at the plant or, he being in the course of his employment, away from the plant of his employer, or his family or dependents in case of death of the workman, shall receive out of the accident fund compensation in accordance with the following schedule, and, except as in this act otherwise provided, such payment shall be in lieu of any and all rights of action whatsoever against any person whomsoever.

(a) Where death results from the injury the expenses of burial shall be paid in all cases, not to exceed seventy-five dollars ($75) in any case, and

(1) If the workman leaves a widow or invalid widower, a monthly payment of twenty dollars ($20) shall be made throughout the life of the surviving spouse, to cease at the end of the month in which remarriage shall occur; and the surviving spouse shall also receive five dollars ($5) per month for each child of the deceased under the age of sixteen years at time of the occurrence of the injury until such minor child shall reach the age of sixteen years, but the total monthly payment under this paragraph (1) of subdivision (a) shall not exceed thirty-five dollars ($35). Upon remarriage of a widow she shall receive, once and for all, a lump sum equal to twelve times her monthly allowance, viz.: the sum of two hundred forty dollars ($240), but the monthly payment for the child or children shall continue as before.

(2) If the workman leaves no wife or husband, but a child or children under the age of sixteen years, a monthly payment of ten dollars ($10) shall be made to each such child until such child shall reach the age of sixteen years, but the total monthly payment shall not exceed thirty-five dollars ($35), and any deficit shall be deducted proportionately among the beneficiaries.

(3) If the workman leaves no widow, widower, or child under the age of sixteen years, but leaves a dependent or dependents, a monthly payment shall be made to each dependent equal to fifty per cent of the average monthly support actually received by such dependent from the workman during the twelve months next preceding the occurrence of the injury, but the total payment to all dependents in any case shall not exceed twenty dollars ($20) per month. If any dependent is under the age of sixteen years at the time of the occurrence of the injury, the payment to such dependent shall cease when such dependent shall reach the age of sixteen years. The payment to any dependent shall cease if and when, under the same circumstances, the necessity creating the dependency would have ceased if the injury had not happened.

If the workman is under the age of twenty-one years and unmarried at the time of his death, the parents or parent of the workman shall receive twenty dollars ($20) per month for each month after his death until the time at which he would have arrived at the age of twenty-one years.

(4) In the event a surviving spouse receiving monthly payment shall die, leaving a child or children under the age of sixteen years, the sum he or she shall be receiving on account of such child or children shall be thereafter, until such child shall arrive at the age of sixteen years, paid to the child increased 100 per cent, but the total to all children shall not exceed the sum of thirty-five dollars ($35) per month.

(b) Permanent total disability means the loss of both legs or both arms, or one leg and one arm, total loss of eyesight, paralysis or other condition permanently incapacitating the workman from performing any work at any gainful occupation.

When permanent total disability results from the injury the workman shall receive monthly during the period of such disability:

(1) If unmarried at the time of the injury, the sum of twenty dollars ($20).

(2) If the workman have a wife or invalid husband, but no child under the age of sixteen years, the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25). If the husband is not an invalid, the monthly payment of twenty-five dollars ($25) shall be reduced to fifteen dollars ($15).

(3) If the workman have a wife or husband and a child or children under the age of sixteen years, or, being a widow or widower, have any such child or children, the monthly payment provided in the preceding paragraph shall be increased by five dollars ($5) for each such child until such child shall arrive at the age of sixteen years, but the total monthly payment shall not exceed thirty-five dollars ($35).

(c) If the injured workman die during the period of permanent total disability, whatever the cause of death, leaving a widow, invalid widower or child under the age of sixteen years, the surviving widow or invalid widower shall receive twenty dollars ($20) per month until death or remarriage, to be increased five dollars ($5) per month for each child under the age of sixteen years until such child shall arrive at the age of sixteen years; but if such child is or shall be without father or mother, such child shall receive ten dollars ($10) per month until arriving at the age of sixteen years. The total combined monthly payment under this paragraph shall in no case exceed thirty-five dollars ($35). Upon remarriage the payments on account of a child or children shall continue as before to the child or children.

(d) When the total disability is only temporary, the schedule of payment contained in paragraphs (1), (2) and (3) of the foregoing subdivision (b) shall apply so long as the total disability shall continue, increased fifty per cent for the first six months of such continuance, but in no case shall the increase operate to make the monthly payment exceed sixty per cent of the monthly wage (the daily wage multiplied by twenty-six) the workman was receiving at the time of his injury. As soon as recovery is so complete that the present earning power of the workman, at any kind of work, is restored to that existing at the time of the occurrence of the injury the payments shall cease. If and so long as the present earning power is only partially restored the payments shall continue in the proportion which the new earning power shall bear to the old. No compensation shall be payable out of the accident fund unless the loss of earning power shall exceed five per cent.

(e) For every case of injury resulting in death or permanent total disability it shall be the duty of the department to forthwith notify the state treasurer, and he shall set apart out of the accident fund a sum of money for the case, to be known as the estimated lump value of the monthly payments provided for it, to be calculated upon the theory that a monthly payment of twenty dollars ($20), to a person thirty years of age, is equal to a lump sum payment, according to the expectancy of life as fixed by the American Mortality Table, of four thousand dollars ($4,000), but the total in no case to exceed the sum of four thousand dollars ($4,000). The state treasurer shall invest said sum at interest in the class of securities provided by law for the investment of the permanent school fund, and out of the same and its earnings shall be paid the monthly installments and any lump sum payment then or thereafter arranged for the case. Any deficiency shall be made good out of, and any balance or overplus shall revert to the accident fund. The state treasurer shall keep accurate account of all such investments of the accident fund, and may borrow from the main fund to meet monthly payments pending conversion into cash of any security, and in such case shall repay such temporary loan out of the cash realized from the security.

(f) Permanent partial disability means the loss of either one foot, one leg, one hand, one arm, one eye, one or more fingers, one or more toes, any dislocation where ligaments are severed, or any other injury known in surgery to be permanent partial disability. For any permanent partial disability resulting from an injury, the workman shall receive compensation in a lump sum in an amount equal to the extent of the injury, to be decided in the first instance by the department, but not in any case to exceed the sum of fifteen hundred dollars ($1500). The loss of one major arm at or above the elbow shall be deemed the maximum permanent partial disability. Compensation for any other permanent partial disability shall be in the proportion which the extent of such disability shall bear to the said maximum. If the injured workman be under the age of twenty-one years and unmarried, the parents or parent shall also receive a lump sum payment equal to ten per cent of the amount awarded the minor workman.

(g) Should a further accident occur to a workman already receiving a monthly payment under this section for a temporary disability, or who has been previously the recipient of a lump sum payment under this act, his future compensation shall be adjusted according to the other provisions of this section and with regard to the combined effect of his injuries, and his past receipt of money under this act.

(h) If aggravation, diminution, or termination of disability takes place or be discovered after the rate of compensation shall have been established or compensation terminated in any case the department may, upon the application of the beneficiary or upon its own motion, readjust for future application the rate of compensation in accordance with the rules in this section provided for the same, or in a proper case terminate the payments.

(i) A husband or wife of an injured workman, living in a state of abandonment for more than one year at the time of the injury or subsequently, shall not be a beneficiary under this act.

(j) If a beneficiary shall reside or remove out of the state the department may, in its discretion, convert any monthly payments provided for such case into a lump sum payment (not in any case to exceed four thousand dollars ($4,000) upon the theory, according to the expectancy of life as fixed by the American Mortality Table, that a monthly payment of twenty dollars ($20) to a person thirty years of age is worth four thousand dollars ($4000), or, with the consent of the beneficiary, for a smaller sum.

(k) Any court review under this section shall be initiated in the county where the workman resides or resided at the time of the injury, or in which the injury occurred. [L. '11, p. 356, § 5; L. '13, p. 467, § 1.]

§ 6604-6. Intentional Injuries—Status of Minors.

If injury or death results to a workman from the deliberate intention of the workman himself to produce such injury or death, neither the workman nor the widow, widower, child or dependent of the workman shall receive any payment whatsoever out of the accident fund. If injury or death results to a workman from the deliberate intention of his employer to produce such injury or death, the workman, the widow, widower, child or dependent of the workman shall have the privilege to take under this act and also have cause of action against the employer, as if this act had not been enacted, for any excess of damage over the amount received or receivable under this act.

A minor working at an age legally permitted under the laws of this state shall be deemed sui juris for the purpose of this act, and no other person shall have any cause of action or right to compensation for an injury to such minor workman except as expressly provided in this act, but in the event of a lump sum payment becoming due under this act to such minor workman, the management of the sum shall be within the probate jurisdiction of the courts the same as other property of minors. [L. '11, p. 361, § 6.] § 6604-7. Conversion into Lump Sum Payment.

In case of death or permanent total disability the monthly payment provided may be converted, in whole or in part, into a lump sum payment (not in any case to exceed $4,000.00) on the theory, according to the expectancy of life as fixed by the American Mortality Table, that a monthly payment of $20.00 to a person thirty years of age is worth the sum of $4,000.00, in which event the monthly payment shall cease in whole or in part accordingly or proportionately. Such conversion may only be made after the happening of the injury and upon the written application of the beneficiary (in case of minor children, the application may be by either parent) to the department, and shall rest in the discretion of the department. Within the rule aforesaid the amount and value of the lump sum payment may be agreed upon between the department and the beneficiary. [L. '11, p. 362, § 7.]

§ 6604-8. Defaulting Employers.

If any employer shall default in any payment to the accident fund hereinbefore in this act required, the sum due shall be collected by action at law in the name of the state as plaintiff, and such right of action shall be in addition to any other right of action or remedy. In respect to any injury happening to any of his workmen during the period of any default in the payment of any premium under section 6604-4, the defaulting employer shall not, if such default be after demand for payment, be entitled to the benefits of this act, but shall be liable to suit by the injured workman (or the husband, wife, child or dependent of such workman in case death result from the accident), as he would have been prior to the passage of this act.

In case the recovery actually collected in such suit shall equal or exceed the compensation to which the plaintiff therein would be entitled under this act, the plaintiff shall not be paid anything out of the accident fund; if the said amount shall be less than such compensation under this act, the accident fund shall contribute the amount of the deficiency. The person so entitled under the provisions of this section to sue shall have the choice (to be exercised before suit) of proceeding by suit or taking under this act. If such person shall take under this act, the cause of action against the employer shall be assigned to the state for the benefit of the accident fund. In any suit brought upon such cause of action the defense of fellow-servant and assumption of risk shall be inadmissible, and the doctrine of comparative negligence shall obtain. Any such cause of action assigned to the state may be prosecuted or compromised by the department in its discretion. Any compromise by the workman of any such suit, which would leave a deficiency to be made good out of the accident fund, may be made only with the written approval of the department. [L. '11, p. 362, § 8.]

§ 6604-9. Employer's Responsibility for Safeguard.

If any workman shall be injured because of the absence of any safeguard or protection required to be provided or maintained by, or pursuant to, any statute or ordinance, or any departmental regulation under any statute, or be, at the time of the injury, of less than the maximum age prescribed by law for the employment of a minor in the occupation in which he shall be engaged when injured, the employer shall, within ten days after demand therefor by the department, pay into the accident fund, in addition to the same required by section 6604-4 to be paid:

(a) In case the consequent payment to the workman out of the accident fund be a lump sum, a sum equal to fifty per cent of that amount.

(b) In case the consequent payment to the workman be payable in monthly payments, a sum equal to fifty per cent of the lump value of such monthly payment, estimated in accordance with the rule stated in section 6604-7.

The foregoing provisions of this act shall not apply to the employer if the absence of such guard or protection be due to the removal thereof by the injured workman himself or with his knowledge by any of his fellow-workmen, unless such removal be by order or direction of the employer or superintendent or foreman of the employer, or anyone placed by the employer in control or direction of such workman. If the removal of such guard or protection be by the workman himself or with his consent by any of his fellow-workmen, unless done by order or direction of the employer or the superintendent or foreman of the employer, or anyone placed by the employer in control, or direction of such workman, the schedule of compensation provided in section 6604-5 shall be reduced ten per cent for the individual case of such workman. [L. '11, p. 363, § 9.]

§ 6604-10. Exemption of Awards.

No money paid or payable under this act out of the accident fund shall, prior to issuance and delivery of the warrant therefor, be capable of being assigned, charged, nor ever be taken in execution or attached or garnished, nor shall the same pass to any other person by operation of law. Any such assignment or charge shall be void. [L. '11, p. 364, § 10.]

§ 6604-11. Nonwaiver of Act by Contract.

No employer or workman shall exempt himself from the burden or waive the benefits of this act by any contract, agreement, rule or regulation, and any such contract, agreement, rule or regulation shall be pro tanto void. [L. '11, p. 364, § 11.]

§ 6604-12. Filing Claim for Compensation.

(a) Where a workman is entitled to compensation under this act he shall file with the department, his application for such, together with the certificate of the physician who attended him, and it shall be the duty of the physician to inform the injured workman of his rights under this act and to lend all necessary assistance in making this application for compensation and such proof of other matters as required by the rules of the department without charge to the workman.

(b) Where death results from injury the parties entitled to compensation under this act, or some one in their behalf, shall make application for the same to the department, which application must be accompanied with proof of death and proof of relationship showing the parties to be entitled to compensation under this act, certificates of attending physician, if any, and such other proof as required by the rules of the department.

(c) If change of circumstance warrant an increase or rearrangement of compensation, like application shall be made therefor. No increase or rearrangement shall be operative for any period prior to application therefor.

(d) No application shall be valid or claim thereunder enforceable unless filed within one year after the day upon which the injury occurred or the right thereto accrued. [L. '11, p. 364, § 12.]

§ 6604-13. Medical Examination.

Any workman entitled to receive compensation under this act is required, if requested by the department, to submit himself for medical examination at a time and from time to time at a place reasonably convenient for the workman and as may be provided by the rules of the department. If the workman refuses to submit to any such examination, or obstructs the same, his rights to monthly payments shall be suspended until such examination has taken place, and no compensation shall be payable during or for account of such period. [L. '11, p. 365, § 13.]

§ 6604-14. Notice of Accident.

Whenever any accident occurs to any workman it shall be the duty of the employer to at once report such accident and the injury resulting therefrom to the department, and also to any local representative of the department. Such report shall state:

1. The time, cause and nature of the accident and injuries, and the probable duration of the injury resulting therefrom.

2. Whether the accident arose out of or in the course of the injured person's employment.

3. Any other matters the rules and regulations of the department may prescribe. [L. '11, p. 365, § 14.]

§ 6604-15. Inspection of Employer's Books.

The books, records and pay-rolls of the employer pertinent to the administration of this act shall always be open to inspection by the department or its traveling auditor, agent or assistant, for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of the pay-roll, the men employed, and such other information as may be necessary for the department and its management under this act. Refusal on the part of the employer to submit said books, records and pay-rolls for such inspection to any member of the commission, or any assistant presenting written authority from the commission, shall subject the offending employer to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each offense, to be collected by civil action in the name of the state and paid into the accident fund, and the individual who shall personally give such refusal shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 365, § 15.]

§ 6604-16. Penalty for Misrepresentation as to Pay-roll.

Any employer who shall misrepresent to the department the amount of pay-roll upon which the premium under this act is based shall be liable to the state in ten times the amount of the difference in premium paid and the amount the employer should have paid. The liability to the state under this section shall be enforced in a civil action in the name of the state. All sums collected under this section shall be paid into the accident fund. [L. '11, p. 366, § 16.]

§ 6604-17. Public and Contract Work.

Whenever the state, county or any municipal corporation shall engage in any extrahazardous work in which workmen are employed for wages, this act shall be applicable thereto. The employer's payments into the accident fund shall be made from the treasury of the state, county or municipality. If said work is being done by contract, the pay-roll of the contractor and the subcontractor shall be the basis of computation, and in the case of contract work consuming less than one year in performance the required payment into the accident fund shall be based upon the total pay-roll. The contractor and any subcontractor shall be subject to the provisions of the act, and the state for its general fund, the county or municipal corporation shall be entitled to collect from the contractor the full amount payable to the accident fund, and the contractor, in turn shall be entitled to collect from the subcontractor his proportionate amount of the payment. The provisions of this section shall apply to all extrahazardous work done by contract, except that in private work the contractor shall be responsible, primarily and directly, to the accident fund for the proper percentage of the total pay-roll of the work and the owner of the property affected by the contract shall be surety for such payments. Whenever and so long as, by state law, city charter or municipal ordinance, provision is made for municipal employees injured in the course of employment, such employees shall not be entitled to the benefits of this act and shall not be included in the pay-roll of the municipality under this act. [L. '11, p. 366, § 17.]

§ 6604-18. Interstate Commerce.

The provisions of this act shall apply to employers and workmen engaged in intrastate and also in interstate or foreign commerce, for whom a rule of liability or method of compensation has been or may be established by the Congress of the United States, only to the extent that their mutual connection with intrastate work may and shall be clearly separable and distinguishable from interstate or foreign commerce, except that any such employer and any of his workmen working only in this state may, with the approval of the department, and so far as not forbidden by any act of Congress, voluntarily accept the provisions of this act by filing written acceptances with the department. Such acceptances, when filed with and approved by the department, shall subject the acceptors irrevocably to the provisions of this act to all intents and purposes as if they had been originally included in its terms. Payment of premium shall be on the basis of the pay-roll of the workmen who accept as aforesaid. [L. '11, p. 367, § 18.]

§ 6604-19. Elective Adoption of Act.

Any employer and his employees engaged in works not extrahazardous may, by their joint election, filed with the department, accept the provisions of this act, and such acceptances, when approved by the department, shall subject them irrevocably to the provisions of this act to all intents and purposes as if they had been originally included in its terms. Ninety per cent of the minimum rate specified in section 6604-4 shall be applicable to such case until otherwise provided by law. [L. '11, p. 367, § 19.]

§ 6604-20. Court Review.

Any employer, workman, beneficiary, or person feeling aggrieved at any decision of the department affecting his interests under this act may have the same reviewed by a proceeding for that purpose, in the nature of an appeal, initiated in the superior court of the county of his residence (except as otherwise provided in subdivision (1) of section numbered 6604-5) in so far as such decision rests upon questions of fact, or of the proper application of the provisions of this act, it being the intent that matters resting in the discretion of the department shall not be subject to review. The proceedings in every such appeal shall be informal and summary, but full opportunity to be heard shall be had before judgment is pronounced. No such appeal shall be entertained unless notice of appeal shall have been served by mail or personally upon some member of the commission within twenty days following the rendition of the decision appealed from and communication thereof to the person affected thereby. No bond shall be required, except that an appeal by the employer from a decision of the department under section 6604-9 shall be ineffectual unless, within five days following the service of notice thereof, a bond, with surety satisfactory to the court, shall be filed, conditioned to perform the judgment of the court. Except in the case last named an appeal shall not be a stay. The calling of a jury shall rest in the discretion of the court except that in cases arising under sections 6604-9, 6604-15 and 6604-16 either party shall be entitled to a jury trial upon demand. It shall be unlawful for any attorney engaged in any such appeal to charge or receive any fee therein in excess of a reasonable fee, to be fixed by the court in the case, and, if the decision of the department shall be reversed or modified, such fee and the fees of medical and other witnesses and the costs shall be payable out of the administration fund, if the accident fund is affected by the litigation. In other respects the practice in civil cases shall apply. Appeal shall lie from the judgment of the superior court as in other civil cases. The attorney general shall be the legal adviser of the department and shall represent it in all proceedings, whenever so requested by any of the commissioners. In all court proceedings under or pursuant to this act the decision of the department shall be prima facie correct, and the burden of proof shall be upon the party attacking the same. [L. '11, p. 368, § 20.]

§ 6604-21. Creation of Department.

The administration of this act is imposed upon a department, to be known as the Industrial Insurance Department, to consist of three commissioners to be appointed by the governor. One of them shall hold office for the first two years, another for the first four years, and another for the first six years following the passage and approval of this act. Thereafter the term shall be six years. Each commissioner shall hold until his successor shall be appointed and shall have qualified. A decision of any question arising under this act concurred in by two of the commissioners shall be the decision of the department. The governor may at any time remove any commissioner from office in his discretion, but within ten days following any such removal the governor shall file in the office of the secretary of state a statement of his reasons therefor. The commission shall select one of their members as chairman. The main office of the commission shall be at the state capitol, but branch offices may be established at other places in the state. Each member of the commission shall have power to issue subpoenas requiring the attendance of witnesses and the production of books and documents. [L. '11, p. 369, § 21.]

§ 6604-22. Salary of Commissioners.

The salary of each of the commissioners shall be thirty-six hundred dollars per annum, and he shall be allowed his actual and necessary traveling and incidental expenses; and any assistant to the commissioners shall be paid for each full day's service rendered by him, his actual and necessary traveling expenses and such compensation as the commission may deem proper, not to exceed six dollars per day to an auditor, or five dollars per day to any other assistant. [L. '11, p. 369, § 22.]

§ 6604-23. Deputies and Assistants.

The commissioners may appoint a sufficient number of auditors and assistants to aid them in the administration of this act, at an expense not to exceed $5,000.00 per month. They may employ one or more physicians in each county for the purpose of official medical examinations, whose compensation shall be limited to five dollars for each examination and report therein. They may procure such record books as they may deem necessary for the record of the financial transactions and statistical data of the department, and the necessary documents, forms and blanks. They may establish and require all employers to install and maintain an uniform form of pay-roll. [L. '11, p. 370, § 23.]

§ 6604-24. Conduct, Management and Supervision of Department.

The commission shall, in accordance with the provisions of this act:

(1) Establish and promulgate rules governing the administration of this act.

(2) Ascertain and establish the amounts to be paid into and out of the accident fund.

(3) Regulate the proof of accident and extent thereof, the proof of death and the proof of relationship and the extent of dependency.

(4) Supervise the medical, surgical and hospital treatment to the intent that same may be in all cases suitable and wholesome.

(5) Issue proper receipts for moneys received, and certificates for benefits accrued and accruing.

(6) Investigate the cause of all serious injuries and report to the governor from time to time any violations or laxity in performance of protective statutes or regulations coming under the observation of the department.

(7) Compile and preserve statistics showing the number of accidents occurring in the establishment or works of each employer, the liabilities and expenditures of the accident fund on account of, and the premium collected from the same, and hospital charges and expenses.

(8) Make annual reports to the governor (one of them not more than sixty nor less than thirty days prior to each regular session of the legislature) of the workings of the department, and showing the financial status and the outstanding obligations of the accident fund, and the statistics aforesaid. [L. '11, p. 370, § 24.]

§ 6604-25. Medical Witnesses.

Upon the appeal of any workman from any decision of the department affecting the extent of his injuries or the progress of the same, the court may appoint not to exceed three physicians to examine the physical condition of the appellant, who shall make to the court their report thereon, and they may be interrogated before the court by or on behalf of the appellant in relation to the same. The fee of each shall be fixed by the court, but shall not exceed ten dollars per day each. [L. '11, p. 371, § 25.]

§ 6604-26. Disbursement of Funds.

Disbursement out of the funds shall be made only upon warrants drawn by the state auditor upon vouchers therefor transmitted to him by the department and audited by him. The state treasurer shall pay every warrant out of the fund upon which it is drawn. If, at any time, there shall not be sufficient money in the fund on which any such warrant shall have been drawn wherewith to pay the same, the employer on account of whose workman it was that the warrant was drawn shall pay the same, and he shall be credited upon his next following contribution to such fund the amount so paid with interest thereon at the legal rate from the date of such payment to the date such next following contribution became payable, and if the amount of the credit shall exceed the amount of the contribution, he shall have a warrant upon the same fund for the excess, and if any such warrant shall not be so paid, it shall remain, nevertheless, payable out of the fund. The state treasurer shall to such extent as shall appear to him to be advisable keep the moneys of the unsegregated portion of the accident fund invested at interest in the class of securities provided by law for the investment of the permanent school fund. The state treasurer shall be liable on his official bond for the safe custody of the moneys and securities of the accident fund, but all the provisions of an act approved February 21, 1907, entitled "An act to provide for state depositories and to regulate the deposits of state moneys therein," shall be applied to said moneys and the handling thereof by the state treasurer. [L. '11, p. 371, § 26.]

§ 6604-27. Test of Invalidity of Act.

If any employer shall be adjudicated to be outside the lawful scope of this act, the act shall not apply to him or his workman, or if any workman shall be adjudicated to be outside the lawful scope of this act because of remoteness of his work from the hazard of his employer's work, any such adjudication shall not impair the validity of this act in other respects, and in every such case an accounting in accordance with the justice of the case shall be had of moneys received. If the provisions of section 6604-4 for the creation of the accident fund, or the provisions of this act making the compensation to the workman provided in it exclusive of any other remedy on the part of the workman shall be held invalid the entire act shall be thereby invalidated except the provisions of section 6604-31, and an accounting according to the justice of the case shall be had of moneys received. In other respects an adjudication of invalidity of any part of this act shall not affect the validity of the act as a whole or any other part thereof. [L. '11, p. 372, § 27.]

It was competent for the legislature in this section of the workingmen's compensation act to provide that the adjudication of invalidity of any part of the act shall not affect the validity of the act as a whole or any other part of it; and anything that might have been eliminated by the legislature can be eliminated by the courts, if it is unconstitutional, without affecting the balance of the act: State ex rel. Davis-Smith Co. v. Clausen, 65 Wash. 156, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 466, 117 Pac. 1101.

§ 6604-28. Statute of Limitations Saved.

If the provisions of this act relative to compensation for injuries to or death of workmen become invalid because of any adjudication, or be repealed, the period intervening between the occurrence of an injury or death, not previously compensated for under this act by lump payment or completed monthly payments, and such repeal or the rendition of the final adjudication of invalidity shall not be computed as a part of the time limited by law for the commencement of any action relating to such injury or death: Provided, That such action be commenced within one year after such repeal or adjudication; but in any such action any sum paid out of the accident fund to the workman on account of injury, to whom the action is prosecuted, shall be taken into account or disposed of as follows: If the defendant employer shall have paid without delinquency into the accident fund the payment provided by section 6604-4, such sums shall be credited upon the recovery as payment thereon, otherwise the sum shall not be so credited but shall be deducted from the sum collected and be paid into the said fund from which they had been previously disbursed. [L. '11, p. 372, § 28.]

§ 6604-29. Appropriations.

There is hereby appropriated out of the state treasury the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be known as the administration fund, out of which the salaries, traveling and office expenses of the department shall be paid, and also all other expenses of the administration of the accident fund; and there is hereby appropriated out of the accident fund for the purpose to which said fund is applicable the sum of $1,500,000.00, or so much thereof as shall be necessary for the purposes of this act. [L. '11, p. 373, § 29.]

§ 6604-30. Safeguard Regulations Preserved.

Nothing in this act contained shall repeal any existing law providing for the installation or maintenance of any device, means or method for the prevention of accidents in extrahazardous work or for a penalty or punishment for failure to install or maintain any such protective device, means or method, but sections 6594, 6595, and 6596 of Remington and Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington are hereby repealed, except as to any cause of action which shall have accrued thereunder prior to October 1, 1911. [L. '11, p. 373, § 30.]

§ 6604-31. Distribution of Funds in Case of Repeal.

If this act shall be hereafter repealed, all moneys which are in the accident fund at the time of the repeal shall be subject to such disposition as may be provided by the legislature, and in default of such legislative provision distribution thereof shall be in accordance with the justice of the matter, due regard being had to obligations of compensation incurred and existing. [L. '11, p. 374, § 31.]

§ 6604-32. Saving Clause.

This act shall not affect any action pending or cause of action existing on the 30th day of September, 1911. [L. '11, p. 374, § 32.]

TITLE LI.

LANDS OF THE STATE.

CHAPTER I.

BOARD OF STATE LAND COMMISSIONERS.

§ 6612.

Under Ballinger's Code, section 2198, giving the commissioner of public lands power to review and reconsider his official acts relating to public lands until a lease or contract has been executed and signed, the commissioner acts within his discretion in refusing to sign a contract for the sale of the whole of lots, where, pending the advertised sale, the legislature passed an act, which took effect after the sale granting a city a right of way through the lots for a street:

State ex rel. Stirrat v. Ross, 54 Wash. 481, 103 Pac. 824.

As to title of purchaser to public land before issue of patent, see note in 50 Am. Dec. 494.

As to when action of land office is conclusive, see note in 20 Am. Dec. 273.

As to establishment of highway over public land subsequent to entry thereon by one who has not perfected his title, see note in 24 L. R. A., N. S., 764.

CHAPTER II.

APPEALS FROM BOARD OF STATE LAND COMMISSIONERS.

§ 6620.

Under this section, relating to appeals to the superior court on applications to purchase shore lands, it is proper to allow an application, based upon the ownership of lots below high-water mark, to be amended so as to show that the applicant had acquired the record title thereto through a bona fide purchaser from the owner of the upland, section 6754 providing that such bona fide purchaser or persons claiming under him shall have the preference right to purchase the shore lands: Shoret v. Signor, 58 Wash. 89, 107 Pac. 1033.

CHAPTER V-A.

SELECTION OF LIEU LANDS.

§ 6635-1. Land Commissioner to Make Agreement for Lieu Land.

For the purpose of obtaining from the United States indemnity or lieu lands for such lands granted to the state for common schools, educational, penal, reformatory, charitable, capitol building or other purposes, as have been or may be lost to the state, or the title to or use or possession of which is claimed by the United States or by others claiming by, through or under the United States, by reason of any of the causes entitling the state to select other lands in lieu thereof, the inclusion of the same in any reservation by or under authority of the United States, or any other appropriation or disposition of the same by the United States, whether such lands are now surveyed or unsurveyed, the commissioner of public lands, with the advice and approval of the board of state land commissioners and the attorney general, is authorized and empowered to enter into an agreement or agreements, on behalf of the state, with the proper officer or officers of the United States for the relinquishment of any such lands and the selection in lieu thereof, under the provisions of this act, of lands of the United States of equal area and value. [L. '13, p. 300, § 1.]

§ 6635-2. Examination and Appraisal.

Upon the making of any such agreement, the board of state land commissioners shall be empowered and it shall be their duty to cause such examination and appraisal to be made as will determine the area and value, as nearly as may be, of the lands lost to the state, or the title to, use or possession of which is claimed by the United States by reason of the causes mentioned in section 6635-1, and proposed to be relinquished to the United States, and shall cause an examination and appraisal to be made of any lands which may be designated by the officers of the United States as subject to selection by the state in lieu of the lands aforesaid, to the end that the state shall obtain lands in lieu thereof of equal area and value. [L. '13, p. 300, § 2.]

§ 6635-3. Transfer of Title to United States.

Whenever the title to any lands selected under the provisions of this act shall become vested in the state of Washington by the acceptance and approval of the lists of lands so selected, or other proper action of the United States, the governor, on behalf of the state of Washington, shall execute and deliver to the United States a deed of conveyance of the lands of the state relinquished under the provisions of this act, which deed shall convey to and vest in the United States all the right, title and interest of the state of Washington therein. [L. '13, p. 301, § 3.]

§ 6635-4. Agent to Rent Escheated Lands.

The commissioner of public lands is authorized to employ an agent or agents to rent any improved escheated urban property for such rental and time and in such manner as the commissioner may direct: Provided, That no lease thereof for a term longer than one year shall be made except to the highest bidder at public auction in the manner provided by law for the leasing of public lands, and, except in such case, no lessee shall be entitled to compensation for any improvements which he may make thereon. Such agent or agents shall cause such repairs to be made to such property as the commissioner may direct, and shall deduct the cost thereof, together with such compensation and commission as the commissioner may authorize, from the rentals for such property, and the remainder which shall have been collected shall be transmitted monthly to the commissioner of public lands. [L. '13, p. 247, § 1.]

CHAPTER VI.CLASSIFICATION AND SELECTION.*§ 6641. Classification of State Lands.

That for the purpose of this act all lands belonging to and under the control of the state shall be divided into the following classes:

(1) Granted Lands. (a) Common school lands and lieu and indemnity lands therefor. (b) University lands and lieu and indemnity therefor. (c) Other educational land grants. (d) Lands granted to the state of Washington for other than educational purposes, and lieu and indemnity lands therefor. (e) All other lands, including lands acquired or to be hereafter acquired by grant, deed of sale, or gift, or operation of law, including arid lands.

(2) Tide Lands. All lands over which the tide ebbs and flows from the line of ordinary high tide to the line of extreme low tide, except in front of cities where harbor lines shall have been established or may hereafter be established, where such tide lands shall be those lying between the line of ordinary high tide and the inner harbor line and excepting oyster reserves.

(3) Shore Lands. Lands bordering on the shores of navigable lakes and rivers below the line of ordinary high water and not subject to tidal flow.

(4) Harbor Lines and Areas. Such lines and areas as are described in article 15 of the constitution of the state of Washington and which have been established according to law. All of which outer harbor lines so established as aforesaid are hereby ratified and confirmed, also all such harbor lines and areas as may and shall be hereafter established. [L. '11, p. 129, § 1.]

Tide lands, proper, are those lying between the lines of ordinary high tide and mean low tide, the law accepting the mean and not the extreme where boundaries are concerned: Pearl Oyster Co. v. Heuston, 57 Wash. 533, 135 Am. St. Rep. 1007, 107 Pac. 349, 832.

There is no conflict between this section defining tide lands and section 6744 dividing all tide lands into two classes with reference to the location of the boundaries of cities and towns: Pearl Oyster Co. v. Heuston, 57 Wash. 533, 135 Am. St. Rep. 1007, 107 Pac. 349, 832.

A state deed of all tide lands situate in front of, adjacent to, or abutting upon, certain portions of the government meander line particularly described, extends only to the line of mean low tide, under this section, especially as a grant by a state is to be construed most strongly against the grantee, and restricted to the narrowest limits that will reasonably satisfy the grant if no limit is fixed by the deed: Pearl Oyster Co. v. Heuston, 57 Wash. 533, 135 Am. St. Rep. 1007, 107 Pac. 349, 832.

A state deed of tide lands cannot be collaterally attacked on account of alleged defects in assignments of the land contract to the grantee, after the commissioner of public lands has approved the assignments and issued the deed: Price v. Loe, 56 Wash. 253, 105 Pac. 469.

§ 6641-1. Preference Rights.

The prior and preference right to purchase all tide lands of the second class lying between the line of mean low tide and the line of extreme low tide in front of all tide lands of the second class heretofore sold or conveyed by the state of Washington is hereby granted for the period of ninety days from the date this act goes into effect to the purchasers, their grantees or successors in interest of any tide lands of the second class heretofore sold or conveyed by the state of Washington. Such additional tide lands may be so purchased at the rate of one dollar per lineal chain measurement to be based on the United States government meander lines bordering the said tide lands heretofore sold. Upon application and payment for such additional tide lands within said ninety days to the land commissioner of the state of Washington, deed shall be issued to the respective purchaser or purchasers therefor. If such application and payment is not made within said ninety days by the parties to whom the preference rights under this section are given then such additional tide lands shall be sold as other tide lands are sold under the laws of the state of Washington. [L. '11, p. 130, § 2.]

CHAPTER VII.

APPRAISAL AND SALE OF GRANTED LANDS.

§ 6670-1. Time for Removal of Timber.

In all cases where timber on state school and granted land has heretofore been sold separate from the land, the purchaser shall be allowed five years from the date of sale within which to remove said timber: Provided, That the board of state land commissioners may extend the time for the removal thereof for any period not exceeding ten years from the date of first renewal of said contract, upon application being made for such extension, and upon the payment of the sum or rent of one dollar and fifty cents per acre, per annum; the said rental so received to be paid into the various funds as now provided by law: Provided, however, This act shall not operate to grant any extension of time for a longer period than ten years from the first day of June, 1905, and shall only apply to sales made prior to 1905. [L. '11, p. 643, § 1.]

§ 6670-2. Extension of Time for Removal of Timber.

In all cases where any timber on any state school or granted lands has been heretofore sold separate from the land and, in the judgment of the board of state land commissioners, the interest of the state will be better served by granting an extension of time for the removal thereof, the said board may extend the time for the removal of such timber for a further period of not to exceed five years from and after the date upon which it may now be removed, upon application and satisfactory showing and upon the payment of the annual rental or charge of one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per acre per year, the said rental to be paid into the various funds as now provided by law: Provided, That before any such extension be granted the applicant shall furnish to the board satisfactory proof that all state, county and other taxes levied or assessed upon such timber have been fully paid; And, provided further, That the provisions of this act shall only apply to sales of timber made prior to June 15th, 1909. [L. '13, p. 73, § 1.]

§ 6672. Public Sale—Procedure.

When the board of state land commissioners shall have decided to sell any lot, block, tract or tracts of granted lands, or timber, fallen timber, stone, gravel or other valuable materials thereon, it shall be the duty of the commissioner of public lands to forthwith fix the date of sale and give notice thereof by advertisement published once a week for five weeks next before the time he shall name in said notice, in at least one newspaper of general circulation published in the county in which the lands are situated, which notice shall specify the place, time and terms of sale, describing with particularity each parcel of land to be sold and stating the appraised value thereof, and by causing to be posted in a conspicuous place in the office of the auditor of the county wherein such lands are situated a copy of said notice. And the commissioner of public lands shall cause all such lands or materials thereon to be sold and arrange such date of sale so that it will fall on the first Tuesday of the month, except where such Tuesday would fall on a legal holiday, in which case no sales shall be made until the following month. The commissioner of public lands shall cause to be printed in pamphlet form a list of all school, granted or other public lands or materials thereon, or tide or shore lands of the first or second class, or detached tide lands, or harbor area leases or mineral lands required by law to be sold at public auction and the appraised value, where the law provides for appraisement, that are to be sold in the several counties of the state, said lists to be issued each month, at least four weeks prior to the date of sale of such lands or materials enumerated thereon, such lands and materials to be listed under the name of the county wherein located, in alphabetical order, giving the appraised values, character of same and such other information as may be of interest to prospective buyers. Said commissioner of public lands shall cause to be distributed to the auditor of each county in the state a sufficient number of such lists to supply the demands made upon them respectively, as reported by such auditors, not exceeding one hundred copies in any one county. And said county auditors shall keep the lists so furnished in a conspicuous place or receptacle on the counter of the public office of their respective departments, and when requested so to do shall mail copies of such lists to residents of their counties. The commissioner of public lands shall retain for free distribution in his office five hundred copies of said lists, as above set forth, such lists to be kept in a conspicuous place or receptacle on the counter of the general office of the commissioner of public lands; and when requested so to do, the commissioner shall mail copies of said lists each month as issued to any applicant therefor. Proof of publication shall be made by affidavit of the publisher or person in charge of the newspaper publishing the notice of sale and by certificate of the auditor showing the posting of the notice of sale as aforesaid and the receipt of the lists as aforesaid, which shall forthwith be sent to and filed with the commissioner of public lands. The board of state land commissioners is hereby authorized to expend any sum of money, not exceeding fifteen dollars in additional advertising of such sale as the said board shall determine to be for the best interests of the state. Such sale shall take place on the day advertised, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, in front of the courthouse, or of the building in which the superior court is held, in the counties in which there is no courthouse, and shall be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, on the terms prescribed by law and as specified in the notice hereinbefore provided; and no land shall be sold for less than its appraised value. Such sale shall be conducted under the direction of the board, or the commissioner of public lands; by the county auditor of the county in which the lands are situate; and such auditor shall at once deliver to the purchaser under his hand and seal, a memorandum of his purchase, containing a description of the land purchased, the price bid and the terms of sale, upon the delivery to such auditor, by the purchaser, either in cash or by certified check, or draft drawn upon some bank doing business in this state, or by postal order, of an amount equal to one-tenth of the price of the land by him purchased, payable to the order of the commissioner of public lands; and such auditor shall at once send to the commissioner of public lands such cash or certified check, draft or postal order and a copy of the memorandum delivered to the purchaser, together with such additional report of his doings and proceedings with reference to such sale as may be required by the commissioner of public lands or the board of state land commissioners. If any land so offered for sale be not sold, the same may again be advertised for sale, as provided in this act, whenever in the opinion of the board it shall be expedient so to do; and such land shall again be advertised for sale as provided in this act, whenever any person shall apply to said board in writing to have such land sold and shall agree to pay, at least the appraised price thereof and shall deposit with the commissioner of public lands at the time of making such application, a sufficient sum of money to pay the cost of advertising for such sale, as provided in making original application. [L. '13, p. 93, § 1.]

This section, providing that any sale or lease of state lands made by mistake, or not in accordance with law, shall be void and the contract or lease assumed thereon shall be of no effect and the holder of the contract required to surrender the same, applies only to executory contracts, and not to sales that have been fully executed by delivery of the state deed and full payment of the price: State v. Ort, 66 Wash. 130, 119 Pac. 21.

As to validity of mortgage on government land made by claimant holding under homestead act prior to final proof, see note in 9 Ann. Cas. 934.

In the absence of fraud or connivance of the purchaser, the state cannot maintain an action to set aside its deed of state lands on the ground of mistake of its officers in determining that the character of the lands is agricultural, when in fact it contained more than one million feet of merchantable timber, and under the law could not be sold as agricultural land: State v. Ort, 66 Wash. 130, 119 Pac. 21.

As to right of entryman to notice and hearing before cancellation of entry, see note in 75 Am. St. Rep. 880.

As to effect of patent and how it may be attacked, see notes in 2 Am. Dec. 568 and 12 Am. Dec. 564.

CHAPTER IX.

CAPITAL LAND GRANT.

§ 6698. Appraisement and Sale—Procedure.

The state capitol commission shall cause said lands to be appraised and prepare an abstract or record of all the capitol building lands with such maps and other data as may be deemed necessary to properly show in detail and by legal subdivision the location thereof, and of the timber and other materials thereon, and the character and value thereof, and such record shall be open to inspection to anyone desirous of bidding on any such lands or the materials thereon. The commission shall seek proposals by advertising in the public press or otherwise, within or without the state, for the sale of such lands in tracts not to exceed one hundred and sixty acres in extent, and readvertise and reseek other and new proposals or bids as often as said commission shall deem necessary, and may sell any such lands at public auction, with a view to obtaining the full market value of said lands, announcing the times, terms and particulars of sale as is now provided for sale of other state lands: Provided, however, The commission may fix times at which offers shall be received on any or all capitol lands, or materials thereon, and the commission may reject or accept any or all such bids but no bids shall be accepted from any bidder for any tract of land or materials on any tract which is not the highest bid offered, except where any bidder has bid on more than one tract his total bids may be taken into consideration in determining the best bid: Provided further, That the commission may sell the timber or other materials separate from the land, and said commission shall fix the time in which such timber, or other materials shall be removed from the lands, and may provide that the purchaser of timber or other materials separate from the land shall not be limited as to the time of removal thereof upon payment to the state for the use of such lands upon which such timber or other materials are situated of an annual rental to be fixed by the commission at or before the time of sale: Provided further, That the commission may lease any of the capitol building lands for agricultural purposes for a period of not exceeding five years and under such terms and conditions as the commission may deem advisable, but all improvements made on any such lands by a lessee thereof shall revert to the state at the expiration of the lease. [L. '11, p. 325, § 9.]

§ 6700. Sale at State Capitol—Proceeds—Plans for Capitol Building.

All sales shall take place at the state capitol and the proceeds of such sale of lands, or the timber or other materials shall be paid into the capitol building fund to be used as in this act provided. All contracts for the construction of capitol buildings shall be let after notice for proposals or bids have been advertised for at least four (4) consecutive weeks in at least three newspapers of general circulation throughout the state. [L. '11, p. 326, § 10.]

§ 6701. Conveyances, Manner of.

Upon performance by the purchaser of all such conditions as shall have been fixed by the commission for the sale of any such lands or the timber or other materials thereon, conveyances shall be made therefor by deed executed by the governor[,], attested by the secretary of state, to the extent of the interest so sold to such purchaser. [L. '11, p. 326, § 11.]

§ 6702. Commission—Assistants—Expenses.

The commission may employ such cruisers, draftsmen, engineers, architects or other assistants as may be necessary for the best interests of the state in carrying out the provisions of this act, and all expenses incurred by the commission, and all claims against the capitol building fund shall be audited by the commission and presented in vouchers to the state auditor, who shall draw a warrant therefor against the capitol building fund as herein provided or out of any appropriation made for such purpose. [L. '11, p. 326, § 12.]

§ 6704-1. Construction of Capitol Buildings.

It is hereby declared to be the purpose and intention of this act:

(A) To provide for the paying off, canceling or refunding, by the issue of bonds therefor, the present outstanding warrant indebtedness against the capitol building fund and the interest due and unpaid thereon at the time of the payment, cancellation or refundment thereof;

(B) To acquire and in the manner authorized, the property described in section 1 of chapter 20, Laws 1909, special session, approved August 23, 1909, and to use such lands in conjunction with the lands belonging to the state and known as the "Sylvester Site" or "Old Capitol Site" for the erection and building thereon of a group or system of buildings for capitol purposes, and for beautifying, parking and laying out grounds about such capitol buildings, all of which grounds or land shall hereafter be known as "Capitol Place";

(C) To build on such "Capitol Place" a series or group of buildings for state official purposes. The main or principal building to be built on the foundation heretofore erected as the foundation for a capitol building, and such main building, when built, to contain the principal executive offices of the state and the rooms and halls for the use of the legislature, which building shall be known, when completed, as the "Capitol," the other buildings to be grouped around and adjacent to said "Capitol" and to be built from time to time as needed;

(D) For the purpose of providing adequate quarters for the supreme court and its officers, and offices for the attorney general, and the state law library, thereby relieving the present congested condition of office quarters in the present building now used for capitol purposes, as soon as plans can be provided therefor there shall be erected as one of the capitol buildings on said "Capitol Place" a building to be known as the "Temple of Justice," for the purpose of housing the departments aforesaid, the approximate cost of said building to be $300,000;

(E) That the capitol commission shall without delay cause complete topographic and profile maps to be made of the lands composing "Capitol Place," and shall furnish the same at a price to be fixed by the commission to architects seeking to offer plans for "Capitol Place," and said commission shall fix a time not later than the first day of August, 1911, for receiving ground plans for a series or group of buildings on said "Capitol Place," showing the main building or "Capitol," a court building or "Temple of Justice" and at least two other buildings for general offices, and accompanying said plans shall be submitted complete plans and specifications for the construction of said "Temple of Justice" building, and with such further details as to the grounds or buildings, or both, as the capitol commission may call for. The commission may reject any and all plans and may call for new plans from time to time, or may select or adopt all or part of any plan or plans submitted and may enter into the usual contract or agreement with any architect or architects for compensation for plans adopted, or may enter into any contract or agreement for recommendation to the legislature for compensation for any plan or plans adopted in whole or in part, and do any and all things whatsoever to carry out the provisions, purposes, and intent of this act to the end that, as speedily as consistent with economy, suitable, adequate, and commodious buildings and grounds may be provided for official purposes, and that to this purpose, from time to time, new buildings, or additions to buildings theretofore constructed, except additions to the main building, may be constructed, all in accordance with a general plan, and so as not to interfere with the symmetry, grandeur, or architectural beauty of the whole system or group;

(F) That all buildings to be built as herein provided shall be of absolute fireproof construction;

(G) That the appropriation or appropriations hereinafter made, or provided for in any subsequent legislation, shall not prohibit the capitol commission from proceeding, should sufficient funds be received from the sales of capitol building lands or materials thereon (but shall be deemed an authorization), to construct the other buildings or to acquire or improve the grounds used for capitol purposes as herein provided, or to further carry out the purposes of this act. [L. '11, p. 319, § 1.]

§ 6704-2. Bonds to be Negotiated.

As defined to be the purpose in section 6704-1 the said capitol commission may proceed at once to issue negotiable annual interest bearing bonds in an amount not exceeding four million dollars against the capitol building fund and to sell the same or to exchange the same for the paying off, refunding and canceling of the present outstanding warrants against the said capitol building fund, including the interest due and unpaid thereon at the time of such payment, cancellation or refunding thereof and for repaying to the general fund of the state the advancements made therefrom to the capitol building fund under this or any other act. Such bonds shall bear a rate of interest not to exceed five per cent per annum, and shall be issued in accordance with the provisions hereinafter defined. The proceeds of the bonds herein authorized to be issued shall be used: 1st, in the payment of all outstanding warrants and interests thereon against the capitol building fund; 2d, in repaying to the general fund the advancements made therefrom to the capitol building fund; 3d, for the carrying out of the other purposes mentioned in section 6704-1. The capitol commission may issue and sell all or any part of said bonds at any one time or from time to time as in their discretion seems best, or may exchange any of said bonds in payment in all or in part for any work done under the provisions of this act. The capitol commission may in its discretion allow a brokerage commission of not to exceed one-eighth of one per cent on the bonds issued, said commission to be paid from the proceeds of the sale of such bonds. The state of Washington hereby guarantees the payment of the principal and the interest on all bonds issued under the provisions of this act. [L. '11, p. 321, § 2; L. '13, p. 139, § 1.]

§ 6704-3. Construction of Temple of Justice.

The state capitol commission, as soon as it shall have adopted general plans for the construction of buildings on said "Capitol Place" and shall have adopted plans and specifications for the said "Temple of Justice," shall proceed under such terms and conditions as the commission may provide, to call for bids and make contracts for the construction and completion of said "Temple of Justice." For the purpose of the construction of said "Temple of Justice" and for acquiring the lands authorized to be acquired by chapter 20, Laws 1909, special session, or so much of said lands as the commission may deem expedient at the time to so acquire, the commission is hereby authorized to issue bonds as in this act provided to the extent of three hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($350,000), and until such time as said bonds are issued and sold, and for the purpose of providing, without delay, available funds to construct such building and acquire such lands there is hereby appropriated out of the general fund of the state the said sum of three hundred and fifty thousand dollars which amount so appropriated from the general fund shall be deemed a temporary loan only from said general fund and to the amount only as may be needed for the purposes named and until repaid to the general fund from the proceeds of the sale of the bonds as herein authorized: Provided, The commission may sell all or part of said bonds at any one time or may exchange any of said bonds in payment in all or in part for the building of said "Temple of Justice," as may be provided in the contract for the construction thereof or by any subsequent agreement. [L. '11, p. 321, § 3.]

§ 6704-4. Bonds—Interest-bearing Coupons.

Whenever the commission shall have been authorized to do so, as in this act or any further act, to issue bonds it shall issue negotiable annual interest bearing coupon bonds, in denominations of one thousand dollars, payable in five years, or any multiple of five years up to twenty years, but if issued for a longer period than five years, the state to have the right, through the capitol commission, or its successor or successors in such functions, to pay or refund the same at any five year period during the life of such bonds. Bonds authorized under this act shall bear interest not to exceed five per centum per annum, such bonds and all interest coupons thereof payable at the office of the state treasurer, and no coupon shall draw interest after the date named in such coupons unless there be no money in the treasury to pay the same and the treasurer shall stamp thereon "Not paid for want of funds," giving the date of such indorsement, in which event such coupon so stamped shall from such date draw the same rate of interest as it represented on the bonds until it is finally called for payment by the state treasurer. Notice of the time of payment of any bond or coupon shall be made by registered mail to the last known address of the holder thereof as shown on the record of the state treasurer kept for such purpose: Provided, No notice shall be required of any payment to be made of any coupon or bond on date named in such coupon or bond. Interest coupons shall be detached by the state treasurer at his office at the time of payment. No bonds shall be sold or exchanged for less than the face value thereof, and the commission may, in the call for the sale of any bonds provide that such bonds shall be issued only as deemed necessary by the commission, and the commission may issue a new call at any time, or may offer any such bonds for sale from time to time without any formal notice or call for bids thereon. The commission may issue new bonds to take up any issue of bonds theretofore issued, or to take up any issue of warrants, that may have been issued for any purpose authorized in this act or any future act, and the reissue of any bonds or warrants or the issue of any bonds or warrants to take up any outstanding bonds or warrants or the paying out of any funds raised by the sale of any bonds or warrants shall not be deemed an increase in the amount authorized to be expended or indebtedness created under the provisions of this act. [L. '11, p. 322, § 4; L. '13, p. 140, § 2.]

§ 6704-5. Purchase of Bonds.

Whenever the capitol commission shall offer any bonds for sale, and there shall be in the permanent school fund, or other permanent or investment fund, sufficient uninvested funds to cover the purchase of such issue of bonds or any part thereof, the board, officer or officers, authorized to invest any such fund may invest the same in any of said bonds: Provided, however, Whenever any of said bonds are purchased by said school fund or other permanent or investment fund the capitol commission, or the board, commission or officer authorized to succeed it in such functions, may pay any or all of such bonds, so held by the permanent school fund or such other fund at any time there is sufficient money in the capitol building fund for that purpose: And provided further, That any and all bonds purchased by any of the permanent funds as in this section provided, shall, for the purposes of such investment, be deemed in all respects state general bonds and shall be guaranteed both principal and interest by the general fund of the state. [L. '11, p. 323, § 5.]

§ 6704-6. Vouchers Signed for Claims.

All claims authorized to be paid under this act except as otherwise provided or intended, shall be by vouchers signed by the governor as chairman of the capitol commission and attested by the secretary or acting secretary thereof, and warrants drawn thereon by the state auditor against the capitol building fund, or other fund or appropriation authorized to be used for such purpose. [L. '11, p. 324, § 6.]

§ 6704-7. Interest Paid from General Fund.

All interest that may become due on bonds or warrants issued by the capitol commission shall be guaranteed by the state, and such interest shall be paid out of the general fund of the state: Provided, however, That any and all expenditures made out of the general fund shall be deemed a loan from said general fund and a debt against the capitol building fund and shall be repaid to the general fund from the proceeds of the capitol land grant after all other claims against the capitol building fund shall have been paid. Interest payments made out of the general fund as herein authorized may be made when due by the state treasurer and the state auditor shall draw his warrant therefor in favor of the treasurer for the amount so paid. [L. '11, p. 324, § 7.]

§ 6704-8. Refunding.

Any paying off, or refunding of the present outstanding warrant indebtedness against the capitol building fund shall not be deemed an indebtedness incurred by the state capitol commission and the said capitol commission in addition to the expenditures hereinbefore authorized may at any time expend, for the purposes as outlined in section 6704-1, any moneys received from the proceeds of the sale or rental of capitol building lands, and all sums of moneys so received are hereby appropriated therefor. [L. '11, p. 324, § 8.]

§ 6704-9. Limit on Expenditures.

Any of the amounts herein authorized to be expended or obligations incurred, whether such amounts are specifically named or otherwise are hereby appropriated: Provided, That at no time shall the total expenditures for capitol buildings and grounds, whether authorized under this act or any subsequent enactment, exceed the estimated value of the capitol land grant. [L. '11, p. 327, § 13.]

§ 6724.

CHAPTER XII. TIDE AND SHORE LANDS.

§ 6744.

See notes to § 6641.

§ 6750.

See notes to § 6754.

A patent from the government prior to the adoption of the state constitution passed title to tide lands included within the government meander line, where the line was run below high-water mark, in view of the constitutional disclaimer of title to tide lands patented by the government, constitution, article 17, section 2; and hence the owner of such lands is entitled, regardless of the location of high-water mark, to the preference right to purchase tide lands abutting thereon, conferred by this section upon the owner of lands abutting or fronting upon tide or shore lands of the first class, to the exclusion of one owning the uplands above or abutting on high-water mark: Bleakley v. Lake Washington Mill Co., 65 Wash. 215, 118 Pac. 5.

As to title of state to lands covered by tidal and other navigable waters, see note in 53 Am. St. Rep. 289.

§ 6754.

See notes to §§ 6620, 8766.

Laws of 1897, page 250, section 45, giving upland owners the preference right to purchase shore lands is a mere gratuity, and is not intended as in lieu of riparian rights: Gifford v. Horton, 54 Wash. 595, 103 Pac. 988.

The purchaser of lots abutting on a street that reaches to high-water mark on a lake has the preference right to purchase the abutting shore lands, by virtue of his ownership of the fee of the entire street: Gifford v. Horton, 54 Wash. 595, 103 Pac. 988.

As to the effect of streets on shore in considering rights to accretions, see note in 58 L. R. A. 208.

Where the board of harbor line commissioners filed a plat fixing the shore line of a lake from thirty-nine and one-half to one hundred and thirty-nine feet distant from an adjacent city block, no part of the block abuts on the shore lands of the lake, and the line is conclusively fixed as to the owner of the block claiming a preference right to purchase shore lands, until vacated for error at the instance of the state or of a party in interest claiming that the shore line was located too far inland: Williams v. Cole, 54 Wash. 110, 102 Pac. 870.

The right of an abutting owner to access to the street in front of his property gives him no right as an abutting owner to the shores of a lake across or bordering on the other side of the street: Williams v. Cole, 54 Wash. 110, 102 Pac. 870.

In such a case, the existence of a street between the block and the shore land is conclusively settled by a final judgment against the city in which the court finds that there is no street, and no appeal was taken therefrom by the city: Williams v. Cole, 54 Wash. 110, 102 Pac. 870.

The grantee of lots below the line of ordinary high water on a navigable lake acquires no title thereto and has no preference right to purchase shore lands as an owner of abutting upland: Shorett v. Signor, 58 Wash. 89, 107 Pac. 1033.

Under this section the bona fide purchaser of lots below high-water mark, from the owner of the uplands, or one claiming through such bona fide purchaser, is entitled to the preference right to purchase the shore lands, regardless of the present ownership of the abutting uplands: Shorett v. Signor, 58 Wash. 89, 107 Pac. 1033.

The grant of an easement for a railway right of way along a shore line extending to or below high-water mark does not convey or affect the grantor's preference right to purchase shore lands from the state as the owner of abutting uplands, under sections 6750, 6754: Pacific Iron Works v. Bryant Lumber & Shingle Mill Co., 60 Wash. 502, 111 Pac. 578.

The statute giving to the owner of uplands the preference right to purchase abutting tide lands from the state for the period of sixty days after the filing of the tide lands plat, has reference to the owner of the legal title to the uplands during the sixty days when the right must be exercised, and confers no rights upon a vendee in possession under a contract of sale with deed in escrow, who did not acquire legal title by full payment of the price and delivery of the deed until nine months after the tide lands plat was filed: Book v. Thomas, 61 Wash. 607, 112 Pac. 917.

Where the vendor of uplands under contract of sale executed and placed in escrow a deed, the delivery of the deed cannot be held to relate back to the time of the delivery in escrow, so as to work an assignment of the vendor's preference right to purchase tide lands as owner of the legal title prior to final payment and final delivery of the deed: Book v. Thomas, 61 Wash. 607, 112 Pac. 917.

It will not be inferred that a vendor of uplands retaining legal title intended to assign his preference right to purchase tide lands prior to parting with his title, by reason of the reservation in his contract of the mutual use of a dock situated on the tide lands, since the reservation shows either that it was thought that the dock was partly on the upland, or that it might pass as an appurtenance unless reserved: Book v. Thomas, 61 Wash. 607, 112 Pac. 917.

The owner of a foundry is not entitled to a preference right to purchase shore lands as the owner of "valuable improvements" prior to March 26, 1890, pursuant to sections 6750, 6754, by reason of the erection of an "office building" constructed by one man in two or three days, and a coke-shed of the capacity of one-half ton, the latter probably erected after March 26th, and the former at some indefinite time after December 24, 1889, the value of the buildings not being shown, especially in view of the fact that the state had asserted its title to all tide lands November 11, 1889: Pacific Iron Works v. Bryant Lumber & Shingle Mill Co., 60 Wash. 502, 111 Pac. 578.

As to the nature of riparian rights and the lands to which they attach, see note in 9 Ann. Cas. 1235.

CHAPTER XIII.

HARBOR LINES AND AREAS, AND SALES AND LEASES THEREOF.

§ 6776. Leasing of Harbor Areas for Booming Purposes.

That the board of state land commissioners be and hereby is authorized to lease any harbor area, tide lands or other lands of the state of Washington, whether the same be now reserved from lease or sale by any existing act or not, except tide lands or harbor area in front of any incorporated city or town or within two miles thereof on either side, and excepting any oyster reserve containing oysters in merchantable quantities, to any person, firm or corporation, for booming purposes. Such leases shall not be granted for a longer term than ten years from the date thereof; and the board of state land commissioners shall prior to the issuance of any such lease fix an annual rental for the lands leased, and prescribe the terms and conditions of the lease. The board may declare a forfeiture of any lease for a violation of any of the terms or conditions thereof. Any person, firm or corporation leasing any lands under the provisions of this act shall receive, hold and assort the logs and other timber products of all persons requesting such service, and upon the same terms and without discrimination, and may charge and collect tolls on all logs or other timber products so handled, said tolls not to exceed seventy-five cents per thousand on all logs, spars or other large timber, and reasonable rates on all other timber products, and shall be subject to the same duties and liabilities, so far as the same are applicable, as are imposed upon boom companies organized under the laws of this state. Failure to use any lands leased under the provisions of this act for boom purposes for a period of more than one year shall work a forfeiture of the lease, and such lands shall revert to the state without any notice or declaration of forfeiture. At the expiration of any lease issued under the provisions of this act, the original lessee shall have the preference right to release the lands covered by his original lease for a further term, not to exceed ten years, at such rental and upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the board of state land commissioners. [L. '11, p. 388, § 1.]

§ 6781-1. Lease by Port Commission.

The port commission of each port district heretofore created or hereafter to be created under the laws of the state of Washington, shall have full power and authority to lease the harbor areas and tide lands belonging to the state of Washington situate within the territorial limits of such port district to such persons and upon such terms and conditions conforming to the provisions of the constitution of the state of Washington as shall be determined by resolution of such port commission. Every such lease shall provide that the rentals thereunder shall be payable to the state treasurer. [L. '13, p. 585, § 1.]

§ 6781-2. Preference Rights to Abutting Owners.

The owner of any tide or shore lands abutting any such harbor area shall have the preference right, to be exercised by written application filed within ninety (90) days following the filing of the plat of any tide or shore lands hereafter to be filed, covering tide or shore lands or harbor area within the limits of any port district, or in case of plats heretofore filed, then within ninety (90) days following the taking effect of this act, to obtain a lease of the harbor area abutting his tide land or shore land for a thirty (30) year period, and every lease obtained by virtue of the exercise of such preference right shall conform to the provisions of the state constitution and shall provide that the harbor area described therein, or such a reasonable portion thereof as shall be designated by the port commission of such port district, having in view the requirements of the business proposed to be carried on thereon, shall be improved upon plans approved by such port commission, the construction of such improvement to be commenced within such time as may be fixed in each case by such port commission, such time to be in no case less than two (2) years from the date of such lease and be completed within such reasonable time thereafter as such port commission shall fix in each case, any of which times so fixed may be thereafter extended by such commission, the character of which improvements may, with the approval of the port commission, be changed either before or after completion, but in all cases where the abutting owner or one claiming under him had prior to February 22, 1913, built upon such area, his improvements shall, so far as otherwise conforming to the provisions of the state constitution, be recognized and accepted as a sufficient compliance with the requirements of this act so far as concerns the area covered thereby, and as to uncovered area such improvements shall be given the same consideration as in other cases, and every lease obtained by virtue of such preference shall further provide that the annual rental to be paid shall be a sum equal to two per cent of the assessed valuation for the year preceding the date of such lease of an equal area of adjoining or abutting shore or tide lands, exclusive of improvements thereon, and where the adjoining or abutting strip of shore or tide lands is of less width than the harbor area, a value proportional to said width: Provided further, however, That the foregoing provision fixing the rate of rental shall not extend beyond December 31, 1928, but all rentals after that date shall be subject to be controlled and fixed in the manner and by the public authority or authorities then provided by law for the same: Provided, further, That it shall not be necessary for any public corporation proposing to make use of any such harbor area to acquire by condemnation or otherwise the preference right hereby granted relating thereto, but nothing herein contained shall be construed to deprive any party to any such condemnation proceeding of any damages to which he would have been entitled if this act had not been passed. [L. '13, p. 585, § 2.]

§ 6781-3. Bond of Lessee—Rates.

The port commission shall require of every lessee under this act a bond with sufficient surety, to be approved by the port commission, in such penalty, and not exceeding twice the amount of the annual rental, but in no case less than five hundred dollars, as may be prescribed by the port commission, conditioned for the payment by the lessee of the rental reserved in his lease at or prior to the time of payment therein specified, during the term of such lease or during such part thereof as the port commission in its discretion shall require to be covered by such bond; and in case only a part of the term of such lease shall be covered thereby, said port commission shall require of such lessee another like bond, to be executed and delivered within three months and not less than one month prior to the expiration of the period covered by the previous bond, covering the remainder of the term of the lease, or such part thereof as the port commission in its discretion shall require to be covered thereby. The port commission shall have power at any time to summon sureties upon any bond and to examine into the sufficiency thereof, and if it shall find the same to be insufficient it shall require the lessee to file a new and sufficient bond within thirty days after receiving notice so to do, under penalty of cancellation of the lease; and the port commission shall have power upon sixty days' notice to cancel any lease for a substantial breach by the lessee of any of the conditions thereof, or for lack of a bond therewith as herein required. Notwithstanding any such lease now or hereafter existing the state shall ever retain and does hereby reserve the right to regulate the rates of wharfage, dockage or other tolls to be imposed by the lessee or his assigns upon commerce for any of the purposes for which the leased area may be used, and the right to prevent extortion and discrimination in such use thereof. [L. '13, p. 587, § 3.]

§ 6781-4. Preference Right to Re-lease.

The lessee under any lease now existing of harbor area situate in a port district, which shall be canceled or annulled for any reason, shall, upon such cancellation or annulment, have, for ninety (90) days thereafter, a preference right to a new lease, for the remainder of the term of the lease canceled or annulled, upon the terms and conditions provided in sections 6781-2 and 6781-3; but in all cases where any canceled or annulled lease contained provisions relating to the right of the state to annul or cancel the same, like provisions shall be incorporated in any new lease covering in whole or in part the same area. [L. '13, p. 588, § 4.]

§ 6781-5. Preference Rights Annulled.

All preferences of lease of harbor areas or tide lands situate in a port district heretofore created by the laws of the state of Washington, which have not been already exercised are hereby annulled. [L. '13, p. 588, § 5.]

§ 6781-6. Rentals from Harbor Areas and Tide Lands.

That the rents hereinafter to be paid under existing or future leases of harbor areas and also of tide lands belonging to the state of Washington, shall be hereafter disposed of as follows:

In cases where the leased harbor area or tide land is situated within the territorial limits of a port district already created or to be hereafter created under the laws of the state of Washington, seventy-five (75) per cent of the rents received for such cases shall be paid by the state treasurer to the county treasurer of the county wherein such port district is situated for the use of such port district and go into a special fund to be expended only for harbor or waterfront improvement purposes and the remaining twenty-five (25) per cent shall be paid into the general fund of the state treasury; except that in cases where the port district itself shall have constructed or shall own structures or improvements situate upon leased harbor areas, or tide lands, the entire rentals of such improved area or tide land shall go to such port district. In all other cases seventy-five (75) per cent of the rents shall be paid by the state treasurer into the county treasury of the county in which the leased harbor areas or tide lands are situate, the same to go into a special fund known as the "harbor improvement fund," and to be disbursed only for harbor or harbor improvement purposes; and the remaining twenty-five (25) per cent shall be paid into the general fund of the state treasury. The state treasurer being hereby authorized and directed to make such payments to the respective county treasurers for the use of such port districts or counties, as the case may be, on the first days of July and January of each year, of all moneys in his hands on such dates payable under the terms of this act to such port districts and counties respectively. [L. '13, p. 588, § 1.]

§ 6781-7. Use of Harbor Area—Structures Built by Permission of Land Commissioner—Terms and Conditions.

Whenever, in any waterways created under the laws of the state of Washington, the government of the United States shall have established pierhead lines in said waterway at any distance from the boundaries thereof established by the state, no structure shall be allowed in the strip of waterway between the boundary and the nearest pierhead line except by the consent of the state land commissioner and upon plans approved and terms and conditions fixed by him, and then only for such period of use as shall be designated by him, but any permit shall not extend for a longer period than thirty (30) years: Provided, however, That the owner of land abutting upon either side of any such waterway shall have the right, if application be made therefor within a period of ninety (90) days following the date when this act shall go into effect, to obtain such a permit for a thirty (30) year term, and every permit obtained by virtue of the exercise of such right shall provide that the area described therein or such reasonable portion thereof as shall be designated by the state land commissioner, having in view the requirements of the business proposed to be carried on thereon, shall be improved upon plans approved by the state land commissioner, the construction of such improvement to be commenced within such time as may be fixed in each case by the state land commissioner, such time to be in no case less than two (2) years from the date of such permit, to be completed within such reasonable time thereafter as the state land commissioner shall fix in each case, any of which times so fixed may be thereafter extended by him, the character of which improvements may be changed either before or after completion with the consent of the state land commissioner, but in all cases where the abutting owner or one claiming under him had prior to February 22, 1913, built upon such area, his improvements shall be recognized and accepted as a sufficient compliance with the requirements of this act so far as concerns the area covered thereby, and as to uncovered area such improvements shall be given the same consideration as in other cases, and every permit obtained by virtue of the exercise of such right shall further provide that the annual rental to be paid shall be a sum equal to two per cent of the assessed valuation for the year preceding the date of such permit of an equal area of adjoining or abutting shore or tide lands, exclusive of improvements thereon, and where the adjoining or abutting strip of shore or tide lands is of less width than the harbor area, a value proportional to said width: Provided further, however, That the foregoing provision fixing the rate of rental shall not extend beyond December 31, 1928, but all rentals after that date shall be subject to be controlled and fixed in the manner and by the public authority or authorities then provided by law for the same: Provided further, That it shall not be necessary for any public corporation proposing to make use of any such strip of waterway to acquire by condemnation or otherwise the right hereby granted relating thereto, but nothing herein contained shall be construed to deprive any party to any such condemnation proceeding of any damages to which he would have been entitled if this act had not been passed. The state land commissioner shall require of the holder of every permit under this act a bond with sufficient surety, to be approved by said commissioner, in such penalty, and not exceeding twice the amount of the annual rental, but in no case less than five hundred dollars, as may be prescribed by said commissioner, conditioned for the payment of the rental reserved in the permit at or prior to the time of payment therein specified, during the term of such permit or during such part thereof as said commissioner in his discretion shall require to be covered by such bond; and in case only a part of the term of such permit shall be covered thereby, said commissioner shall require another like bond, to be executed and delivered within three months and not less than one month prior to the expiration of the period covered by the previous bond, covering the remainder of the term of the permit, or such part thereof as said commissioner in his discretion shall require to be covered thereby. The said commissioner shall have power at any time to summon sureties upon any bond and to examine into the sufficiency thereof, and if he shall find the same to be insufficient he shall require the holder of the permit to file a new and sufficient bond within thirty days after receiving notice so to do, under penalty of cancellation of the permit; and the said commissioner shall have power upon sixty days' notice to cancel any permit for a substantial breach by the holder thereof of any of the conditions thereof, or for lack of a bond therewith as herein required. In any case where such waterway shall be within the territorial limits of a port district organized under the laws of the state of Washington, the duties herein assigned to the state land commissioner shall be exercised by the port commission of such port district, and in every case the rentals received shall be disposed of as follows: Seventy-five (75) per cent shall be paid by the state treasurer to the county treasurer of the county wherein such port district is situated, for the use of said port district and twenty-five (25) per cent, into the state treasury, except that in cases where the port district itself shall have constructed or shall own structures or improvements situate upon such strip of waterway the entire rentals for such improved strip of waterway shall be paid directly to such county treasurer for the use of such port district. Nothing herein contained shall confer upon, create or recognize in any abutting owner any right or privilege in or to any strip of waterway abutting any street and between prolongations of the lines of such street, but the control of and the right to use such strip is hereby reserved to the state of Washington, except that in cases situate in a port district such control and use shall vest in such port district. [L. '13, p. 582, § 1.]

CHAPTER XIV. LEASING OF MINERAL LANDS.

This section, providing for the leasing of state lands on the discovery of precious minerals, leaves no discretion in the commissioner of public lands where the law has been complied with: State ex rel. Pindall v. Ross, 55 Wash. 242, 104 Pac. 216.

As to the distinction between a lease and a license in respect of mineral lands, see note in 18 L. R. A. 492.

The commissioner of public lands is not limited in the execution of leases of state mineral lands, for prospecting purposes, to the government legal subdivisions of a section, by the proviso to this section, authorizing the changing of boundaries to conform to the section lines, since the law permits a lease for "any amount not to exceed eighty acres," and should not be construed to authorize the leasing of other than mineral lands: State ex rel. Pindall v. Ross, 55 Wash. 242, 104 Pac. 216.

CHAPTER XVI. ACQUISITION OF OYSTER LANDS.

The grantee of tide lands extending only to mean low tide has no interest entitling him to object to a state sale of oyster lands lying below the line of mean low tide, since only the state can question the right of another to purchase such lands: Pearl Oyster Co. v. Heuston, 57 Wash. 533, 135 Am. St. Rep. 1007, 107 Pac. 349, 832.

As to right of fishery separated from upland, see note in 40 L. R. A. 393.

As to the right of the state to grant tide land so as to destroy wharfage right of shore owner, see note in 63 L. R. A. 264.

§ 6804.

Judicial powers are not conferred on the state land commissioner by this section, since the state deed is not absolute but conditional and contains the conditions of the defeasance, and the administrative officers may be clothed with quasi-judicial powers, having no authority to fix a penalty: State ex rel. Abbott v. Ross, 62 Wash. 82, 113 Pac. 273.

The state land commissioner is authorized to hear and determine an application for the cancellation of a state deed for oyster lands, by this section providing that if oyster lands sold by the state shall be used for any other purpose than oyster culture, the deed shall be canceled upon application to the state land commissioner: State ex rel. Abbott v. Ross, 62 Wash. 82, 113 Pac. 273.

Under this section, providing for the cancellation by the commissioner of public lands of state oyster land deeds for breach of condition, but which fails to provide the form of notice to be given to the grantee, any suitable notice of application for the cancellation is sufficient: State ex rel. Abbott v. Ross, 62 Wash. 82, 113 Pac. 273.

As to the power of the states to regulate the taking of fish in tide waters, see note in 23 Am. St. Rep. 837; and see note in 42 Am. St. Rep. 138.

This section, providing for the cancellation of a state oyster land deed for breach of condition is not impliedly repealed by other general laws relating to tide lands somewhat inconsistent therewith, since there is no plain legislative intent to that end, and the act is not among the acts expressly repealed and may exist without any necessary conflict with the general acts: State ex rel. Abbott v. Ross, 62 Wash. 82, 113 Pac. 273.

CHAPTER XVII. SALE OF ARTIFICIAL OYSTER-BEDS TO OCCUPIERS.

Where, under this and the next section, state oyster lands are deeded for the purposes of oyster culture, with reversion to the state in case the lands are not used for that purpose, the state reserving the right to repurchase on paying for improvements, the state cannot convey the fee and reversion to a third person: Scott v. Olympia Oyster Co., 63 Wash. 364, 115 Pac. 737.

One who fraudulently obtained the fee to state oyster lands by false representations that they were not oyster lands, knowing that a conditional fee had been granted for the purposes of oyster culture, cannot maintain ejectment against parties in possession under the oyster land deed: Scott v. Olympia Oyster Co., 63 Wash. 364, 115 Pac. 737.

As to remedies for the interference with rights of fishery, see note in 131 Am. St. Rep. 764.

CHAPTER XXII.

RIGHTS OF WAY OVER PUBLIC LANDS.

§ 6831-1. Reservation of Logging Rights of Way—Condemnation.

All state lands hereafter granted, sold or leased containing timber, stone, mineral or other products or when other state lands contiguous or in proximity thereto contain valuable timber, stone, mineral or other products, shall be subject to the right of the state, or any grantee or lessee thereof hereafter acquiring such other lands, or acquiring the timber, stone, mineral or other products thereon, to acquire the right of way over such lands so granted, for private railroads, skid roads, flumes, canals, watercourses or other easements for the purpose of and to be used in the transporting and moving of such timber, stone, mineral or other product from such other lands, over and across the lands so granted or leased, upon the state or its grantee paying to the owner of the lands so granted, sold or leased reasonable compensation therefor. In case the parties interested cannot agree upon the damages incurred, the same shall be ascertained and assessed in the same manner as damages are ascertained and assessed against a railroad seeking to condemn private property. [L. '11, p. 506, § 1.]

§ 6831-2. Subject to Right of State—Railroad Commission to Control.

Every grant, deed, conveyance, lease or contract hereafter made to any person, firm or corporation over and across any state lands for the purpose of right of way for any private railroad, skid road, flume, canal, watercourse or other easement to be used in the hauling of timber, stone, mineral or other products of the land, shall be subject to the right of the state or any grantee thereof or other person owning or hereafter acquiring any lands containing valuable timber, stone, mineral or other products contiguous to or in proximity thereto, or hereafter acquiring the timber, stone, mineral or other product situate upon state lands so contiguous or in close proximity to the said lands, over which said right of way or easement is acquired having such timber, stone, mineral or other product transported or moved over such railroad, skid road, flume, canal, watercourse or other easement after the same is or has been put in operation upon paying therefor just and reasonable rates for transportation or for the use of such railroad, skid road, flume, canal, watercourse or other easement and upon complying with just, reasonable and proper rules affecting such transportation, which rates, rules and regulations shall be under the supervision and control of the railroad commission of Washington. [L. '11, p. 507, § 2.]

§ 6831-3. Right to Transport—Charges.

Any person, firm or corporation hereafter acquiring the right of way or other easement over state lands or over any tide or shore land belonging to the state or over or across any navigable water or stream for the purpose of transporting or moving timber, stone, mineral or other products, and engaged in such business thereon, shall accord to the state or any grantee thereof hereafter acquiring lands containing valuable timber, stone, mineral or other products contiguous and in proximity thereto, or any person, firm or corporation hereafter acquiring the timber, stone, mineral or other products situate upon state lands so contiguous and in proximity to the lands over which said right of way or easement is operated, proper and reasonable facilities and service for the transportation and moving of such timber, stone, mineral and other products under reasonable rules and regulations and upon payment of just and reasonable charges therefor, or, if such right of way or other easement is not then in use to have the right to use such right of way or easement for transporting and moving such products under such reasonable rules and regulations and upon payment of just and reasonable charges therefor. [L. '11, p. 507, § 3.]

§ 6831-4. Appeal to Commission—Order.

Should the owner or operator of any private line of railroad, skid road, flume, canal, watercourse or other easement operating over lands hereafter acquired from the state, as in this act set out, fail to agree with the state or with any subsequent grantee thereof as to the reasonable and proper rules, regulations and charges concerning the transportation of timber, stone, mineral or other products, from lands contiguous or in proximity of the lands over which the right of way or easement is granted, for carrying and transporting such products or for the use of the railroad, skid road, flume, canal, watercourse or other easement in transporting such product, the state or such person, firm or corporation owning and desiring to ship such products may apply to the railroad commission and have the reasonableness of the rules, regulations and charges inquired into and it shall be the duty of the railroad commission to inquire into the same in the same manner and it is hereby given the same power and authority to investigate the same as it is now authorized to investigate and inquire into the rules and regulations and charges made by railroads and is authorized and empowered to make such order as it would make in an inquiry against a railroad, and in case such railroad, skid road, flume, canal, watercourse or other easement is not then in use may make such reasonable, proper and just rules and regulations concerning the use thereof for the purposes aforesaid as may be just and proper and such order shall have the same force and effect and be binding upon the parties to such hearing as though such hearing and order was made affecting a railroad. [L. '11, p. 508, § 4.]

§ 6831-5. Penalty—Rights Revert to State.

In case any person, firm or corporation owning and operating any private railroad, skid road, flume, canal, watercourse or other easement over and across lands hereafter acquired from the state obtained subject to the provisions of this act shall fail to comply with any rule, regulation or order made by the railroad commission after an inquiry as provided for in the preceding section, such person, firm or corporation shall be subject to a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars for each and every violation thereof, and in addition thereto such right of way, railroad, skid road, flume, canal, watercourse or other easement and all improvements and structures on such right of way and connected therewith, shall revert to the state of Washington and may be recovered by it in an action instituted in any court of competent jurisdiction. [L. '11, p. 509, § 5.]

TITLE LIII.

LIBRARIES, MUSEUMS AND HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

CHAPTER I.

STATE LIBRARIES.

§ 6958. Salary of Librarian.

The state librarian shall receive an annual salary of fifteen hundred dollars, to be paid monthly, and the state auditor shall draw warrants on the state treasurer therefor. [L. '13, p. 246, § 1.]

CHAPTER II.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES AND MUSEUMS.

§ 6971. Establishment—Petition and Vote.

By a majority vote at any election, any county, city, village, town, school district, or other body authorized to levy and collect taxes, or by a vote of its county commissioners upon petition of one hundred (100) voters voting at the last election, any county, or by a vote of its common council, any city, may establish and maintain a free public library with or without branches, either by itself or in connection with any other body authorized to maintain such library. Whenever twenty-five taxpayers shall petition, the question of providing library facilities shall be voted on at the next election or meeting at which taxes may be voted: Provided, That due public notice shall have been given of the proposed action. [L. '13, p. 383, § 1.]

TITLE LIV.

LICENSES.

CHAPTER II.

BARBERS.

§ 7010. Bond of Treasurer—Oath of Members.

The treasurer of said board shall give surety bond to be approved by and deposited with the auditor of the state in the sum of $1,000, and the members of said board shall take the oath provided by law for public offices. The cost of said bond shall be paid by the state. [L. '13, p. 258, § 1.]

§ 7011. Compensation and Expenses.

Each member of the barbers' examining board shall receive a compensation of five dollars per day for each day in which he is actually and necessarily engaged in attendance upon meetings of the board, and in going to and in returning from the place of meeting, and all necessary expenses incurred in attending such meeting; all such compensations and expenses and all other expenses incident to the execution of the provisions of this act shall be paid by the state treasurer upon warrants drawn by the state auditor upon the presentation of proper vouchers, to be approved by a majority of said board, as in the case of state officers. The secretary and treasurer of said board shall receive a compensation to be determined by said board not to exceed $50 per month. All money received or collected by said board or any member or officer thereof during any month shall be turned over before the tenth day of the succeeding month to the state treasurer together with a verified statement showing the sources from which such money was derived. [L. '13, p. 259, § 2.]

CHAPTER V.

EMBALMERS.

§ 7040. Bond of Treasurer.

The treasurer shall give surety bond to be approved by and deposited with the auditor of the state, in the sum of $1,000 and the members of said board shall take the oath provided by law for public officers. The cost of said bond shall be paid by the state. [L. '13, p. 251, § 1.]

§ 7041. Compensation of Members.

Each member of the state embalmers' examining board shall receive a compensation of five dollars a day for each day in which he is actually and necessarily engaged in attendance upon the meetings of the board, and in going to and returning from the place of meeting, and all necessary expenses incurred in attending such meetings; all such compensation and expenses and all expenses incident to the execution of the provisions of this act shall be paid by the state treasurer upon warrants drawn by the state auditor upon the presentation of proper vouchers to be approved by a majority of said board, as in the case of state officers. The secretary and treasurer of said board shall receive a compensation to be determined by said board not to exceed $100 per annum. All money received or collected by said board or any member or officer thereof, during any month shall be turned over before the 10th day of the succeeding month to the state treasurer, together with a verified statement showing the sources from which such money was derived. [L. '13, p. 252, § 2.]

CHAPTER VI.

This act, requiring a county license from all peddlers except in cities and towns when their licensing is regulated by such cities or towns is not an unconstitutional discrimination between classes, since the legislature may delegate, as a revenue measure, the power on the subject to cities and towns, and it is not necessary that the police power be exercised by uniform regulations throughout the state: McKnight v. Hedge, 55 Wash. 289, 104 Pac. 504.

This act requiring a county license from peddlers, except peddlers of agricultural and farm products, and books, periodicals and newspapers, does not arbitrarily discriminate between persons in substantially the same situation, but the classification is reasonable and germane to the object and purposes of the legislation and therefore constitutional: McKnight v. Hodge, 55 Wash. 289, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 1207, 104 Pac. 504.

This act, requiring a license fee of one hundred dollars from peddlers on foot, one hundred and fifty dollars and two hundred and fifty dollars from peddlers with one and two horses, and three hundred dollars from peddlers with other conveyances, is not unconstitutional as exacting unequal fees, as the classification is a proper basis for measuring the license fee: McKnight v. Hodge, 55 Wash. 289, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 1207, 104 Pac. 504.

The proviso to this section, that county peddlers' licenses shall expire by limitation on the second Monday in January succeeding the year in which they were issued, is wholly inconsistent with and repugnant to the body of the act requiring the issuance of an annual license authorizing the licensee to do business for the term of one year from the date thereof, and is therefore inoperative and void: McKnight v. Hodge, 55 Wash. 289, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 1207, 104 Pac. 504.

As to who is a "peddler" within licensing statute or ordinance, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1289.

CHAPTER VII.

TRADING STAMPS.

§ 7069-1. Licenses for Stamps.

Every person, firm or corporation who shall use, and every person, firm or corporation who shall furnish to any other person, firm or corporation to use, in, with, or for the sale of any goods, wares or merchandise, any stamps, coupons, tickets, certificates, cards, or other similar devices which shall entitle the purchaser receiving the same with such sale of goods, wares or merchandise to procure from any person, firm, or corporation any goods, wares, or merchandise, free of charge or for less than the retail market price thereof, upon the production of any number of said stamps, coupons, tickets, certificates, cards, or other similar devices, shall before so furnishing, selling, or using the same obtain a separate license from the auditor of each county wherein such furnishing or selling or using shall take place for each and every store or place of business in that county, owned or conducted by such person, firm or corporation from which such furnishing or selling, or in which such using, shall take place. [L. '13, p. 413, § 1.]

§ 7069-2. County License.

In order to obtain such license the person, firm, or corporation applying therefor shall pay to the county treasurer of the county for which such license is sought the sum of six thousand dollars, and upon such payment being made to the county treasurer he shall issue his receipt therefor which shall be presented to the auditor of the same county, who shall upon the presentation thereof issue to the person, firm, or corporation making such payment a license to furnish or sell, or a license to use, for one year, the stamps, coupons, tickets, certificates, cards, or other similar devices mentioned in section 7069-1. Such license shall contain the name of the grantee thereof, the date of its issue, the date of its expiration, the town or city in which and the location at which the same shall be used, and such license shall be used at no place other than that mentioned therein. [L. '13, p. 414, § 2.]

§ 7069-3. How Redeemed.

No person, firm, or corporation shall furnish or sell to any other person, firm, or corporation to use, in, with, or for the sale of any goods, wares, or merchandise, any such stamps, coupons, tickets, certificates, cards, or other similar devices for use in any town, city or county in this state other than that in which such furnishing or selling shall take place. [L. '13, p. 414, § 3.]

§ 7069-4. Penalty.

Any person, firm, or corporation violating any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '13, p. 414, § 4.]

TITLE LV. LOGS AND LOGGING.

CHAPTER III. MARKING AND DRIVING.

§ 7100.

Shore rights required to facilitate the driving of logs must be acquired by private treaty of condemnation: State ex rel. United Tanners Timber Co. v. Superior Court, 60 Wash. 193, 110 Pac. 1017.

As to occupancy of premises in relation to logging contracts, see 4 L. R. A., N. S., 702.

As to right to use stream for floating logs, see note in 41 L. R. A. 371.

CHAPTER IV. TOLL-LOGGING ROADS.

The power of eminent domain is not conferred for private purposes by sections 7107, 7109, granting the right to toll logging roads, chutes, flumes, and artificial watercourses for the carriage of timber products, under the requirement that the road transport all timber products offered for carriage as its means of transportation is adapted to carry, and providing that such roads shall be deemed quasi-public companies and common carriers; and the fact that its duty is limited to the carriage of timber products does not affect the public character of the service: State ex rel. Clark v. Superior Court, 62 Wash. 612, 114 Pac. 444.

CHAPTER V. BOOM COMPANIES.

A boom company may temporarily obstruct a river for such time as may be necessary to sort and pass the logs of the owners below: State ex rel. United Tanners' Timber Co. v. Superior Court, 60 Wash. 193, 110 Pac. 1017.

Open, notorious, and continuous use of a nonmeandered stream for more than ten years, under a claim of right (a notice of appropriation filed with the secretary of state under this section), for the purpose of floating logs by means of splash dams, creates an easement and right to make use of the stream, as against subsequent purchasers of riparian lands who knew of such use at the time of their purchase and acquiesced therein until the prescriptive period had run: Berryman v. East Hoquiam Boom & Logging Co., 68 Wash. 657, 124 Pac. 130.

As to prescriptive title to water, see note in 93 Am. St. Rep. 719.

As to log booms in stream, see note in 39 L. R. A. 491.

Riparian owners on a navigable stream, whose means of ingress and egress to and from their lands is totally obstructed by a boom company, are entitled to maintain an action to enjoin the obstruction, although it may be a public nuisance: Hulet v. Wishkah Boom Co., 54 Wash. 510, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1127, 103 Pac. 814.

An order compelling a boom company to remove a boom and clear away logs and jams in a river is warranted, notwithstanding that the acts of loggers were claimed to have caused the obstructions, where it appears by the findings that the boom company contracted with loggers for the use of its splash dams, whereby logs were driven down the stream by artificial freshets, a toll being paid to the company for such drives, that the log jams and injury to riparian owners resulted therefrom, that more logs were driven down than could be handled by the company's boom, and that the loggers placed a boom across the river to hold such accumulations, which boom the company opened from time to time and replaced, since the loggers are shown to be so closely connected with the company as to be either its servants or joint tort-feasors: Hulet v. Wishkah Boom Co., 54 Wash. 510, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1127, 103 Pac. 814.

In condemnation proceedings by a boom company to condemn riparian rights of owners on the bank of a stream in which the tide ebbs and flows, the owners are not entitled to have the damages assessed with reference to the value of the property as a boom site, since the right to maintain a boom is not appurtenant to the uplands, the tide lands belong to the state, and the boom site may be granted by the state without reference to riparian ownership: Gray's Harbor Boom Co. v. Lownsdale, 54 Wash. 83, 102 Pac. 1041, 104 Pac. 267.

In condemnation proceedings of lands and shore rights for a boom site, a riparian owner is not entitled to damages for the probable value of his land for a mill site or for commercial purposes depending in any degree on the use of the tide lands embraced in the boom site: Gray's Harbor Boom Co. v. Lownsdale, 54 Wash. 83, 102 Pac. 1041, 104 Pac. 267.

In condemnation of shore and uplands needed by a boom company for booming purposes, the jury may take into consideration the value of the land as a boom site, where the defendants are owners of the shore as well as the uplands: Columbia & Cowlitz River Boom & Rafting Co. v. Hutchinson, 56 Wash. 323, 105 Pac. 636.

In condemnation for a boom site, the owners are entitled to compensation for the land taken and added inconveniences in getting to the navigable channel, and for damages by reason of erosions necessarily caused by the proper and lawful maintenance of the boom, and the changed use of the stream: Gray's Harbor Boom Co. v. Lownsdale, 54 Wash. 83, 102 Pac. 1041, 104 Pac. 267.

As to relative rights and duties between those maintaining dam in floatable stream and those using stream for floating logs, see notes in 22 L. R. A., N. S., 545, and 28 L. R. A., N. S., 144.

This section does not prevent a company from condemning the right to damage by artificial freshets lower lands outside of the plat, where the company was not seeking to improve the river or exercise its granted powers at the point where the injury occurs, as the object of the act was that of notice to riparian owners where the improvements were to be made: State ex rel. Gray's Harbor Boom Co. v. Superior Court, 57 Wash. 71, 106 Pac. 481.

"Contiguous lands" in this section is not to be restricted to lands "next to" or "touching" the river: State ex rel. Gray's Harbor Boom Co. v. Superior Court, 57 Wash. 71, 106 Pac. 481.

This section, granting boom and driving companies the right to construct booms and splash dams for the driving of logs and timber products, under the right of eminent domain, provided that the "outlet" of the stream is not obstructed, by necessary implication gives the right to obstruct restricted navigation in small streams at times when such use is necessarily an exclusive one; and such obstruction would not fall within the general statutes defining nuisances or be a valid objection to eminent domain proceedings to condemn the right to overflowed lands: State ex rel. Pealer v. Superior Court, 58 Wash. 565, 109 Pac. 340.

Under this section a boom company which had improved a navigable stream upon which it was not previously practicable to float logs, thereby aiding in the floating of logs, is entitled to driving charges without any actual work in handling the logs, the tolls being simply compensation for benefits conferred by improving the stream, and the right to impose the same being a right of government: Franck v. Pittock & Leadbetter Lumber Co., 67 Wash. 553, 122 Pac. 7.

As to relative rights and duties between those maintaining dam in floatable stream and those using stream for floating logs, see notes in 22 L. R. A., N. S., 545 and 28 L. R. A., N. S., 144.

TITLE LVII.

§ 7150.

A marriage between first cousins domiciled in Seattle, contracted in Victoria, B. C., where they went to evade the law of this state prohibiting such marriages, the parties immediately returning to their domicile, is void, and it is error to refuse a decree of divorce therefrom: Johnson v. Johnson, 57 Wash. 89, 26 L. R. A., N. S., 170, 106 Pac. 500.

As to incestuous marriages, see note in 79 Am. St. Rep. 378; and see note in 1 Ann. Cas. 613.

As to the exception of incestuous marriages to the rule of valid when made valid everywhere, see note in 60 Am. St. Rep. 942.

In an action by a woman for a breach of promise of marriage which occurred but a few months before the action was commenced, evidence of the defendant's financial ability at the time of the trial is admissible: Fisher v. Kenyon, 56 Wash. 8, 20 Ann. Cas. 1264, 104 Pac. 1127.

As to admissibility of defendant's financial condition, see note in 20 Ann. Cas. 1265.

A verdict for nine thousand dollars for breach of promise of marriage, reduced by the trial court to six thousand, is not excessive, where it appears that the parties were engaged for two years, that defendant induced the plaintiff to remove from Montana to this state, where the wedding was to take place, that she was greatly humiliated, and the defendant admitted that he was worth twenty-five thousand dollars, and there was evidence that he was worth several times that amount: Fisher v. Kenyon, 56 Wash. 8, 20 Ann. Cas. 1264, 104 Pac. 1127.

As to what is excessive verdict, in breach of promise action, see note in 16 Ann. Cas. 981.

As to the rule of damages in such cases, see note in 10 L. R. A. 585.

In an action for breach of promise of marriage, the question of the promise is for the jury, where the evidence is conflicting and the course of conduct strongly corroborates the plaintiff: Fisher v. Kenyon, 56 Wash. 8, 20 Ann. Cas. 1264, 104 Pac. 1127.

In an action for breach of marriage promise, in which there was evidence tending to show that the plaintiff was in good health when the promise was made but became too ill to marry, and that the marriage had been postponed from time to time for three years on account of plaintiff's ill-health, and finally abandoned for that reason, the defendant is entitled to have the jury instructed to the effect that if the plaintiff became too ill to enter into the marriage relation, and the defendant had waited a reasonable time and she had not recovered, the defendant would have a right to withdraw from the engagement, ill-health on the part of a woman healthy when the promise was made being a good defense to the action: Travis v. Schnebly, 68 Wash. 1, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 585, 122 Pac. 316.

As to disease affecting plaintiff as defense in breach of promise case, see note in 12 Ann. Cas. 197.

All presumptions both of law and fact will aid findings of fact in support of the validity of a marriage: Thomas v. Thomas, 53 Wash. 297, 101 Pac. 865.

While a common-law marriage is not valid in this state, cohabitation and reputation raises a rebuttable presumption of a valid ceremonial marriage: Weatherall v. Weatherall, 56 Wash. 344, 105 Pac. 822.

As to presumptions flowing from marriage ceremony, see note in 16 L. R. A., N. S., 98.

As to presumption in support of a second marriage, see note in 89 Am. St. Rep. 198.

As to presumption as to validity of subsequent marriage, see note in 17 Ann. Cas. 680.

Evidence of cohabitation between a white man and an Indian woman, and of reputation and declarations of the husband that they were married, and of the manner in which they lived together and the opinion of friends and neighbors, is admissible to raise the presumption of a ceremonial marriage, and to supplement evidence of a marriage ceremony performed by an Indian chief assuming to act as a minister: Weatherall v. Weatherall, 56 Wash. 344, 105 Pac. 822.

As to marriage between whites and Indians, see note in 79 Am. St. Rep. 382.

This section, prohibiting marriage between persons nearer of kin than second cousins, was not impliedly repealed by section 2455, defining incest, or by sections 7153, 7164, 7165, relating to and prohibiting marriages in certain other specified cases: State v. Nakashima, 62 Wash. 686, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 220, 114 Pac. 894.

§ 7154. Who may Solemnize.

The following named officers and persons are hereby authorized to solemnize marriages, to wit: judges of the supreme court, judges of the superior courts, any regularly licensed or ordained minister or any priest of any church or religious denomination anywhere within the state, and justices of the peace within their respective counties. [L. '13, p. 92, § 1.]

Lack of authority of one officiating as a minister in a marriage ceremony is admissible upon an issue as to whether the authority was exercised: Weatherall v. Weatherall, 63 Wash. 526, 115 Pac. 1078.

A marriage ceremony wherein a white man and an Indian woman agreed to take each other as husband and wife, performed by an Indian chief who was a Christian of the Presbyterian faith, and who assumed to be a minister, and to have authority to unite people in marriage, is within this and the next section: Weatherall v. Weatherall, 56 Wash. 344, 105 Pac. 822.

As to necessity and form of contract of marriage, see note in 124 Am. St. Rep. 107.

As to what constitutes marriage, see note in 69 Am. Dec. 615.

§ 7161.

The testimony of an Indian woman that she was married to a white man, with whom she had intimate relations, is overcome where the preponderance of the evidence is to the effect that no ceremony was performed and that they did not live together as man and wife; the man described himself in many conveyances as a single man; and any presumption from cohabitation is overcome by evidence of the previous bad character of the woman and of similar relations with other men: Weatherall v. Weatherall, 63 Wash. 526, 115 Pac. 1078.

As to the competency and sufficiency of evidence of marriage, see note in 57 Am. Rep. 451.

This section authorizing the annulment of a marriage for fraud is merely jurisdictional and refers to the force or fraud of the unwritten law of marriage contracts: Thorne v. Farrar, 57 Wash. 441, 135 Am. St. Rep. 995, 27 L. R. A., N. S., 385, 107 Pac. 347.

A marriage entered into by a man in order to secure his release from arrest on a charge of seduction will not be annulled on the ground of duress, where the charge was not made maliciously or without probable cause, and he did not aver and prove the falsity of the charge: Thorne v. Farrar, 57 Wash. 441, 135 Am. St. Rep. 995, 27 L. R. A., N. S., 385, 107 Pac. 347.

As to marriage procured by fraud, see note in 79 Am. St. Rep. 372.

As to effect of duress, generally, to avoid marriage, see note in 43 L. R. A. 814. See, also, note in 27 L. R. A., N. S. 803.

Duress as ground for annulment of a marriage must be shown by clear, satisfactory, and convincing evidence; and the evidence is insufficient where it appears that the plaintiff, a young man twenty-six years of age, upon demand of an attorney and a police officer, accompanied them to defendant's home, where he was charged with the paternity of defendant's unborn child, and threatened by defendant's mother with a criminal prosecution if he refused to marry; that he then agreed to meet them the next morning to go to another city and marry the defendant, which arrangement was carried out; that he did not see the officer or attorney after the agreement and had ample time before the marriage to consult relatives or an attorney; and that at the trial he exercised his privilege of refusing to answer as to whether he had carnally known the defendant, and was apparently persuaded to marry by the promptings of conscience rather than by threats of prosecution: Thorne v. Farrar, 57 Wash. 441, 135 Am. St. Rep. 995, 27 L. R. A., N. S., 385, 107 Pac. 347.

As to right to avoid marriage entered into to escape prosecution for seduction, see note in 14 Ann. Cas. 869. See, also, note in 16 L. R. A., N. S., 938.

Upon an issue as to the performance of a marriage ceremony, the absence of a license and failure to make any return as required by law are proper facts to be considered, but not conclusive as they do not invalidate a marriage otherwise valid: Weatherall v. Weatherall, 63 Wash. 526, 115 Pac. 1078.

As to the validity of marriage without license required by statute, see notes in 7 Ann. Cas. 784 and 14 Ann. Cas. 953.

TITLE LVIII.

MILITIA.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF NATIONAL GUARD.

§ 7179. Composition and Strength of the National Guard.

The National Guard of Washington shall include at all times an adjutant general's department, an infantry branch of not less than twelve companies, a coast artillery branch of not less than four companies and a cavalry branch of not less than one troop. The commander-in-chief may authorize and cause to be organized within the National Guard of Washington such additional departments, corps, branches, arms and organizations as he shall deem necessary, but in times of peace the total strength of the land forces shall not be in excess of four thousand officers and men. The strength and composition of departments excepting the adjutant general's department, corps, branches, arms and tactical and administrative subdivisions shall be prescribed from time to time in orders or regulations by the commander-in-chief, in the cases of tactical and administrative subdivisions at all times conforming as nearly as practicable to the laws and regulations of the United States pertaining to the militia. Subject to the limitations imposed by law the commander-in-chief shall have power at will to alter, divide, consolidate, disband, muster out or reorganize departments, excepting the adjutant general's department, corps, branches, arms and tactical or administrative subdivisions either now existing or hereafter created. Nothing in this section shall be construed as affecting the present status of now existing organizations. [L. '13, p. 224, § 1.]

§ 7179-1. Naval Militia—Organization.

There is hereby authorized, in addition to and as a part of the organized forces of the National Guard of the state of Washington, a Naval Militia, which shall consist of not more than five hundred officer and men. Said militia to bear the same relation to the United States navy as the land forces of the National Guard bear to the United States army, and the Naval Militia of the state shall be organized and governed by the rules, regulations, and articles for the government of the United States navy in the same manner and to the same extent as the land forces of the National Guard of the state are now organized and governed by the rules, regulations and articles of war of the United States army. [L. '11, p. 491, § 1.]

§ 7179-2. Officers of Naval Militia.

The line officers of the Naval Militia shall consist of a captain who shall be the commanding and ranking officer, not to exceed four lieutenant-commanders, one of whom may be detailed as executive officer, one as navigating officer, one as chief engineer; a lieutenant, a lieutenant junior grade, and an ensign for each division organized, and such other line officers as may be expedient or sufficient to make up a ship's company of the first class in conformity with the articles, laws, customs and regulations governing the United States navy. In addition to the line officers there may be commissioned a surgeon and a paymaster with rank of lieutenant-commander, a chaplain with rank of lieutenant, and such other staff officers as may be necessary or sufficient to complete a ship's company in conformity with the articles and regulations of the United States navy. [L. '11, p. 492, § 2.]

§ 7179-3. Annual Duty.

The Naval Militia, or such portion as the commanding officer may select, may be required to perform cruise duty annually on the United States vessels or vessel loaned this state by the United States for at least five consecutive days, or such further time as the commander-in-chief may order. [L. '11, p. 492, § 3.]

§ 7179-4. Naval Militia Regiment.

For the purpose of business and military administration the Naval Militia shall be considered as a regiment; and a division of Naval Militia, consisting of not more than sixty nor less than forty enlisted men, shall be considered as a company of infantry. [L. '11, p. 492, § 4.]

§ 7179-5. Election of Officers—Rank.

The law governing the election and appointment of officers in the National Guard, and the relative rank as recognized in the army and navy of the United States shall apply to the Naval Militia: Provided, however, That the examining boards for officers of the Naval Militia shall be composed so far as practicable of officers of the United States navy detailed for that purpose by the secretary of the navy upon the request of the commander-in-chief: Provided, further, That the first commission issued to any officer shall be for a probationary period of six months, at the expiration of which time the commission may be regularly issued at the discretion of the commander-in-chief: And provided further, that previous military or naval service shall not be required of a candidate for appointment as a lieutenant commanding a division. [L. '11, p. 492, § 5.]

§ 7182. When Commander-in-chief may Order Out National Guard.

In event of war, insurrection, rebellion, invasion, tumult, riot, mob or body of men acting together by force with intent to commit a felony or to offer violence to persons or property, or by force and violence to break and resist the laws of this state, or the United States, or in case of imminent danger of the occurrence of any of said events, or in event of public disaster resulting from flood, conflagration, tempest or cataclysm, the governor shall have power to order the National Guard of Washington or any part thereof into the active service of the state, and to cause them to perform such duty as he shall deem proper. The governor shall also have power to order out the National Guard or any part thereof to preserve order and keep people within bounds at any large public assemblage, provided that such action shall be taken only upon written request of the mayor of the city and the sheriff of the county within which said assemblage is to occur. [L. '13, p. 225, § 2.]

§ 7193. The Adjutant General's Department.

The adjutant general's department shall consist of the adjutant general, one assistant adjutant general who shall be designated as adjutant general, one chief clerk, one stenographer, one storekeeper and such other civilian employees as shall be authorized by the commander-in-chief. The salary of the adjutant general shall be twenty-five hundred ($2500.00) dollars per year. [L. '13, p. 226, § 3.]

§ 7194. Same—Terms—Salaries—Bonds—Duties.

The adjutant general shall be ex-officio chief of staff, and in the absence of orders from the commander-in-chief to the contrary, he shall be the acting chief of all staffs, corps, and departments not otherwise provided for in this act. He shall hold office until his successor is detailed and qualified. He shall appoint the chief clerk, stenographer and storekeeper and may remove any of them in his discretion.

The expenses of the adjutant general's department, necessary to the military service, shall be audited, allowed and paid as other military expenditures are audited, allowed and paid. Before entering upon his official duties, the adjutant general must execute an official bond running to the state of Washington in the penal sum of twenty thousand ($20,000.00) dollars conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties, said bond to be submitted to the attorney general for approval, and when approved to be filed in the office of the secretary of state, the cost of said bond to be paid from the military fund of the state. The adjutant general shall obtain and pay for, from the military fund, a surety company bond or bonds running to the state of Washington covering all of the officers of the National Guard of Washington responsible to the state for money or military property, such bond or bonds to be approved and filed in the same manner as the adjutant general's bond.

(1) The adjutant general shall keep posters of all active and retired officers of the militia of the state, and keep in his office all records and papers required to be kept and filed therein, and shall submit to the commander-in-chief during October of each even numbered year a printed biennial report of the operations and conditions of the National Guard of Washington.

(1½) On the first day of January, of each year, he shall make a statement of the condition of the military fund, showing the amount thereof and setting forth in detail all receipts from whatsoever source and all expenditures of whatsoever nature and the unexpended balance thereof. A copy of said statement shall be furnished to each commissioned officer of the active list.

(2) He shall cause the military law, the regulations of the National Guard and the articles of war of the United States, and such other military publications as may be necessary for the military service to be printed, indexed and bound at the expense of the state and distributed to the commissioned officers of the National Guard.

(3) He shall keep and preserve the books, arms, accoutrements, ammunition and other military property belonging to the state, not properly issued.

(4) He shall keep just and true accounts of all monies [moneys] received and disbursed by him.

(5) He shall attest all commissions issued to military officers of this state.

(6) He shall make out and transmit all militia reports, returns and communications prescribed by acts of Congress or by direction of the secretary of war.

(7) He shall have a seal, and all copies, orders, records and papers in his office, duly certified and authenticated under said seal, shall be evidence in all cases in like manner as if the originals were produced. The seal now used in the office of the adjutant general shall be the seal of his office and shall be delivered by him to his successor. All orders issued from his office shall be authenticated with said seal.

(8) He shall make such regulations pertaining to the preparation of reports and returns and to the care and preservation of property, in possession of the state for military purposes, whether belonging to the state or to the United States, as in his opinion the conditions demand.

(9) He shall attend to the care, preservation, safekeeping and repairing of the arms, ordnance, accoutrements, equipment and all other military property belonging to the state, or issued to the state by the government of the United States for military purposes, and keep accurate accounts thereof. All military property of the state, which after proper inspection, shall be found unsuitable for use of the state shall be disposed of in such manner as the commander-in-chief shall direct and the proceeds thereof paid into the military fund of the state.

(10) He shall issue such military property as the necessity of the service requires and make purchases for that purpose. No military property shall be issued or loaned except upon an emergency to persons or organizations other than those belonging to the National Guard, except to such portions of the reserve militia as may be called out by the governor.

(11) He shall keep on file in his office the reports and returns of troops and heads of military departments, and all other writings and papers required to be transmitted to and preserved at the general headquarters of the state militia.

(12) He shall keep all records of Washington volunteers commissioned or enlisted for the war of the Rebellion, Indian wars, Spanish-American war, and all other wars or insurrections and of individual claims of citizens of Washington for service rendered in these wars or insurrections.

(13) He shall establish and maintain as part of his office a bureau of records of the services of the Washington troops during said wars, and he shall be the custodian of all records, relics, trophies, colors and histories relating to such wars now in possession of, or which may be acquired by the state of Washington, and such records, relics, trophies, colors and histories shall be catalogued and arranged or filed for general reference or protection in the office of the adjutant general.

(14) The duties of the assistant adjutant general, chief clerk, stenographer and storekeeper shall be prescribed by the adjutant general and in the absence or incapacity of the adjutant general, the assistant adjutant general shall perform the duties prescribed for the adjutant general. [L. '13, p. 226, § 4.]

§ 7198. Selection of Officers.

All commissioned officers of the National Guard of Washington shall be appointed and commissioned by the commander-in-chief, and, except as otherwise provided in this act, they shall be chosen as follows: Whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of the adjutant general of the state, the commander-in-chief shall detail for that position from the active list of the National Guard of Washington some officer not below the rank of captain, who shall during the continuance of such detail hold the rank of brigadier-general. No person shall be eligible for detail as adjutant general who shall have served as an officer less than three years in the aggregate in the National Guard of Washington or the regular army of the United States. The assistant adjutant general shall be an officer of the active list of the National Guard of Washington detailed for that purpose.

Vacancies created by detail of officers to the adjutant general's department, or any other staff, corps or department, shall be promptly filled precisely as though created through resignation or promotion, but officers on such details shall not lose their places in lineal rank in the branches from which they shall have been detailed. Whenever a vacancy occurs in the organization from which an officer on detail with the adjutant general's department, or any other staff, corps, or department, shall have been detailed, for which vacancy such officer would have been eligible in the absence of such detail, such officer shall, although continuing on such detail, be promoted to the grade of such vacancy, or, if holding an increased rank and grade by virtue of such detail, shall be deemed to have received such promotion to take effect upon termination of such detail, with rank from the date of the occurrence of such vacancy.

Whenever an officer shall be relieved from duty with the adjutant general's department, or any other staff, corps or department, he shall be reassigned to the organization from which he was detailed upon the occurrence of the first vacancy therein of his rank and grade.

Whenever a vacancy occurs in the captaincy or first lieutenancy of a company, the officer next in rank in such company shall be ordered before an examining board, and upon passing the required examination, shall be appointed, commissioned and assigned to fill such vacancy: Provided, That any officer of appropriate rank and grade originally on duty with such company and serving on detail with any staff, department or corps or on waiting orders may be relieved of duty with such staff, department or corps and assigned to duty with such company, or assigned to duty with such company from the list of waiting orders; and thereupon the senior officer in such company, if there be a vacancy, shall be ordered before an examining board and upon passing the required examination shall be appointed, commissioned and assigned to fill such vacancy.

Whenever a vacancy occurs in the office of second lieutenant of any company, the commander-in-chief, except as hereinbefore provided, shall order a competitive examination for which every enlisted man in such organization shall be eligible, and the successful candidate recommended by the examining board shall be appointed, commissioned and assigned to fill such vacancy. Any noncommissioned staff officer shall be eligible to take a competitive examination for second lieutenantcy in the company of which he was originally a member.

Whenever a vacancy shall occur among the field officers of a regiment, the senior officers of the next lower grade in the regiment shall, upon passing a proper examination, be appointed, commissioned and assigned to fill the same.

Vacancies in staff officers of the grade of second lieutenant shall be filled by assignment, or by examination, promotion and assignment of a noncommissioned staff officer, and any vacancy in a staff office of a grade higher than second lieutenant shall be filled either by assignment of an officer of the proper grade or by examination, promotion and assignment of an officer of the next lower grade, as the commander-in-chief shall direct.

No person shall be commissioned as an officer in the National Guard of Washington unless he is a citizen of the United States, and of this state, twenty-one years of age or more.

Whenever a commissioned officer shall have been examined for promotion under this act and shall fail to be recommended for promotion by the examining board, he shall be honorably discharged, and the vacancy so created shall be filled in the manner prescribed by law.

For the purpose of this act the word company or companies shall apply to and include the cavalry, infantry, coast artillery reserve and signal corps. [L. '13, p. 229, § 6.]

§ 7205. New Companies—How Admitted.

New companies and organizations of the National Guard of Washington not in excess of the limits prescribed by law, may be organized and mustered in at such times and in such manners as the commander-in-chief shall direct. [L. '13, p. 231, § 7.]

§ 7221. Allowances for Incidental Expenses.

Each commanding officer shall be entitled to receive an allowance for the incidental expenses of his command payable quarterly in advance according to the following schedule: companies, troops, batteries and like units not to exceed twenty-five ($25.00) dollars per month; bands not to exceed fifteen ($15.00) dollars per month; battalions and like units not to exceed ten ($10.00) dollars per month; regiments and like units not to exceed twenty-five ($25.00) dollars per month.

For the first quarter of each biennial period each officer entitled to a quarterly allowance under this section shall be entitled to receive in advance the maximum allowance in full, but with his claim therefor he shall make remittance of the balance, if any, remaining unexpended from the last previous quarter, such remittance to be transmitted by the adjutant general to the state treasurer, and for each succeeding quarter of each biennial period, each such officer shall be entitled to receive such sum, not more than the maximum allowance above prescribed, as he shall have expended for authorized expenses of his command during the next preceding quarter. Each claim for quarterly allowance shall include an account current showing the items of expenditure and shall be accompanied by subvouchers for all items, each voucher stating definitely the nature and amount of the expenditure evidenced thereby. [L. '13, p. 232, § 8.]

§ 7222. Military Auditors.

The board of military auditors shall consist of the adjutant general and two officers of the active list of the National Guard of Washington to be selected by the state auditor and detailed by the commander-in-chief, which board shall audit and pass upon all claims against the military appropriation. The board shall meet at the call of the adjutant general. [L. '13, p. 232, § 9.]

The fact that false claims against the state were audited and allowed by the board of military auditors, under this and the next section, does not preclude defenses to warrants in the hands of an innocent holder, there being nothing in such sections to indicate an intent to make the warrants negotiable: State ex rel. Olympia Nat. Bank v. Lewis, 62 Wash. 266, 113 Pac. 629.

A state warrant issued in payment of fraudulent claims based upon false and forged vouchers is void, even in the hands of an innocent holder, since a state warrant is not negotiable in the sense of excluding inquiry into the legality of its issue or defenses thereto: State ex rel. Olympia Nat. Bank v. Lewis, 62 Wash. 266, 113 Pac. 629.

It is the duty of the state treasurer to refuse payment of warrants illegally issued upon fraudulent claims: State ex rel. Olympia Nat. Bank v. Lewis, 62 Wash. 266, 113 Pac. 629.

As to enforcement of obligation incurred by a state, see note in 13 L. R. A. 170.

As to what claims constitute valid demands against the state, see note in 42 L. R. A. 33.

§ 7224. Pay and Allowance.

Commissioned officers while on duty requiring pay shall receive the same pay and allowance as commissioned officers of the United States of the same grades and terms of service: Provided, That for travel only actual necessary expenses shall be allowed.

For the purpose of pay and allowance as an officer of the National Guard, service with the First Washington Volunteer Infantry, as an officer or enlisted man until muster out of that organization shall be considered equivalent to three years' service in the National Guard of Washington. For the purpose of pay and allowance of an officer in the National Guard, service as an enlisted man in the National Guard of Washington shall be considered equivalent to service as an officer, provided that said service as an enlisted man and officer be continuous.

For all duty requiring pay enlisted men in the National Guard of Washington shall receive pay at rates equivalent to twice those allowed for corresponding grades in the regular services of the United States: Provided, That the pay of cooks and bandsmen shall be three ($3.00) dollars per day. For each re-enlistment, after serving a full term of three years, there shall be added ten per cent. For the purpose of pay and allowance, service for a full term of enlistment in the regular or volunteer army of the United States, or in the First Washington Volunteer Infantry until muster out of that organization shall be equivalent to a full enlistment. Enlisted men proving such service shall be allowed ten per cent additional on their pay.

This schedule of pay shall apply only to the first thirty days of any tour of duty and after the thirtieth day of any such tour, officers and men shall receive the pay allowed officers and men in the regular services of the United States of corresponding organizations, grades, and terms of service.

No additional pay shall be allowed for service in the National Guard of Washington unless such service shall have been continuous.

Extra duty pay to men detailed as clerks and on similar duty may be allowed by the commanding officers of troops on duty, but in no case shall pay and extra pay exceed two and 50-100 ($2.50) dollars per day.

Upon completion of his enlistment, or upon discharge by proper authority, each enlisted man shall receive in addition to the pay above mentioned, the sum of fifty cents for each day of state paid service not exceeding fifty days, less all proper deductions for fines or lost property. [L. '13, p. 233, § 10.]

§ 7225. Transportation and Subsistence.

There shall be provided by the state transportation for all officers and transportation and subsistence for all enlisted men who shall be ordered out for encampment, field duty, or stated parades, or assembled for duty in case of riot, tumult, breach of the peace, war, insurrection, invasion or imminent danger thereof. Necessary transportation, quartermasters' stores and subsistence for troops when ordered on duty shall be contracted for by the proper officers and paid for as other military bills. There shall be allowed from the military fund for each day's service the sum of two ($2.00) dollars per man for each horse for every mounted officer, and mounted orderly, and all members of such other organizations of the National Guard of Washington as are required to be mounted. Horses not furnished by officers or men shall be rented by the state at a cost not exceeding two ($2.00) dollars per day for each horse. For mounted organizations the adjutant general may in his discretion cause horses to be purchased and maintained from the appropriation for maintenance. [L. '13, p. 234, § 11.]

§ 7228. Drills.

At each station each company and similar unit of the National Guard shall meet at least twice in each month for drill and instruction and the commanding officer of any organization may require the officers and enlisted men of his organization to meet for drill and instruction at such times and places as he may appoint: Provided, That no pay shall be allowed for such duty. [L. '13, p. 234, § 12.]

§ 7313.

This section, authorizing the leasing of state armories for purposes other than military, upon recommendation of the officer in charge, does not relinquish the state's governmental functions or amount to the assumption of a private enterprise, where the armory was constructed for governmental purposes and there is nothing in the military code showing any intent that the state shall engage in conducting a hall for entertainment purposes as a business venture, the lease being a matter of grace and accommodation to the public rather than a business enterprise: Riddoch v. State, 68 Wash. 329, 42 L. R. A., N. S., 251, 123 Pac. 450.

In the absence of voluntary assumption of the obligation, the state is not liable for the torts or negligence of its officers or agents; and this applies to personal injuries to a spectator, sustained through a defective railing in a state armory, negligently constructed by a state commission created for the purpose, and leased for a compensation to private parties by the state officer in charge of it for the purpose of giving a public exhibition, since the state's immunity from liability is not confined to the discharge of purely governmental functions of the state, the sovereignty of the state extending to any private enterprise taken over or administered by the state: Riddoch v. State, 68 Wash. 329, 42 L. R. A., N. S., 251, 123 Pac. 450.

TITLE LIX.

MINES AND MINERALS.

CHAPTER I.

MINING CORPORATIONS.

§ 7347.

This section, permitting mining claims to be transferred to such corporation in full payment of the capital stock without the necessity of stock subscriptions, does not apply to coal mining companies, the stockholders of which are accordingly liable to creditors upon unpaid stock subscriptions as provided by constitution, article 12, section 4, and Remington and Ballinger's Code, section 3698: Davies v. Ball, 64 Wash. 292, 116 Pac. 833.

CHAPTER II.

LOCATION AND POSSESSION OF MINING LODES.

§ 7353.

In an action to recover possession of unpatented mining claims, the better title prevails, and the rule that the plaintiff must recover, if at all, on the strength of his own title does not apply: National Milling & Min. Co. v. Piccolo, 54 Wash. 617, 104 Pac. 128.

As between two claimants to a mineral location, the better title lies with the one who for years spent large sums of money in a good faith endeavor to develop a mine, even if there was a forfeiture by failure to do assessment work, as against another who entered in the absence of the first claimant with the sole purpose of appropriating the fruits of the other's labor, and who failed to comply with the mineral laws as to relocations, there having been no abandonment by the first claimant: National Milling & Min. Co. v. Piccolo, 54 Wash. 617, 104 Pac. 128.

In an action to recover possession of a mining claim, the defendant cannot base any right upon amended relocation notices posted by him after the commencement of the action: Knutson v. Fredlund, 56 Wash. 634, 106 Pac. 200.

As to what constitutes diligent prosecution of work, within mining laws, see note in 139 Am. St. Rep. 187.

In an action to recover possession of a mining claim, a defendant holding under an invalid relocation is not entitled to attack plaintiff's title by reason of his failure to do assessment work, as such failure did not work a forfeiture until valid relocation was made: Knutson v. Fredlund, 56 Wash. 634, 106 Pac. 200.

As to respective rights of one who relocates mining ground before and one who relocates it after the abandonment or forfeiture of the senior location, see note in 16 L. R. A., N. S., 162.

ACTIONS TO DETERMINE AND ESTABLISH RIGHTS.—The ordinary allegation of title generally is sufficient in an action to recover the possession of a mining claim, without stating the facts necessary to show a valid location under the mineral laws, which are matters of evidence: National Milling & Min. Co. v. Piccolo, 54 Wash. 617, 104 Pac. 128.

The building and construction of roads intended to be used in the general development of mining property in an unorganized mining district, although done outside the boundaries of the claim, is the doing of assessment work on the claim, within the meaning of the mining law: Sexton v. Washington Min. & Milling Co., 55 Wash. 380, 104 Pac. 614.

As to performance of assessment work, see note in 87 Am. St. Rep. 408.

As to what amounts to diligent prosecution of work, see note in 139 Am. St. Rep. 187.

A resumption of assessment work prior to the lawful inception of intervening rights saves a forfeiture for failure to do the required work: Knutson v. Fredlund, 56 Wash. 634, 106 Pac. 200.

As to the effect of resumption of assessment work before relocation, see note in 87 Am. St. Rep. 414.

§ 7355.

See notes to § 7366.

§ 7358.

See notes to § 7366.

Descriptions of a mining claim in location notices and in a complaint are sufficiently definite, where the defendant was not misled and knew the boundaries from plaintiff's long possession: National Milling & Min. Co. v. Piccolo, 54 Wash. 617, 104 Pac. 128.

As to notice of appropriation in locating mining claim, see note in 7 L. R. A., N. S., 774.

A mineral relocation notice is insufficient and inadmissible in the evidence under this section, where it fails to state the length claimed on each side of the discovery, the general course of the lode, or to identify the claim by reference to natural monuments as required by that act, since compliance with state laws not inconsistent with the federal statutes is essential to a valid relocation: Knutson v. Fredlund, 56 Wash. 634, 106 Pac. 200.

See notes to § 7366.

The locator of a mining claim who fails to erect monuments or define the boundaries assumes the risk of intervening rights of third parties: Protective Min. Co. v. Forest City Min. Co., 51 Wash. 643, 99 Pac. 1033.

§ 7365.

Under this section, to relocate a forfeited mining claim it is necessary to sink a new discovery shaft or sink the original shaft ten feet deeper; and this requirement is not excused by section 9, providing that the "provision herein relating to discovery shafts shall not apply to any location west of the summit of the Cascade mountains," in case of an attempt to take advantage of a forfeiture: National Milling & Min. Co. v. Piccolo, 54 Wash. 617, 104 Pac. 128.

Relocators of abandoned mining claims west of the summit of the Cascade mountains need not sink a discovery shaft, under this section, since the exception is not confined to sections 7358 and 7259, prescribing the duties of the discoverer of an original claim and providing that he shall sink a discovery shaft, but applies also to section 7355 of the act which provides that the relocation of forfeited or abandoned quartz or lode claims shall only be made by sinking a new discovery shaft and fixing new boundaries as required in making a new location, or the relocater may sink the original discovery shaft ten feet deeper than it was (overruling 54 Wash. 517): National Milling & Min. Co. v. Piccolo, 57 Wash. 572, 107 Pac. 353.

There is sufficient evidence of the discovery of a vein of ore (understood by miners to be a body of mineral-bearing substance bounded on each side by the country rock, of varying width and length) where a miner testified that the deposit of ore was what he called a moraine ledge, and explained that the ledge was in permanent place but had been moved or shoved down with the whole country, since there appeared to be a well-defined ledge kept in place by country rock, even if the whole mountain had been moved to one side by some force of nature: State v. Praul, 57 Wash. 198, 106 Pac. 763.

The evidence fails to show a legal establishment of placer mining claims, where it is evidence that no actual discovery was made, the locations were not properly perfected nor labor done in compliance with the requirements of this section, the claims were abandoned more than one year prior to the commencement of an action to recover possession, and from the whole record it appears that the attempted location was a speculative venture to prevent the use and development of a water power by others: Spokane Portland Cement Co. v. Larson, 71 Wash. 301, 128 Pac. 641.

The fact that the major part of defendant's improvements were made after plaintiff's action was commenced is immaterial, where no attempt was made by plaintiff to prevent extensive improvements made in good faith: Spokane Portland Cement Co. v. Larson, 71 Wash. 301, 128 Pac. 641.

As to sufficiency of discovery of mineral to support location of mining claim, see note in 15 Ann. Cas. 628.

This section applies only to organized mining districts: Sexton v. Washington Min. & Milling Co., 55 Wash. 380, 104 Pac. 614.

CHAPTER III.

PROTECTION OF COAL MINERS.

§ 7372. Appointment, Bond, etc., of Inspectors.

The governor shall, upon the recommendation of a board to be by him selected and appointed for the purpose of examining candidates to be appointed to the office of mine inspector under the provisions of this act, appoint a properly qualified person to fill the office of state mine inspector.

The state mine inspector so appointed shall, with the consent of the governor, appoint a deputy inspector. The inspector and his deputy shall be citizens of the state of Washington, and shall have had at least five years' practical experience in coal mining. They shall devote their entire time to the duties of their respective offices, and shall possess other qualifications at present defined by the laws of the state of Washington and not inconsistent with the provisions of this act. The state mine inspector and his deputy shall before entering upon the discharge of their duties each take an oath to discharge their duties impartially and with fidelity to the best of their knowledge and ability. The salary of the state mine inspector shall be twenty-four hundred dollars per annum, and the salary of the deputy inspector shall be eighteen hundred dollars per annum, and both the inspector and his deputy shall be allowed their actual and necessary traveling expenses while in the performance of their duties under the provisions of this act; and the auditor of the state is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrant on the state treasurer in favor of the inspector or his deputy for the amount due them for their salaries monthly, and also for their expenses upon proper vouchers to be paid out of any moneys in the state treasury not otherwise appropriated. The state mine inspector shall hold his office for the term of four years, and his deputy shall hold office during the pleasure of the inspector. The inspector shall at all times be subject to removal from office by the governor for neglect of duty or malfeasance in the discharge of his duties. The board herein provided for shall consist of one practical coal miner, one owner or operator of a coal mine and one mining engineer, all of whom shall be sworn to the faithful discharge of their duties. The governor shall consult with such board before appointing the mine inspector herein provided for. [L. '11, p. 333, § 1.]

There is sufficient proof of failure to comply with this section, requiring sufficient circulation of air in a coal mine, where a brattice for the purpose of deflecting air into a certain room was torn and defective, and one man therein lost his life and a boy became sick from inhaling poisonous gases: Delaski v. Northwestern Imp. Co., 61 Wash. 255, 112 Pac. 341.

The evidence sufficiently shows that the owner of a mine failed to perform the imperative and continuing duty to cause air to circulate in the working places in a coal mine, imposed by this section, where there was black damp in plaintiff's working place, the foreman instructed him to continue working there and said the falling of the rock would bring ventilation, and the plaintiff testified that he would have broken through the wall to good air in about an hour and a half: Nalewaja v. Northwestern Improvement Co., 63 Wash. 391, 115 Pac. 847.

There was sufficient evidence that the presence of black damp in a coal mine was the proximate cause of an injury from falling rock, where the plaintiff's lights were put out by the black damp and he was struck by a rock falling from the face of the coal, two to eight feet distant from the place where plaintiff was timbering, and he might have seen the rock and avoided the injury if he had had a light: Nalewaja v. Northwestern Improvement Co., 63 Wash. 391, 115 Pac. 847.

As to the duty of mine owners to prevent injury to their employees, see note in 87 Am. St. Rep. 557.

§ 7382.

Under this section prohibiting the driving of a heading in a coal mine more than sixty feet from the face of each chamber without written permission from the inspector, the burden of proof, after proof of such extension, is upon the coal mine owner to show the fact of written permission therefor: Delaski v. Northwestern Imp. Co., 61 Wash. 255, 112 Pac. 341.

§ 7384.

It is negligence per se to fail to comply with the requirement of the coal mine law intended to provide a reasonably safe place for the men to work; and the duty is a nondelegable one: Delaski v. Northwestern Imp. Co., 61 Wash. 255, 112 Pac. 341.

The provisions of the coal mine act of 1888, page 41, section 15, expressly limited to "violations of this act" if not superseded has no application to later acts on this subject: Delaski v. Northwestern Imp. Co., 61 Wash. 255, 112 Pac. 341.

§ 7394.

This section, providing that the owner shall send down into the mine to be delivered at the working place sufficient timbers and props, in the act on the subject of "coal mines," relating particularly to the extra-hazards of that business, has no application to prospecting tunnels in which no coal was being mined and which was not part of a coal mine, the language indicating that the legislature had in mind the extra-hazards peculiar to coal mining: Hemmingson v. Carbon Hill Coal Co., 62 Wash. 28, 112 Pac. 1111.

§ 7402-1. Powder and Other Explosives—Distributing Magazine—Penalty.

Each person, firm or corporation engaged in coal mining, requiring the use of powder or other explosives, shall provide (subject to the approval of the state mine inspector), at or near the entrance of each coal mine operated, at some suitable place near such work, a suitable distributing magazine for the storage of such powder or other explosives. There shall be posted upon such magazine a notice, printed in letters not less than three inches in height, that such magazine contains explosives. No person shall store or keep in any magazine mentioned in this section any powder or other explosive in excess of one ton. In the case of coal mines such powder or other explosive shall be issued daily in quantities not to exceed the average used by each workman in one day, in proper receptacles. Any person or corporation violating or failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 336, § 1.]

§ 7402-2. Quantity of Powder Stored.

Any person who shall store or keep any powder or other explosive in a quantity greater than one pound in any occupied dwelling-house or residence or in any outhouse appertaining thereto within three hundred feet of any dwelling shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 336, § 2.]

TITLE LX. MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS.

CHAPTER II. BOUNDARIES, ANNEXATION, ETC.

§ 7443.

The boundaries of cities are extended by this section, and hence authorizes the levy of city taxes upon property situated within the extended limits: Pacific American Fisheries v. Whatcom County, 69 Wash. 291, 124 Pac. 905.

An act extending the boundaries of all cities to the middle of navigable waters adjacent to their boundaries is not violative of the constitutional provisions inhibiting the incorporation or alteration of cities by special laws, or the enactment of any private or special laws granting corporate powers or privileges: Pacific American Fisheries v. Whatcom County, 69 Wash. 291, 124 Pac. 905.

The title, an act extending the powers and jurisdiction of cities into the navigable waters adjacent to their boundaries, sufficiently expresses the purpose of the act to extend the boundaries of the city for all purposes: Pacific American Fisheries v. Whatcom County, 69 Wash. 291, 124 Pac. 905.

As to navigable rivers as boundaries, see note in 10 Am. Dec. 385.

Under the general election laws which require the division of a county into election precincts and the designation of one voting place in each precinct, and which make residence within the precinct a necessary qualification of an elector, a city election for the annexation of territory is void where no voting places were designated in several of the precincts, since the electors therein were thereby disfranchised: Wilton v. Pierce County, 61 Wash. 386, 112 Pac. 386.

As to irregularities in respect of establishing election districts, see note in 90 Am. St. Rep. 49.

Where an ordinance for the annexation of an adjoining city provided that no property within either former city shall ever be taxed for any portion of any prior indebtedness of the other, and after annexation the city passed an ordinance making an appropriation out of its general fund "for the purpose of retiring certain outstanding warrants" of the annexed territory, and it appears from the ordinance that it was not the intention to extinguish the indebtedness or retire the warrants so as to relieve the property, but to refund them by a bond issue, the actual payment of the warrants of the annexed city with such funds did not extinguish the indebtedness as a charge against the property in the annexed city; and the issuance of funding bonds chargeable on such property was authorized: Fisher v. Seattle, 55 Wash. 396, 104 Pac. 655.

CHAPTER V. CLASSIFICATION.

See notes to § 7507.

§ 7488.

After a town of the first class is raised to a city of the third class, the councilmen of the old corporation continue to act and have power to pass ordinances until the organization of the new corporation by the election and qualification of new officers at the next general election, pursuant to the provisions of this section and section 7489, providing that the old officers shall act until the next annual municipal election and officers of the new corporation are elected and qualified: State ex rel. Sylvester v. Superior Court, 64 Wash. 594, 117 Pac. 487.

As to continuity of existence of municipal council, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 269.

As to who are city officers, see note in 14 L. R. A. 646.

As to power of public officers to contract so as to bind their successors, see note in 16 L. R. A. 257.

CHAPTER VII.

CITIES OF FIRST CLASS, GENERAL PROVISIONS.

§ 7493-1. Powers of Cities of First Class.

The form of the organization and the manner and mode in which cities of the first class shall exercise the powers, functions and duties which are or may be given by law to such cities, with respect to their own government shall be as provided in the charters thereof. [L. '11, p. 54, § 1.]

§ 7493-2. Recall of Elective Officers.

Any such city may provide in its charter for the recall of elective officers and for direct legislation by the people upon any matter within the scope of such powers, functions or duties of any such city by the initiative and referendum. [L. '11, p. 54, § 2.]

§ 7493-3. Act Applies to Any Charter.

This act shall apply to any charter of any such city heretofore adopted or approved by the electors thereof at an election duly held. [L. '11, p. 54, § 3.]

§ 7494.

Charters adopted by cities of the first class are subject to and controlled by general laws, and this is the only constitutional restriction therein: Walker v. Spokane, 62 Wash. 312, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 994, 113 Pac. 775.

The only limitation on the powers of a city government to enact laws through the medium of a charter is that they shall be in accordance with general laws, and a charter establishing the commission form of government, with the initiative, referendum, and recall does not violate any statutory law: Walker v. Spokane, 62 Wash. 312, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 994, 113 Pac. 775.

As to right of municipality to adopt commission form of government, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912C, 999.

As to initiative and referendum, see note in 11 L. R. A., N. S., 1092.

Under constitution, article 11, section 10, authorizing a city of twenty thousand inhabitants to frame a charter for its own government, consistent with and subject to the laws of the state, a city may, subject to such limitation, adopt the initiative and referendum plan of government: Hartig v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 432, 102 Pac. 408.

As to constitutionality of initiative and referendum provisions in municipal charters, see note in 11 Ann. Cas. 920.

The question of the necessity of holding an election to choose freeholders to frame a city charter at an earlier time than one year in the future is usually a political question not susceptible of proof in a court: State ex rel. Lambert v. Superior Court, 59 Wash. 670, 110 Pac. 622.

The amendment to the city charter of Seattle creating a municipal plans commission, does not violate constitution, article 11, section 10, guaranteeing local self-government, in that part of the members of the commission are to be appointed by associations, clubs, and public service corporations, some of which are nonresidents of the state and of the United States, since the commissioners are all required to be citizens of the city, and are appointive, not elective, officers, with only advisory powers, whose plans are to be submitted to a vote of the people, and no legislative authority is delegated to it: Bussell v. Gill, 58 Wash. 468, 137 Am. St. Rep. 1070, 108 Pac. 1080.

Such amendment is not objectionable by reason of conferring authority upon the commission to approve vouchers for all expenditures incurred, and requiring the comptroller to issue warrants to be paid out of the municipal plans commission fund, raised by a tax levy therefor: Bussell v. Gill, 58 Wash. 468, 137 Am. St. Rep. 1070, 108 Pac. 1080.

Such amendment does not violate constitution, article 1, section 12, providing that no law shall grant special privileges to any citizen or class of citizens, in that certain designated associations and corporations are granted the privilege of participating in the selection of the commission, since the right simply of recommendation is not such a right or privilege as comes within the prohibition of the constitution: Bussell v. Gill, 58 Wash. 468, 137 Am. St. Rep. 1070, 108 Pac. 1080.

As to the providing by a municipal corporation for a commission to act as agent, see note in 137 Am. St. Rep. 1076.

An election to choose fifteen freeholders to prepare a new city charter for cities of the first class, under this section, must be called by the city council within a reasonable time after due petition therefor is filed, in view of the failure of the statute to fix the time, and of section 7499, requiring the proposed charter to be submitted at an election to be called "immediately"; hence, the provision of section 7502 that the election may be general or special only vests in the council a discretion to fix upon the next general election in case the same is to occur within a reasonable time: State ex rel. Lambert v. Superior Court, 59 Wash. 670, 110 Pac. 622.

Where a city council is petitioned on May 24th to call an election to choose fifteen freeholders to prepare a new city charter, under this section, it is an abuse of discretion for the city council to fix the date therefor upon the next general election to be held on the first Tuesday of May, 1911; and mandamus lies to compel the council to fix upon a reasonable time: State ex rel. Lambert v. Superior Court, 59 Wash. 670, 110 Pac. 622.

§ 7502-1. Canvass of Returns.

Within five (5) days after the date of any general or special municipal election in any city of the first class, the legislative body of any such city shall convene at the hour fixed by its rules for regular meetings and shall open and canvass the returns of such election and shall declare and certify the result of such election. [L. '11, p. 110, § 1.]

§ 7502-2. No Change in Charters.

Nothing herein shall be deemed to affect any provision now or hereafter incorporated in any charter or ordinances of any such city providing a manner for the canvass of, and declaration of the result of, the votes cast at such elections. [L. '11, p. 111, § 2.]

§ 7504.

See notes to § 7517.

This section, authorizing electors of cities of the first class to frame and adopt a city charter, does not repeal section 7517, providing that the legislative powers of such city shall be vested in a mayor and city council, although it modifies and grants larger and more extensive legislative powers than those granted by section 7517: Walker v. Spokane, 62 Wash. 312, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 994, 113 Pac. 775.

See notes to § 6264.

The city council of Seattle has exclusive power to license the sale of liquor without submitting the question to a vote of the people under the initiative and referendum amendment to the charter of the city covering "any ordinance dealing with any matter within the realms of local affairs or municipal business," and under the concurrent amendment No. 11, especially conferring upon the city council the power to license and regulate the sale of liquor, since special concurrent laws obtain as against a conflicting general law: Hartig v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 432, 102 Pac. 408.

As the power to "regulate" the sale of intoxicating liquor implies the power of partial prohibition, an anti-treating ordinance prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor in licensed saloons to be drunk on the premises by any other person than the one buying the same is within the power conferred by this section: Tacoma v. Keisel, 68 Wash. 685, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 757, 124 Pac. 137.

An ordinance having for its purpose the prohibition of treating in licensed saloons is not an unreasonable regulation of the liquor traffic, under the power to regulate such traffic and to make regulations necessary for the preservation of public morality, the decision of the city authorities being controlling upon the courts unless the unreasonableness of the ordinance is free from doubt: Tacoma v. Keisel, 68 Wash. 685, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 757, 124 Pac. 137.

As to the police powers of municipalities with reference to the regulation of liquor dealing, see note in 114 Am. St. Rep. 298.

The maintenance by a social club of a room wherein to furnish liquors to members to be drunk on the premises is the conducting a barroom, within the meaning of an ordinance regulating the liquor business and barrooms, especially where the law makes drugstores the only exception: Spokane v. Baughman, 54 Wash. 315, 103 Pac. 14.

The serving of intoxicating liquors by a social club exclusively to its members, and not for profit, at a price fixed by the club, which is charged to the account of the members, is a sale within the meaning of an ordinance to regulate the sale of liquors and prohibiting their sale without first obtaining a license, since the matter of making a profit is immaterial and the principal object of the law is regulative: Spokane v. Baughman, 54 Wash. 315, 103 Pac. 14.

As to statutes regulating liquor dealing in cities, and the application to social clubs, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1088.

As to what is a "hotel" within the meaning of laws regulating the sale of liquors, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1030.

The legislature may delegate to cities and towns, as a revenue measure, the power to license peddlers: McKnight v. Hodge, 55 Wash. 289, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 1207, 104 Pac. 504.

As to who is a "peddler" within a licensing statute or ordinance, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1289.

Police power to regulate the frequency of street-car service is conferred upon a city by constitution, article 11, section 11, providing that a city may enforce police regulation not in conflict with general law, and this section, subdivision 9, authorizing the city to control its streets and regulate the operation of street railroads, and subdivision 36, granting it the right to provide for the punishment of practices dangerous to the public safety and to make necessary regulations for public health, peace and order, and punish persons violating any of the ordinances: Tacoma v. Boutelle, 61 Wash. 434, 112 Pac. 661.

As to regulating by municipality of routing of street railways, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1024.

As to power of municipality to require street-cars to stop at certain points, see note in 17 Ann. Cas. 552.

An ordinance granting a franchise to maintain a wharf commencing at the foot of a street and extending along the line of the street extended into tide water is not a franchise to use a public street: State ex rel. Port Angeles v. Morse, 56 Wash. 654, 106 Pac. 147.

As to grant by municipality to individual of use of street for private purpose, see note in 125 Am. St. Rep. 346.

An ordinance purporting to grant a franchise to maintain a wharf on city waterfront property for a term of years, reserving rent and right of re-entry, is a lease and not a franchise, and the remedy of the city for nonpayment of rent is by an ordinary action, and not by quo warranto for usurpation of a franchise: State ex rel. Port Angeles v. Morse, 56 Wash. 654, 106 Pac. 147.

As to lease as quasi franchise, see note in 35 Am. St. Rep. 402.

A city of the first class is not authorized to grant a franchise to a railroad company to encroach upon or use a material portion of a city street to the exclusion of the public therefrom: State ex rel. Schade Brewing Co. v. Superior Court, 62 Wash. 96, 113 Pac. 576.

Power to grant to a railroad company the right to tunnel under, and use land under, the surface of the street, does not include the right to grant the exclusive use of part of a street for the purpose of descending to the grade under the street: State ex rel. Schade Brewing Co. v. Superior Court, 62 Wash. 96, 113 Pac. 576.

Power to alter streets, change grades, and exercise general control over streets does not include the power to surrender the use of any part of the surface thereof: State ex rel. Schade Brewing Co. v. Superior Court, 62 Wash. 96, 113 Pac. 576.

Power to authorize the location of a railroad "in" a street does not imply or mean power to grant an exclusive right to use the street: State ex rel. Schade Brewing Co. v. Superior Court, 62 Wash. 96, 113 Pac. 576.

As to the general nature and kinds of franchises, see note in 131 Am. St. Rep. 862.

As to use of street, by railroad, see notes in 1 L. R. A. 493 and 8 L. R. A. 453.

As to power of municipality in the absence of express legislative authority to grant street franchises, see note in 22 L. R. A., N. S., 925.

A railroad franchise in city streets, granted by ordinance, may be forfeited by a resolution of the city council, in the absence of statutory or charter provisions requiring the forfeiture to be by ordinance: State ex rel. Sylvester v. Superior Court, 60 Wash. 279, 111 Pac. 19.

As to liability of municipality for injury due to improper use of street which it has expressly permitted, see note in 9 Ann. Cas. 828.

The power conferred upon the legislative authority of municipal corporations to grant franchises for the use of the streets is purely legislative and cannot be controlled by the courts: Ewing v. Seattle, 55 Wash. 229, 104 Pac. 259.

As to judicial inquiry into motives prompting enactment of legislative ordinance, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1236.

As to obligation on municipality to impose conditions when consenting to occupation of street by railroad, see note in 36 L. R. A. 33.

The right to occupy a public street to the exclusion of the public cannot be granted to a railroad company by a city, under this section, providing that the city may authorize the locating and construction of any railroad in any street and prescribe the terms; nor under section 7479, granting practically the same powers to cities of the first class by an act entitled an act granting "additional authority" as to the location of railroads, in, along, over or across any street, which act regulates the granting of franchises for such use of the streets without giving any material additional powers: State ex rel. Schade Brewing Co. v. Superior Court, 62 Wash. 96, 113 Pac. 576.

As to obstruction of street as a nuisance, see note in 1 Am. St. Rep. 840.

A city of the first class has authority to construct in a city street extending to deep water across the harbor area, between the inner and outer harbor lines, a gridiron wharf for use as a public landing and convenience to navigation in connection with the use of the street, under its general powers conferred by this section, providing that it may construct and maintain public landing places, wharves, and docks, and extend its streets across tide lands and harbor areas in such manner as will best promote the interests of commerce: Chlopeck Fish Co. v. Seattle, 64 Wash. 315, 117 Pac. 232.

As to right of municipality, in absence of statute, to erect free wharf at point where street abuts upon waterfront, see note in 14 Ann. Cas. 1135.

This section, subdivision 5, granting to a city power to issue bonds in place of, or to supply means to meet maturing bonds or for the consolidation or funding of bonds, does not authorize a city, upon the issuance of bonds, to pay for a public improvement costing eight hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars, to issue additional bonds in the sum of one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars to be placed in a sinking fund and preserved inviolate for fifty years for the purpose of redeeming and paying the other bonds then to become due, since a sinking fund is to be applied to the extinguishment of a principal debt and cannot be created as part of the debt itself: Murphy v. Spokane, 64 Wash. 681, 117 Pac. 476.

As to municipal bonds and upon what their validity depends, see note in 51 Am. St. Rep. 823.

This section, authorizing a city to open, establish, grade and plank streets and other public places, and to construct and keep in repair bridges, authorizes the city to construct a bridge or elevated roadway: Knickerbocker Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 336, 124 Pac. 920.

Under this section, providing that a city may authorize or prohibit the maintenance of a railroad in streets and prescribe the conditions thereof, the granting of a franchise to a public service railway corporation to cross a street at a specified height, and changes of street grades in the vicinity to meet the necessities of the railroad grade, are for a public use, notwithstanding that the railroad company agreed to pay all condemnation awards against the city: Spokane v. Thompson, 69 Wash. 650, 126 Pac. 47.

A retail liquor license is property which passes to personal representatives on the death of the holder, as against third persons unlawfully converting the same to their own use, where the city charter and ordinances provides for transfers by and with the consent of the city council or to bona fide purchasers: Jaffe v. Pacific Brewing & Malting Co., 69 Wash. 308, 124 Pac. 1122.

As to liquor license as asset, see note in 4 L. R. A., N. S., 626.

§ 7507-1. Power to Lease Wharf Privileges.

The legislative authorities of any city of the first class in this state are authorized and empowered to rent or lease the whole or any part of any wharf or privileges thereon owned by such city, in such manner as may be prescribed by general ordinance, for periods not exceeding one year. [L. '11, p. 338, § 1.]

§§ 7513-7516.

§ 7517.

See notes to § 7504.

This section, vesting the legislative power of cities in a mayor and council, does not prevent the adoption of a charter providing for the initiative and referendum form of government, because it would be impliedly repealed thereby: Hartig v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 432, 102 Pac. 408.

The initiative and referendum plan of government adopted pursuant to constitution, article 11, section 10, authorizing a city to frame its own charter, is not inconsistent with this section, vesting the legislative power of cities in a mayor and council, since such section applies only to powers provided for in the charter: Hartig v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 432, 102 Pac. 408.

A provision in a city charter adopted by a city of the first class under constitution, article 11, section 10, for the recall of a city councilman is authorized by this section providing that the city council shall have the powers, and shall be elected at the times, in the manner, and for the terms prescribed in the charter: Hilzinger v. Gillman, 56 Wash. 228, 21 Ann. Cas. 305, 105 Pac. 471.

Under this and the next section, and section 7504, providing that the voters may amend the charter in any matter within the realm of local affairs or municipal business, a city may adopt the commission form of government vesting all legislative and executive power in five commissioners who shall constitute the council, one of whom shall be mayor, each to be in charge of an independent department, since the same does not go beyond the realms of local affairs and municipal business: Walker v. Spokane, 62 Wash. 312, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 994, 113 Pac. 775.

As to right of municipality to adopt the commission form of government, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912C, 999.

This section, providing that the legislative powers of cities of the first class shall be vested in a mayor and city council, without limiting or specifying his duties as an executive officer, does not imply that the mayor must be an officer possessed of the distinguishing characteristics of a mayor, or that he shall be an executive officer, since other mandatory provisions of the statutes are to the effect that he shall perform the duties prescribed by the charter: Walker v. Spokane, 62 Wash. 312, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 994, 113 Pac. 775.

§ 7517-1. Recall of Elective Officials—Nomination of Candidates.

Whenever any city of the first class has heretofore, or shall hereafter, include in its city charter any provision for the recall of elective city officials, or any of them, at an election to be held for that purpose, if said charter provisions shall not specifically prescribe the method of nomination and placing the names of candidates upon the official ballot for use at said election, then and in that case, such candidates may be nominated in the following manner:

By filing a certificate of nomination with the city comptroller or clerk of such city, signed by electors of said city equaling in number not less than five per cent of the total vote cast for the incumbent against whom the recall is directed, which said certificate of nomination shall be substantially in the following form:

"CERTIFICATE OF NOMINATION."

We, the undersigned duly qualified citizens, voters and electors in and of the city of —, in — county, state of Washington, do hereby nominate —, of — county, Washington, engaged in the — business, and whose address is —, — as —, candidate for the office of — of the city of —, — county, Washington to be voted for at a special election to be held in the city of — on the — day of —, A. D. 19—.

We hereby certify that we, and each of us, undersigned, do and have hereby made the foregoing nomination, and that the said nominee is a duly qualified elector and voter in and of said city, county and state.

Name	Residence	Business	Address	Street	Number.
------	-----------	----------	---------	--------	---------

Provided, That said signatures need not be all appended to one paper. Each elector signing a certificate of nomination shall add to his signature his place of residence, including street and number, his business and address. Said certificate of nomination shall be filed with the city comptroller or clerk of said city, at least ten days before the election to be held, and when so filed the comptroller or city clerk shall put the name of the nominees or candidates upon the official ballot, and in all cases the name of the incumbent of the office against whom the recall election is directed shall be printed upon the said official ballot at the head of the list of names thereon, without any petition in his behalf, unless in writing he should notify the city comptroller or city clerk to the contrary, and all the names upon said official ballot shall be printed without party or political designation, And provided, Nothing in this act contained shall be held to prevent any city which had the right to make or amend its own charter from making and prescribing in such charter any provision for a system of nomination at recall elections which shall thereupon, control and direct its city officials in the preparation of the official ballot for use at such elections. [L. '11, p. 1, § 1.]

§ 7517-2. Challengers for Recall Elections.

Whenever any city has heretofore, or shall hereafter, include in its city charter any provision for the recall of elective city officials, or any of them, at an election to be held for that purpose, each candidate at such election shall have the right to designate a challenger or challengers at each polling place: Provided, however, That this act shall not affect the right to have or to be challengers as otherwise provided by law. [L. '11, p. 7, § 1.]

§ 7517-3. Rights and Privileges.

Such challenger or challengers shall have the right to be within the polling place as fully as the election officers and during the whole time the polls are open and until the ballots are all counted, including the right to examine the ballot-box before any ballot is deposited therein: Provided, however, That there shall be no more than one challenger for each candidate in a polling place at any one time. [L. '11, p. 7, § 2.]

§ 7518.

See notes to § 7517.

CHAPTER VIII.

FIRST CLASS CITIES, LOCAL ASSESSMENTS.

§§ 7529-7578.

§ 7529.

A deficiency in the sums collected on a public improvement cannot be made up by a radical change in the plans, throwing a larger per cent of the cost of excavations upon owners excavating their own lots to street level by private contract, but only by apportionment upon all the property according to benefits: Atwood v. Smith, 64 Wash. 470, 117 Pac. 393.

As to assessment of cost of local improvement made under municipal authority against abutting owner who had made improvement on his own initiative, see note in 22 L. R. A., N. S., 877.

A party is not estopped to question an invalid change in the plans for a public improvement, when notified thereof by the contractor, where he did not mislead the contractor into the belief that he would assent, and shortly after notified him that the matter would be investigated before assent would be given: Atwood v. Smith, 64 Wash. 470, 117 Pac. 393.

As to change of ordinance requiring fire-escapes after compliance therewith, see note in 2 L. R. A., N. S., 398.

It is within the discretion of city authorities to make a public improvement wholly at the expense of the property benefited, instead of partly at the expense of the public; and the courts have no power to control such discretion: Powell v. Walla Walla, 64 Wash. 582, 117 Pac. 389.

As to public improvements, and the assessment therefor by the front-foot rule, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 1124.

The judgment of municipal officers specially authorized to determine the amount of the benefits from a public improvement and assess the same upon specific property benefited is conclusive, and courts will not interfere unless it is so grossly excessive as to amount to a practical confiscation of the property: Powell v. Walla Walls, 64 Wash. 582, 117 Pac. 389.

As to finality of decisions pertaining to local improvements, see note in 19 L. R. A., N. S., 382.

As a public park cannot be assessed for benefits from a street improvement, the courts will enjoin an improvement of streets by a city where part of the cost was assessed against a public park, and the city had already reached its constitutional limit of indebtedness: Powell v. Walla Walla, 64 Wash. 528, 117 Pac. 389.

As to power of municipality to contract for periodical payments throughout term of years when aggregate payments exceed debt limit, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1177.

A leasehold interest in state tide lands is assessable for local improvements under laws passed since the execution of the lease, since the common-law rule of an implied covenant in a lease that the lessor shall pay the taxes has no application to a lease of public lands the fee of which is not subject to taxation: Trimble v. Seattle, 64 Wash. 102, 116 Pac. 647.

As to "owner" as including tenant for years, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 456.

Where a railroad company has a mere easement or right of way to maintain tracks in a street, it cannot be assessed for benefits from the improvement of the street, required to be assessed against abutting property benefited thereby, especially where its franchise compelled it to make a substantial cash contribution toward the expense of the improvement: In re Westlake Avenue, 66 Wash. 277, 119 Pac. 798.

The franchise of a street railway is not assessable for benefits from a public improvement from the fact that the company was benefited thereby: Spokane v. Curtiss, 66 Wash. 555, 120 Pac. 70.

As to liability of railroad right of way to assessment for local improvement, see notes in 2 Ann. Cas. 587; 12 Ann. Cas. 635; 40 L. R. A., N. S., 935.

§ 7532.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

In a proceeding to assess the benefits to property by reason of the condemnation of a public street through the tract, in which it appeared that a reasonable grade would require a cut, but no grade had been established, confirmation of the assessment without inquiry into the effect of the grade is error: In re South Shilshole Place, 61 Wash. 246, 112 Pac. 228.

The hearing in the superior court upon the confirmation of a city assessment-roll for public improvements is not the trial of an action at law in which findings of fact are required: Brown v. Seattle, 57 Wash. 314, 106 Pac. 1113.

Under this section, providing that the city council shall confirm an assessment as corrected by resolution or ordinance, in conformity with the charter, a city council may confirm an assessment by resolution, although another ordinance provides that all orders of confirmation shall be by ordinance, since the power of the council depends upon the general law and the charter; hence an appeal from a resolution confirming an assessment is not premature: Real Estate Inv. Co. v. Spokane, 59 Wash. 416, 109 Pac. 1057.

Under this section, providing that the regularity, validity and correctness of a local assessment must be challenged when the roll is before the city council for confirmation and all objections not so made are conclusively waived, and section 7533, providing that the assessment becomes conclusive in all things upon all parties not appealing therefrom, an objection to an assessment in that it exceeds fifty per cent of the assessed valuation of the property, in violation of the city charter, is waived if the objection is not made before the city council and appeal taken: Rucker Brothers v. Everett, 66 Wash. 366, 38 L. R. A., N. S., 582, 119 Pac. 807.

As to nature of proceedings to collect improvement taxes, see note in 133 Am. St. Rep. 930.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

This section, providing that on appeal from a decision of a city council upon the confirmation of an assessment, the appellant shall execute and file a bond, is sufficiently complied with to give jurisdiction of the appeal, where a bond purporting to be given in behalf of appellant "and others," was signed by one of the appellants and a surety, the condition being broad enough to hold the surety on account of any of the appellants, and the notice of appeal being signed by the proper parties: Gerlach v. Spokane, 68 Wash. 589, 124 Pac. 121.

Upon appeal from an assessment, the appellant cannot allege error in excluding evidence of benefits which was offered by a property owner not appealing: Gerlach v. Spokane, 68 Wash. 589, 124 Pac. 121.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

Where the court reduced an assessment against the leasehold and charged part against the fee, the lessee cannot complain that the court had no power to originate an assessment against the fee, the owner of the fee not complaining, and this section, providing that the court on appeal may correct or modify the assessment: Seattle Mattress & Upholstery Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 666, 125 Pac. 1013.

§ 7552.

See notes to § 7905.

The assessments of benefits from a local improvement, made by the commission appointed for that purpose, will not be disturbed on appeal where there were differences of opinion and conflicting evidence; and it is immaterial that the ownership of several lots was taken into consideration if the commission arrived at the correct result: In re Elliott Avenue and Milwaukee Street, Seattle, 54 Wash. 297, 103 Pac. 20.

As to appealable judgments and orders in eminent domain proceedings, see note in 16 Ann. Cas. 1004.

An assessment ordered by the court against property benefited by a local improvement will not be reduced as excessive unless the evidence so clearly pre-ponderates against the finding as to indicate arbitrary action: Seattle v. Sylvester-Cowen Inv. Co., 55 Wash. 659, 104 Pac. 1121.

As to assessments that exceed benefits, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 1172.

A special assessment will not be disturbed as unequal or unjust, where it rests upon opinion and the evidence is conflicting: In re Pine Street, Seattle, 57 Wash. 178, 106 Pac. 755.

The confirmation of a local municipal assessment will not be set aside upon appeal upon conflicting testimony evenly balanced, especially where there is nothing to indicate unfairness or partiality, and the city council spent much time in equalizing the assessments: Brown v. Seattle, 57 Wash. 314, 106 Pac. 1113.

An assessment of benefits from the condemnation of land for street extensions through unplatted property should be set aside for manifest abuse of discretion, where the commissioners assessed the unplatted property at about ten times as much as platted property, irrespective of its relation to the streets or the benefits received, arbitrarily assuming that the same was benefited greatly in excess of platted property; and it is an abuse of discretion for the trial judge to select commissioners who will, or influence them to, make such an assessment: In re Everett, 61 Wash. 493, 112 Pac. 658.

As to vacation of eminent domain proceedings on account of misconduct of commissioners, see note in 20 Ann. Cas. 711.

An apportionment of benefits by the eminent domain commissioners will not be disturbed on appeal on the ground that it was not according to the benefits, where there was a diversity of opinions by the witnesses and the evidence was not sufficient to overcome the report: In re Jackson Street, 62 Wash. 432, 113 Pac. 1112.

The limits of a special assessment district fixed by the commission, and the amount taxed against the general fund, will not be disturbed on appeal, where the limits do not appear to be unreasonable and the entire cost might have been assessed against the property: In re Pine Street, Seattle, 57 Wash. 178, 106 Pac. 755.

Upon an appeal from the confirmation of an assessment for a local improvement, findings as to the boundaries of the lands benefited, and the amount of the benefits, will not be disturbed in the absence of any abuse of discretion: In re Sixth Avenue West, Seattle, 59 Wash. 41, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1047, 109 Pac. 1052.

Upon appeal from the confirmation of an assessment for a local improvement, where about half of the land was exempt, and the proportion appears of record, the supreme court will order a proportionate reduction: In re Sixth Avenue West, Seattle, 59 Wash. 41, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1047, 109 Pac. 1052.

A notice of appeal from the confirmation of an assessment by a city council may be informal, and is sufficient if it is made to appear that the owner protests against the costs as excessive and disproportionate to the value of the property, and because the benefit is not in proportion to the cost, it only being necessary to clearly state the grounds of the objection: Real Estate Inv. Co. v. Spokane, 59 Wash. 416, 109 Pac. 1057.

§ 7571.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

Where a city of the first class has provided itself with a general plan for the improvement of streets, under the privileges so to do granted by section 7573, the restriction of section 7571, limiting assessments to fifty per cent of the value of the land assessed, has no application, in view of the optional clause expressly authorizing the city to "avail itself of this act, . . . but it shall not be construed as a taking away" from such city any power possessed under its charter or any state law: Gerlach v. Spokane, 68 Wash. 589, 124 Pac. 121.

Under this section, a property owner cannot complain of an improvement the cost of which exceeds fifty per cent of such valuation, where no more than such fifty per cent is assessed against the benefited property and the balance is provided by the city from its general fund or other sources: Hapgood v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 497, 125 Pac. 965.

This section, limiting assessments for local improvements to fifty per cent of the valuation of the real estate within the improvement district, does not limit each assessment to fifty per cent of the value of each lot assessed, nor the total assessment to fifty per cent of the value of all the lots assessed; but the limit of the assessable cost is fixed by the total valuation of the real estate within the entire district, even if some of the property therein is not benefited and not subject to assessments: Hapgood v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 497, 125 Pac. 965.

As to waiver of objection that assessment exceeds the percentage limited by charter or statute, see note in 38 L. R. A., N. S., 582.

§ 7573.

See notes to § 7571.

CHAPTER X.

VIADUCTS, ETC., IN CITIES OF THE FIRST CLASS.

§ 7579. Authorized—Contiguous Property Benefited may be Assessed.

Any city of the first class shall have power to provide for the construction, maintenance and operation upon public streets and upon the extensions and connections thereof over intervening tide lands to and across any harbor reserves, waterways, canals, rivers, natural watercourses and other channels, any bridges, drawbridges, viaducts, elevated roadways and tunnels or any combination thereof together with all necessary approaches thereto, with or without street railway tracks thereon or therein, and to make any and all necessary cuts, fills, or other construction, upon, in or along such streets and approaches as a part of any such improvement, and to order any and all work to be done which shall be necessary to complete any such improvement. The word "approaches" as used in this section shall include any arterial highway or highways or street connecting with any such bridge, drawbridge, viaduct, elevated roadway or tunnel, or combination thereof, which are necessary to give convenient access thereto or therefrom from any portion of the improvement district which may be specially benefited by such improvement and which is liable to assessment for such improvement.

Whenever it is desired to pay the whole or any portion of the cost and expense of any such improvement by special assessments, the council or other legislative body of such city shall in the ordinance ordering such improvement fix and establish the boundaries of the improvement district, the property within which is to bear such assessment, which district shall include as near as may be, all the property specially benefited by such improvement. [L. '11, p. 493, § 1.]

§ 7580. Assessment District—Hearing.

Any such improvement may be initiated by the city council, or other legislative body of such city, by a resolution, declaring its intention to order such improvement, which resolution shall set forth the nature and territorial extent of such proposed improvement, shall specify and describe the boundaries of such proposed improvement district and notify all persons who may desire to object thereto to appear and present such objections at a meeting of the council specified in such resolution and directing the board of public works, or other proper board, officer or authority of such city, to submit to such council at or prior to the date fixed for such hearing the estimated cost and expense of such improvement, and a statement of the proportionate amount thereof which should be borne by the property within the proposed improvement district, and a statement of the aggregate assessed valuation of the real property exclusive of improvements, within said district, according to the valuation last placed upon it for purposes of general taxation. Such resolution shall be published in at least two (2) consecutive issues of the official newspaper of such city, the date of the first publication to be at least thirty days prior to the date fixed by such resolution for hearing before such council.

Upon such hearing, or upon any adjournment thereof, such council shall have power to amend, change, extend, or contract the boundaries of such proposed improvement district as specified in such resolution, and to consider and determine all matters in relation to such proposed improvement, and, upon the conclusion of such hearing, or any adjournment thereof, shall have power by ordinance to order such improvement to be made and to adopt, fix and establish the boundaries of the improvement district. The action of such council in ordering such improvement, or in abandoning the same, and in fixing and establishing the boundaries of such improvement district shall be final and conclusive. Any such ordinance may be passed upon majority vote of the council or other legislative body of such city. Such ordinance may provide for the construction of such improvement in sections, the letting of separate contracts for each such section, and, in case the same is made in sections, separate assessment-rolls to defray the cost and expense of any such section of such improvement may be prepared, and the amounts thereon appearing as finally determined, may be levied and assessed against real property within such improvement district. The provisions of law, charter and ordinance of any such city, relating to supplemental assessments, reassessments and omitted property shall be applicable to any improvement authorized in this act.

The city council, or other legislative body of such city, shall by general ordinance, make provision for hearing any objections in writing, to any assessment-roll for such improvement filed with the city clerk or comptroller at a prior date to the hearing thereon. Any right of appeal to the superior court now provided by law to be taken from any local improvement assessment levied and assessed by any such city, may be exercised, within the time and in the manner therein provided, by any person so objecting to any assessment levied and assessed for any improvement authorized in this act. [L. '11, p. 494, § 2.]

CHAPTER XI.

SECOND CLASS CITIES.

§ 7612-1. Publicity Fund in Cities of Less Than Eighteen Thousand Inhabitants.

Any city of the second class under 18,000 inhabitants of the state of Washington is hereby empowered to create a special fund to be known as a publicity fund, to be used exclusively for exploiting and advertising the general advantages and opportunities of such city and vicinity. Whenever the city council or other governing body in any such city shall decide to create a publicity fund under this act, such council or governing body of such city shall do so by ordinance, and thereupon the council or other governing body of such city shall have authority to levy annually for the creation and maintenance of such fund a special tax on all of the taxable property of such city, not exceeding two and one-half mills on the dollar of the assessed valuation of the taxable property of such city. All moneys derived from such tax levy shall be paid into such publicity fund and shall be devoted exclusively to the use herein stated, and shall be paid out only upon warrants drawn against the same and signed by at least two members of the publicity board hereinafter provided for. [L. '13, p. 175, § 1.]

§ 7612-2. Expenditures—Publicity Board.

All expenditures from said fund shall be made under the direction of a publicity board of three members to be nominated by a recognized commercial organization of such city, then appointed by the mayor and confirmed by the council or other legislative body of the city by two-thirds vote; the members of such board shall serve without remuneration and must be actual residents and voters in such city and property owners therein; and the recognized commercial organization herein referred to must be representative and public and devoted exclusively to the work usually devolving on such organizations, and must have no less than two hundred bona fide dues paying members, and must be incorporated under the laws of the state of Washington; if there be more than one organization meeting these qualifications in any city, then the oldest of such organizations shall be the one recognized within the meaning and provisions of this act. Members of the publicity board may be appointed in the manner herein provided any time after this act goes into effect and the first members appointed shall hold office until the second Monday in January following their appointment, or until their successors shall have been appointed and qualified, and thereafter the members of such publicity board shall be appointed at the first regular meeting in December of the city council or other governing body of such city and the terms of office of such members shall be for one year beginning on the second Monday in January after their appointment and until their successors are appointed and qualified. Members of the board, duly appointed and confirmed, shall qualify prior to the beginning of their term by taking the oath of office and by giving a bond to the city in the sum of $1,000, conditioned upon the faithful performance of their duties. Any member of the board shall be removed by the mayor on request of the recognized commercial organization making the nomination, as hereinbefore stated, when it is shown that a majority vote of the entire membership of such recognized organization favoring such removal has been cast at any regular meeting of such organization. No part of said publicity fund shall ever be paid to any newspaper, magazine or periodical published within the city or county where such city is situated, for advertising or write-ups or for any other service or purpose whatsoever, and no part of such fund shall be expended for the purpose of making any exhibits at any fair, exposition or the like. [L. '13, p. 176, § 2.] §§ 7621-7634.

§ 7623.

A complaint to enjoin an assessment for a street improvement in a city of the second class states a cause of action where it is alleged that the city is proceeding to make the assessment without giving the plaintiff property owners notice or opportunity for a hearing upon the equalization of the assessments, as required by this section, and that the city has included large sums not a part of the cost of the improvement and not properly chargeable to the property benefited, without an opportunity to be heard: Coats Shingle Co. v. Hoquiam, 55 Wash. 690, 105 Pac. 141.

As to validity of eminent domain statute which fails to provide for notice to land owner of proceedings to condemn, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913A, 1256.

§§ 7656-7662.

§ 7656.

Under constitution, article 4, section 1, vesting judicial power in certain courts, and such inferior courts as the legislature may provide, and article 4, section 12, providing that the legislature shall prescribe the jurisdiction and powers of such inferior courts, the legislature had power, by section 7656, to create police courts in cities of the second class, and by section 7657, to confer on them jurisdiction of petit larceny committed within the city: State ex rel. Fugita v. Milroy, 71 Wash. 592, 129 Pac. 384.

less than twenty thousand to adopt the commission form of city government, does not restrict its application to any particular city or special territory, as the court takes judicial notice that there are many cities within the limitation: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 35 L. R. A. 802, 116 Pac. 651.

Laws of 1911, page 521, authorizing the adoption of the commission form of city government, is not an unwarranted delegation of legislative power, in violation of constitution, article 21, section 1, since it is complete in itself and may properly leave to a local board the determination of when or whether it will go into operation: State

This section is not unconstitutional because of its optional features: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 802, 116 Pac. 651.

This section does not violate constitution, article 11, section 10, requiring classification of cities by general laws in proportion to population, although it creates a new classification for this purpose within the old classes, since the constitution does not require uniformity of general laws relative to municipal corporations, and the act is general and of uniform operation: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 802, 116 Pac. 651.

§ 7670-2. Petition—Election.

Upon petition of electors equal in number to twenty-five per centum of the votes cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceding city election of any such city, the mayor shall by proclamation, submit the question of organizing as a city under this act at a special election to be held at a time specified therein, and within sixty days after said petition is filed. If said plan is not adopted at the special election called, the question of adopting said plan shall not be resubmitted to the voters of said city for adoption within two years thereafter.

At such election the proposition to be submitted and printed on the ballot shall be: "Shall the proposition to organize the city of (name of city), under chapter (naming the chapter containing this act) of the acts of the twelfth legislature of the state of Washington, be adopted?" and there shall be printed on the official ballots of said election the above proposition, followed by the words:

"For organization as a city under commission —."

"Against organization as a city under commission —" and the election thereupon shall be conducted, the vote canvassed, and the result declared in the same manner as provided by law in respect to other city elections. If the majority of the votes cast shall be in favor thereof, the city shall proceed to the election of a mayor and two commissioners, as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 521, § 2.]

This section is not void in that constitution, article 11, section 10, authorizes existing cities to become organized under general laws whenever a majority of the electors voting at a general election shall so determine, since the provision for a "special" election may be rejected as surplusage and the election held at the city's general election; neither does the constitutional provision make general the election held for such purpose, but merely fixes the time for holding it: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 802, 116 Pac. 651.

This section, authorizing the adoption of a commission form of city government, and leaving in force all existing laws not inconsistent with the act, is not violative of constitution, article 2, section 37, providing that no act shall be revised or amended without reference to its title, setting forth the amended section in full, and section 38, providing that amendments shall not be allowed which shall change the scope or object of the bill, since those sections of the constitution do not apply to the modification of existing laws by acts complete in themselves or by supplemental acts not altering the original act: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 802, 116 Pac. 651.

his court for that month in which the city may be interested and file the same with the city clerk. [L. '13, p. 303, § 6.]

§ 7656-7. Absence—Police Judge Pro Tempore.

In the event of the police judge's inability to act, or during any temporary absence, or if he should be disqualified, the mayor shall appoint from among the practicing attorneys and qualified electors of the city, a police judge pro tempore, who, before entering upon the duties of such office, shall take and subscribe an oath as other judicial officers, and while so acting, he shall have all the power of the police judge: Provided, however, Such appointment shall not continue for a longer period than the absence or inability of the police judge. Such police judge pro tempore shall receive compensation for such services at the rate of five dollars per day, to be paid by the city. [L. '13, p. 303, § 7.]

§ 7656-8. Must be Attorney—Election.

No person shall be eligible to hold the office of police judge who is not a practicing attorney under the laws of this state. In all cities of the second class, except such as have a commission form of government, a police judge shall be elected annually at the general municipal election and shall hold his office until his successor is elected and qualified. [L. '13, p. 303, § 8.] § 7657.

Repealed. See L. '13, p. 303, § 9.

This section, expressly conferring on police courts jurisdiction of petit larceny committed in the city, and limiting the jurisdiction in the case of misdemeanors to those punishable by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, does not oust the court of jurisdiction in the case of petit larceny upon a subsequent change of penalty: State ex rel. Fugita v. Milroy, 71 Wash. 592, 129 Pac. 384.

§ 7664.

§ 7666.

Repealed. See L. '13, p. 303, § 9.

CHAPTER XI-A.

COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

§ 7670-1. Population for Commission Form of Government.

Any city, now or hereafter, having a population of two thousand five hundred and less than twenty thousand, as shown by the last state or federal census or by any special census taken by the city in the manner prescribed in section 7485, Remington and Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington, may become organized as a city under the provisions of this act by proceeding as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 521, § 1.]

A city charter establishing the commission form of government, with the initiative, referendum, and recall, does not abolish the republican form of government guaranteed by article 4, section 4, of the federal constitution, since the guaranty applies only to the state governments, and means only a representative form of government subject to the will of the people: Walker v. Spokane, 62 Wash. 312, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 994, 113 Pac. 775.

Constitution, article 2, section 28, subdivision 8, prohibiting the enactment of special laws to incorporate any city or amend a city charter, is not violated by this section authorizing the cities of a specified population to adopt the commission form of city government: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 135 L. R. A., N. S., 802, 116 Pac. 651.

This section, authorizing cities having a population of two thousand five hundred and less than twenty thousand to adopt the commission form of city government, does not restrict its application to any particular city or special territory, as the court takes judicial notice that there are many cities within the limitation: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 35 L. R. A. 802, 116 Pac. 651.

Laws of 1911, page 521, authorizing the adoption of the commission form of city government, is not an unwarranted delegation of legislative power, in violation of constitution, article 21, section 1, since it is complete in itself and may properly leave to a local board the determination of when or whether it will go into operation: State

This section is not unconstitutional because of its optional features: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 802, 116 Pac. 651.

This section does not violate constitution, article 11, section 10, requiring classification of cities by general laws in proportion to population, although it creates a new classification for this purpose within the old classes, since the constitution does not require uniformity of general laws relative to municipal corporations, and the act is general and of uniform operation: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 802, 116 Pac. 651.

§ 7670-2. Petition—Election.

Upon petition of electors equal in number to twenty-five per centum of the votes cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceding city election of any such city, the mayor shall by proclamation, submit the question of organizing as a city under this act at a special election to be held at a time specified therein, and within sixty days after said petition is filed. If said plan is not adopted at the special election called, the question of adopting said plan shall not be resubmitted to the voters of said city for adoption within two years thereafter.

At such election the proposition to be submitted and printed on the ballot shall be: "Shall the proposition to organize the city of (name of city), under chapter (naming the chapter containing this act) of the acts of the twelfth legislature of the state of Washington, be adopted?" and there shall be printed on the official ballots of said election the above proposition, followed by the words:

"For organization as a city under commission —."

"Against organization as a city under commission —" and the election thereupon shall be conducted, the vote canvassed, and the result declared in the same manner as provided by law in respect to other city elections. If the majority of the votes cast shall be in favor thereof, the city shall proceed to the election of a mayor and two commissioners, as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 521, § 2.]

This section is not void in that constitution, article 11, section 10, authorizes existing cities to become organized under general laws whenever a majority of the electors voting at a general election shall so determine, since the provision for a "special" election may be rejected as surplusage and the election held at the city's general election; neither does the constitutional provision make general the election held for such purpose, but merely fixes the time for holding it: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 802, 116 Pac. 651.

This section, authorizing the adoption of a commission form of city government, and leaving in force all existing laws not inconsistent with the act, is not violative of constitution, article 2, section 37, providing that no act shall be revised or amended without reference to its title, setting forth the amended section in full, and section 38, providing that amendments shall not be allowed which shall change the scope or object of the bill, since those sections of the constitution do not apply to the modification of existing laws by acts complete in themselves or by supplemental acts not altering the original act: State ex rel. Hunt v. Tausick, 64 Wash. 69, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 802, 116 Pac. 651.

§ 7670-3. Time for Holding Elections.

All regular elections under this act shall be held triennially on the first Monday in December, at which time there shall be elected a mayor and two commissioners who, together, shall constitute and be known as the "City Commission," and who shall serve for a term of three years and until their successors shall be elected and qualified: Provided, That the first election hereunder shall be held within sixty days after the adoption of the proposition to organize under this act as provided for herein: And provided further, That the commission elected at the first election shall serve until the third Monday in December following such first election, and for three years thereafter. [L. '11, p. 522, § 3.]

§ 7670-4. Application of Act—Effect of Change.

All existing laws governing cities of the second class or applicable thereto, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, shall apply to and govern cities organized under this act. All by-laws, ordinances and resolutions lawfully passed and in force in any such city under its former organization shall remain in force until altered or repealed under the provisions of this act. The territorial limits of such city shall remain the same as under its former organization, and all rights and property of every description which were vested in any city under its former organization, shall vest in the same under the organization herein contemplated, and no right or liability either in favor of or against it, existing at the time, and no suit or prosecution of any kind, shall be affected by such change unless otherwise provided for in this act. [L. '11, p. 522, § 4.]

§ 7670-5. Vacancy—How Filled.

If any vacancy occurs in the city commission the remaining members of said commission shall, by appointment, fill such vacancy for the unexpired term.

All of said officers shall be nominated and elected at large. They shall qualify and their terms of office shall begin on the second Monday after their election. The terms of office of the mayor or councilmen or aldermen of such city under the former organization shall terminate at the beginning of the term of office of the city commission elected under the provisions of this act, and the terms of office of all other officers of such city under such former organization, except as hereinafter provided, shall terminate as soon as the commission shall by resolution declare. [L. '11, p. 523, § 5.]

§ 7670-6. Bond of Commissioners.

Each member of the city commission shall, before qualifying, give a good and sufficient bond to the city in a sum equivalent to five times the amount of his annual salary, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the duties of his office, which said bond shall be approved by a judge of the superior court of the state of Washington for the county in which said city is located and filed with the clerk of said court. And said commission may, by resolution, require any of its appointees to give bond to be fixed and approved by said commission, and filed with the mayor. [L. '11, p. 523, § 6.]

§ 7670-7. City Elections—Nominations.

Candidates to be voted for at the first and at all regular municipal elections, under the provisions of this act, shall be a mayor and two commissioners, who shall be nominated at a primary election; and no other names shall be placed upon the general ballot except those selected in the manner hereinafter prescribed. The primary election for such nomination shall be held on the second Monday preceding the municipal election. The officers of election appointed for the municipal election shall be the officers of the primary election, which shall be held at the same place, so far as practicable, and the polls shall be opened and closed at the same hours as are required for the municipal election.

Any person desiring to become a candidate for mayor or commissioner shall, not less than fifteen nor more than twenty-five days prior to said primary election, file with the city clerk a statement of such candidacy accompanied with the filing fee required by law, in substantially the following form: State of Washington, County of —, ss.

I, —, being first duly sworn, say that I reside at — street, city of —, county of —, state of Washington; that I am a qualified voter therein; that I am a candidate for nomination to the office of — of the city of —, to be voted upon at the primary election to be held on Monday, the — day of December, 19—, and I hereby request that my name be printed upon the official primary ballot for nomination by such primary election for such office.

(Signed) — —.

Subscribed and sworn to (or affirmed) before me by — on this — day of —, 19—. .

(Signed) — —.

He shall at the same time file therewith the petition of at least one hundred qualified voters requesting such candidacy. Each petition shall be verified by one or more persons as to the qualifications and residence, with street number, of each of the persons so signing the said petition, and the said petition shall be in substantially the following form:

PETITION ACCOMPANYING NOMINATION STATEMENT.

The undersigned, duly qualified electors of the city of —, and residing at the places set opposite our respective names hereto, do hereby request that the name of (name of candidate) be placed on the ballot as a candidate for nomination for — at the primary election to be held in such city on Monday, the — day of December, 19—. We further state that we know him to be a qualified elector of said city and a person of good moral character and qualified, in our judgment, for the duties of such office.

Names of qualified electors — —.

Number —.

Streets —.

Immediately upon the expiration of the time for filing the statements and petitions for candidates, the city clerk shall cause to be published over his signature for three successive days in all the daily newspapers published in the city, in proper form, the names of the persons as they are to appear upon the primary ballot, and if there be no daily newspapers, then in two issues of any other newspaper that may be published in said city. The said clerk shall thereupon cause the primary ballot to be printed. Upon the said ballot and under the ballot heading as hereinafter provided, the names of the candidates for mayor, arranged alphabetically, shall first be placed, with a square at the right of each name, and immediately above shall appear the words "Vote for one." Following these names, likewise arranged in alphabetical order, shall appear the names of the candidates for commissioners, with a square at the right of each name, and immediately above shall appear the words "Vote for two." The ballots shall be printed upon plain, substantial white paper and shall have no party designation or mark whatever. The ballots shall be in substantially the following form:

OFFICIAL PRIMARY BALLOT.

Candidates for nomination for mayor and commissioners of — at the PRIMARY ELECTION.

(Date) — —.

Place a cross in the square opposite the names of the parties you favor as candidates for the respective positions.

MAYOR.	Vote for One.
.....	<input type="checkbox"/>
.....	<input type="checkbox"/>
COMMISSIONERS.	Vote for Two.
.....	<input type="checkbox"/>
.....	<input type="checkbox"/>

Having caused said ballots to be printed, the said city clerk shall cause to be delivered to each polling place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last general municipal election for mayor. The persons who are qualified to vote at the general municipal election shall be qualified to vote at such primary election. The law applicable to challenges at a general municipal election shall be applicable to challenges made at such primary election. The officers of election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make return thereof to the city clerk, upon proper blanks to be furnished by the said clerk, within six hours of the closing of the polls. On the day following the said primary election the said city clerk shall canvass said returns so received from all the polling precincts, and shall make and publish in all the newspapers of said city, at least once, the result thereof. Said canvass by the city clerk shall be publicly made. The two candidates receiving the highest number of votes for mayor, and the four candidates receiving the highest number of votes for commissioners, shall be placed upon the ballot as the candidates for mayor and commissioners, respectively, at the general municipal election.

All electors of cities under this act who by the laws of the state of Washington would be entitled to vote for the election of officers at any general municipal election in such cities, shall be qualified to vote at all elections under this act and the ballot at such general municipal election shall be in the same general form as for such primary election, so far as applicable, and in all elections in such city the election precincts, voting places, method of conducting election, canvassing the votes and announcing the results shall be the same as by law provided for election of officers in such cities, so far as the same are applicable and not inconsistent with the provisions of this act. [L. '11, p. 523, § 7.]

§ 7670-8. Grafting—Penalty.

Any person who shall agree to perform any service in the interest of any candidate for any office provided for in this act, in consideration of any money or other valuable thing for such services performed in the interest of any candidate, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding three hundred dollars ($300) nor less than twenty-five ($25.00) or be imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding thirty (30) days, nor less than five (5) days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [L. '11, p. 527, § 8.]

§ 7670-9. Soliciting—Bribing—Accepting—Penalty.

Any person giving or offering to give a bribe, either in money or other thing of value, to any elector for the purpose of influencing his vote at any election provided for in this act, or any elector who shall solicit, receive or accept, such bribe or other thing of value, or any person making false answer under any of the provisions of this act relative to his qualifications to vote at said election, or any person willfully voting or offering to vote at such election, who knowing himself not to be a qualified elector of such precinct where he offers to vote; or any person knowingly procuring, aiding or abetting any violating hereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be fined a sum not less than one hundred dollars ($100) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500) and be imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten (10) nor more than ninety (90) days. [L. '11, p. 527, § 9.]

§ 7670-10. Vote of Commission.

Each member of the city commission shall have the right to vote on all questions coming before the commission. Two members of the commission shall constitute a quorum, and the affirmative vote of two members shall be necessary to adopt any motion, resolution or ordinance, or pass any measure, unless a greater number is provided for in this act. Upon every vote, the yeas and nays shall be called and recorded, and every motion, resolution or ordinance shall be reduced to writing and read before the vote is taken thereon. The mayor shall preside at all meetings of the commission; he shall have no power to veto any measure, but every resolution or ordinance passed by the commission must be signed by the mayor, or by two members of the commission, and be filed and recorded within five days after its passage, and the same shall be in effect from and after thirty days after its passage, except as otherwise provided. [L. '11, p. 527, § 10.]

§ 7670-11. Powers Conferred—Departments.

Cities organized under the provisions of this act shall have all the powers which cities of the second class now have, or hereafter may have conferred upon them; all which said powers shall inhere in and be exercised by the commission provided for in this act. The executive and administrative powers, authority and duties in such cities under commission, shall be distributed into and among three departments, as follows:

- I. Department of public safety.
- II. Department of finance and accounting.
- III. Department of streets and public improvements.

The commission shall determine by ordinance the powers and duties to be performed in each department; shall prescribe the powers and duties of officers and employees; may assign particular officers and employees to one or more of the departments; may require an officer or employee to perform duties in two or more departments, and may make such other rules and regulations as they may deem necessary or proper for the efficient and economical conduct of the business of the city. [L. '11, p. 528, § 11.]

§ 7670-12. Duties of Mayor—Removal.

The mayor shall be superintendent of the department of public safety, and the commission shall, at the first regular meeting after election of its members, designate by majority vote one commissioner to be superintendent of finance and accounting; and one to be superintendent of the department of streets and public improvements; but such designation may be changed whenever it appears that the public service would be benefited thereby.

The commission shall, at said first meeting, or as soon as practicable thereafter appoint by majority vote, a city clerk, and such other officers and assistants as shall be provided for by ordinance: Provided, That any officer or assistant, elected or appointed by the commission, may be removed from office at any time by vote of a majority of the members of the commission, except as otherwise provided in this act: Provided further, That any member of the commission may perform the duties pertaining to any and all appointive officers in his department, but without additional compensation therefor. [L. '11, p. 528, § 12.]

§ 7670-13. Change of Compensation.

The commission shall have power from time to time to create, fill and discontinue offices and employments other than those herein prescribed, according to their judgment of the needs of the city; and may, by majority vote of all the members, remove any such officer or employees, except as otherwise provided for in this act; and may by resolution, or otherwise prescribe, limit or change the compensation of such officers or employees. [L. '11, p. 529, § 13.]

§ 7670-14. Salaries.

The commission shall have and maintain an office at the city hall, or such other place as the city may provide, and their total compensation shall be as follows: In cities having a population of two thousand five hundred (2,500) and less than five thousand (5,000) the annual salary of the mayor shall be five hundred dollars (500), and that of each of the commissioners two hundred fifty dollars ($250); in cities having a population of five thousand and less than eight thousand (8,000), the annual salary of the mayor shall be twelve hundred dollars ($1,200), and that of each of the commissioners one thousand dollars ($1,000); in cities having a population of eight thousand (8,000) and less than fourteen thousand (14,000), the annual salary of the mayor shall be two thousand dollars ($2,000), and that of each of the commissioners eighteen hundred dollars ($1,800); and in cities having a population of fourteen thousand (14,000) and less than twenty thousand (20,000), the annual salary of the mayor shall be twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500), and that of each commissioner two thousand dollars ($2,000). Such salaries shall be payable in equal monthly installments.

Every other officer or assistant shall receive such salary or compensation as the commission shall fix by ordinance and shall be payable monthly or at such shorter periods as the commission shall determine. [L. '11, p. 529, § 14.]

§ 7670-15. Regular Meeting.

Regular meetings of the commission shall be held on the second Monday after the election of the commission, and thereafter at least once each week. The commission shall provide by ordinance for the time of holding regular meetings, and special meetings may be called from time to time by the mayor or two commissioners. All meetings of the commission, whether regular or special, shall be open to the public.

The mayor shall be president of the commission and preside at its meetings, and shall oversee all departments and report and recommend to the commission for its action all matters requiring attention in any department. The superintendent of the department of finance and accounting shall be vice-president of the commission, and in the absence or inability of the mayor, shall perform the duties of the mayor. [L. '11, p. 530, § 15.]

§ 7670-16. Franchises.

Every ordinance or resolution appropriating money or ordering any street improvement or sewer, or granting any franchise or right to occupy or use the streets, highways, bridges or public places in the city for any purpose, shall be complete in the form in which it is finally passed, and remain on file with the city clerk for public inspection at least one week before the final passage or adoption thereof. No franchise or right to occupy or use the streets, highways, bridges or public places in any city shall be granted, renewed or extended, except by ordinance; and every franchise or grant for interurban or street railways, gas or water works, electric light or power plants, heating plants, telegraph or telephone systems, or other public service utilities within said city, must be authorized or approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at a general or special election. [L. '11, p. 530, § 16.]

§ 7670-17. Contracts—Special Privileges.

No officer or employee elected or appointed in any such city shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in any contract or job for work or materials, or claims or demands of any kind or nature whatsoever, or the profits thereof, or services to be furnished or performed for the city; and no officer or employee shall be interested directly or indirectly, in any contract or job for work or materials, or the profits thereof, or service to be furnished or performed for any person, firm or corporation operating interurban railways, street railways, gasworks, waterworks, electric light or power plant, heating plant, telegraph line, telephone exchange, or other public utility within the territorial limits of said city. No such officer or employee shall accept or receive directly or indirectly, from any person, firm or corporation operating within the territorial limits of said city, any interurban railway, street railway, gas works, waterworks, electric light or power plant, heating plant, telegraph line or telephone exchange, or other business using or operating under a public franchise, any frank, free ticket or free service, or accept or receive, directly or indirectly, from any such person, firm or corporation, any other service upon terms more favorable than is granted to the public generally. Any violation of the provisions of this section shall be a misdemeanor, and every such contract or agreement shall be void.

Such prohibition of free transportation shall not apply to policemen or firemen in uniform; nor shall any free service to city officials provided for by any franchise or ordinance be affected by this section. Any appointive officer or employee of such city who, by solicitation or otherwise, shall exert his influence to induce other officers or employees of such city to favor any particular candidate for any city office, or who shall in any manner contribute money, labor, or other valuable thing to any person for city election purposes, shall be discharged from his office by the commission. [L. '11, p. 531, § 17.]

§ 7670-18. Print Statement.

The commission shall each month print in pamphlet form a detailed itemized statement of all receipts and expenses of the city and a summary of its proceedings during the preceding month, and furnish printed copies thereof to the state library, the city library, the newspapers of the city, and to persons who shall apply therefor at the office of the city clerk. At the end of each year the commission shall cause a full and complete examination of all the books and accounts of the city to be made by competent accountants, and shall publish the result of such examination in the manner above provided for publications of statements of monthly expenditures. [L. '11, p. 532, § 18.]

§ 7670-19. May Revise Appropriations.

If, at the beginning of the term of office of the first commission elected in such city under the provisions of this act, the appropriations for the expenditures of the city government for the current fiscal year have been made, said commission shall have power, by ordinance, to revise said appropriations. [L. '11, p. 532, § 19.]

§ 7670-20. Recall—Procedure.

The holder of any elective office may be removed at any time after six months of incumbency by the electors qualified to vote for a successor of such incumbent. The procedure to effect the removal of an incumbent of an elective office shall be as follows: A petition signed by electors entitled to vote for a successor to the incumbent sought to be removed, equal in number to at least thirty-five per centum of the entire vote for all candidates for the office of mayor cast at the last preceding general municipal election, demanding an election of a successor of the person sought to be removed, shall be filed with the city clerk, which petition shall contain a general statement of the grounds for which the removal is sought. The signatures to the petition need not all be appended to one paper, but each signer shall add to his signature his place of residence, giving the street and number. One of the signers of each such paper shall make oath before an officer competent to administer oaths that the statements therein made are true as he believes, and that each signature to the paper appended is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be. Within ten days from the date of filing such petition the city clerk shall examine and, from the registration books and the returns of the preceding municipal election, ascertain whether or not said petition is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, and, if necessary, the commission shall allow him extra help for that purpose; and he shall attach to said petition his certificate, showing the result of such examination. If by the clerk's certificate the petition is shown to be insufficient, it may be amended within ten days from the date of said certificate. The clerk shall, within ten days after such amendment, make like examination of the amended petition, and if his certificate shall show the same to be insufficient it shall be returned to the person filing the same; without prejudice, however, to the filing of a new petition to the same effect. If the petition shall be deemed to be sufficient, the clerk shall submit the same to the commission without delay, and the commission shall order and fix a date for holding the said election, not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days from the date of the clerk's certificate to the commission that a sufficient petition is filed: Provided, however, That in any case where the clerk shall find that the petition is insufficient, or in any case where the commission shall refuse to order an election, then in either of such cases any taxpayer may petition the superior court of such county, and such court shall forthwith examine the petition and, if it shall find the petition sufficient, then the court shall order that such election shall be held and the commission shall be required by the order of the court to hold such election.

The commission shall make, or cause to be made, publication of notice and all arrangements for holding such election, and the same shall be conducted, returned and the result thereof declared, in all respects as are other city elections.

The commission shall call a special primary election for the purpose of nominating one candidate to oppose the incumbent sought to be removed, which said primary election shall be conducted, as nearly as may be, in the same manner as other primary elections under this act. The successor of any officer so removed shall hold office during the unexpired term of his predecessor. Any person sought to be removed shall be a candidate to succeed himself, unless he formally resigns his office, thereby creating a vacancy, and the city clerk shall place his name on the official ballot without nomination. In any such removal election, the candidate receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. At such election, if the candidate opposing the incumbent receives the highest number of votes, the incumbent shall thereupon be deemed removed from the office upon qualification of his successor, which said qualification shall take place within ten days after receiving notification of election, otherwise the office shall be deemed vacant. If the incumbent receives the highest number of votes he shall continue in office and shall not be subject to recall under the provisions of this section during the remainder of his term of office. The same method of removal shall be cumulative and additional to the methods heretofore provided by law. [L. '11, p. 532, § 20.]

§ 7670-21. Ordinances—Special Elections.

Any proposed ordinance may be submitted to the commission by petition signed by electors of the city equal in number to the percentage hereinafter required. The signatures, verification, authentication, inspection, certification, amendment and submission of such petition shall be the same as provided for petitions under section 7670-20.

If the petition accompanying the proposed ordinance be signed by electors equal in number to twenty-five per centum of the votes cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceding general election, and if it contains a request that the said ordinance be submitted to a vote of the people, unless passed by the commission, it shall thereupon be the duty of the commission to either:

(a) Pass said ordinance without alteration within twenty days after attachment of the clerk's certificate to the accompanying petition; or

(b) Forthwith after the clerk shall attach to the petition accompanying such ordinance his certificate of sufficiency, the commission shall call a special election, unless a general municipal election will occur within ninety days thereafter, and at such special or general election such ordinance shall be submitted without alteration to the vote of the electors of said city.

The ballots used for voting upon said ordinance shall be similar to those used at the general municipal election, and shall contain these words: "For the ordinance" (stating the nature of the proposed ordinance); and "Against the ordinance" (stating the nature of the proposed ordinance). If a majority of the qualified voters voting on the proposed ordinance shall vote in favor thereof, such ordinance shall thereupon become a valid and binding ordinance of the city, and any ordinance proposed by petition, or which shall be adopted by a vote of the people, cannot be repealed or amended except by a vote of the people, and on the margin of the record of such ordinances the city clerk shall write the words "Ordinance by petition No. ——" or "Ordinance by vote of the people," as the case may be.

Any number of proposed ordinances may be voted upon at the same election, in accordance with the provisions of this section, but there shall not be more than one special election in any period of six months for such purpose.

The commission may submit a proposition for the repeal of any such ordinance or for amendments thereto, to be voted upon at any such succeeding general city election, and should such proposition so submitted receive a majority of the votes cast thereon at such election, such ordinance shall thereby be repealed or amended accordingly. Whenever any ordinance or proposition is required by this act to be submitted to the voters of the city at an election, the city clerk shall cause such ordinance or proposition to be published once in each of the daily newspapers in said city, such publication to be not more than twenty or less than five days before the submission of such proposition or ordinance to be voted on: Provided, That if no daily newspaper is published in such city, then such publication shall be made in each of the weekly newspapers published therein.

All ordinances repealed or amended shall have placed on the margin of the record of said ordinance by the city clerk the words "repealed (or amended) by ordinance No. ——" or "repealed (or amended) by vote of the people," as the case may be. [L. '11, p. 534, § 21.]

§ 7670-22. Becomes Effective, When.

No ordinance passed by the commission, except when otherwise required by the general laws of the state of Washington or by the provisions of this act, except an ordinance for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, which contains a statement of its urgency and is passed by unanimous vote of the commission, shall go into effect before thirty days from the time of its final passage, and if during said thirty days a petition signed by electors of the city equal in number to at least twenty-five per centum of the entire vote cast for all candidates for mayor at the last preceding general municipal election at which a mayor was elected, protesting against the passage of such ordinance be presented to the commission, said ordinance shall thereupon be suspended from going into operation, and it shall be the duty of the commission to reconsider such ordinance and if the same is not entirely repealed, the commission shall submit the ordinance as is provided by subsection "b" of section 7670-21, to the vote of the electors of the city, either at the general election or at a special municipal election to be called for that purpose; and such ordinance shall not go into effect or become operative unless a majority of the qualified electors voting on the same shall vote in favor thereof. Said petition shall be in all respects in accordance with the provisions of section 7670-21, and be examined and certified to by the clerk in all respects as therein provided: Provided, This section shall not apply to ordinances providing for local improvement districts. [L. '11, p. 536, § 22.]

§ 7670-23. Abandonment of Organization.

Any city which shall have operated for more than six years under the provisions of this act may abandon such organization hereunder and accept the provisions of the general law of the state of Washington applicable to cities of its population.

Upon the petition of not less than twenty-five per centum of the electors of such city a special election shall be called, to which the following proposition only shall be submitted: "Shall the city of (name of city) abandon its organization as a city under commission and become a city under the general laws governing of like population?"

If a majority of the votes cast at such special election be in favor of such proposition the said city shall become organized under the general law and the first election of city officers under the general law shall be held on the date of the next general city election of cities of its class; but such change shall not in any manner or degree affect the property, rights, or liabilities of any nature of such city, but shall merely extend to such change in its form of government.

The sufficiency of such petition shall be determined, the election ordered and conducted, and the results declared, generally as provided by section 7670-20, in so far as the provisions thereof are applicable. [L. '11, p. 537, § 23.]

§ 7670-24. Petition by Legal Voters.

Petitions provided for in this act shall be signed by none but legal voters of the city. Each petition shall contain, in addition to the names of the petitioners, the street and house number in which the petitioner resides, his age and length of residence in the city. It shall also be accompanied by the affidavit of one or more legal voters of the city stating that the signers thereof were at the time of signing, legal voters of said city, and the number of signers at the time the affidavit was made. [L. '11, p. 537, § 24.]

CHAPTER XII.

THIRD CLASS CITIES—GENERAL PROVISIONS.

§ 7678.

This section in the act entitled an act providing for the organization and government of municipal corporations, has reference only to municipal elections, and therefore does not conflict with section 4798, which provides that the county commissioners shall divide the county, including all cities except cities of the first class, into election precincts, based on the number of votes cast at the last general election: Hillyard v. Board of County Commrs., 69 Wash. 423, 125 Pac. 363.

§ 7685. General Powers.

The city council of such city shall have power—

(1) To pass ordinances not in conflict with the constitution and laws of this state or of the United States;

(2) To purchase, lease or receive such real estate and personal property as may be necessary or proper for municipal purposes (and to purchase and plat land for the purpose of cemeteries and to provide by ordinance for the regulation thereof), to control, dispose of and convey the same for the benefit of the city: Provided, That they shall not have the power to sell or convey any portion of any waterfront, but may rent such waterfront for a term not exceeding ten years, and may improve part of such waterfront by building inclines or wharves for the accommodation of shippers, and to charge and collect for the use of the same such amounts as will compensate the city for the expenses incurred and the repairs needed from time to time; to prevent and regulate the running at large of any or all domestic animals within the city limits or any part thereof, and to cause the impounding and sale of any such animals;

(3) To contract for supplying the town with water for municipal purposes, or to acquire, construct, repair and manage pumps, aqueducts, reservoirs or other works necessary or proper for supplying water for the use of such town or its inhabitants or for irrigating purposes therein;

(4) To establish, build and repair bridges, to establish, lay out, alter, keep open, open, widen, vacate, improve and repair streets, sidewalks, alleys, squares and other public highways and places within the city, and to drain, sprinkle and light the same; to remove all obstructions therefrom; to establish the grades thereof; to grade, plank, pave, macadamize, gravel and curb the same, in whole or in part, and to construct gutters, culverts, sidewalks and crosswalks therein or upon any part thereof; to cause to be planted, set out and cultivated shade trees therein; and generally to manage and control all such highways and places;

(5) To establish, construct and maintain drains and sewers, and shall have power to compel all property owners on streets along which sewers shall have been constructed to make proper connections therewith, and to use the same for proper purposes, and in case the owners of property on such streets shall fail to make such connections with the time fixed by such council, they may cause such connections to be made and to assess against the property in front of which such connections are made the costs and expenses thereof;

(6) To provide fire engines and all other necessary or proper apparatus for the prevention and extinguishment of fires;

(7) To impose on and collect from every male inhabitant between the ages of twenty-one and fifty years an annual street poll tax not exceeding two dollars, and no other road poll tax shall be collected within the limits of such city: Provided, That any member of a volunteer fire company in such city shall be exempt from such tax;

(8) To impose and collect an annual license not exceeding two dollars on every dog owned or harbored within the limits of the city (and may provide for the killing of all dogs not duly licensed found at large);

(9) To levy and collect annually a property tax, which shall be apportioned as follows: For the general fund, not exceeding sixty cents on each one hundred dollars; for street fund, not exceeding thirty cents on each one hundred dollars, and for sewer fund, not exceeding ten cents on each one hundred dollars. The levy for all purposes for any one year shall not exceed one dollar on each one hundred dollars of the assessed value of all real and personal property within such city;

(10) To license, for purposes of regulation and revenue, all and every kind of business, including the sale of intoxicating liquors, authorized by law, and transacted and carried on in such city, and all shows, exhibitions and lawful games carried on therein and within one mile of the corporate limits thereof, to fix the rate of license tax upon the same, and to provide for the collection of the same by suit or otherwise;

(11) To improve rivers and streams flowing through such city, or adjoining the same, to widen, straighten and deepen the channel thereof, and remove obstructions therefrom; to improve the waterfront of the city, and to construct and maintain embankments and other works to protect such city from overflow; to purify and prevent the pollution of streams of waters, lakes or other sources of supply, and for this purpose shall have jurisdiction over all streams, lakes or other sources of supply, both within and without the city limits. Such city shall have power to provide by ordinance and to enforce such punishment or penalty as the city council may deem proper for the offense of polluting or in any manner obstructing or interfering with the water supply of such city or source thereof;

(12) To erect and maintain buildings for municipal purposes;

(13) To permit, under such restrictions as they may deem proper, the laying of railroad tracks, and the running of cars drawn by horses, steam or other power thereon, and the laying of gas, steam-heating and water pipes in the public streets, and to construct and maintain, and to permit the construction and maintenance of telegraph, telephone and electric lines therein;

(14) In its discretion to divide the city, by ordinance, into a convenient number of wards, not exceeding six, to fix the boundaries thereof, and to change the same from time to time: Provided, That no change in the boundaries of any ward shall be made within sixty days next before the date of such general municipal election, nor within twenty months after the same shall have been established or altered. Whenever such city shall be so divided into wards, the city council shall designate by ordinance the number of councilmen to be elected from such ward, apportioning the same in proportion to the population of such wards. And thereafter the councilmen so designated shall be elected by the qualified electors resident in such ward or by a general vote of the whole city, as may be designated in such ordinance: Provided further, That when additional territory is added to the city that it thereafter, by act of the council, be annexed to contiguous wards without affecting the right to redistrict at the expiration of twenty months after the last previous division;

(15) To appoint and remove such policemen and other appointed officers as they may deem proper, and to fix their duties and compensations;

(16) To impose fines, penalties and forfeitures for any and all violations of ordinances, and for any breach or violation of any ordinance to fix the penalty by fine or imprisonment, or both, but no such fine shall exceed three hundred dollars nor the term of such imprisonment exceed the term of three months;

(17) To cause all persons imprisoned for violation of any ordinance to labor on the streets, or other public property or works within the city;

(18) To establish fire limits, with proper regulations;

(19) The city council may appropriate from the general fund an amount not exceeding one-fourth of one mill of the taxable property of the city for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a public library;

(20) To punish the keepers and inmates and lessors of houses of ill-fame, gamblers and keepers of gambling tables;

(21) To make all such ordinances, by-laws, rules, regulations and resolutions, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of the state of Washington, as may be deemed expedient to maintain the peace, good government and welfare of the corporation and its trade, commerce and manufactures, and to do and perform any and all other acts and things necessary or proper to carry out the provisions of this chapter, and to exact and enforce within the limits of such city all other local, police, sanitary and other regulations as do not conflict with general laws. [L. '13, p. 313, § 1.]

See notes to § 2925.

Ballinger's Code, section 938, authorizing cities of the third class to sell, dispose of or rent "waterfront" refers only to waterfront property to which the city has title, and not to waterfront of which it has control as a public street: State ex rel. Port Angeles v. Morse, 56 Wash. 654, 106 Pac. 147.

§ 7702.

The purchase of supplies by a contractor for city work, from the mayor, only avoids his contract with the city pro tanto, under this section, providing that any claim for supplies furnished, "in which any such officer is interested," shall be void and that the officer shall forfeit his office, and does not bar an action by the contractor as holder of a warrant against a special fund to compel a reassessment to provide the fund: Shaw & Hodgins v. Waldron, 55 Wash. 271, 28 L. R. A., N. S., 735, 104 Pac. 272.

As to right of contractor, who has failed to comply with the contract, to recover from the municipality value of public improvement, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 419.

A city can pass one or separate ordinances and let one or separate contracts for the construction of a water distributing system: Gantenbein v. Pasco, 71 Wash. 635, 129 Pac. 374, 131 Pac. 461.

In the absence of a showing of fraud, a contract for public improvements cannot be attacked because not let to the lowest bidder: Gantenbein v. Pasco, 71 Wash. 635, 129 Pac. 374, 131 Pac. 461.

As to the duty to let contract to lowest bidder, see note in 50 Am. St. Rep. 490.

Under this section, providing that no officer of any city shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract with such city, a contract between a city and a reclamation company for a public water supply is void, where the contract provided that the water company should supply to land owners in a reclamation district outside the city an extra six inches of water per acre, free of charge, and three of the councilmen whose votes are necessary to authorize the contract were among such land owners and were benefited by the contract, since it was impossible to segregate their interests and leave the contract unimpaired: Gantenbein v. Pasco, 71 Wash. 635, 129 Pac. 374, 131 Pac. 461.

As to liability of municipality under executed contract in which municipal officer is interested, see note in 3 Ann. Cas. 672.

Where a reclamation company had agreed to supply water to subscribers who were owners of property in a reclamation district outside of a city, which agreed supply was inadequate to properly irrigate the land, a contract between the city and the reclamation company for a public water supply for the city, in which the reclamation company agreed to furnish an extra six inches of water per acre to such subscribers, free of charge, is against public policy and void, since the city would be paying for the free water furnished to land owners outside the city: Gantenbein v. Pasco, 71 Wash. 635, 129 Pac. 374, 131 Pac. 461.

CHAPTER XIII.

THIRD CLASS CITIES—LOCAL ASSESSMENTS.

§§ 7705—7718.

The hearing on an assessment for sewers levied under this act may be continued for more than four weeks, since section 7945, prohibiting continuance for such length of time applies only to the act of March 10, 1891 (Laws 1891, p. 406), relating to drainage by cities of the second, third, and fourth classes: Stewart v. Chehalis, 53 Wash. 213, 101 Pac. 841.

Failure to publish the initial resolution for an assessment twice, as required by this section, is waived by parties appearing to protest against the assessment, where no objection was made at the time to the sufficiency of the notice, since the notice is not jurisdictional in the absolute sense that it could not be waived: Chandler v. Puyallup, 70 Wash. 632, 127 Pac. 293.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

The fact that the statute provides for objections to proceedings before a city council to provide for public improvements under the special assessment plan, with the right of appeal to the courts, does not deprive a court of equity of jurisdiction to determine, in an injunction suit, whether the city council had power to enter into a contract under its proceedings for such an improvement: Gantenbein v. Pasco, 71 Wash. 635, 129 Pac. 374, 131 Pac. 461.

As to right of nonconsenting abutting owner to injunction against use of highway for street railway authorized by public, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 1053.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

The fact that a municipal improvement was estimated to cost only six thousand dollars does not of itself make an assessment for nearly fifteen thousand dollars void for want of jurisdiction to make it, or because it operated as a fraud upon the property owners, in view of a statute requiring the court to enforce the lien "to the extent of the proper proportion of the value of the work," according to the benefits received, regardless of irregularities or defects, since the failure to make a proper estimate was a mere defect in the proceeding, and not a fraud upon the property owners: Chehalis v. Cory, 54 Wash. 190, 102 Pac. 1027, 104 Pac. 768.

CHAPTER XIV.

THIRD CLASS CITIES—DRAINS AND SEWERS.

§ 7713.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

Under this section, providing that a petition of one-fourth of the property owners may be filed with the city council for the construction of a sewer, the petition is not a jurisdictional prerequisite, and the lack of a petition is a mere irregularity that is waived by failure to protest before the city council, or is immaterial under section 7716, allowing a recovery for the proportion of the value of the work properly chargeable upon any lot, notwithstanding any irregularity or defect in the proceedings: Collins v. Ellensburg, 68 Wash. 212, 122 Pac. 1010.

The same is true of the lack of plans and specifications required to be filed by section 7714: Collins v. Ellensburg, 68 Wash. 212, 122 Pac. 1010.

See notes to § 7713.

A sewer ordinance declaring that the improvement was for the especial and exclusive use of property abutting upon and approximate to the designated streets and alleys, by reference to which the limits of the district were fixed, and declaring that the cost would be assessed against the property benefited, is equivalent to a declaration that the property abutting and approximate was the property benefited, within the requisites of this section, and a statement that each lot will be assessed sixty dollars may be rejected as surplusage: Collins v. Ellensburg, 68 Wash. 212, 122 Pac. 1010.

Under this section, providing for the preliminary publication of an estimate of the cost of a proposed sewer, fixing a time for the hearing of protests thereon, the city council is estopped to levy an assessment exceeding the estimated cost, as the property owner has a right to rely on the published notice: Collins v. Ellensburg, 68 Wash. 212, 122 Pac. 1010.

As to the necessity that local improvement assessments be collected in strict conformity with statute, see note in 133 Am. St. Rep. 929.

The wrongful inclusion and assessment of property not mentioned in the preliminary proceedings for sewers is not ground for setting aside the assessment upon other property, where the cost of the work done on the sewers for such property can be segregated and does not increase the assessment upon the other property: Collins v. Ellensburg, 68 Wash. 212, 122 Pac. 1010.

§ 7716.

CHAPTER XV.

FOURTH CLASS CITIES OR TOWNS.

§ 7720.

Under this section it is not required that one of the justices of the peace be appointed police justice from the fact that cities of the first class are limited to two justices of the peace, one of whom must be appointed as police justice, and that section 7700 also authorizes the selection of a police justice from the two justices of the peace in towns or cities, since "may" is not to be construed as "must" unless a duty is imposed making a permissive construction repugnant to the intent or leading to an absurdity: State ex rel. Purdin v. Gault, 56 Wash. 140, 105 Pac. 242.

As to "may" in statute, see note in 6 L. R. A., 162.

As to "may" and "shall" occurring in the same statute, see note in 4 Ann. Cas. 420.

§ 7721. Election and Appointment of Officers—Terms.

The mayor, members of the council and treasurer shall be elected by the qualified electors of said town at the general municipal election to be held therein on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in December in each year. The treasurer shall hold office for the period of one year from and after the second Tuesday in January next succeeding the date of such election and until his successor is elected and qualified. The mayor and members of the council shall hold office for the period of two years from and after the second Tuesday in January next succeeding the day of such election and until their successors are elected and qualified: Provided, That the first council elected under the provisions of this act shall at their first meeting so classify themselves by lot as that three of their number shall go out of office at the expiration of one year and two at the expiration of two years. The mayor shall appoint a marshal, police justice and clerk. The city council may provide by ordinance for the appointment by the mayor of an attorney, poundmaster, superintendent of streets, a civil engineer and such police and other subordinate officers as in the judgment of the city council may be deemed necessary and may by ordinance fix their compensation. No appointment of any officer provided for herein shall be subject to confirmation by the city council. All officers appointed by the mayor as provided for in this act shall hold office during his pleasure. [L. '11, p. 111, § 1.]

§ 7730.

Under this section, an amendment of a franchise ordinance on the day of its passage by the substitution of the name of a railroad company, its successors and assigns, as grantee, in place of a mill company, its successors and assigns, is not such a change in the subject matter of the ordinance as to render it a new or different ordinance, the purpose of the franchise being to permit the hauling of cars from the mill to the railroad, and being for the joint benefit of both companies: State ex rel. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Hughes, 53 Wash. 651, 102 Pac. 758.

A town upon its incorporation does not acquire any such vested right to the control of its streets in virtue of its authority over streets, granted by this section, as would prevent the legislature from legalizing prior franchises: Spring Water Co. v. Monroe, 55 Wash. 195, 104 Pac. 202.

A city may grant a franchise to a railroad company to occupy a portion of a city street where the same does not exclude the public therefrom; and a franchise prohibiting an exclusive use at present or at any time in the future is valid: State ex rel. Sylvester v. Superior Court, 64 Wash. 594, 117 Pac. 487.

Authority to grant to a railroad company a franchise to lay tracks lengthwise in a street is conferred by this section, subdivision 13, authorizing permits to lay railroad tracks and run cars drawn by horses, steam, or other power thereon: State ex rel. Sylvester v. Superior Court, 64 Wash. 594, 117 Pac. 487.

§ 7735½.

See notes to § 46.

§ 7737.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

§ 7748.

See notes to § 1774.

CHAPTER XVII.

EMINENT DOMAIN BY CITIES.

§ 7767.

Owners of lots abutting on a street have a special interest in the use of the street which is distinct from that of the public generally and which constitutes property: State v. Seattle, 57 Wash. 602, 27 L. R. A., N. S., 1188, 107 Pac. 827.

As to streets and the rights thereto of abutting owners, see note in 125 Am. St. Rep. 344.

Semble, that parties to a proceeding to condemn land for a city street who fail to object that the ordinance for condemnation was duplicitous cannot raise the objection on appeal from the assessment of damages: In re South Shilshole Place, 61 Wash. 246, 112 Pac. 228.

The original grading of a city street is not a taking or damaging of property, within constitution, article 1, section 16: Ettor v. Tacoma, 57 Wash. 50, 106 Pac. 478, 107 Pac. 1061.

An abutter upon a street, whose interests are being condemned by a railroad company seeking to use the street for railroad purposes, after its franchise therefor has been forfeited by the city council, has such an interest in abating the public nuisance in the street as to entitle it to raise the point in the condemnation proceeding that the company has no franchise to use the street: State ex rel. Sylvester v. Superior Court, 60 Wash. 279, 111 Pac. 19.

The city council is the proper authority for deciding the necessity of condemning land for a public street: Seattle v. Byers, 54 Wash. 518, 103 Pac. 791.

Where a city has jurisdiction to extend its streets over tide lands, the decision of the proper municipal officers as to public use and necessity is conclusive, in the absence of fraud: Tacoma v. Titlow, 53 Wash. 217, 101 Pac. 827.

As to the acquisition of tide lands by eminent domain, see note in 66 L. R. A. 297.

As to water apart from land as subject of eminent domain, see note in 13 Ann. Cas. 72.

When the city council has determined by ordinance that the taking of certain property is necessary for the purposes of a public street, and directed its condemnation, the court must find that the taking is for a public use, although constitution, article 1, section 16, makes the question a judicial question only: Seattle v. Byers, 54 Wash. 518, 103 Pac. 791.

When the city council, by due ordinance, directed the improvement of streets, the court must determine that the improvement was a public necessity and for a public use: In re Mercer Street, 55 Wash. 116, 104 Pac. 133.

What is, or is not, a taking or damaging of private property is a judicial question, and the courts are not bound by a legislative declaration to the effect that the filling of low lands shall not be considered a taking or damaging within the constitutional meaning of those terms: Bowes v. Aberdeen, 58 Wash. 535, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 709, 109 Pac. 369.

Under constitution, article 7, section 9, providing that the legislature may vest the municipal authorities with power to make local improvements by special assessment or taxation, it is not necessary that a jury be impaneled in order to levy the assessment, and sections 7768, 7790 et seq., are not unconstitutional in authorizing assessments by commissioners, subject to review by the courts, without any jury trial: In re Jackson Street, 62 Wash. 432, 113 Pac. 1112.

In eminent domain proceedings by a city, it is discretionary, under this section, to consolidate actions against the owner and the lessee, and the ruling will not be reviewed unless prejudice is clearly shown: In re Western Avenue, 57 Wash. 290, 106 Pac. 901.

An order adjudging a public use and necessity in condemnation proceedings, brought by a city under this section, is reviewable on appeal from the final judgment, and therefore is not appealable prior thereto, since section 1716, subdivision 1, authorizes the review, on appeal from the final judgment, of any order made before judgment, and section 7818 provides for appeals in condemnations as in other civil actions: Tacoma v. Nisqually Power Co., 54 Wash. 292, 103 Pac. 49.

As to the effect of appeal in condemnation proceedings, see note in 2 L. R. A., N. S., 313.

Since a municipal power plant for electric lighting must provide for the peak load, or maximum power required on the shortest day of the year, the sale by the city of current for heating and cooking devices and running small machines such as lathes, etc., in the meantime, is so insignificant and incidental to the main public use as not to defeat the right to condemn property for the maximum public use required: Tacoma v. Nisqually Power Co., 57 Wash. 420, 107 Pac. 199.

An assessment for a local improvement made under this section, which requires that each lot shall bear its proportion of the expense according to benefits received, and section 7782, requiring the jury to offset benefits against damages, is invalidated by an agreement made between the city and certain property owners whereby an agreed verdict was to be returned allowing one dollar for land taken, one dollar for damages to land not taken, and one dollar for damages by reason of change of grade, where the agreement was carried out in the assessment of benefits by the jury, which was advised that there was no contest as to the lots of such owners: In re Third, Fourth, and Fifth Avenues, 49 Wash. 109, 94 Pac. 1075, 95 Pac. 862.

Where it is necessary to exercise the power of eminent domain in order to make a municipal improvement, the entire proceedings need not be completed under this section, which was designed solely to ascertain and assess the compensation; and the city may order the work done and levy the assessment under its charter provisions and ordinances, and not in the condemnation proceedings: Brown v. Seattle, 57 Wash. 314, 106 Pac. 1113.

Under this act, the assessment for local improvements of lots, blocks, tracts or parcels of land "or other property," the franchise of a street railway company to use a street is not ejusdem generis or assessable, but is an easement only, and of an intangible quantity; and such statutes will not be enlarged by construction: In re Third Avenue, Seattle, 54 Wash. 460, 103 Pac. 807.

As to liability of railroad right of way to assessment for local improvements, see note in 12 L. R. A., N. S., 112.

This section is not unconstitutional in providing for the condemnation of lands granted by the United States to the state for school purposes, since the sale of school lands is authorized by constitution, article 1, section 16, providing that the same shall not be disposed of except for the full market value: Roberts v. Seattle, 63 Wash. 573, 116 Pac. 25.

The determination by the city council of the necessity for extending or widening streets being conclusive on the courts, no prejudice results from an ex parte order of court declaring the necessity, or from an order striking answers setting up a lack of public necessity, the city council having determined the question: Tacoma v. Brown, 69 Wash. 538, 125 Pac. 940.

§ 7770. Petition to Superior Court.

Whenever any such ordinance shall be passed by the legislative authority of any such city for the making of any improvement authorized by this act or any other improvement that such city is authorized to make, the making of which will require that property be taken or damaged for public use, such city shall file a petition in the superior court of the county in which such land is situated, in the name of the city, praying that just compensation, to be made for the property to be taken or damaged for the improvement or purpose specified in such ordinance, be ascertained by a jury or by the court in case a jury be waived. [L. '13, p. 7, § 1.]

§ 7771.

In proceedings by a city to condemn land for a street, under this section, the petition need not describe land damaged or the whole tract out of which the land is taken, but only the land taken: Tacoma v. Wetherby, 57 Wash. 295, 106 Pac. 903.

While a city cannot condemn property where the use is for commingled public and private purposes, an allegation in the city's petition that it has, since 1893, been furnishing facilities for lighting, heating and power purposes "public and private," will not defeat the proceeding, since the test is the ultimate purpose now sought, and not what was done in the past: Tacoma v. Nisqually Power Co., 57 Wash. 420, 107 Pac. 199.

In condemnation proceedings by a city under this section, no answer offering an issue is necessary: Tacoma v. Wetherby, 57 Wash. 295, 106 Pac. 903.

As to necessity for defendant in condemnation proceedings to appear and answer, see note in 9 Ann. Cas. 476.

After an adjudication of public use and necessity in a condemnation proceeding, an answer alleging that the appropriation was sought for other and ulterior purposes is irrelevant, and it is error to refuse to strike it out, where its manifest purpose and tendency was to prejudice the jury: Tacoma Eastern R. Co. v. Smithgall, 58 Wash. 445, 108 Pac. 1091.

As to what constitutes public use for which property may be taken by eminent domain, see notes in 102 Am. St. Rep. 813; Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1002; 2 Ann. Cas. 50; 14 Ann. Cas. 803; 22 L. R. A., N. S., 35.

As to right of defendant in condemnation proceedings, to question public character of use, see note in 2 Ann. Cas. 133.

It being immaterial that defendant, in condemnation proceedings, was a public service corporation, it is not reversible error to instruct that it was not: Tacoma v. Nisqually Power Co., 57 Wash. 420, 107 Pac. 199.

It is not so prejudicial as to require a reversal that, upon an issue as to the value of land condemned, the owner was asked on cross-examination what he paid for it, where defendant had asked a witness what had been paid for similar land, and there was other evidence as to the value, supplemented by a view by the jury: Tacoma v. Wetherby, 57 Wash. 295, 106 Pac. 903.

As to admissibility in evidence in eminent domain proceeding, of admission or declaration of owner as to value of property condemned, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 289.

As to viewing premises by jury, see note in 12 L. R. A. 611.

Upon an issue as to the value of land condemned, it is not error to refuse to allow witnesses to approximate the value by reference to platted property, where the property was not platted, and the owner had shown it to be especially valuable for factory purposes and special uses: Tacoma v. Wetherby, 57 Wash. 295, 106 Pac. 903.

As to opinion evidence of value of property taken, see note in 19 Am. St. Rep. 460.

As to adaptability of property taken for special purpose, see notes in 85 Am. St. Rep. 297; 124 Am. St. Rep. 536.

In condemnation proceedings by a municipal corporation of the property of a public service corporation, it is not error to exclude evidence showing that the defendant was a public service corporation, where the court was extremely liberal in allowing the value of the land to be shown, and witnesses were permitted to fix great values based upon every possible use and adaptability of the property: Tacoma v. Nisqually Power Co., 57 Wash. 420, 107 Pac. 199.

In condemnation proceedings, evidence of the possible profits of a business that might be carried on on the property taken is inadmissible for the purpose of showing the value of the property: Tacoma v. Nisqually Power Co., 57 Wash. 420, 107 Pac. 199.

As to compensation allowable in eminent domain proceedings as affected by adaptability of property for uses other than that to which it is put by owner, see note in 15 L. R. A., N. S., 679.

In condemnation proceedings, error in instructing the jury that they should fix the values from their observations of the property assisted by the testimony, is harmless where other instructions gave the jury proper rules for determining the values, and stated that their view of the premises was to enable them to better understand the testimony: Tacoma v. Nisqually Power Co., 57 Wash. 420, 107 Pac. 199.

In eminent domain proceedings by a city, the land owner may give evidence of consequential damages, although the only part of the land to be taken is described: Tacoma v. Wetherby, 57 Wash. 295, 106 Pac. 903.

As to consequential damages in eminent domain proceedings, see note in 4 Ann. Cas. 1185. And see note in 85 Am. St. Rep. 298.

In eminent domain proceedings to appropriate lands for a storage basin, non-expert evidence that a ridge one thousand feet wide, proposed to be used as one of the retaining walls, would be insufficient for the purpose and would permit leakage, is inadmissible as conjectural, for if ineffectual, damages could be ascertained and recovered: Olympia Light & Power Co. v. Harris, 58 Wash. 410, 108 Pac. 940.

In eminent domain proceedings, where all the witnesses testified as to the value of the property as it was at the time of the trial, it will be presumed that the verdict included the value of cement walks that had been laid, and it is not error to exclude evidence of the cost of the walks: Tacoma v. Bonnell, 58 Wash. 593, 109 Pac. 60.

In eminent domain proceedings, it is not error to fail to instruct the jury as to damages which the owner might suffer if a building on the premises were removed, where the matters were covered by the general instructions: Tacoma v. Bonnell, 58 Wash. 593, 109 Pac. 60.

As to injury to, or cost of removing building as elements of damage in eminent domain proceeding, see note in 85 Am. St. Rep. 96.

In eminent domain proceedings by a city, it is discretionary, under this section, to refuse separate trials to owners of the property, to be reviewed only for abuse of discretion: Tacoma v. Wetherby, 57 Wash. 295, 106 Pac. 903.

In eminent domain proceedings by a city, all the owners may be joined as defendants, and abuse of discretion in refusing one a separate trial does not appear unless he is deprived of a fair trial and makes an affirmative showing of prejudice: Tacoma v. Bonnell, 58 Wash. 593, 109 Pac. 60.

RECORD.—The refusal, in eminent domain proceedings, to allow evidence that the land had been leased, will be presumed correct when a copy of the lease offered in evidence is not in the record: Tacoma v. Wetherby, 57 Wash. 295, 106 Pac. 903.

In condemnation proceedings to assess the damages from the elevation of F. street, evidence as to damages from the obstruction of an alley by a change of D. street is not admissible, not being an issue: Spokane v. Thompson, 69 Wash. 650, 126 Pac. 47.

In condemnation proceedings to assess the damages to an abutting lot by reason of a change of street grade elevating the street through the entire block, it is error to confine the evidence of damage to that part of the street immediately in front of the lot: Spokane v. Thompson, 69 Wash. 650, 126 Pac. 47.

An abutting owner cannot be deprived of his right to the use of the full width of the street without just compensation: Brazell v. Seattle, 55 Wash. 180, 104 Pac. 155.

The interest of an abutting property owner in the maintenance of the street is property of which he cannot be deprived until just compensation has been paid: Smith v. Centralia, 55 Wash. 573, 104 Pac. 797.

Injury inflicted upon property in the neighborhood of a street by a regrade and diverting of travel is damnum absque injuria, where the property does not abut on the regraded street, and is not within constitution, article 1, section 16, prohibiting the damaging of property without just compensation, since the injury differs not in kind but only in degree from that suffered by the public generally: In re Fifth Avenue etc., 62 Wash. 218, 113 Pac. 762.

As to power of municipality, as against abutting owner, to vacate street or part of street and devote the property to private purposes, see note in 22 L. R. A., N. S., 530. And see notes in 2 L. R. A., N. S., 269; also 30 L. R. A., N. S., 637, and 36 L. R. A., N. S., 693.

Where the verdict for the value of land taken for a street improvement recites that the remainder was not damaged by the taking, the same is not exempt from assessment for special benefits as it would have been if found to be damaged by the taking: In re Pine Street, 57 Wash. 178, 106 Pac. 755.

Where a jury in condemnation proceedings for land taken for an improvement found generally that lands not taken were not damaged, the same may be assessed for benefits; and it cannot be shown that the jury merely found that the lands were not damaged in excess of benefits, by oral evidence to the effect that at the trial before the jury it was stipulated that the only issue was whether the lands were damaged in excess of the benefits and that witnesses for the city admitted damage and the jury were instructed that the damage must exceed the benefits, since such evidence and the general verdict, in the absence of special finding, does not necessarily imply that the jury found any actual damage: In re Blewett Street, Seattle, 59 Wash. 485, 110 Pac. 29.

As to right of jury in eminent domain proceedings to disregard testimony of witnesses, see note in 3 Ann. Cas. 302.

Where proceedings to condemn land for the purpose of widening a street are conducted separately from a proceeding to regrade the same, a general verdict that the remainder of abutting lots were damaged one dollar by the taking more than they were benefited, and sustained no damage by reason of the regrade, does not exempt the lots from an assessment for benefits for the regrade, the implication being rather that the property would be benefited thereby: Levy v. Seattle, 61 Wash. 540, 112 Pac. 639.

The closing of a sixteen-foot alley by the change of grade of a street is a special damage to the property abutting on the alley: Spokane v. Thompson, 69 Wash. 650, 126 Pac. 47.

As to special and peculiar damage in eminent domain proceedings, see note in 109 Am. St. Rep. 909.

This section does not authorize an owner in condemnation proceedings to claim damages to a lot contiguous to the lot taken, where the lots were separate and appropriated to distinct uses: Seattle v. Atwood, 59 Wash. 112, 109 Pac. 326.

As to lots separated by merely plat lines as susceptible to damage each by the taking of the other, see note in 57 L. R. A. 938.

In condemnation proceedings the verdict of the jury finding no damages to land not taken is supported by the evidence, and will not be disturbed on appeal, where one of the witnesses for the city testified that the northerly tract would not be damaged and that there might be about ten per cent damages to the southerly tract, and another witness testified that the southerly portion would be just as valuable now as it was before, especially where the jury viewed the premises and the trial judge sustained the verdict: Tacoma v. Hansen, 59 Wash. 594, 110 Pac. 426.

Upon condemnation of property needed for a street improvement, a verdict for the value of land taken, reciting that the remainder of the lot is not damaged by reason of the taking, precludes the claim that an award of damages was made therefor: In re Pine Street, 57 Wash. 178, 106 Pac. 755.

It is not error prejudicial to the owner to instruct the jury that they should determine the value of a building and add its cost to its removal, if it was damaged by its removal and could not be put in as good condition as before, although the instruction goes beyond this section, since it was error favorable to the owner: Tacoma v. Bonnell, 58 Wash. 593, 109 Pac. 60.

In proceedings to condemn a specified lot on which there was located a building, under this section, damages are not authorized for readjustment of the building to another contiguous lot which was a separate unit, put to a distinct use, and which was not taken or damaged: Seattle v. Atwood, 59 Wash. 112, 109 Pac. 326.

This section is constitutional, it being within the power of the legislature to provide that such a removal is not a taking of property, where there was but one tract of land involved: Tacoma v. Bonnell, 58 Wash. 593, 109 Pac. 60.

See notes to § 7784.

In eminent domain proceedings by a city, this section authorizes the assessment of one recovery of damages against the landlord and tenant, leaving it for division between the parties entitled thereto: In re Western Avenue, 57 Wash. 290, 106 Pac. 901.

As to the rights of tenants and reversioners in eminent domain proceedings, see notes in 4 Ann. Cas. 1011, and 15 Ann. Cas. 714; also note in 21 L. R. A. 212.

In condemnation proceedings, where damages were claimed by reason of the raising of surrounding streets, on two of which approaches were proposed, extending not exceeding four hundred feet, plans, drawings and the testimony of the city engineer that the approaches were to extend but one hundred and sixty-three feet, amount to a stipulation to that effect, and entitles the owner to have the restriction inserted in the judgment awarding damages by reason of the improvement with the approaches restricted to one hundred and sixty-three feet: In re Mercer Street, Seattle, 55 Wash. 116, 104 Pac. 133.

In eminent domain proceedings by a city, the jury is to determine only the damage to the land taken and the damages resulting to land not taken, although the court, in the language of this section, instructed them to further find the "gross damages" to any land or property not taken (other than damages to a remainder by reason of its severance from the part taken), since this covers the same thing or is meaningless: Tacoma v. Bonnell, 58 Wash. 593, 109 Pac. 60.

Laws of 1907, page 321, section 15, providing that for improvements to be paid by special assessment upon property benefited, the compensation found by the jury shall be irrespective of any benefit from the improvement, does not require a city, on condemning land for opening a street, to include the improvement of the street or the establishment of a grade; hence the award of damages for compensation for merely opening a street does not bar an assessment for benefits in a subsequent proceeding to grade and plank the street: Martenis v. Tacoma, 66 Wash. 92, 118 Pac. 882.

In condemnations for street grade changes to meet grades of a railroad company, the railroad agreeing to pay all condemnation awards against the city, being for the public benefit and not solely in the interest of the company, and being prosecuted in the name of the city, the damages are to be assessed under this section and constitution, article 1, section 16, permitting cities to offset special benefits against the damage, and not under section 926, authorizing damages against a railroad company irrespective of any benefit to the property: Spokane v. Thompson, 69 Wash. 650, 126 Pac. 47.

As to special benefits as the justification and foundation of local assessments, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 1168.

Condemnations for street grade changes to meet grades of a railroad company, which agreed to pay all condemnation awards against the city, are properly prosecuted in the name of the city: Spokane v. Thompson, 69 Wash. 650, 126 Pac. 47.

§ 7783.

A judgment in condemnation proceedings by a city, upon the stipulation of city officers entitled to represent the city, is not void for want of authority of the officers to make the stipulation, where the court had jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties, and cannot be repudiated by the adverse party for the city: James v. Seattle, 57 Wash. 318, 106 Pac. 1114.

Where a full fee simple is condemned by a city for a particular use, and the award is paid out of the general fund and accepted, the land does not revert to the owner upon the city's devoting it to some other use; and the former owner cannot complain if an easement therein is subsequently granted to a railroad company: Reichling v. Covington Lumber Co., 57 Wash. 225, 135 Am. St. Rep. 976, 105 Pac. 777.

As to power of municipality as against abutting owner to vacate street or portion of street and devote the land to private purposes, see note in 22 L. R. A., N. S., 530.

Upon appeal from an order adjudging a public necessity for condemnation for a street extension outside of the city, the question of the power of the city to levy assessments on lands outside its limits to pay the award does not arise, as the award must be paid before the land is taken: Tacoma v. Titlow, 53 Wash. 217, 101 Pac. 827.

The verdict of a jury, awarding damages in a condemnation case, will not be disturbed on appeal when supported by any competent evidence and the jury viewed the premises: In re Mercer Street, Seattle, 55 Wash. 116, 104 Pac. 133.

A city cannot, after paying an award in condemnation proceedings into court, appeal therefrom, as the controversy has ceased, in view of this section, and section 7784, providing that, upon payment of the award, title shall vest in the city, and constitution, article 1, section 16, prohibiting the taking of private property until compensation therefor in money shall be first ascertained and paid into court: Spokane v. Cowles, 67 Wash. 639, 121 Pac. 463.

As to effect of appeal in condemnation proceedings, see note in 2 L. R. A., N. S., 313.

As to appealable judgments and orders in eminent domain proceedings, see note in 16 Ann. Cas. 1004.

In condemnation proceedings to regrade a street by making a deep cut and a slope of forty-five degrees on abutting property to meet the cut, an award of damages to the property covers only the damage to the lots arising from the cut in the street and the specified slope on the lots, and not damages for the removal of lateral support resulting from the fact that the nature of the soil was such that a slope of forty-five degrees was not sufficient to support the balance of the lot and prevent the remaining soil from falling into the street; and it is immaterial that the ordinance and petition required the condemnation of all lands and rights necessary to be taken, used, or damaged, since the city determined what slope was necessary and sufficient for lateral support, and that question will not be litigated in the condemnation proceedings: Casassa v. Seattle, 66 Wash. 146, 119 Pac. 13.

Where, through error and the wrongful action of attorneys, an award in condemnation is adjudged to be paid to persons having no interest therein, and the payment was made and the judgment satisfied, the city as relator is not liable to the true owners of the property, since under this section, the payment of the award immediately vests the title in the city, and under section 7778, the duty of making proper distribution is upon the court and not the city: Carton v. Seattle, 66 Wash. 447, 120 Pac. 111.

§§ 7785, 7786.

§ 7787.

Interest upon an award on condemnation of property needed for a street improvement may be included as part of the cost of the improvement to be assessed against the property benefited: In re Pine Street, 57 Wash. 178, 106 Pac. 755.

As to the consideration of benefits, see note in 109 Am. St. Rep. 910.

As to implied right to interest on assessment, see note in 6 L. R. A., N. S., 694.

This section authorizes the inclusion of costs of preparing and serving the condemnation proceeding, and of expert witnesses, engineers' expenses, etc.: In re South Shilshole Place, 61 Wash. 246, 112 Pac. 228.

An assessment for local improvements may include the costs of the city attorney, expenses of the city engineer, and of the eminent domain commissioners, incurred in the proceeding: In re Jackson Street, 62 Wash. 432, 113 Pac. 1112.

As to power of municipality to assess cost of improvement against fee owner in cases of wharves, see note in 5 L. R. A., N. S., 289.

As to liability for costs on appeal from award in eminent domain proceedings, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912C, 533. See, also, note in 36 L. R. A., N. S., 624.

As to the validity of statute providing for recovery of attorneys' fees in action for recovery of special assessment, see note in 11 Ann. Cas. 811.

The amount of previous assessment is immaterial on the question of the reasonableness of an assessment: In re Third, Fourth, and Fifth Avenues, Seattle, 55 Wash. 519, 104 Pac. 799.

§ 7788.

The board of eminent domain commissioners created by this section are city officials, and not within constitution, article 11, section 5, requiring all county, township, precinct, or district officers to be elected: In re Blewett Street, Seattle, 59 Wash. 485, 110 Pac. 29.

§ 7790.

See notes to § 7552.

Laws of 1905, page 84, section 22, providing that, in assessments for benefits from a municipal improvement, it shall be the duty "of the superior judge" and the commissioners to examine the locality and to estimate the proportion of the total cost that will be of benefit to the property, etc., might be unconstitutional as delegating legislative power to the superior court, if construed literally to require the superior court judge to assist in making the assessment; and the inclusion "of the superior judge" in said action will be held an inadvertence, where it appears that the law viewed as an entirety limited the functions of the court to the appointment of commissioners and a judicial review of the assessment-roll; and the law is therefore not invalid as delegating the levying of assessments to the superior court, or to other than the corporate authorities: Seattle v. Seattle & Montana R. Co., 50 Wash. 132, 96 Pac. 958.

The reasonable cost of preliminary surveys and advertising may be included in a local assessment: Shryock v. Hannen, 61 Wash. 296, 112 Pac. 377.

In eminent domain proceedings by a city, it is proper to instruct that benefits to adjacent property are to be deducted from the damages to such property, if the damage is in excess of the benefits, but if the benefits are equal, the jury must find the lands not damaged, regardless of the questions that may arise on the assessment of benefits: Tacoma v. Wetherby, 57 Wash. 295, 106 Pac. 903.

As to equation of benefit and burden to particular pieces of property, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 1172.

As to constitutionality of special assessment in excess of benefits, see note in 3 Ann. Cas. 11.

Under this section, eminent domain commissioners, upon assessing property benefited by a municipal improvement, must determine what proportion, if any, of the total cost will be of benefit to the public, and assess such amount to the city, and the balance to the property; and under sections 7795, 7796, upon appeal, the superior court may modify the assessment and adjust the assessments between the city and the property owners, and hear evidence thereon: Spokane v. Gilbert, 61 Wash. 361, 112 Pac. 380.

The eminent domain commissioners are vested with a discretion in determining the benefits from the opening of a street, and the opening of a city street through a tract of unplatted land is presumed to be a special benefit: In re South Shilshole Place, 61 Wash. 246, 112 Pac. 228.

As to who determines what is a public use, see note in 102 Am. St. Rep. 821. And see note in 88 Am. St. Rep. 933.

As to criterion determining character of use as public or private, see note in 2 L. R. A. 681.

As to the right to make assessments according to benefits, see note in 8 L. R. A. 369.

Damage to abutting property by reason of previous improvements cannot be offset against an assessment for benefits from a later improvement: Knickerbocker Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 336, 124 Pac. 920.

Property found by the jury to be damaged by an improvement is not subject to an assessment for benefits: Inner-Circle Property Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 508, 125 Pac. 970.

Under sections 7790, 7795, 7796, property can only be assessed if specially benefited, and it is not proper to include in an assessment district property that receives merely a general benefit: In re Fifth Avenue etc., 66 Wash. 327, 119 Pac. 852.

As to necessity of special benefit to sustain assessment for local improvement, see note in 14 L. R. A. 755.

A city cannot be generally assessed for a public improvement unless it is specially benefited, nor merely because it was negligent in improving a street for the benefit of a street railway company without exacting an agreement from the company to contribute to the expense: Spokane v. Curtiss, 66 Wash. 555, 120 Pac. 70.

As to what municipal corporations are liable for in respect of defect in streets and public places, see note in 108 Am. St. Rep. 139.

Under an ordinance for the improvement of a street, the cost and expense to be paid "wholly by special assessment upon the property to be benefited," the eminent domain commissioners have no power to assess the city generally for a portion of the expense, in view of section 7785, conferring upon the city council the power to determine whether the cost should be made wholly by special assessment upon property benefited, or partly from the general fund of the city, and section 7790, authorizing the city council to fix an assessment district which "shall be conclusive and binding" on the commissioners: Spokane v. Curtiss, 66 Wash. 55, 120 Pac. 70.

As to the binding quality of statutory rules of apportionment made under legislative discretion to prescribe them, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 1160.

Under sections 7786, 7787, authorizing the city council to determine whether an improvement shall be made wholly or partly at the expense of abutting property, and section 7790, authorizing commissioners to apportion benefits between the city and abutting owners by a comparison of the public and private benefits to be derived from the improvement, it is within the power of the council to make the apportionment, and for the commissioners to act only when the council fails to do so;

and in any event, the benefit to the public must be a special and not a general benefit, and findings of the court or commissioners are conclusive on appeal: In re Fifth Avenue etc., 66 Wash. 327, 119 Pac. 852.

As to the effect of the legislature's omission to prescribe a rule of apportionment, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 1166.

An assessment-roll returned by commissioners is admissible as evidence of the benefits received, and that property outside the district was not specially benefited, and overcomes the prima facie showing made by a reassessment arbitrarily ordered by the court: In re Fifth Avenue etc., 66 Wash. 327, 119 Pac. 852.

The unanimous opinion of commissioners that property should be excluded from an assessment district because not specially benefited, is conclusive on the courts, where it appears that the improvement was to gain easier grades and divert travel from the property in question, which was on higher ground and beyond the influence of the special benefits contemplated: In re Fifth Avenue etc., 66 Wash. 327, 119 Pac. 852.

Street improvements benefiting a street railway by enabling it to lay double tracks and reduce its curve are a benefit to the property in the district accessible thereto, although a part of the property in the district fronts upon another street-car line, such fact going to the amount and not to the fact of the benefits: Spokane v. Curtiss, 66 Wash. 555, 120 Pac. 70.

Under a proceeding to condemn land for the opening of a street pursuant to an ordinance which did not provide for an established grade or any improvement of the street, an award for damages precluding any assessment for benefits on account of the condemnation, does not bar an assessment for benefits in a subsequent proceeding to establish a grade and improve and plank the street; notwithstanding that the city attorney in the first proceeding went beyond the issues in propounding questions to the jury, who were instructed to award damages that will be sustained by the "construction of the proposed road," there having been no evidence thereon or on the question of damages by reason of any improvement of the roadway: Martenis v. Tacoma, 66 Wash. 92, 118 Pac. 882.

Upon the improvement of a street crossing a navigable waterway in contemplation of the erection of a bridge, raising the grade to make proper approaches for the bridge which would be useless for any other purpose, property abutting on the streets may be assessed for the benefits that will accrue by subsequently constructing the bridge, although not yet provided for, where the bridge is an essential part of the improvement and will materially benefit the property, and the evidence shows that the bridge will be erected at that place: In re Westlake Avenue, 66 Wash. 277, 119 Pac. 798.

As to whether an assessment for benefits may rest upon prospective action in completing the improvement, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 669.

Inequalities of a local assessment upon lands similarly situated will not avoid the assessment if the record does not show that the differences were arbitrary, or that the property assessed the highest did not receive a greater benefit: Shryock v. Hannen, 61 Wash. 296, 112 Pac. 377.

The fact that assessments are distributed in part by the zone system, at varying percentages of the cost where the lots are parallel to the street, while lots fronting on the street are assessed for the whole cost of that part, does not warrant the setting aside of the assessment as arbitrary, unless it is shown that the assessment is greater than the benefit: Gerlach v. Spokane, 68 Wash. 589, 124 Pac. 121.

Abutting owners within an assessment district cannot complain that the district improperly included the lands of others not subject to the assessment: Shryock v. Hannen, 61 Wash. 296, 112 Pac. 377.

The decision of the eminent domain commissioners determining the boundaries of a local improvement district to be assessed for benefits will not be disturbed on appeal because of differences of opinion as to the propriety thereof: In re Jackson Street, 62 Wash. 432, 113 Pac. 1112.

A local assessment for street improvement on abutting property to the depth of one hundred and twenty feet is properly limited to that portion of an irregular block which is within one hundred and twenty feet of the street: Shryock v. Hannen, 61 Wash. 296, 112 Pac. 377.

A local assessment ordinance for street improvements sufficiently describes the lots to be assessed as all the lots and land abutting on the designated portions of the street, to the depth of one hundred and twenty feet, without giving the block and lot numbers: Shryock v. Hannen, 61 Wash. 296, 112 Pac. 377.

The courts will not review the action of eminent domain commissioners in fixing the boundaries of improvement districts or in apportioning all the expenses to the property without charging the general fund of the city, where there is no showing of arbitrary action, fraud, or mistake: In re Twelfth Avenue, 66 Wash. 97, 119 Pac. 5.

While the courts will be slow to interfere with the discretion of eminent domain commissioners in fixing the limits of a special assessment district, yet an assessment will be set aside as arbitrary and an abuse of discretion, where one block was assessed for three times the depth of the block on the opposite side of the street, and twice the depth of other blocks on the same side of the street, in amounts proportionally greater, apparently merely because it was all owned by one person, and without any possible suggestion that, from its situation or the lay of the land, it would receive any greater benefit from the improvement: Spokane v. Kraft, 67 Wash. 245, 121 Pac. 830.

As to the requirement that taxation must be uniform, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 1137.

Upon reversing on appeal the confirmation of an assessment for a local improvement on the ground that one block was arbitrarily assessed an excessive amount, an entirely new assessment will be ordered, inasmuch as the amount to be deducted from the property in question could not be assessed to other owners without a new notice of the increase: Spokane v. Kraft, 67 Wash. 245, 121 Pac. 830.

An assessment is not invalidated by the failure to assess all the property within the assessment district, in the absence of an affirmative showing that the omitted property was specially benefited, the presumption being that it was not benefited: Seattle Mattress & Upholstery Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 666, 125 Pac. 1013.

The mere fact that real estate omitted from assessment was contiguous to the improvement is not sufficient to overcome the presumption that it was omitted because not benefited: Seattle Mattress & Upholstery Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 666, 125 Pac. 1013.

As to mode of assessment and rules of apportionment, see note in 8 L. R. A. 371.

A city cannot contract with part of the property owners in a contemplated improvement district to form the district and eliminate their property from assessment in consideration of their doing the necessary grading of certain streets, accepting a nominal sum as damages for their property taken or damaged by street extensions and changes of grade in the district, such contract being ultra vires and void: Turner Investment Co. v. Seattle, 70 Wash. 201, 126 Pac. 426.

An irregular block not platted into lots, and used for railroad purposes is properly assessed for local improvements as unplatted land: Shryock v. Hannen, 61 Wash. 296, 112 Pac. 377.

An assessment for a local improvement may include accumulated interest pending the making of the assessment-roll, where the authorities proceeded with diligence in preparing the roll: In re Twelfth Avenue, 66 Wash. 97, 119 Pac. 5.

The fact that owners had put in part of the improvements provided for does not result in double assessments, where the ordinance provides for rebates in such cases, and no showing is made that a satisfactory settlement had been refused by the city: Gerlach v. Spokane, 68 Wash. 589, 124 Pac. 121.

Where an ordinance required all common labor on public works to be paid a minimum wage, which was in excess of the ordinary wage for common labor, a property owner may object to the assessment in that free and open competition in letting the contract was restricted and the cost of the work increased; but the contract will not be held void, since the excess of cost resulting can be deducted from the assessment: Gerlach v. Spokane, 68 Wash. 589, 124 Pac. 121.

A contract under a city ordinance requiring all common labor on public works to be paid a minimum wage, which was at a rate of from fifty to ninety cents higher for eight hours' labor than the wages paid in private employment, may be objected to by a property owner assessed for a special improvement as an arbitrary and unreasonable discrimination in favor of a class of citizens, and as improperly restricting competition or imposing an unwarranted burden by unreasonably increasing the cost of the work, where over fifty per cent of the cost of the improvement was for common labor, entitling the objecting owner to a reduction of the assessment figuring the labor at a reasonable wage: Malette v. Spokane, 68 Wash. 578, 123 Pac. 1005.

Such an ordinance conflicts with a charter provision requiring the contract to be let upon competitive bids: Malette v. Spokane, 68 Wash. 578, 123 Pac. 1005.

As to the duty to let contract for municipal work to lowest responsible bidder, see note in 50 Am. St. Rep. 490.

While the city is limited in making assessments for benefits to the amount of the published estimates of such part of the contemplated work as was actually done, it is error for the court, on appeal from the city council, to arbitrarily limit the assessment by reference to a bid upon segregated items which did not include necessary engineering work or overhaul at a certain rate, both included in the estimates and evidently taken into consideration by the city council in making the assessment: Peabody v. Edmonds, 68 Wash. 610, 123 Pac. 1018.

Under a power to improve any street, a city may in one proceeding provide an assessment district for the improvement of several streets, where the total cost is thereby reduced, and by a process of book-keeping the cost of each street is limited to and levied upon abutting property: Gerlach v. Spokane, 68 Wash. 589, 124 Pac. 121.

In an action to set aside a local assessment, the fact that the plaintiff had no notice of the assessment in time to object before the city council is immaterial, if the statutory notice was given, which will be presumed in the absence of allegations to the contrary: Martin v. Olympia, 69 Wash. 28, 124 Pac. 214.

As to validity of eminent domain statute which fails to provide for notice to land owners of proceedings to condemn (as distinguished from proceedings to fix compensation), see note in Ann. Cas. 1913A, 1256.

The power to levy special assessment for a street improvement is not exhausted by being once exercised: Knickerbocker Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 365, 124 Pac. 922.

The city charter and statute authorizing improvements to be made by planking, a plank roadway is a "permanent" improvement and not repair work, for which an assessment can be made, where it was intended for use until it wears out: Knickerbocker Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 365, 124 Pac. 922.

An elevated roadway resting on mud-sills, piles and stringers, is a "permanent" improvement for which the property may be assessed, where it was intended to use the same as long as it would last, although the city contemplated the making of a permanent fill later, and did in fact commence filling in underneath the structure shortly after it was built: Knickerbocker Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 336, 124 Pac. 920.

As to what are public improvements, see note in 12 L. R. A. 417.

As to meaning generally of local improvement for which special assessment may be levied, see note in 20 Ann. Cas. 339.

The fact that the actual cost of an improvement exceeds the original estimate does not affect the power of the city council to levy an assessment upon property to the extent of benefits received, within the limit allowed by law, where the estimate required by the charter was made by the board of public works to enable the council to act advisedly in ordering an improvement within the fifty per cent limit of the assessed valuations, and no notice to the property owners or hearing upon the amount of the estimate was required or given: Inner-Circle Property Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 508, 125 Pac. 970.

An assessment for a permanent street fill, charging two-thirds of the cost against leaseholds and one-third against the fee, is sustained, where the lease had twenty-one years to run, with the preference right of renewal, the leaseholds received the whole of the present benefit and are relatively more enhanced in value than the fee, and the evidence as to the benefits was conflicting: Seattle Mattress & Upholstery Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 666, 125 Pac. 1013.

In proceedings by a city to levy assessments for a local improvement, where eminent domain commissioners have made up an assessment-roll and notice has been given to a property owner of the amount of benefits assessed against his property, and the owner files no objections and does not appear, the court in confirming the assessment has no authority to increase the same, since its order has the effect of a default judgment, the hearing being conducted as in other proceedings, under sections 7791-7797: In re Sixth Avenue West, Seattle, 59 Wash. 41, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1047, 109 Pac. 1052.

See notes to § 7790.

Under this section, "may" should not be construed to mean "must," in view of other provisions of the statute authorizing the court to apportion part of the cost of the improvement to the city, and to change any assessment or recast the same according to the "principles" of the act, which appear to require each parcel of land to "bear its relative equitable proportion" of the costs: Seattle v. Sylvester-Cowen Inv. Co., 55 Wash. 659, 104 Pac. 1121.

§ 7796.

§ 7797.

Upon confirmation of an assessment-roll for a public improvement in a special district, the court must keep within the issues raised by the objections, and cannot direct a change in the district unless it is challenged by a property owner therein: Spokane v. Curtiss, 66 Wash. 555, 120 Pac. 70.

An assessment of special benefits, while a subject for judicial inquiry, will not be set aside on appeal as excessive, unless the evidence so preponderates as to indicate arbitrary action: In re Fifth Avenue etc., 66 Wash. 327, 119 Pac. 852.

Objections going to the regularity of an assessment for a local improvement are cured by confirmation of the assessment-roll, in the absence of appeal therefrom, and cannot be made the basis for an action to set aside the assessment: Norman v. Spokane, 67 Wash. 630, 122 Pac. 330.

An act authorizing the assessment of property benefited by a local improvement relates to the taxing power, and not to the taking or damaging of private property for a public use without compensation, prohibited by constitution, article 1, section 16: Bilger v. State, 63 Wash. 457, 116 Pac. 19.

Laws of 1895, page 270, limiting actions by municipal corporations to collect special assessments for any local improvement to ten years after delinquency of the assessment, applies to condemnation proceedings by a county to acquire a right of way for a drainage ditch, under Laws of 1895, page 142, constructed under a prior unconstitutional act; since such proceeding is a mere incident to the power to institute proceedings for the purpose of obtaining money to pay the costs incurred under the void act: Lewis County v. McCutcheon, 53 Wash. 367, 101 Pac. 1083.

Since the right to recover damages resulting from the original grading of city streets rests upon statute (Laws 1893, p. 207, sec. 47, and Laws 1907, p. 336, sec. 48), the repeal of the acts without any saving clause, after suit brought, bars a recovery and works a discontinuance of the suit: Ettor v. Tacoma, 57 Wash. 50, 106 Pac. 478, 107 Pac. 1061.

§ 7815.

A city not being liable to property owners for damages from the original grading of streets, under this section, and surface water being an outlaw and common enemy against which anyone may defend himself, a city is not liable for damages from the impounding upon lots of surface waters through the construction of fills in streets and alleys in making initial grades: Wood v. Tacoma, 66 Wash. 266, 119 Pac. 859.

As to liability of municipalities for defective streets, see note in 103 Am. St. Rep. 260. And in 108 Am. St. Rep. 139.

See notes to § 7768.

CHAPTER XIX.

PLATS, STREETS AND ADDITIONS.

§ 7832.

Where a plat plainly marked the boundaries of two parallel streets of specified widths, and showed an intervening space of twenty feet between the streets, marked "R. R.," which was occupied at the time by a street railway, a dedication of the public streets as marked does not include the intervening space, since an intention to dedicate will not be presumed and does not appear; and a clause reserving from streets dedicated, the twenty-foot strip marked "R. R." will not defeat the expressed intent not to dedicate such strip: Provident Trust Co. v. Spokane, 63 Wash. 92, 114 Pac. 1030.

A property owner, petitioning for the improvement of streets on certain conditions being performed, is not bound by his stipulation agreeing to a certain assessment upon his lots, or estopped from questioning the validity of the assessment, where it appears that the city did not perform the stipulated conditions but levied the assessments in entire disregard of the stipulation: Lewis & Wiley v. Cook, 57 Wash. 1, 106 Pac. 198.

Owners petitioning for a street to a certain width cannot object to confirmation of the assessment on the ground that the width was unnecessary: In re Jackson Street, 62 Wash. 432, 113 Pac. 1112.

The payment of taxes and local assessments upon a strip of land used adversely as a street, for the prescriptive period, under a dedication by estoppel and user, does not estop the city from claiming the same as a street by dedication and prescription: Seattle v. Hinckley, 67 Wash. 273, 121 Pac. 444.

As to presumption of dedication from user, see note in 6 L. R. A. 261.

Nor would the city be estopped by the fact that the city attorney, out of an excess of caution, included a portion of the strip in condemnation proceedings for the widening of streets, where the claimants in no wise altered their position by reason of the condemnations, especially in view of this section, providing an exclusive method for the vacation of streets: Seattle v. Hinckley, 67 Wash. 273, 121 Pac. 444.

A city council having obtained jurisdiction, by petition and notice, to vacate a street, jurisdiction is not lost by postponing the hearing without entering a continuance to a day certain or giving notice of the time: Brazell v. Seattle, 55 Wash. 180, 104 Pac. 155.

City councils have no power to vacate streets except as delegated by the legislature, and the procedure therefor must be strictly followed: Brazell v. Seattle, 55 Wash. 180, 104 Pac. 155.

The courts have power to set aside a vacation of a street, although the same is a legislative function, where the law or ordinance is invalid and an attempt to enforce it is made or threatened: Smith v. Centralia, 55 Wash. 537, 104 Pac. 797.

The vacation of a street is invalid where the petition was not signed by the owners of more than two-thirds of the private property abutting upon that part of the street, the notice was not given, and the ordinance vacated part of the street not described: Smith v. Centralia, 55 Wash. 573, 104 Pac. 797.

As to power of municipality to vacate streets, see note in 46 Am. St. Rep. 494.

The condemnation and improvement of a new street, covering part of, and to take the place of, an old street, the use of which as a street has since been abandoned by the city, and which formerly gave the only access to plaintiff's abutting property, does not constitute a vacation of the old street so as to vest title to the old street in the plaintiff, in view of this section, providing the manner in which street vacations may be obtained by persons owning an interest in abutting property, as the same provides an exclusive remedy, without which the council has no power to vacate streets: Heuston v. Tacoma, 67 Wash. 92, 120 Pac. 872.

The vacation of a street will not be enjoined at the suit of citizens whose property does not abut on the vacated portion and access is not cut off, or who do not sustain special physical damage different in kind rather than in degree from that suffered by the public: Freeman v. Centralia, 67 Wash. 142, 120 Pac. 886.

Mere inconvenience from the vacation of a street, where access to property is preserved over other streets, is not a taking of or damage to property not abutting on the vacated portion of the street: Freeman v. Centralia, 67 Wash. 142, 120 Pac. 886.

The fact that vacated streets may be put to private uses, and that the vacation was instigated by private interests affected does not warrant interference with the city council's action in vacating the streets, the courts not inquiring into the motive for legislative action: Freeman v. Centralia, 67 Wash. 142, 120 Pac. 886.

As to power of municipality, as against abutting owner, to vacate a street or portion of it, and devote the land to private purposes, see note in 2 Ann. Cas. 87, also note in 22 L. R. A., N. S., 530.

A franchise to a railroad company to occupy a part of a public street to the exclusion of the public cannot be upheld under the city's power to vacate the street, when it was not exercised in the manner prescribed by sections 7840-7843, for such vacations: State ex rel. Schade Brewing Co. v. Superior Court, 62 Wash. 96, 113 Pac. 576.

As to effect of city's permitting use of street by railroad, so as practically to exclude public, see note in 36 L. R. A., N. S., 790, 1115.

An abutting property owner on a street has an interest different in kind from that of the public, where the street is vacated so as to close or affect his access, and may maintain an action to set aside an illegal vacation: Smith v. Centralia, 55 Wash. 573, 104 Pac. 797.

An abutting property owner upon an alley, which he uses for access to his property, suffers a special damage by its obstruction which differs in kind from that suffered by the general public; and it is error to instruct the jury that he cannot recover if his damages were of the same character and kind as those sustained by owners of other property on the alley, and the general public: Sweeney v. Seattle, 57 Wash. 678, 107 Pac. 843.

Such an instruction is not cured by recalling the jury and expressly refusing to change it, but adding that what was meant was that plaintiff could not recover if he suffered only the damages of inconvenience suffered by the general public: Sweeney v. Seattle, 57 Wash. 678, 107 Pac. 843.

As to rights of abutting owners, as distinguished from rights of others, in respect to stones, see note in 101 Am. St. Rep. 107.

The act of 1901, sections 7840-7843, providing a complete method for the vacation of streets and alleys in some respect inconsistent with the earlier law, repeals by implication section 7847, of the earlier act: Rowe v. James, 71 Wash. 267, 128 Pac. 539.

The act of 1901 (section 7842), providing that, upon the vacation of a street, the fee should belong to the abutting owners, confers no rights where vested rights were acquired prior to the passage of the act, in view of section 7843, providing that no vested rights shall be affected by the act: Rowe v. James, 71 Wash. 267, 128 Pac. 539.

The general rule that abutters own the fee to the center of the street is controlled by the circumstances; and where an owner plats land bounded by a street included in the plat and owns nothing beyond the street, his conveyance of land abutting on the street carries the fee to the entire street; and vacation vests title to the entire street in such owner: Rowe v. James, 72 Wash. 267, 128 Pac. 539.

An abutting owner acquires no rights to the fee of a vacated street by reason of the payment of assessments for its maintenance and improvement: Rowe v. James, 71 Wash. 267, 128 Pac. 539.

The fact that the platters in dedicating a street along the shore line of a lake, the center line of which was above high-water mark, excepted and reserved to their own use all water, riparian, and littoral rights, does not show an intent to reserve the fee to a thread of the street upon sale of lots abutting thereon thereby saving a preference right to purchase the shore lands; nor does the fact that they believed they owned the lands below high water show an intent to reserve the fee to a thread of the street beyond its center line: Gifford v. Horton, 54 Wash. 595, 103 Pac. 988.

A plat bordering on water is not to be construed as intended to cover only uplands, where it is evident that the platters assumed to own and platted part of the shore lands: Cameron v. Burke, 61 Wash. 203, 112 Pac. 252.

There is an implied irrevocable common-law dedication of a tract of land to a public use, where it appears that the tract was, with the owner's consent, used by the entire neighborhood for a burying ground from 1854 to 1884, no grant or particular ceremony being necessary: Roundtree v. Hutchinson, 57 Wash. 414, 27 L. R. A., N. S., 875, 107 Pac. 345.

As to what is necessary to effect a dedication of land as a cemetery or burial plat, see note in 27 L. R. A., N. S., 872.

As to dedication and abandonment of land for cemetery purposes, see note in 15 Ann. Cas. 172.

Where a street in a plat is dedicated along a lake shore to high-water mark, the purchaser of lots abutting on the street acquires the fee to the entire street, subject to the public easement: Gifford v. Horton, 14 Wash. 595, 103 Pac. 988.

Where fifty-foot lots and the streets as marked on the plat occupy the entire space between the north and south boundaries of the tract, any excess would be apportioned among the lots; and an excess or strip of four and one-half feet along a boundary line could not be claimed by the plat-tors or those claiming under them: Booth v. Clark, 59 Wash. 229, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1272, 109 Pac. 805.

A dedicated addition did not extend to a river bank, where, between the line of ordinary high water and the nearest surveyed blocks, the lines of which were staked on the ground in accordance with exact dimensions, there intervenes a strip of land varying in width from eight to one hundred and fifty feet; and if the plat included the strip by reason of dedication of "all" of the government subdivision, such fact would not dedicate or donate the strip to the public or to the purchasers of the contiguous blocks: Spinning v. Pugh, 65 Wash. 490, 118 Pac. 635.

A dedication of a city street by estoppel and user is shown where it appears that the owner removed his fences from a strip thirty feet wide, stating that he was throwing it open to the public, in 1889, and deeded the same to the city in 1892, a sidewalk was constructed thereon, the street used by the public for twenty years, and referred to in partition deeds of the heirs as Galer street, and used as a boundary line, the long-continued use by the public implying an acceptance by the city, although the deed was lost and the street was not worked: Seattle v. Hinckley, 67 Wash. 273, 121 Pac. 444.

Under this section the council has no power to modify the proposed replat, but must approve or reject it in its entirety, and an order approving part of the vacation petitioned for is void: Brazell v. Seattle, 55 Wash. 180, 104 Pac. 155.

§ 7857.

Under this section the city council can only approve or reject the petition in its entirety, and an order altering the proposed replat is void, the orders required by justice, etc., referring to the necessary assessments and awards, and not to modifications of the replat: Brazell v. Seattle, 55 Wash. 180, 104 Pac. 155.

CHAPTER XX.

BRIDGES.

§ 7869.

Private individuals may, by consent of the federal and state governments, erect structures in the navigable waters of the state: Wilson v. Oregon-Washington R. & Nav. Co., 71 Wash. 102, 127 Pac. 847.

CHAPTER XXI.

RENEWAL OF SIDEWALKS.

§§ 7870, 7871.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

§ 7873.

Under this section, providing that nothing in the act shall be construed to limit or repeal any existing powers of cities with reference to such improvements, a city was authorized, after the enactment of the law, to levy special assessments under the pre-existing laws and ordinances of the city: Olympia v. Turpin, 70 Wash. 581, 127 Pac. 210.

CHAPTER XXIII.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS, GENERAL PROVISIONS.

§ 7892.

This section was intended to be retro-active, and removes the bar of the statute of limitations for the recovery thereof, where the same was passed at the next session of the legislature after a decision of the supreme court upholding the two-year statute of limitations from the delinquency of the assessment as a reasonable one, the city having no moral right to the money, and the ascertainment of the amount often being postponed beyond the two-year period: State ex rel. McCullough v. Seattle, 60 Wash. 241, 110 Pac. 1008.

CHAPTER XXIII-A.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

§ 7892-1. May Provide for Local Improvements.

Any city or town in this state shall have power to provide for making local improvements and to levy and collect special assessments on property specially benefited thereby, for paying the cost and expense of the same or any portion thereof, as herein provided. [L. '11, p. 441, § 1.]

§ 7892-2. May Determine by Charter or Ordinance.

Any city or town shall have power to determine by charter or ordinance what work shall be done or improvements made at the expense, in whole or in part, of the property specially benefited thereby; and to provide the manner of making and collecting assessments therefor in pursuance of this act. [L. '11, p. 441, § 2.]

§ 7892-3. May Provide for Sewer, Drain and Water Systems.

Any city or town shall have power to provide for the sewerage, drainage and water supply thereof, and to establish, construct and maintain a system of sewers and drains and a system or systems of water supply, within or without the corporate limits of such city or town, and to control, regulate and manage the same. [L. '11, p. 441, § 3.]

§ 7892-4. May Provide for Protection from Overflow.

Any city or town shall have power to provide for the protection of such city or town, or any part thereof, from overflow, and to establish, construct and maintain dikes, levees, embankments or other structures and works, or to open, deepen, straighten or otherwise enlarge natural watercourses, waterways and other channels, including the acquisition or damaging of lands, rights of way, rights and property therefor, within or without the corporate limits of such city or town, and to manage, regulate and control the same. [L. '11, p. 441, § 4.]

§ 7892-5. Protection from Fire—Auxiliary Water Systems.

Any city or town shall have power to provide for the protection of such city or town, or any part thereof, from fire, and to establish, construct and maintain an auxiliary water system, or systems, or extensions thereof, or additions thereto, and the structures and works necessary therefor or forming a part thereof, including the acquisition or damaging of lands, rights of way, rights, property, water rights, and the necessary sources of supply of water for such purposes, within or without the corporate limits of such city or town, and to manage, regulate and control the same. [L. '11, p. 442, § 5.]

§ 7892-6. Council to Order Improvements.

Whenever the public interest or convenience may require, the council, or other legislative authority of any such city or town, is hereby authorized and empowered to order the whole or any part of the streets, avenues, lanes, alleys, boulevards, park drives, parkways, public squares, and places within any such city or town to be graded or regraded, planked or replanked, paved or repaved, piled or repiled, capped or recapped, or otherwise improved, and to order sidewalks, drains, sewers, and all sewer appurtenances, culverts, bulkheads, retaining walls, water mains, hydrants or appurtenances, curbing and crosswalks, street lighting systems, together with the cost, and expense of furnishing electrical energy to said street lighting systems, auxiliary water systems, dikes and embankments, bridges and trestles and approaches thereto, or other local improvement whatsoever to be constructed, reconstructed, repaired or renewed therein, and to order the planting, setting out, cultivating, maintaining and renewing of shade or ornamental trees and shrubbery thereon; and to order any and all work to be done which shall be necessary to complete any such improvement; and to levy and collect special assessments to pay the whole or any part of the cost and expense of any such improvement. The city may require uniform setting out, planting, cultivating, maintenance and renewal of shade and ornamental trees and shrubbery on any street or highway. Any local improvement payable, in whole or in part, by special assessments, which shall include a charge for the cost and expense of furnishing electrical energy to any system of street lighting shall be initiated only upon petition signed by the owners of two-thirds of the lineal frontage upon the improvement to be made and two-thirds of the area within the limits of the proposed improvement district. [L. '11, p. 442, § 6; L. '13, p. 409, § 1.]

§ 7892-7. Method of Procedure.

Whenever any city or town shall make local improvements at the cost and expense, in whole or in part, of property specially benefited thereby, the proceedings for the same shall be had as provided in this act. [L. '11, p. 443, § 7.]

§ 7892-8. Resolution or Petition.

Any such improvement may be ordered only by ordinance of the council, or other legislative body of such city or town, either upon petition or resolution therefor. [L. '11, p. 443, § 8.]

§ 7892-9. Petition.

In case any such local improvement, the assessment district for which shall not extend beyond the termini of such improvement, shall be initiated upon petition, such petition shall set forth the nature and territorial extent of such proposed improvement, the mode of payment and the fact that the signers thereof are the owners, according to the records in the office of the county auditor, of property to an aggregate amount of a majority of the lineal frontage upon the improvement to be made and of the area within the limits of the assessment district to be created therefor. If any such property stands in the name of a deceased person, or any person for whom a guardian has been appointed, the signature of the executor, administrator or guardian as the case may be, shall be equivalent to the signature of the owner of the property on such petition.

Such petition shall be presented to and filed with the city or town clerk, or with such officer, board or authority as may be designated by charter or ordinance. Upon filing such petition, the officer, board or authority required by charter or ordinance so to do shall ascertain if the facts set forth in said petition are true and shall cause an estimate of the cost and expense of such improvement to be made, and shall transmit the same to the council of such city or town, together with all papers and information in his or their possession touching such improvement, with the estimated cost thereof, and his or their recommendations thereof, together with a description of the boundaries of the district, and a statement of the proportionate amount of the cost and expense of such improvement which should be borne by property within the proposed assessment district and a statement of the aggregate assessed valuation of the real estate exclusive of improvements in said district according to the valuation last placed upon it for purposes of general taxation.

In case such petition shall be found sufficient, such board, officer or authority shall also transmit to the council a diagram or print, showing thereon the lots, tracts or parcels of land and other property which will be specially benefited thereby and the estimated amount of the cost and expense of such improvement to be borne by each such lot, tract or parcel of land or other property. [L. '11, p. 443, § 9.]

§ 7892-10. Resolution.

Any such improvement may be initiated directly by the city or town council by a resolution declaring its intention to order such improvement, setting forth the nature and territorial extent of such proposed improvement, and notifying all persons who may desire to object thereto to appear and present such objections at a meeting of the council at the time specified in such resolution; and directing the proper board, officer or authority to submit to the council at or prior to the date fixed for such hearing the estimated cost and expense of such improvement, and a statement of the proportionate amount thereof which should be borne by the property within the proposed assessment district, and a statement of the aggregate assessed valuation of the real estate, exclusive of improvements, within said district according to the valuation last placed upon it for the purposes of general taxation, together with a diagram or print showing thereon the lots, tracts and parcels of land and other property which will be specially benefited thereby and the estimated amount of the cost and expense of such improvement to be borne by each lot, tract, or parcel of land or other property. Such resolution shall be published in at least two consecutive issues of the official newspaper of such city or town, the date of the first publication to be at least fifteen (15) days prior to the date fixed by such resolution for hearing before the city council: Provided, That in any city or town not having an official newspaper, such publication may be made in any newspaper of general circulation published therein, or in case there be no such newspaper, then in a newspaper published in the county in which such city or town is located and of general circulation in such city or town. [L. '11, p. 444, § 10.]

§ 7892-11. Diagram not Conclusive.

The diagram or print herein directed to be submitted to the council, shall be in the nature of a preliminary determination by such administrative board, officer or authority upon the method and relative estimated amounts of assessments to be levied upon the property specially benefited by such improvement, and shall in no case be constructed as being binding or conclusive in any way upon any such board, officer or authority, in the preparation of the assessment-roll for such improvement, or upon the council upon any hearing affecting such roll. [L. '11, p. 445, § 11.]

§ 7892-12. Limit of Assessment.

The council shall have jurisdiction to proceed with any such improvement initiated by petition or resolution: Provided, That in any city of the first class it appears from the certificate of the board, officer, or authority designated by charter or ordinance to determine the same that the estimated cost and expense thereof does not exceed fifty per cent (50%) of the valuation of the real estate, exclusive of improvements thereon, within the proposed improvement district according to the valuation last placed upon it for purposes of general taxation: Provided, That this limit may be exceeded when any such improvement shall be petitioned for in the manner provided in section 7892-9, and such petition shall be signed by the owners of the area within the limits of the proposed improvement district, and shall specify a certain higher percentage up to which the property within such proposed improvement district may be assessed.

In the absence of fraud or gross mistake, such certificate of such board, officer or other authority shall be final and conclusive.

In computing the valuation of such property, any nonassessable property owned by the United States, state, county, city, town, school district or other public corporation, shall be valued at the same rate as assessed property similarly situated. [L. '11, p. 445, § 12.]

§ 7892-13. The Improvement District.

Every ordinance ordering any improvement mentioned in this act, payment for which shall be made in whole or in part by special assessments, shall establish a local improvement district to be called "Local Improvement District No. —," which district shall embrace as near as may be all the property specially benefited by such improvement. Except in the cases herein otherwise specifically provided for, and unless otherwise provided in the ordinance ordering such improvement, such district shall include all the property between the termini of said improvement abutting upon, adjacent, vicinal or proximate to the street, avenue, lane, alley, boulevard, park drive, parkway, public place or square proposed to be improved to a distance back from the marginal lines thereof to the center line of the blocks facing or abutting thereon: Provided, That in any case such distance back shall be at least ninety (90) feet: And provided further, That in case of unplatted property, the distance back shall be the same distance as that included in the assessment of the platted lands immediately adjacent thereto. All property included within said limits of such local improvement district shall be considered and held to be the property and to be all the property specially benefited by such local improvement, and shall be the property to be assessed to pay the cost and expense thereof or such part thereof as may be chargeable against the property specially benefited by such improvement, which cost and expense shall be assessed upon all of said property so benefited in accordance to the special benefits conferred on such property in proportion to area and distance back from the marginal line of the street, or other public way or area improved. Said local improvement district shall, for the purpose of ascertaining the amount to be assessed against such separate lot, tract, parcel of land or other property within said district be divided into subdivisions or zones paralleling the margin of the street, avenue, lane, alley, boulevard, park drive or parkway, public place or square to be improved, said subdivisions to be numbered respectively first, second, third, fourth and fifth. The first subdivision shall include all the lands within the district lying between the street margins and lines drawn parallel therewith and thirty (30) feet therefrom. The second subdivision shall include all lands within the district lying between lines drawn parallel with and thirty (30) feet and sixty (60) feet respectively from said street margins. The third subdivision shall include all lands within the district lying between lines drawn parallel with and sixty (60) feet and ninety (90) feet respectively from such street margins. The fourth subdivision shall include all lands, if any, within the district lying between lines drawn parallel with and ninety (90) feet and one hundred twenty (120) feet respectively from said street margins. The fifth subdivision shall include all lands, if any, within the district lying between a line drawn parallel with and one hundred twenty (120) feet from said street margin and the outer limit of said local improvement district as hereinbefore described.

The rate of assessment per square foot in each subdivision shall be fixed on the basis that the special benefits conferred on a square foot of land in subdivisions first, second, third, fourth and fifth, respectively, are related to each other as are the numbers 45, 25, 20, 10 and 5, respectively, and shall be ascertained in the following manner: The products of the number of square feet in subdivisions first, second, third, fourth and fifth, respectively, and the numbers 45, 25, 20, 10 and 5, respectively, shall be ascertained, and their sum taken, which sum shall be divided into the total cost and expense of such improvement. The products of the resultant quotient and the numbers 45, 25, 20, 10 and 5, respectively, shall be the separate rates of assessment per square foot for subdivisions first, second, third, fourth and fifth, respectively. The total assessment thus ascertained against each separate lot, tract, parcel of land, or other property within such district shall be entered upon the assessment-roll as the amount to be levied and assessed against each such separate lot, tract, parcel of land, or other property. [L. '11, p. 446, § 13.]

§ 7892-14. Enlarged District.

Whenever any local improvement shall be of such nature and character that the special benefits resulting therefrom extend beyond the boundaries of the local improvement district hereinbefore described and defined, the council may create an enlarged district, which shall include as near as may be all the property specially benefited by such improvement. In such case, the petition or resolution initiating such improvement shall state that it is proposed to create an enlarged district to pay the whole or a portion of the cost and expense of such improvement and shall specify and describe the boundaries of such enlarged district, and shall specify a fixed amount of the cost and expense of such improvement to be assessed against that portion of the property within such enlarged district, lying between the termini of the proposed improvement and extending back from the marginal lines thereof to the middle of the block on each side thereof, in the mode prescribed in the preceding section hereof, and that such portion of the remainder of such cost and expense, as may not be borne by any general fund, shall be distributed and assessed against all the property included in the remainder of such enlarged district in accordance with special benefits.

The council in case it shall order such improvement, shall in the ordinance therefor specify and describe the boundaries of such district as defined in such petition or resolution. [L. '11, p. 448, § 14.]

§ 7892-15. Trunk Sewers and Water Mains.

Any city or town shall have power to provide for the construction of trunk sewers, and trunk water mains, and for the payment of all or any part of the cost and expense thereof by the levying and collecting of assessments upon property specially benefited thereby. In any such case the district created to bear such assessment shall be outlined in conformity with topographical conditions, and in case of trunk sewers, shall include as near as may be all the territory which can be sewerred or drained through such trunk sewer and the subsewers connected thereto, and in case of trunk water mains, shall include as near as may be all the territory in the zone or district to which water may be distributed from such trunk water main through lateral service and distribution mains and services. In distributing such assessments, there shall be levied against the property lying between the termini of the improvement and back to the middle of the blocks along the marginal lines of the street or areas improved, such amounts as would represent the reasonable cost of a local sewer and its appurtenances, or water main and its appurtenances suited to the requirements of such territory in the mode prescribed in section 7892-13, and the remainder of the cost and expense of such improvement shall be distributed over and assessed against all of the property within the bounds of said entire district in accordance with the special benefits conferred thereon and in proportion to area. [L. '11, p. 449, § 15.]

§ 7892-16. Resolution and Ordinance for Trunk Sewers and Water Mains.

The council, before ordering the construction of any trunk sewer or trunk water main, shall pass a resolution declaring its intention to order such improvement, which resolution shall set forth the general nature of such improvement, describing the routes along which such trunk sewer, subsewer and branches, or trunk water main and laterals is to be constructed, and notifying all persons who may desire to object thereto to appear at a meeting of the council at a time specified in such resolution and present their objections thereto, and directing the proper board, officer or authority to report to the council at or prior to the date fixed for such hearing, the estimated cost and expense of such improvement. Such resolution shall be published in all respects the same as provided for the publication of resolutions mentioned in section 7892-10.

The council may order such improvement only by ordinance, which ordinance shall describe the routes along which such improvement is to be constructed, and established and fix the boundaries of the district to be assessed for such improvement. Maps, plans and specifications therefor shall be prepared in such manner as may be prescribed by ordinance, but shall be adopted by ordinance before the contract for such improvement shall be let. [L. '11, p. 449, § 16.]

§ 7892-17. Resolution and Ordinance for Dikes, Embankments, etc.

The council, before ordering the construction of any improvement provided for in section 7892-4, if the same or any part thereof is to be paid by special assessment as hereinbefore provided, shall first pass a resolution declaring its intention to order such improvement, which resolution shall set forth the general nature of such improvement, the place of commencement and ending thereof, the route to be used, the estimated cost and expense thereof, the boundaries of the special assessment district to be formed, and notifying all persons who may desire to object thereto to appear at a meeting of the council at a time specified in such resolution and present their objections thereto. Such resolution shall be published in all respects as other resolutions provided for in section 7892-10 are required to be published. If protests against such improvement are filed by the owners of property included in said proposed assessment district against such improvement, representing an aggregate amount of two-thirds of the area included in such proposed district, the council shall not proceed further with the work under such resolution.

The council may order such improvement only by ordinance, which ordinance shall describe the place of commencement and ending of such improvement, the route to be used, shall establish and fix the boundaries of such district and shall adopt the maps, plans and specifications for such improvement. [L. '11, p. 450, § 17.]

§ 7892-18. Resolution and Ordinance for Auxiliary Water System.

The council before ordering the construction of any improvement authorized in section 7892-5, shall first pass a resolution declaring its intention to order such improvement, which resolution shall set forth the general nature of such improvement, describing the routes along which such auxiliary water system, or extensions thereof or additions thereto, is to be constructed, specifying the structures or works necessary thereto or forming a part thereof, the estimated cost and expense thereof, the boundaries of the local improvement district to be formed to pay the whole or any portion of such cost and expense, and notifying all persons who may desire to object thereto to appear at a meeting of the council at a time specified in such resolution and present their objections thereto. Such resolution shall be published in all respects as other resolutions provided for in section 7892-10 are required to be published.

The council may order such improvement only by ordinance, which ordinance shall describe the route to be used, specify the structures or works necessary thereto or forming a part thereof, fix and establish the boundaries of such district, and adopt the maps, plans and specifications for such improvement. [L. '11, p. 451, § 18.]

§ 7892-19. Action of Council Conclusive.

The council may continue the hearing upon any petition or resolution provided for in this act and shall retain jurisdiction thereof until the same be finally disposed of. The action and decision of the council as to all matters passed upon by it in relation to any such petition or resolution shall be final and conclusive. [L. '11, p. 451, § 19.]

§ 7892-20. The Assessment Lien.

The charge on the respective lots, tracts, parcels of land and other property, for the purpose of special assessments to pay the cost and expense, in whole or in part of any improvement authorized in this act, when assessed and the assessment-roll confirmed by the legislative body of such city or town in the manner therein provided by ordinance, shall be a lien upon the property assessed from the time said assessment-roll shall be placed in the hands of the officer authorized by law to collect such assessments. Said lien shall be paramount and superior to any other lien or encumbrance whatsoever, theretofore, or thereafter created except a lien for assessments for general taxes. [L. '11, p. 452, § 20.]

§ 7892-21. The Assessment-roll and Objections Thereto.

Whenever any assessment-roll for local improvements shall have been prepared as provided by law, such roll shall be filed with the clerk of such city or town. The council shall thereupon fix a date for hearing upon such roll before the council and direct the clerk to give notice of such hearing and the time and place thereof.

Such notice shall specify such time and place of hearing on such roll, and shall notify all persons who may desire to object thereto to make such objections in writing and to file the same with such clerk, at or prior to the date fixed for such hearing; and that at the time and place fixed and at such other times as the hearing may be continued to, the council will sit as a board of equalization for the purpose of considering such roll, and at such hearing, or hearings, will consider such objections made thereto, or any part thereof, and will correct, revise, raise, lower, change or modify such roll, or any part thereof, or set aside such roll and order that such assessment be made de novo, as to such body shall appear just and equitable, and then proceed to confirm the same by ordinance.

Such notice shall be published at least five (5) times in the official daily newspaper of such city or town or two (2) times in the official weekly newspaper of such city or town, or, in the case of any city or town not having an official newspaper, then in such other newspaper designated in section 7892-10: Provided, That at least fifteen (15) days must elapse between the date of last publication thereof and the date fixed for such hearing.

The council or other legislative body of such city or town, at the time fixed for hearing objections to the confirmation of said roll, or at such time or times as said hearing may be adjourned to, shall have power to correct, revise, raise, lower, change or modify such roll, or any part thereof, and to set aside such roll and order that such assessment be made de novo, as to such body shall appear equitable and just, and then shall confirm the same by ordinance. All objections shall state clearly the grounds of objections; and objections not made within the time and in the manner herein prescribed shall be conclusively presumed to have been waived.

Whenever any such roll shall be amended so as to raise any assessments appearing thereon, or to include omitted property, a new time and place for hearing, and a new notice of hearing on such roll, as amended, shall be fixed and given as in the case of an original hearing: Provided, That whenever any property shall have been entered originally upon such roll and the assessment upon any such property shall not be raised, no objections thereto shall be considered by the council or by any court on appeal, unless such objections be made in writing at, or prior to the date fixed for the original hearing upon such roll. [L. '11, p. 452, § 21.]

§ 7892-22. Method of Appeal.

The decision of the council or other legislative body upon any objections made within the time and in the manner herein prescribed, may be reviewed by the superior court upon an appeal thereto taken in the following manner. Such appeal shall be made by filing written notice of appeal with the clerk of such city or town and with the clerk of the superior court in the county in which such city or town is situated within ten days after the ordinance confirming such assessment-roll shall have become effective, and such notice shall describe the property and set forth the objections of such appellant to such assessment; and, within ten days from the filing of such notice of appeal with the clerk of the superior court, the appellant shall file with the clerk of said court, a transcript consisting of the assessment-roll and his objections thereto, together with the ordinance confirming such assessment-roll, and the record of the council or other legislative body with reference to said assessment, which transcript, upon payment of the necessary fees therefor, shall be furnished by such city or town clerk and by him certified to contain full, true and correct copies of all matters and proceedings required to be included in such transcript. Such fees shall be the same as the fees payable to the county clerk for the preparation and certification of transcripts on appeal to the supreme court in civil actions. At the time of the filing of the notice of appeal with the clerk of the superior court, the appellant shall execute and file with the clerk of the superior court a sufficient bond in the penal sum of two hundred dollars, with at least two sureties, to be approved by the judge of said court, conditioned to prosecute such appeal without delay and, if unsuccessful, to pay all costs to which the city is put by reason of such appeal. The court may order the appellant upon application therefor, to execute and file such additional bond or bonds as the necessity of the case may require. Within three (3) days after such transcript is filed in the superior court, as aforesaid, the appellant shall give written notice to the head of the legal department of such city or town, and to the city clerk, that such transcript is filed. Said notice shall state a time (not less than three (3) days from the service thereof) when the appellant will call up the said cause for hearing; and the superior court shall, at said time or at such further time as may be fixed by order of the court, hear and determine such appeal without a jury; and such cause shall have preference over all civil causes pending in said court, except proceedings under an act relating to eminent domain in cities and towns and actions of forcible entry and detainer. The judgment of the court shall confirm, correct, modify or annul the assessment in so far as the same affects the property of the appellant. A certified copy of the decision of the court shall be filed with the officer who shall have custody of the assessment-roll, and he shall modify and correct such assessment-roll in accordance with such decision. An appeal shall lie to the supreme court from the judgment of the superior court, as in other cases: Provided, however, That such appeal must be taken within fifteen (15) days after the date of the entry of the judgment of such superior court; and the record and opening brief of the appellant in said cause shall be filed in the supreme court within sixty (60) days after the appeal shall have been taken by notice as provided in this act. The time for filing such record and serving and filing of briefs in this section prescribed may be extended by order of the superior court, or by stipulation of the parties concerned. And the supreme court, on such appeal may correct, change, modify, confirm or annul the assessment in so far as the same affects the property of the appellant. A certified copy of the order of the supreme court upon such appeal shall be filed with the officer having custody of such assessment-roll, who shall thereupon modify and correct such assessment-roll in accordance with such decision. [L. '11, p. 453, § 22.]

§ 7892-23. Proceedings Conclusive.

Whenever any assessment-roll for local improvements shall have been confirmed by the council or other legislative body of such city or town as herein provided, the regularity, validity and correctness of the proceedings relating to such improvement, and to the assessment therefor, including the action of the council upon such assessment-roll and the confirmation thereof, shall be conclusive in all things upon all parties, and cannot in any manner be contested or questioned in any proceeding whatsoever by any person not filing written objections to such roll in the manner and within the time provided in this act, and not appealing from the action of the council in confirming such assessment-roll in the manner and within the time in this act provided. No proceeding of any kind shall be commenced or prosecuted for the purpose of defeating or contesting any such assessment, or the sale of any property to pay such assessment, or any certificate of delinquency issued therefor, or the foreclosure of any lien issued therefor: Provided, That this section shall not be construed as prohibiting the bringing of injunction proceedings to prevent the sale of any real estate upon the grounds (1) that the property about to be sold does not appear upon the assessment-roll, or (2) that said assessment has been paid. [L. '11, p. 455, § 23.]

§ 7892-24. Time of Payment, Interest, Penalty.

Any city or town shall prescribe by ordinance within what time such assessments, or installments thereof, shall be paid; and shall provide for the payment and collection of interest thereon, at a rate not to exceed eight per cent per annum. Assessments or installments thereof, when delinquent, in addition to such interest shall bear such penalty not less than five per cent as shall be by general ordinance prescribed. Interest and penalty shall be included in, and shall be a part of, the assessment lien. All local assessments becoming a lien upon any property in any city or town after this act shall become effective, shall be collected by the treasurer of such city or town, and all such liens shall be enforced in the manner herein prescribed: Provided, That in cities and towns other than cities of the first class, delinquent assessments, or delinquent installments thereof, shall be certified to the treasurer of the county in which such city or town is situate and by him entered upon the general tax-rolls and collected as other general taxes are collected. The county treasurer shall remit to the city treasurer on the tenth of each month all sums so collected. All local assessments becoming a lien upon any property in any such city or town prior to the date this act shall become effective, shall be collected and such liens enforced in accordance with the laws in force and effect prior to the taking effect of this act: Provided, That in the enforcement of any such liens, any city or town may proceed under the provisions of this act, unless such proceedings shall have been already commenced. [L. '11, p. 456, § 24.]

§ 7892-25. Sale for Delinquent Assessments.

Any city or town may by general ordinance provide for the sale of property described in any local assessment-roll, after the assessment or any installment thereof shall have become delinquent, whether any such assessment became a lien after this act becomes effective, or prior thereto, for the amount of such delinquent assessment, or installment, together with penalty and interest accruing to date of sale, and for the costs of such sale; and for the execution and delivery by the treasurer of such city or town of certificates of sale to the purchaser, and for the execution by such treasurer of an assessment deed to the person thereunto entitled.

The treasurer shall give notice of such sales by publishing a notice thereof once a week for three consecutive weeks in the official newspaper of the city or town, or, in the case of any city or town not having an official newspaper, then in such newspaper specified in section 7892-10. Such notice shall contain a list of all property upon which such assessments are delinquent with the amount of the assessments, interests, penalties and costs to date of sale, including the cost of advertising such sale, together with the names of the owners of such property, or the words "Unknown Owners," as the same may appear upon said assessment-roll, and shall specify the time and place of sale, and that the property therein described will be sold to satisfy the assessments, interests, penalties and costs, due upon the same. All such sales shall be made between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. and shall take place at the front door of the building in which the city or town council holds its sessions. Such sale shall be continued from day to day, omitting Sundays and legal holidays, until all the property described in said assessment-roll on which any such assessment, or installment thereof, is delinquent and unpaid, is sold. All such sales shall be public, and each lot, tract or parcel of land, or other property, shall be sold separately and in the order in which the same appears upon the assessment-roll, commencing at the beginning thereof.

All lots, tracts and parcels of land and other property sold for delinquent and unpaid local assessments, shall be sold to the first person at such sale offering to pay the amount due on each such lot, tract or parcel of land or other property. If there be no bidder for any lot, tract or parcel of land, or other property, for a sum sufficient to pay the delinquent and unpaid assessments thereon, or installment thereof, with interest, penalty and costs, the treasurer shall strike the same off to the city or town for the whole amount which he is required to collect by such sale. If any bidder to whom any property is stricken off at such sale does not pay the assessment, interest, penalty and costs before 10 o'clock A. M. of the day following the day of such sale, such property must then be resold, or if the assessment sale is closed, be deemed to have been sold to the city or town, and a certificate of sale shall be issued to the city or town therefor. [L. '11, p. 457, § 25.]

§ 7892-26. Return of Sale.

Within fifteen days after the completion of the sale of all property described in such assessment-rolls, and authorized to be sold as aforesaid, the treasurer must make return to the comptroller, or other officer by whom the warrant was issued for such sale, with a statement of his action thereon, showing all the property sold by him, to whom sold and the sums paid therefor. [L. '11, p. 458, § 26.]

§ 7892-27. Certificate of Sale.

After receiving the amount of the assessment, penalty, interest, costs and charges, the treasurer shall make out a certificate, dated on the day of sale, stating (when known) the name of the owner as given on the assessment-roll, a description of the land or other property sold, the amount paid therefor, the name of the purchaser, that it was sold for the assessment, giving the names of the streets, or other brief designation of the improvement for which the assessment was made, and specifying that the purchaser will be entitled to a deed two years from the date of sale, unless redemption thereof be made. Such certificate shall be signed by the treasurer, and shall be delivered to the purchaser, and shall be by such purchaser recorded in the office of the county auditor in which the lands or other property is situated within three months from the date thereof. If not recorded within said time, the lien thereof shall be postponed to claims of subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers for value and in good faith who become such while the same is unrecorded.

The city or town comptroller, if there be such officer, and if not then the city or town clerk, shall be the custodian of all certificates for property sold to the city or town and shall at any time within two years from the date of such certificate, and before redemption of the property therein described, sell and transfer any such certificate to any person who will present to him the treasurer's receipt evidencing payment to the treasurer of the amount for which the property therein described was stricken off to the city, with interest subsequently accrued to date of such payment thereon, and such comptroller or clerk may, if so authorized by the council, sell and transfer any such certificate in like manner after the expiration of such period of two years from the date of the certificate. [L. '11, p. 458, § 27.]

§ 7892-28. Redemption Fund.

All moneys collected by the treasurer upon any assessments under this act shall be kept as a separate fund, to be known as "Local Improvement Fund, District No. ——" and shall be used for no other purpose than the redemption of warrants and bonds drawn or issued upon or against said fund. [L. '11, p. 459, § 28.]

§ 7892-29. Liability of Treasurer.

If the treasurer shall receive any moneys for assessments, giving a receipt therefor, for any property and afterward return the same as unpaid, or shall receive the same after making such return, and the same be sold for assessment which has been so paid and receipted for by himself, his clerk, assistant or deputy, he and his bond shall be liable to the holder of the certificate given to the purchaser at the sale for the amount of the face of the certificate, and legal interest to be demanded within two years from the date of sale and recovered in any court having jurisdiction of the amount, and the city shall in no case be liable to the holder of such certificate. [L. '11, p. 459, § 29.]

§ 7892-30. Record of Payment.

Whenever before the sale of any property the amount of any assessment thereon, with interest, penalty, costs and charges accrued thereon, shall be paid to the treasurer, he shall thereon mark the same paid, with the date of payment thereof on the assessment-roll, and whenever after the sale of any property for any assessments the same shall be redeemed, he shall thereupon enter the same redeemed with the date of such redemption on such record. Such records shall be made on the margin of the record opposite the description of such property. [L. '11, p. 460, § 30.]

§ 7892-31. Property Held in Trust.

Whenever any property shall be bid in by any city or town or be stricken off to any city or town under and by virtue of any proceeding or proceedings provided in this act said property shall be held in trust by said city or town for the fund of the improvement district for the creation of which fund said assessment was levied and for the collection of which assessment said property was sold, to the extent of the amount of the assessment or installment for which said property was sold, with penalty, accrued interest, and interest on said installment to time of next call for bonds or warrants: Provided, however, Such city or town may at any time after the procuring of a deed pay in to such fund the amount of the delinquent assessment for which said property was sold and all accrued interest and interest to the time of the next call for bonds or warrants issued against such assessment fund at the rate provided thereon, and thereupon shall take and hold said property discharged of such trust. [L. '11, p. 460, § 31.]

§ 7892-32. Sale of Property Held in Trust.

Any city or town may at any time after the period of redemption has expired and deeds issued to said city or town under and by virtue of any proceedings mentioned in this act, sell any such property at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, but no bid shall be accepted for any amount less than the amount set forth in said deed, plus accrued interest to date of sale, computed on the assessment for which said property was sold from the date of the execution of said deed, and all delinquent assessments and taxes that may stand against said property with accrued interest thereon, penalties, costs and other charges, and the said city or town shall pay into said fund for which said property was held in trust so much thereof as shall fully cancel the assessment for which said property was sold, together with all interest thereon.

Any such sale shall be had only upon notice setting forth a description of the property to be sold, that the city treasurer will sell such property on the day specified at the front door of the building in which the city or town council holds its sessions, between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M. and continue such sale from day to day, or withdraw such property from sale after the first day if the treasurer in his discretion deems that the interests of the city or town so require. Such notice shall be published at least five times in the official daily newspaper of such city or town, or at least two times in the official weekly newspaper of such city or town, or in the case of any city or town not having an official newspaper then at least two times in such other newspaper mentioned in section 7892-10: Provided, That at least fifteen days shall elapse between the date of last publication of such notice and the day such property is sold. [L. '11. p. 460, § 32.]

§ 7892-33. Redemption and Deed.

Any property so sold for an assessment shall be subject to redemption by the former owner, or his grantee, mortgagee, heir, or other representative at any time within two years from the date of the sale upon the payment to the treasurer for the purchaser of the amount for which the same was sold, with interest at the rate of fifteen per cent (15) per annum, together with all taxes and special assessments, interest, penalties, costs and other charges thereon paid by the purchaser of such property at or since such sale, with like interest thereon. Unless written notice of taxes and assessments subsequently paid, and the amount thereof, shall be deposited with the city or town treasurer, redemption may be made without including the same. On any such redemption being made, the treasurer shall give to the redemptioner a certificate of redemption therefor, and pay over the amount so received to the purchaser of the certificate of sale or his assigns. Should no redemption be made within said period of two years, the treasurer shall, on demand of the purchaser or his assigns, and the surrender to him of the certificate of sale, execute to such purchaser or his assigns, a deed for the property therein described: Provided, That no such deed shall be executed until the holder of such certificate of sale shall have notified the owners of such property that he holds such certificate, and that he will demand a deed therefor. Said notice shall be given by personal service upon said owners: Provided, That in case said parties are nonresidents of the state or cannot be found therein after diligent search, then such notice may be given by publication in the official paper of the city or town, or if there be no official paper, then in the manner provided in section 7892-10, once a week for three successive weeks. Such notice and return thereof, with the affidavit of the person, or in case of a city or town, of the comptroller or clerk, claiming such deed, showing that such service was made, shall be filed with the treasurer. If, notwithstanding such notice, no redemption be made within sixty days after the date of service, or the date of first publication of such notice, the holder of such certificate of sale shall be entitled to a deed thereon. Such deed shall be executed only for the property described in the certificate, and after payment of all delinquent taxes and special assessments thereon, or installments thereof, and certificates of delinquency or other certificates issued for special or local assessments, whether the same were levied, assessed or issued prior or subsequent to the issuance of said certificates of sale: Provided, That any such deed may be issued to any city or town for the face amount for which said certificate of sale was issued, plus accrued interest, costs, penalties and charges, and shall be held by such city or town subject to the liens of general taxes and special assessments.

The deed shall be executed in the name of the city or town by which the improvement was made; shall recite in substance the matters contained in the certificate of sale, the notice to the owner, and that no redemption has been made of the property within the time allowed by law. The deed shall be signed and acknowledged by the city or town treasurer, as such, and shall be prima facie evidence that the property was assessed according to and as required by law; that the assessment was not paid; that the property was sold as required by law; that it was not redeemed; that due notice of demand for deed had been given, and that the person executing the deed was the proper officer; and the deed shall be conclusive evidence of the regularity of all other proceedings from the assessment, up to and including the execution of the deed, and shall convey the entire fee simple title to the property therein described, except as otherwise provided herein for cities and towns, stripped of all liens and claims except assessments for local improvements or installments thereof, not delinquent. [L. '11, p. 461, § 33.]

§ 7892-34. Foreclosure.

Any city or town may proceed with the collection or enforcement of any delinquent assessment, or delinquent installment, whether the same became a lien after this act shall become effective, or prior thereto, by proceedings in court therefor in an action brought in its own name in the superior court in the county in which such city or town is situate. It shall not be necessary to bring a separate suit for each such separate piece or parcel of property delinquent, but all or any part of the property delinquent under any single assessment-roll, or assessment district, may be proceeded against in the same action, and all or any of the owners or persons interested in any of the property so delinquent may be joined as parties defendant in the action to foreclose, and all or any liens for such delinquent assessments, or installments thereof, may be foreclosed in such proceeding. Such proceeding shall be tried before the court without a jury. In any such proceeding, it shall be sufficient to allege the passage of the ordinance providing such improvement, the making of such improvement, the levying of the assessment, the confirmation thereof, the date of delinquency of such assessment or installment, and that such assessment was not paid prior to such delinquency or at all. The assessment-roll and confirmatory order, or duly authenticated copies thereof shall be prima facie evidence of the regularity and legality of the proceedings connected therewith, and the burden of proof shall be on the defendants. In any such action where the owners or parties interested in any particular lot, tract or parcel of land or other property included in such suit shall suffer a default, the court may enter judgment of foreclosure and sale as to such parties and property so in default and order execution thereon, and the action may proceed as to the remaining defendants and property. The judgment of the court shall specify separately the amount of the assessment, or installment thereof, with interest, penalty and costs, chargeable to the several lots, tracts and parcels of land and other property in such proceedings. Such judgment shall have the effect of a separate judgment as to each lot, tract or parcel of land or other property, described in such judgment, and any appeal from such judgment shall not invalidate or delay the judgment except as to the property concerning which the appeal is taken. In entering judgment, the court shall decree that such lots, tracts, or parcels of land or other property be sold to enforce such judgment and execution shall issue for the enforcement of such decree. Judgment may be entered as to any one or more separate lots, tracts or parcels of land or other property involved in such proceeding, and the court may retain jurisdiction of the case as to the balance. All proceedings supplemental to judgment, including appeal, order of sale, sale, period of redemption and the issuance of deed shall be had and conducted in accordance with the law, now or hereafter in force, relating to property sold under or upon foreclosure of real estate mortgages. [L. '11, p. 463, § 34.]

§ 7892-35. Enforcement of Subsequent Liens Authorized.

When the assessment upon property is payable in installments, the enforcement of the lien of any installment by any method herein authorized shall not prevent the enforcement of the lien of any subsequent installment by any method herein authorized when the same may become delinquent.

Any such city or town may provide by general ordinance that, upon failure to pay any installment when due, the entire assessment shall become due and payable and the collection thereof enforced in the manner prescribed. [L. '11, p. 465, § 35.]

§ 7892-36. Certificate of Delinquency.

Any city or town may, by general ordinance, provide for the issuance of certificates of delinquency for any and all delinquent assessments, or installments thereof, heretofore or hereafter levied, and any penalty and interest thereon to date of issuance. Such certificates of delinquency shall constitute a lien against the property upon which such assessments were levied, and shall bear interest from the date of issuance thereof at the rate of fifteen per cent (15%) per annum, and may be foreclosed after two years from the date of their issuance in the same manner and with the same effect as mortgages upon real estate are foreclosed. Such certificates may be issued to the city, or may be sold to any person applying therefor. They may be assigned in writing, and the city may sell and assign any and all certificates which may be issued to it upon the payment of the value thereof in principal and accrued interest, in cash. Such certificate shall be prima facie evidence that the land against which the same was issued was subject to the assessment at the time the same was assessed, that the property was assessed as required by law, and that the assessment, or installment thereof, was not paid prior to the issuance of such certificate.

No such certificate of delinquency shall be issued upon any property for any assessment or installment thereof during the pendency of any proceedings in court affecting such assessment or installment thereof. [L. '11, p. 465, § 36.]

§ 7892-37. Omitted Property.

Whenever by mistake, inadvertence or for any cause property otherwise subject to assessment, within any assessment district, heretofore or hereafter created, shall have been omitted from the assessment-roll for such improvement, the council or other legislative body of such city or town may, upon its own motion or upon the application of the owner of any property within such district charged with the lien of an assessment for such improvement, proceed to assess such omitted property for such improvement, in accordance with the special benefits accruing to such omitted property by reason of such improvement and in proportion to the assessments levied upon other property in such district.

In any such case, the council or other legislative body shall first pass a resolution setting forth that certain property therein described was omitted from such assessment, and notifying all persons who may desire to object thereto to appear at a meeting of the council or other legislative body of such city or town at a time specified in such resolution and present their objections thereto, and directing the proper board, officer or authority to report to such council at or prior to the date fixed for such hearing the amount which should be borne by each such lot, tract or parcel of land or other property so omitted, which resolution shall be published in all respects as other resolutions provided for in section 7892-10. At the conclusion of such hearing or any adjournment thereof, the council shall consider the matter as though the property had been included upon the original roll, and may confirm the same or any portion thereof by ordinance. Thereupon such roll of omitted property shall be certified to the treasurer for collection as other assessments. [L. '11, p. 466, § 37.]

§ 7892-38. Fees for Issuance of Certificate and Deeds.

The city or town treasurer shall charge for the issuance of each certificate of sale and each certificate of delinquency the sum of fifty cents; for each deed the sum of one dollar. [L. '11, p. 466, § 38.]

§ 7892-39. Lien of Purchaser.

The purchaser at any sale authorized in this act acquires a lien on the property so bid in by him for the amount paid by him at such sale as well as for all taxes and delinquent assessments, or delinquent installments thereof, and certificates of delinquency, and all interest, penalties, costs and charges thereon whether levied previously or subsequently to such sale, and whether for state, county, city or town purposes, subsequently paid by him on such property, and shall be entitled to interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum on the original amount paid by him from the date of said sale and upon such subsequent payments from the date of the payment of the respective amounts. [L. '11, p. 467, § 39.]

§ 7892-40. Local Assessments Included in Certificate of Delinquency.

The holder of any certificate of delinquency for general taxes shall, before commencing any action to foreclose the lien of such certificate pay in full all local assessments or installments thereof outstanding against the whole or any portion of the property included in such certificate of delinquency, or, he may elect to proceed to acquire title to such property subject to certain or all local assessments a lien thereon, in which case the complaint, decree of foreclosure, order of sale, sale, certificate of sale and deed shall so state. If such holder shall pay such local assessments, he shall be entitled to fifteen per cent interest per annum on the amount of the delinquent assessments or delinquent installments thereof so paid, from date of payment.

In any action to foreclose any lien for general taxes upon any property a copy of the complaint shall be served on the treasurer of the city or town within which such property is situate within five days after such complaint is filed. In any case where any property shall be struck off to or bid in by the county at any sale for general taxes, and such property shall subsequently be sold by the county, the proceeds of such sale shall first be applied to discharge in full the lien or liens for general taxes for which the same was sold, and the remainder, or such portion thereof as may be necessary, shall be paid to the city to discharge all local assessment liens upon such property, and the surplus, if any, shall be distributed among the proper county funds. [L. '11, p. 467, § 40.]

§ 7892-41. Limitation of Actions.

An action to collect any special assessment or installment thereof, for local improvements of any kind, or to enforce the lien of any such assessment or installment, whether such action be brought by a municipal corporation or by the holder of any certificate of delinquency, or by any other person having the right to bring such action, shall be commenced within ten years after such assessment shall have become delinquent, or within ten years after the last installment of any such assessment shall have become delinquent when said special assessment is payable in installments. [L. '11, p. 468, § 41.]

§ 7892-42. Reassessments Authorized.

In all cases of special assessments for local improvements, wherein said assessments have failed to be valid in whole or in part for want of form or insufficiency, informality, or irregularity or nonconformance with the provisions of law, charter or ordinance governing such assessments in any city or town, the council of any such city or town shall have power to reassess such assessments and to enforce their collection in accordance with the provisions of law and ordinance existing at the time the reassessment is made. Whenever, on account of any mistake, inadvertence or other cause, the amount assessed shall not be sufficient to pay the cost and expense of the improvement made and enjoyed by the owners of property in the assessment district where the same is made, the council of such city or town is authorized and directed to make reassessments on all the property in said assessment district to pay for such improvement; such assessment to be made in accordance with the provisions of law and ordinance existing at the time of its levy. Any city or town is hereby authorized to assess or reassess all property which the council shall find to be specially benefited to pay the whole or any portion of the cost and expense of any local improvements which such city or town has heretofore made, is now making, or may hereafter make at the expense in whole or in part of property specially benefited thereby, whether or not such property so to be assessed or reassessed abuts upon, is adjacent to, or proximate to such improvement, or was included in the original assessment district; and the right to so assess all property so found to be specially benefited shall also apply to any supplemental assessment or reassessment which such city or town may find it necessary to make for the purpose of providing for any deficiency in any local improvement district fund caused by the invalidity of any portion of the original assessment in such improvement district, or where for any cause the amount originally assessed shall not be sufficient to pay the cost of the improvement.

Whenever any assessment for any local improvement in any city or town, whether the same be an original assessment, assessment upon omitted property, supplemental assessment or reassessment, heretofore or hereafter made, has been or may hereafter be declared void and its enforcement [refused] by any court, or for any cause whatever has been heretofore or hereafter may be set aside, annulled or declared void by any court, either directly or by virtue of any decision of such court, the council of such city or town shall make a new assessment or reassessment upon the property which has been or will be benefited by such local improvement, based upon the actual cost of such improvement at the time of its completion. [L. '11, p. 468, § 42.]

§ 7892-43. Reassessment Ordinance.

The city council of any city or town shall proceed with any assessment authorized in the preceding section by passing an ordinance ordering the same, and directing the preparation of an assessment-roll therefor, which roll may include any property specially benefited by such improvement, whether or not the same was included in the original assessment district. Such additional property when so assessed shall become a part of the local improvement district theretofore created, or attempted to be created, to provide a fund to pay for said improvement, and all payments of assessments so ordered shall be paid into and become a part of the local improvement fund provided to pay for said improvement.

The fact that the contract has been let or that such improvement shall have been made and computed in whole or in part shall not prevent such assessment from being made, nor shall the omission, failure or neglect of any officer or officers to comply with the provisions of law, the charter or ordinances governing such city or town, as to petition, notice, resolution to improve, estimate, survey, diagram, manner of letting contract or execution of work, or any other matter whatsoever connected with the improvement and the first assessment thereof, operate to invalidate or in any way affect the making of any assessment authorized in the preceding section: Provided, That such assessment shall be for an amount which shall not exceed the actual cost and expense of the improvement, together with the accrued interest thereon, it being the true intent and meaning of this act to make the cost and expense of local improvements payable by the property specially benefited thereby, notwithstanding the proceedings of the council, board of public works or other board, officer or authority of such city or town may be found irregular or defective, whether jurisdictional or otherwise; when such assessment is completed, all sums paid on the former attempted assessment shall be credited to the property on account of which the same were paid.

In any case where any property within the original local improvement district shall not be affected by any assessment authorized in the preceding section, such property need not be entered upon such assessment-roll.

After the certification of any such roll to the treasurer of any such city or town for collection, the same length of time for payment of the assessments appearing thereon, without the imposition of any penalties or interest, and the notice that such assessments are in the hands of the treasurer thereof for collection, shall be given as in the case of an original assessment, and after delinquency such penalty and interest shall be charged as in cases of original assessment: Provided, That in all cases where the original assessment for the improvement was payable in installments, the new assessment, after delinquency, may be divided into such equal installments and made payable at such times as the council in the ordinance ordering such new assessment, may prescribe. [L. '11, p. 469, § 43.]

§ 7892-44. Procedure in Case of Reassessment.

All the provisions of this act relating to the filing of assessment-rolls, time and place of hearing thereon, notice of such hearing, the hearing upon such roll, and the confirmation thereof, the time when such assessment shall become a lien upon the property assessed, the proceedings on appeal from any such assessment, the method of collecting such assessments and all proceedings for enforcing the lien thereof shall be had and conducted the same in the case of assessments authorized in section 7892-42 as in the case of an original assessment. [L. '11, p. 471, § 44.]

§ 7892-45. Time for Reassessments.

No city or town shall have jurisdiction to proceed with any reassessment or supplemental assessment unless the ordinance ordering the same shall be passed by the council or other legislative body of such city or town within ten years from and after the time the original assessment for any such improvement was finally held to be invalid, insufficient or for any cause set aside, in whole or in part, held void or its enforcement denied directly or indirectly by the courts; or, in the case of supplemental assessments, from and after the time that it was finally determined that the total amount of the valid assessments levied and assessed on account of any such improvement was insufficient to pay the whole or that portion of the cost and expense thereof to be paid by special assessment. [L. '11, p. 471, § 45.]

§ 7892-46. May Issue Bonds.

The city council or other legislative body or any city or town may, in their discretion, provide by ordinance for the payment of the whole or any portion of the cost and expense of any local improvement authorized by law, by bonds of the improvement district, which bonds shall be issued to the contractor, or be issued and sold as herein provided. [L. '11, p. 471, § 46.]

§ 7892-47. Method of Issuance of Bonds.

Such bonds shall be issued only in pursuance of ordinances of the city or town issuing the same, and by their terms shall be made payable on or before a date not to exceed ten years from and after the date of the issue of such bonds, which latter date may be fixed by resolution, by council or other legislative body of said city or town and shall bear such interest as may be provided in such ordinance, not exceeding eight per centum per annum, which interest shall be payable annually, or semi-annually, as may be provided by ordinance, and each bond shall have attached thereto interest coupons for each interest payment. Such bonds shall be in such denominations as shall be provided in the ordinance ordering their issue and shall be numbered from one upward, consecutively, and each bond and coupon shall be signed by the mayor and attested by the clerk or comptroller of such city: Provided, however, That said coupons may in lieu of being so signed have printed thereon a facsimile of the signatures of said officers and each bond shall have the seal of such city affixed thereto and shall refer to the improvement to pay for which the same shall be issued and to the ordinance ordering the same, each bond shall provide that the principal sum therein named, and the interest thereon, shall be payable out of the local improvement fund created for the payment of the cost and expense of such improvement, and not otherwise. Such bonds shall not be issued in any amount in excess of the cost and expense of the improvement. [L. '11, p. 472, § 47.]

§ 7892-48. Sale of Bonds.

The bonds issued under the provisions of this act or such portion of such bonds as may remain unsold if same is ordered as hereinafter provided may be issued to the contractor constructing the improvement in payment thereof, or the ordinance directing the issue of such bonds may provide that the same may be sold by some authorized officer or officers of the city, in the manner prescribed therein, at not less than their par value and accrued interest, and that the proceeds thereof shall be applied in payment of the cost and expense of the improvement. [L. '11, p. 472, § 48.]

§ 7892-49. Assessments Payable in Installments.

In all cases where any city or town shall issue bonds as provided in this act to pay the cost and expense of any local improvement, the said cost and expense shall be assessed against the lots, tracts, and parcels of land and other property, which under the provisions of law and the charter and ordinances of such city or town shall be liable therefor, but the ordinance levying such assessment shall provide that the sum charged thereby against each such lots, tracts, and parcels of land and other property or any portion of such sum may be paid during the thirty (30) days period provided for in section 7892-50, and that thereafter the sum remaining unpaid may be paid in equal annual installments; the number of which installments shall be equal to the number of years which the bonds issued to pay for the improvement may run, with interest upon the whole unpaid sum so charged at a rate fixed by said ordinance, and each year thereafter one of such installments together with the interest due thereon and on all installments thereafter to become due shall be collected in the same manner as shall be provided by law and the charter and ordinances of such city for the collection of assessments for such improvements in cases where no bonds are issued. [L. '11, p. 473, § 49.]

§ 7892-50. Notice of Collection of Assessment.

The owner of any lot, tract or parcel of land or other property charged with any such assessments may redeem the same from all or any portion of the liability for the contract price of such improvement by paying the entire assessment or any portion thereof charged against such lot or parcel of land, without interest, within thirty days after notice to him of such assessment, which notice shall be given as follows: The city or town treasurer shall, as soon as the assessment-roll has been placed in his hands for collection, publish a notice in the official newspaper of the city for ten consecutive daily or two consecutive weekly issues, that the said roll is in his hands for collection and that any assessment thereon or any portion of any such assessment may be paid at any time within thirty days from the date of the first publication of said notice without penalty, interest or costs. The bonds herein provided for shall not be issued prior to twenty days after the expiration of the thirty days above mentioned, but may be issued at any time thereafter. The owner of any such lot or parcel of land may redeem the same from all liability for the unpaid amount of said assessment at any time after said thirty days by paying the entire installments of said assessment remaining unpaid and charged against such lot or parcel at the time of such payment, with interest thereon to the date of the maturity of the installment next falling due. In all cases where any sum is paid as herein provided the same shall be paid to the city treasurer, or to the officer whose duty it is to collect said assessments, and all sums so paid shall be applied solely to the payment of the cost and expense of such improvements or the redemption of the bonds issued therefor. [L. '11, p. 473, § 50.]

§ 7892-51. Remedy of Bondholder.

If the city or town shall fail, neglect or refuse to pay said bonds or to promptly collect any of such assessments when due, the owner of any such bonds may proceed in his own name to collect such assessment and foreclose the lien thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, and shall recover in addition to the amount of such bonds and interest thereon, five per centum, together with the cost of such suit. Any number of holders of such bonds for any single improvement may join as plaintiffs and any number of owners of the property on which the same are a lien may be joined as defendants in such suit. [L. '11, p. 474, § 51.]

§ 7892-52. Confined to Enforcement of Assessment.

Neither the holder nor owner of any bond issued under the authority of this act shall have any claim therefor against the city by which the same is issued, except from the special assessment made for the improvement for which such bond was issued, but his remedy in case of nonpayment, shall be confined to the enforcement of such assessments. A copy of this section shall be plainly written, printed or engraved on each bond so issued. [L. '11, p. 474, § 52.]

§ 7892-53. Exchange of Bonds, When Authorized.

Whenever any city has heretofore issued bonds for the purpose of paying the cost and expense of local improvements, or has sold such bonds and paid such cost and expense from the proceeds thereof, such city may, with the consent of the holders of such bonds, exchange for them bonds authorized by this act. [L. '11, p. 475, § 53.]

§ 7892-54. Interest on Bonds, Call of Bonds.

The city or town treasurer shall pay the interest on the bonds authorized to be issued by this act out of the respective local improvement funds from which they are payable. Whenever there shall be sufficient money in any local improvement fund against which bonds have been issued under the provisions of this act, over and above sufficient for the payment of interest on all unpaid bonds, to pay the principal of one or more bonds, the treasurer shall call in and pay such bonds: Provided, That such bonds shall be called in and paid in their numerical order: Provided, further, That such call shall be made by publication in the city or town official newspaper in its first publication following the delinquency of the installment of the assessment or as soon thereafter as is practicable, and shall state that bonds No. — (giving the serial number or numbers of the bonds called) will be paid on the day the next interest coupons on said bonds shall become due, and interest on said bonds shall cease upon such date. [L. '11, p. 475, § 54.]

§ 7892-55. Items of Cost.

Whenever any local improvement herein authorized shall be ordered, there shall be included in the cost and expense thereof to be assessed against the property specially benefited by such improvement and included in the district created to pay the same, or any part thereof, the cost of that portion of said improvement included within the limits of any street intersection space or spaces, the estimated cost and expense of all engineering and surveying necessary for said improvement to be done by and under the direction of the city or town engineer, ascertaining the ownership of the lots or parcels of land included in the assessment district, advertising, mailing and publishing all notices required to be advertised, published or mailed, accounting and clerical labor, books and blanks expended or used by the city or town comptroller and the city or town treasurer in connection with said improvement. [L. '11, p. 475, § 55.]

§ 7892-56. Assess Tide Land Leases as Realty.

For the purposes of local assessment, all leases of tide lands owned in fee by the state of Washington shall be, and the same are hereby declared to be, real property. [L. '11, p. 476, § 56.]

§ 7892-57. Parkways, Park Drives and Boulevards.

Any city or town council upon request of the board of park commissioners, shall have authority to designate such streets as they may see fit as parkways, park drives, and boulevards, and to transfer all care, maintenance and improvement of the surface thereof to the board of park commissioners, or to such authority of such city or town as may have the care and management of the parks, parkways, boulevards and park drives of the city.

Any city or town may acquire, either by gift, purchase or the right of eminent domain, the right to limit the class, character and extent of traffic that may be carried on such parkways, park drives and boulevards, and to prescribe that the improvement of the surface thereof shall be made wholly in accordance with plans of such board of park commissioners, but that the setting over of all such streets for such purposes shall not in any wise limit the right and authority of the city council to construct underneath the surface thereof any and all public utilities nor to deprive the council of the right to levy assessments for special benefits. In the construction of any such utilities, any damages done to the surface of such parkways, park drives or boulevards shall not be borne by any park funds of such city or town. [L. '11, p. 476, § 57.]

§ 7892-58. Assessment for Park Drives and Boulevards.

Whenever the management and control of the park drives, parkways and boulevards of any city or town shall be vested in a board of park commissioners or other similar authority of such city or town, the council of any such city or town may, upon request of such board or other similar authority therefor specifying the particular park drives, parkways or boulevards, or portions thereof, to be improved, and the nature of such improvement, pass an ordinance providing for the improvement thereof, which ordinance shall be based either upon a resolution or a petition as hereinabove provided. Any such city or town shall have the same power to provide for making such local improvements and to levy and collect special assessments on property benefited thereby, and for paying the same or any portion thereof as in the case of other local improvements: Provided, That the plans and specifications for such improvements shall, before their adoption, be submitted to and approved by such board of park commissioners, or other similar authority of such city or town. [L. '11, p. 477, § 58.]

§ 7892-59. Work to be Done by City or Contract.

All local improvements, the funds for the making of which are derived in whole or in part from assessments upon property specially benefited shall be made either by the city or town itself, or by contract upon competitive bids. The board, officer or authority charged with the duty of letting contracts for local improvements shall determine whether such local improvement shall be done by contract, or by the city itself. The city or town shall have power to reject any and all bids. [L. '11, p. 477, § 59.]

§ 7892-60. General Ordinance.

The council of each city and town shall pass such general ordinance or ordinances as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act. Thereafter all proceedings relating to local improvements shall be had and conducted in accordance with this act, and the ordinances of such city or town relating to local improvements. [L. '11, p. 477, § 60.]

§ 7892-61. Validation of Local Improvement Assessments.

Whenever the city or town council of any city or town within this state has made, or shall hereafter make any assessment against property within any local improvement district for any purpose authorized in this act and has in making such assessment acted in good faith and without fraud or shall hereafter act in good faith and without fraud the said assessment shall be valid and enforceable as such and a lien upon the property upon which the same purports to be a lien; and it shall be no objection to the validity thereof that the contract for such improvement was not awarded in the manner or at the time required by law, nor shall it be any objection to the validity of such assessment that the same was made by an unauthorized officer or person, if the same shall have been confirmed by the city or town authorities, of such city or town, nor, shall it be any objection to the legality of such assessment that the same is based upon a front-foot basis, or upon a basis of benefits to the property within such district unless it shall be made to appear that the city or town authorities did not act in good faith and did not attempt to act fairly in regard thereto, or unless it shall be made to appear that the city or town authorities acted fraudulently or oppressively in making such assessment; and all assessments heretofore or hereafter made which are made by the city or town authorities in good faith are hereby declared to be valid and in full force and effect, and to be collectible in the manner which is now or may hereafter be provided by law for the collection of assessments for the purposes specified in this section. [L. '11, p. 478, § 61.]

§ 7892-62. Assessments Paid by Joint Owner.

Whenever any local assessment, or installment thereof, shall be paid, or any certificate of sale therefor be redeemed, or any judgment therefor be paid by any joint owner of any property assessed for any local improvement, such joint owner may, after demand and refusal, by an action brought in the superior court, recover from each of his co-owners the respective amounts of such payment which each such co-owner should bear, with interest thereon at ten per cent per annum from the date of such payments, and costs of the action, and the joint owner making such payment shall have a lien upon the undivided interests of his co-owners in and to such property from date of such payment. [L. '11, p. 478, § 62.]

§ 7892-63. City or Town may Purchase at Tax Sales.

Whenever any property situate in any city or town shall be offered for sale for general taxes, the city or town within which such property is situate shall have power to protect the lien or liens of any local assessments outstanding against the whole or any portion of such property by purchase or otherwise. [L. '11, p. 479, § 63.]

§ 7892-64. Proceedings in Case of Consolidated Cities.

The city council of any city which is composed of two or more cities or towns which have been or may hereafter be consolidated, as provided by law, shall have power to make and pass all necessary ordinances, orders and resolutions for any assessment where the improvement has been made or was being made by any such former city or town prior to the consolidation thereof, and to fully carry out and enforce the provisions of this act. [L. '11, p. 479, § 64.]

§ 7892-65. Assessments Paid in Error.

Whenever, through error or inadvertence, any person shall pay any local assessment, or installment thereof, upon the lands of another, such payor, may, after demand and refusal, by an action in the superior court, recover from the owner of such lands the amount so paid, and costs of the action. [L. '11, p. 479, § 65.]

§ 7892-66. Vote Required on Ordinances.

No ordinances mentioned in this act shall be considered passed unless they shall have received the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the members of the council or other legislative body of such city or town: Provided, That in cities of the first class the vote required for the passage of any such ordinances shall be subject to such further limitations as may be prescribed in the charter of any such city: Provided, That in any city or town, other than cities of the first class, no ordinance providing for any improvement herein authorized shall be effective over the written objection or objections of the owners of a majority of the lineal frontage and of the area within the limits of the proposed improvement district filed with the clerk of any such city or town prior to the final passage of such ordinance unless such ordinance shall receive the affirmative vote of at least two-thirds of all the members of the council or other legislative body of such city or town. [L. '11, p. 479, § 66.]

§ 7892-67. Act to Apply to All Cities and Towns.

The provisions of this act shall apply to all incorporated cities and towns in this state, including unclassified cities and towns operating under special charters. [L. '11, p. 480, § 67.]

§ 7892-68. Word "Council" Construed.

Whenever the words city council or town council are used in this act, they shall be construed to mean the council or other legislative body of such city or town. Whenever the word mayor is used in this act, it shall be construed to mean the presiding officer of said city or town. [L. '11, p. 480, § 68.]

§ 7892-69. Act to be Liberally Construed.

The rule that statutes in derogation of the common law are to be strictly construed shall have no application to this act, but the same shall be liberally construed for the purpose of carrying out the objects for which this act is intended. [L. '11, p. 480, § 69.]

§ 7892-70. Saving Clause.

Any acts or parts of acts herein repealed, which are re-enacted in form or in substance in this act shall not be construed as new enactments but as continuations and amendments of such acts or parts of acts.

All rights of action under existing laws which this act in any way supersedes or repeals, if the same at the time of taking effect of this act shall not have been commenced, shall proceed under the provisions of this act. All actions and proceedings, which may be pending in court under existing laws which this act in any way supersedes or repeals, shall proceed without being in any manner affected by the passage of this act. All proceedings commenced by any city or town before the taking effect of this act, relating to the making of any local improvement, shall proceed without being in any manner affected by the passage of this act, except as provided in section 7892-24. [L. '11, p. 480, § 70.]

§ 7892-71. Charters Suspended.

This act shall supersede the provisions of the charter of any city of the first class inconsistent herewith. [L. '11, p. 481, § 71.]

For acts repealed, see L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

§ 7892-72. Local Improvement Warrants Authorized.

Every city and town shall have the power by general ordinance to provide for the issuance of warrants in payment of the cost and expense of any local improvement, such warrants to be payable out of the special fund in such local improvement district, said warrants to bear interest from date thereof at a rate at not exceeding eight per cent (8%) per annum, and to be redeemed either in cash or in local improvement bonds authorized to be issued in the manner prescribed by general ordinance. [L. '11, p. 482, § 72.]

CHAPTER XXIV.

REASSESSMENTS.

§§ 7893—7964.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

§ 7893.

A judgment holding an assessment for a local improvement valid as to certain tracts and invalid as to other tracts does not prevent a reassessment of the whole district: Johnson v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 564, 102 Pac. 448.

Judgments in actions declaring the validity or invalidity of local improvement assessments are not res judicata in another action upon a reassessment: Johnson v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 564, 102 Pac. 448.

An action by a holder of a warrant against a special improvement fund to compel a reassessment cannot be maintained when the land owner could plead the statute of limitations against the reassessment: Shaw & Hodgins v. Waldron, 55 Wash. 271, 28 L. R. A., N. S., 735, 104 Pac. 272.

As to statute of limitations as against a municipal corporation, see note in 101 Am. St. Rep. 157.

As to vested right of municipal corporations in defense of statute of limitations, see note in 27 L. R. A., N. S., 1188.

Where the record does not show the exact date when an assessment became delinquent, it will be presumed that an action to compel a reassessment was commenced within the period limited by the statute of limitations, when the defense of the statute was not interposed and a reassessment was ordered: Shaw & Hodgins v. Waldron, 55 Wash. 271, 28 L. R. A., N. S., 735, 104 Pac. 272.

As to the effect of running of limitations since original assessment upon a reassessment order because of invalidity of original, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 735.

An action begun by a holder of a warrant against a special fund to compel a reassessment, he having no other remedy, in which the city defends for the benefit of the land owners, arrests the running of the statute of limitations against the right to levy a reassessment, and is equivalent in law to a valid assessment, and is binding on the land owners: Shaw & Hodgins v. Waldron, 55 Wash. 271, 28 L. R. A., N. S., 735, 104 Pac. 272.

The fact that property has been assessed for an improvement does not prevent a reassessment for an additional charge to make up a deficit arising when part of the assessments were held invalid, such reassessment being expressly authorized by this section, the extent of the benefit which the property derived from the improvements: Hapgood v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 497, 125 Pac. 965.

Property which is exempt from assessment was included in the original assessment, thereby creating a deficiency, does not affect the power to levy a reassessment on other property to make up the deficiency: Inner-Circle Property Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 508, 125 Pac. 970.

A reassessment to make up a deficiency is authorized where the city council canceled the original assessment against property which had been adjudged to be damaged and therefore not assessable: Inner-Circle Property Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 508, 125 Pac. 970.

Upon a reassessment the question of the benefits and the apportionment thereof is an original question in no way controlled by the original assessment: Inner-Circle Property Co. v. Seattle, 9 Wash. 508, 125 Pac. 970.

Where assessments were adjudged illegal for the reason that the property was found by the jury to be damaged and was therefore nonassessable, such property cannot be subjected to a reassessment, although it may in fact have been benefited, the former adjudication being final: Hapgood v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 497, 125 Pac. 965.

An award of damages to a leasehold interest in state lands, being an adjudication that the property was not benefited, exempts the same from a reassessment levied to make up a deficiency in the original assessment: Inner-Circle Property Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 508, 125 Pac. 970.

Under this section a reassessment is prima facie authorized where a portion of the lots, found by the jury to be damaged, were adjudged nonassessable for that reason, and the city council by resolution canceled the same and other like assessments for the same reason: Hapgood v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 497, 125 Pac. 965.

§ 7895.

Upon a reassessment for local improvements, the city may include additional costs and accrued interest: Johnson v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 564, 102 Pac. 448.

Upon a reassessment, interest on the amount of the condemnation awards is properly added: In re Third, Fourth, and Fifth Avenues, Seattle, 55 Wash. 519, 104 Pac. 799.

§ 7898.

Where a city council has made a reassessment and the same has been confirmed, upon appeal to the superior court the burden is upon the appellants to show want of authority on the part of the council to make the reassessment, in view of this section, the presumption being that the council had authority to make the reassessment by reason of a deficiency in, or the invalidity of, the original assessment: Inner-Circle Property Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 508, 125 Pac. 970.

This act, entitled an act to validate municipal assessments and to prohibit setting the same aside except for fraud, was not intended to repeal section 7552, authorizing an appeal from the confirmation of an assessment by the city council to the superior court, and does not affect such appeals or the procedure therein: Real Estate Ins. Co. v. Spokane, 59 Wash. 416, 109 Pac. 1057.

CHAPTER XXV.

FORECLOSURE OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENTS.

This chapter is repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

A city assessment foreclosure and sale, without notice to the owner, is void when conducted by the city attorney, who made no diligent effort to ascertain the name or address of the owner, and who has, through the instrumentality of a third person, bid in the property at a grossly inadequate price: Roger v. Whitham, 56 Wash. 190, 134 Am. St. Rep. 1105, 21 Ann. Cas. 272, 105 Pac. 628.

As to nature of proceedings to collect improvement taxes, see note in 133 Am. St. Rep. 930.

§ 7922.

A city attorney is charged as a trustee, as well for the owner of property sought to be charged with the lien of a special assessment as for the city, and is bound to perform his full duty to each: Roger v. Whitham, 56 Wash. 190, 134 Am. St. Rep. 1105, 21 Ann. Cas. 272, 105 Pac. 628.

CHAPTER XXVI.

DRAINAGE AND SEWERS IN CITIES OTHER THAN FIRST CLASS.

§ 7939.

This chapter is repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

A municipal assessment for sewer purposes is to be based upon benefits received, under Laws of 1907, chapter 70, and not upon the last general assessment for city purposes, under Laws of 1903, chapter 27, which is superseded: Stewart v. Chehalis, 53 Wash. 213, 101 Pac. 841.

A finding that a sewer was constructed almost solely for the benefit of a hospital "and was not intended or expected to benefit, nor did it prove of any benefit to the said premises of the plaintiff up to the time of the trial," is insufficient to defeat the assessment on the ground that it was not made according to benefits to the property: Stewart v. Chehalis, 53 Wash. 213, 101 Pac. 841.

CHAPTER XXVII.

CONSTRUCTION OF DIKES.

§ 7955.

This chapter is repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

An assessment levied by a city for the construction of a dike, under sections 7955-7964, upon property outside of the city is void, the city having no extraterritorial jurisdiction, in the absence of express statutory authority: Edmonds Land Co. v. Edmonds, 66 Wash. 201, 119 Pac. 192.

As to right of municipal corporation to exercise power of eminent domain without legislative authority, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912C, 199, also in 16 Ann. Cas. 886.

A city cannot acquire jurisdiction to levy an assessment on lands outside its limits by estoppel through the fact that the owner of the lands petitioned for the improvement, as the petition would not justify any proceeding in excess of the city's jurisdiction, especially where objection was duly made to the unwarranted action at the first opportunity: Edmonds Land Co. v. Edmonds, 66 Wash. 201, 119 Pac. 192.

As to location of improvement as affecting liability for expense thereof, etc., see note in 39 L. R. A., N. S., 290.

As to estoppel of land owner, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 1204, and 36 L. R. A., N. S., 39.

CHAPTER XXIX.

FILLING LOW LANDS, SECOND AND THIRD CLASS CITIES.

§ 7971.

The act of 1909 empowering a city to fill low lands and assess the cost upon the lands filled in in proportion to the surface area is not a deprivation of property without due process, since it provides for notice and a hearing and authorizes the board to make alterations and modifications in the assessment as justice and equity may require: Bowes v. Aberdeen, 58 Wash. 535, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 709, 109 Pac. 369.

This section, for the filling of tide and swamp lands by cities, authorizes the assessment of property benefited thereby situated within the assessment district, although it was not part of the land filled in: Martin v. Olympia, 69 Wash. 28, 124 Pac. 214.

As to the location of improvement as affecting liability for expense thereof on division of territory of municipality, town or county, see note in 39 L. R. A., N. S., 290.

A necessity exists, authorizing the exercise of the police power by a city for the purpose of filling low lands, and the improvement is not disproportionate to the danger, where it appears that an area covering one thousand city lots, within or adjacent to the business portion of a city where permanent streets are necessary, are so low and covered with stagnant water as to be unsanitary and a serious menace to the health of the city, and that the danger can be removed by filling in the land, and by no other practical or economical method: Bowers v. Aberdeen, 58 Wash. 535, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 709, 109 Pac. 369.

In all matters pertaining to the public health and safety substantially the entire police power of the state is vested in municipal corporations of the first class: Shepard v. Seattle, 59 Wash. 363, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 647, 109 Pac. 1067.

The title of the act of 1909, empowering cities "to fill low lands . . . and for that purpose to exercise the right of eminent domain for the taking or damaging of property" is sufficiently broad to authorize the filling of low land under the police power as a sanitary measure without making compensation for damages claimed to the property filled in, since the reference to the right of eminent domain applies to property taken or destroyed and not to land filled in, and the power "to fill" includes the right to exercise the police power: Bowes v. Aberdeen, 58 Wash. 535, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 709, 109 Pac. 369.

An ordinance for a local improvement by filling tide lands is not invalid by reason of a recital that one of its purposes was for the "general improvement of the property," where it also appears that it was necessary to the public health, sanitation and general welfare, within this section: Martin v. Olympia, 69 Wash. 28, 124 Pac. 214.

As to the benefit to public health as condition to power to exercise eminent domain for drainage of private lands, see note in 49 L. R. A. 783.

As to power of health authorities to require alterations in private property in a particular manner to abate conditions menacing public health, see note in 24 L. R. A., N. S., 241.

As to the meaning generally of "local improvement" for which special assessment may be levied, see note in 20 Ann. Cas. 339.

Whether the facts warrant the exercise of the police power for the purpose of filling low lands in a city is a judicial question to be resolved by the courts: Bowes v. Aberdeen, 58 Wash. 535, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 709, 109 Pac. 369.

The provision requiring a written permit from the city commissioners of health, in an ordinance prohibiting the maintenance of a private hospital for the treatment of the insane except under certain conditions, is not objectionable as an unreasonable exercise of the police power: Shepard v. Seattle, 59 Wash. 363, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 647, 109 Pac. 1067.

The act of 1909, empowering cities, in the exercise of the police power, to fill low lands, is not invalid or inconsistent in that it provides for compensation to the owners of buildings or improvements under the right of eminent domain, since the right of eminent domain and the police power rest in the control of the legislature and may be employed singly or together, and interested parties cannot object because compensated in any degree: State ex rel. Stalling v. Aberdeen, 58 Wash. 562, 109 Pac. 379.

As to the principles in law of eminent domain, see note in 13 L. R. A. 332.

As to expediency to exercise right of eminent domain a legislative question, see notes in 4 L. R. A. 785 and 7 L. R. A. 151.

As to drainage of land as public use for which property may be taken under right of eminent domain, see note in 20 Ann. Cas. 272.

§ 7973.

In proceedings by a city to fill low lands, the damages and expenses paid by the city in condemnation suits may be added to the costs of the improvement and assessed against the property in the district: State ex rel. Stalling v. Aberdeen, 58 Wash. 562, 109 Pac. 379.

As to the rule of apportionment of assessment for public improvement, see note in 8 L. R. A. 371.

A city may, by virtue of the police power, in a proper case, and when necessary to the public welfare, irrespective of the right of eminent domain, fill in low lands that are unsanitary and a menace to health, without rendering compensation for damages claimed to private property filled in, and under this section may assess the property to pay the cost of the work, providing the exercise of the power is not unjust or arbitrary: Bowes v. Aberdeen, 58 Wash. 535, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 709, 109 Pac. 369.

As to the general nature of the police power of municipalities, see note in 104 Am. St. Rep. 638.

An assessment upon the property to pay for the cost of filling low lands "in proportion to the surface area," as authorized by this section, is not unreasonable or arbitrary, because not made according to benefits or in proportion to the value of the property; nor is the same void as authorizing unequal taxation, in violation of the constitution requiring property to be taxed according to its value, as that clause of the constitution does not apply to special assessments: Bowes v. Aberdeen, 58 Wash. 535, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 709, 109 Pac. 369.

As to validity of special assessment levied by front-foot instead of according to benefits, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913A, 665.

§ 7976.

Under this and the next section the action of the city council is final as to all persons not objecting, in the absence of fraud or arbitrary action; hence a complaint to set aside an assessment by one who made no objections is insufficient where it alleges merely that the property was not benefited, without alleging any irregularity or any facts showing capricious or arbitrary action: Martin v. Olympia, 69 Wash. 28, 124 Pac. 214.

As to test of validity of ordinance as denying equal protection of laws, see note in 123 Am. St. Rep. 36.

As to estoppel of land owner to attack assessments for special benefits on ground that property is not benefited, see note in 36 L. R. A., N. S., 39.

§ 7987-1. Low Lands and Waterways—Assessments for Benefits.

Whenever the city council or commission of any city of the second or third class in this state shall deem it necessary or expedient on account of the public health, sanitation, the general welfare, or other cause, to fill or raise the grade or elevation of any marsh lands, swamp lands, tide lands or lands commonly known as tide flats, or any other lands situated within the limits of such city and to clear and prepare said lands for such filling, such city shall have power so to do; and for the purpose of filling and raising the grade or elevation of such lands, and to secure material therefor and to provide for the proper drainage thereof after such fill has been effected, the city council or commission of such city may, if it deems it advisable so to do, acquire rights of way (and where necessary or desirable, may vacate, use and appropriate streets and alleys for such purposes) and lay out, build, construct and maintain over and across such low lands, canals or artificial waterways of at least sufficient width, depth and length to provide and afford the quantity of earth, dirt and material required to complete such fill and with the earth, dirt and material removed in digging and constructing such canals and waterways, fill and raise the grade or elevation of such marsh lands, swamp lands, tide lands or tide flats; and such canals or waterways shall be constructed of such width and depth (provided that all the earth, dirt and other suitable material removed in constructing the same shall be used to fill the low lands as herein provided) as will make them available, convenient and suitable to provide water frontage for landings, wharves and other conveniences of navigation and commerce for the use and benefit of the city and the public; and when such canals or waterways shall have been constructed as herein provided, such city may construct and maintain the necessary bridges over and across the same; such canals or waterways shall be forever under the control of such city and shall be and become public thoroughfares and waterways for the use and benefit of commerce, shipping, the city and the public generally. The expense of making such improvement and in doing, accomplishing and effecting all the work provided for in this act, including the cost of making compensation for property taken or damaged, and all other cost and expense incidental to such improvement, shall be assessed to the property benefited, except such amount of such expense as the city council or commission, in its discretion, may direct to be paid out of the current or general expense fund. Proceedings for the filling and for changing the grade and elevation of any such low lands may be had in the manner provided in this act. [L. '13, p. 30, § 1.]

§ 7987-2. Funds Applicable—Lands Excluded—Protests—Notice—Vote.

Whenever the city council or commission of any such city shall desire to make any improvement contemplated in the next preceding section, such city council or commission shall provide therefor by ordinance and unless such ordinance shall provide that such improvement shall be paid for wholly or in part by special assessment upon the property benefited, compensation therefor shall be made from any general or special funds of such city applicable thereto. If such ordinance shall provide that such improvement shall be paid for wholly or in part by special assessments upon property benefited, the proceedings for the making of such special assessment shall be as hereafter provided. Such ordinance shall specify the boundaries of the proposed improvement district and shall describe the lands which it is proposed to assess for said improvement, and shall provide for the filling of such low lands and shall outline the general scheme or plan of such fill. Where any parcel of land within the boundaries of such proposed improvement district shall, prior to the initiation of the improvement, be wholly filled to the proposed grade or elevation of the proposed fill, such parcel of land may be excluded from the lands to be assessed when in the opinion of the city council or commission justice and equity require its exclusion. The boundaries of any improvement district may be altered so as to exclude land therefrom at any time up to the levying of the assessment as in this act provided, but such changing of the boundaries shall be by ordinance. Upon the introduction of an ordinance providing for such fill, if the city council or commission shall desire to proceed with the filling of such low lands as in this act contemplated, said city council or commission shall fix a time, not less than ten days, in which protests against said fill may be filed in the office of the city clerk. Thereupon it shall be the duty of the clerk of said city to publish in the official newspaper of said city in at least two consecutive issues thereof before the time fixed for the filing of such protests, a notice of the time fixed for the filing of protests, together with a copy of the proposed ordinance as introduced. If protests against the proposed fill by the owners of more than half of the area of land situated within the proposed filing district exclusive of streets, alleys and public places, be filed on or before the date fixed for such filing, the council shall not proceed further with such work unless two-thirds of the members of the said council shall vote to proceed with such work, and if any such city is operating under the commission form of government composed of three commissioners, said commission shall not proceed further with such work except by a unanimous affirmative vote of all the members thereof; if such commission be composed of five members, then at least four affirmative votes thereof shall be necessary before proceeding with such work. If no such protest shall be filed or if such protest be filed and two-thirds of the councilmen shall vote to proceed with such work or in cases where such cities are operating under the commission form of government, such commissioners shall vote unanimously or four out of five commissioners as above mentioned shall vote to proceed with such work, the said city council or commission shall at such meeting or in a succeeding meeting proceed to pass the proposed ordinance for the work, with such amendments and modifications as to the said city council or commission of said city may seem proper. By the provisions of such ordinance the local improvement district shall be called "Filling District No. ——" which shall include all property subject to assessment, and which it may be proposed to assess, and which may be properly included under the provisions of this act. [L. '13, p. 32, § 2.]

§ 7987-3. Eminent Domain—Fill not Damage—Benefits not Considered.

Whenever an ordinance shall be passed as in the preceding section of this act provided, and it shall appear that in making of such improvements so authorized, private property shall be taken or damaged thereby, the city shall file a petition in the superior court of the county in which such city is situated, in the name of the city, praying that just compensation to be made for the property to be taken or damaged for the improvement specified in such ordinance, be ascertained by a jury or by the court, in case a jury be waived, and all of the provisions of sections 7768 to 7822 of Remington and Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington, and acts amendatory thereof shall be applicable to the proceeding had in the superior court under the provisions of this act for the ascertainment of the compensation to be made for the taking and damaging of property, except in so far as the same may be inconsistent with this act. The filling of unimproved and uncultivated low lands of the character mentioned in section 7987-1 shall not be considered as a damaging or taking of such lands. The damage, if any, done to cultivated lands or growing crops thereon, or to buildings and other improvements situated within the district proposed to be filled, shall be ascertained and determined in the manner above provided; but no damage shall be awarded to any property owner for buildings or improvements placed upon lands included within said district after the publication of the ordinance referred to in section 7987-2, defining the boundaries of the proposed improvement district: Provided, That the city shall after the passage of such ordinance, proceed with said improvement with due diligence. Where the improvement is to be made at the expense of the property benefited, no account shall be taken of benefits by the jury or court in assessing the amount of compensation to be made to the owner of any property within such district, but such compensation shall be assessed without regard to benefits to the end that said property for which damages may be so awarded, may be assessed the same as other property within the district for its just share, and proportion of the expense of making said improvement, and the fact that compensation has been awarded for the damaging or taking of any parcel of land shall not preclude the assessment of such parcel of land for its just proportion of said improvement as hereinafter provided. [L. '13, p. 34, § 3.]

§ 7987-4. Plans—Estimate.

At the time of the initiation of the proceedings for any improvement as contemplated by this act or at any time afterward, the city council or commission of such city shall cause plans and specifications for said improvement to be prepared and shall cause an estimate to be made of the cost and expense of making said improvement, including the cost of supervision and engineering, abstractor's fees, interest and discounts and all other expenses incidental to said improvement, including an estimate of the amount of damages for property taken or damaged, which plans, specifications and estimates shall be approved by the city council or commission. [L. '13, p. 35, § 4.]

§ 7987-5. Assessment-roll.

When such plans and specifications shall have been prepared and such estimate of the cost and expense of making such improvement shall be made and adopted by the city council or commission, as set out in the preceding section, and when an estimate has been made of the compensation to be paid for property damaged or taken, either before or after such compensation shall be ascertained in the said superior court as hereinbefore provided, the city council or commission through the proper office or officers, of such city, shall cause an assessment-roll to be prepared containing a list of all the property within said improvement district which it is proposed to assess for such improvements, together with the names of the owners, if known, and if unknown, the property shall be assessed to an unknown owner, and opposite each description shall be set the amount assessed to such description. When so ordered by the said city council or commission, the entire amount of compensation paid or to be paid for property damaged or taken, including all of the costs and expenses incidental to the condemnation proceedings and together with the entire cost and expense of making the improvement may be assessed against the property within the district subject to assessment, but the city council or commission may order any portion of such costs paid out of the current or general expense fund of the city, in their discretion. The several parcels of land located within said improvement district to be assessed for such improvement shall be assessed according to and in proportion to surface area, one square foot of surface to be the unit of assessment: Provided, That where any parcel of land was wholly or partially filled by the owner prior to the initiation of the improvement an equitable deduction for such filling or partial filling may be allowed. The cost and expense incidental to the filling of the streets, alleys and public places within said assessment district shall be borne by the private property within such district subject to assessment when so ordered by the city council or commission. When the assessment shall be payable in installments, the assessment-roll when equalized, as hereinafter provided, shall show the number of installments and the amounts thereof. The assessment herein provided may be made payable in any number of equal annual installments not exceeding fifteen in number. [L. '13, p. 35, § 5.]

§ 7987-6. Notice and Hearing of Protests.

When such assessment-roll shall be so prepared it shall be filed in the office of the city clerk and thereupon it shall be the duty of the city clerk to give notice by publication in at least three issues of the official paper that such roll is on file in his office and that at a date mentioned in said notice, which shall be at least twenty days after the date of the first publication thereof, the city council or commission of such city will sit as a board of equalization to equalize said roll and to hear, consider and determine protests and objections against the same. At the time specified in said notice, the city council or commission of said city shall sit as a board of equalization to equalize the said roll and they may adjourn the sitting from time to time until the equalization of such roll is completed. The city council or commission shall have power as such board of equalization to hear, consider and determine objections and protests against any assessment levied under the provisions of this act and shall have power as such board to make such alterations and modifications in the assessment-roll as justice and equity may require. [L. '13, p. 36, § 6.]

§ 7987-7. Appeals to Superior Court—Judgment.

Any person who has made objections to the assessment as equalized, shall have the right to appeal from the equalization as made by the city council or commission to the superior court of the county in which such city may be situated. Such appeal shall be made by filing a written notice of appeal with the clerk of such city within ten days after the equalization of said assessment by the council or commission, and said notice shall describe the property and the objections of such appellant to such assessment; and the appellant shall also file with the clerk of the superior court aforesaid within ten (10) days from the time of taking such appeal a copy of said notice, appeal, assessment and proceedings thereon, certified by the clerk of such city, together with a bond to such city conditioned to pay all costs that may be awarded against appellant in such sums not less than two hundred dollars and with such security as shall be approved by the clerk of such court, and the case shall be docketed by the clerk of such court in the name of the person taking such appeal as plaintiff, and such city or town as defendant. Said cause shall then be at issue and shall be tried immediately by such court as in the case of equitable causes, except that no further pleadings shall be necessary. The judgment of the court shall be either to confirm, modify or annul the assessment in so far as the same affects the property of the appellant with respect to which the appeal was taken, from which judgment an appeal shall lie to the supreme court as in other causes. [L. '13, p. 37, § 7.]

§ 7987-8. Assessments—How Collected.

From and after the equalization of the roll, the several assessments in such roll contained shall become a lien upon the real estate described in such roll, and shall remain such lien until paid, and such lien shall take precedence of all other liens against such property, except the lien of general taxes. The assessments herein provided for shall be collected by the same officers and enforced in the same manner as now provided by law or which may be hereafter enacted for the collection and enforcement of local assessments for street improvements of the class herein described, and all of the provisions of existing laws and ordinances relative to the enforcement and collection of local assessments for street improvements including the certification of delinquent assessments to the county treasurer and the issuance and foreclosure of certificates of delinquency, shall be applicable to the assessments made pursuant to this act. [L. '13, p. 38, § 8.]

§ 7987-9. Immediate Payment Plan.

When the improvement contemplated by this act shall be ordained to be made upon the immediate payment plan, the city council or commission shall provide for the payment of the same by the issuance of local improvement fund warrants against the local improvement district, which warrants shall be paid only out of the funds derived from the local assessments in the district. When such improvements shall be ordered to be made upon the bond installment plan, the city council or commission shall provide for the issuance of bonds against the improvement district as hereinafter provided. [L. '13, p. 38, § 9.]

§ 7987-10. Bonds—Guaranty.

When it is desired to issue bonds against any such improvement district, the city council or commission shall have full authority to provide for the issuance of such bonds. Such bonds may be in such denominations as the city council or commission may provide, and shall bear such rate of interest as the city council or commission may fix, not exceeding, however, eight per centum per annum; interest shall be paid annually and said bonds shall become due and payable at such time, not exceeding fifteen years from the date thereof, as may be fixed by the said council or commission and shall be payable out of said local assessment district funds. If so ordered by the council or commission, such bonds may be issued in such a way that different numbers of said bonds may become due and payable at different intervals of time, or they may be so issued that all of the bonds against said district shall mature together. The city, however, may reserve the right to call or mature any bond on any interest-paying date when sufficient funds are on hand for its redemption; but bonds shall be called in numerical order. The city council or commission of any such city shall have authority for and on behalf of such city to guarantee the payment of the whole or any part of the bonds so issued against any such local improvement district, but such guaranties on the part of the city shall only be made by ordinance duly enacted, the passage of which ordinance shall require the vote of not less than two-thirds of the councilmen and the approval of the mayor, or three commissioners in case the governing body consists of three commissioners, or four where such city is governed by five commissioners. The city council or commission shall have power to enact all ordinances necessary for the issuance of the bonds herein provided for, and to give full force and effect to this act. [L. '13, p. 38, § 10.]

§ 7987-11. Minimum Price of Bonds.

The city council or commission of any such city shall have power to negotiate sufficient warrants or bonds against any such local improvement district at a price not less than ninety-five per cent of their par value as may be necessary to raise sufficient money to pay any and all compensation which may be awarded for property damaged or taken in the judicial proceedings hereinbefore mentioned, including the costs of such proceedings; but in lieu of so doing, the city council or commission shall have power to negotiate current or general expense fund warrants at par to raise funds for the payment of such compensation and expenses in the first instance, but in that event the current or general expense fund shall be reimbursed out of the first moneys collected in any such local assessment district or realized from the negotiation or sale of local improvement warrants or bonds. [L. '13, p. 39, § 11.]

§ 7987-12. Interest.

The local assessments herein provided for shall bear interest at such rate as may be fixed by the council or commission, not exceeding the rate of eight per centum per annum from and after the expiration of thirty days after the equalization of the assessment-roll and shall bear such interest after delinquency as may be provided by general ordinance of the city: Provided, That such assessment shall bear interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum from and after the date of the certification of such assessments to the county treasurer of the county, as in cases of local street assessments. Warrants drawn against any such local improvement districts shall bear interest from the date of issuance at the rate of eight per centum per annum. [L. '13, p. 40, § 12.]

§ 7987-13. Contract—Rebates—Supplemental Assessment.

The contract for the making of any improvement as contemplated by this act may be let either before or after the making up of the equalization of the assessment-roll, and special fund warrants or bonds may be issued against said local improvement district, either before or after the equalization of the roll as in the judgment of the council or commission may best subserve the public interest. When the assessment-roll is made up and equalized, based in whole or in part upon an estimate of the cost of the improvement and it shall be later found that such estimate was too high, the excess shall be rebated pro rata to the property owners on the assessment-roll, such rebates to be deducted from the last installment, or installments, when the assessment is upon the installment plan. When it is found that the estimated cost was too low and that the actual bona fide cost of the improvement is greater than the estimate, the city council or commission after due notice and a hearing, as in case of the original equalization of the roll, may add the required additional amount to the assessment-roll to be apportioned among the several parcels of property upon the same rules and principles as if it had been originally included, except that such additional amount shall be added to the last installment of such assessment in case such assessment be upon the installment plan. The same notice shall be required for adding to the assessment-roll in this manner as is required for the original equalization of the roll, and the property owner shall have the right of appeal. [L. '13, p. 40, § 13.]

§ 7987-14. Contractor to Accept Bonds or Warrants.

The city council or commission in its discretion may provide in letting the contract for any such improvement, that the contractor shall accept special fund warrants or local improvement bonds against the local improvement district within which such improvement is to be made, in payment for the contract price of such work, and that such warrants or bonds may be issued to the contractor from time to time as the work progresses, or the city council or commission may negotiate such special fund warrants or bonds against such local improvement district at not less than ninety-five cents in money for each dollar of warrants or bonds, and with the proceeds of such sales pay the contractor for such work and pay the other costs of such improvement. [L. '13, p. 41, § 14.]

§ 7987-15. Surplus Funds Invested.

Whenever money shall accumulate in any such improvement fund and is likely to lay idle awaiting the maturity of the bonds against the district, the city council or commission, under proper safeguards, may invest such money temporarily, or may borrow the same temporarily, at a reasonable rate of interest, but when so invested or borrowed, the city shall be responsible and liable for the restoration to such fund of the moneys so invested or borrowed from any such fund, with interest thereon, whenever required for the redemption of bonds maturing against such district. [L. '13, p. 41, § 15.]

§ 7987-16. Reassessments.

In case any assessment made under the provisions of this act should be found to be invalid for any cause or in case the same should be set aside for any reason in any judicial proceeding, then a reassessment may be made and all laws now in force or which may be hereafter enacted relative to the reassessment of local assessments, for street or other improvements, shall, as far as practical, be applicable hereto. [L. '13, p. 41, § 16.]

§ 7987-17. Waterways—Construction of—Contract.

When the filling of any marsh land, swamp land, tide land or tide flats shall result in the construction and completion of any canal or waterway as contemplated in this act, the same shall not be constructed less than three hundred feet wide at the top between the shore lines and with sufficient slope to the sides or banks thereof to as nearly as practicable render bulkheadings or other protection against caving or falling in of said sides or banks unnecessary and of sufficient depth to meet all ordinary requirements of navigation and commerce. Such canal or waterway shall be and remain under the control of the city except as herein provided, and immediately upon the completion of the same the city shall establish outer wharf and dock lines lengthwise of said canal or waterway on both sides thereof in such manner and position that not less than two hundred feet of the width thereof shall always remain open between such lines and beyond and between which lines no right shall ever be granted to build docks, wharves or other obstructions except bridges; nor shall any permanent obstruction to the free use of the channel so laid out between said wharf or dock lines, excepting bridges, their approaches, piers, abutments and spans, ever be permitted but the same shall be kept open for navigation. Such city shall have the right to lease the area so created between the said shore lines and the wharf and dock lines so established or any part, parts or parcels thereof during times when the use thereof is not required by the city, for periods not exceeding thirty years, to private individuals or concerns for dock, wharf, warehouse or manufacturing purposes at such annual rate or rental per lineal foot of frontage on the canal or waterway as it may deem reasonable. The rates of wharfage, dockage and other charges to the public which such lessee may impose shall be reasonable; and the city council or commission may regulate such rates. The lease so granted by the city shall never be transferred or assigned without the consent of the city council or commission having been first obtained; and when at the time of granting such leases the city shall own the land abutting upon the shore line and outside of such canal or waterway at any given point then the said area lying between the shore line and the said wharf or dock line at that point shall never be leased unless an equal frontage of said abutting property immediately adjoining the same is leased at the same time for the same period to the same individual or concern: Provided, That such city shall never lease to any individual or concern more than four hundred (400) lineal feet of frontage of such area lying between the shore lines and the wharf or dock lines and no individual or concern shall ever hold or occupy by lease, sublease or otherwise more than the said four hundred (400) lineal feet of frontage of such area: Provided, however, That any individual or concern may acquire by lease or sublease whatever additional number of lineal feet of frontage of such area may in the judgment of the city council or commission be necessary for the use of such individual or concern, upon petition therefor to the city council or commission signed by not less than five hundred (500) resident freeholders of said city. [L. '13, p. 42, § 17.]

§ 7987-18. Acquisition of Abutting Lands—Lease of Dock Sites.

While acquiring the rights of way for such canals or waterways or at any time thereafter such city shall have the right to acquire for its own and for public use, by purchase, gift, condemnation or otherwise, and pay therefor out of the current expense fund of such city or by bonding the city or by pledging revenues to be derived from rents and issues of the lands so acquired or through such other means as may be provided by law, lands abutting upon the shore lines or right of way of such canals or waterways to a distance, depth or width of not more than three hundred (300) feet back from the banks or shore lines of such canals or waterways on either side or both sides thereof, or not more than three hundred (300) lineal feet back from and abutting on the outer lines of such rights of way on either side or both sides of such rights of way, and such area of such abutting lands as the council or commission may deem necessary for its use for public docks, bridges, wharves, streets and other conveniences of navigation and commerce and for its own use and benefit generally; and when the said cities are not using said lands they shall have the right to lease the said abutting lands so acquired or such parts or parcels thereof as may be deemed for the best interest and convenience of navigation, commerce and the public interest and welfare to private individuals or concerns for terms not exceeding thirty years each at such annual rate or rental as the city council or commission of such city may deem just, proper and fair, for the purpose of erecting docks and wharves for wholesale and retail warehouses and for general commercial purposes and manufacturing sites, but the said city shall never convey or part with title or control of the abutting lands above mentioned and so acquired other than in the manner herein specified: Provided, That any lease or leases granted by such city on such abutting lands shall never be transferred or assigned without the consent of the city council or commission having been first obtained. And such city shall never lease to any individual or concern more than four hundred (400) lineal feet of canal or waterway frontage of said land and no individual or concern shall ever hold or occupy by lease, sub-lease, or otherwise more than the said four hundred (400) lineal feet of said frontage: Provided, however, That any individual or concern may acquire by lease or sublease whatever additional frontage of such abutting land may be in the judgment of the city council or commission necessary for the use of such individual or concern, upon petition presented to the city council or commission therefor signed by not less than five hundred (500) resident freeholders of such city; and at the time that the city shall lease to any individual or concern any of such abutting lands such individual or concern must likewise for the same period of time lease all of the area between the shore line and wharf and dock line of such canal or waterway lying contiguous to and immediately in front of the abutting land so leased. [L. '13, p. 43, § 18.]

§ 7987-19. Tax Levy—Special Fund.

For the purpose of raising revenues to carry on any project under this act, excepting the actual filling of such marsh lands, low lands, swamp lands, tide lands or tide flats, but including funds for the payment for lands taken, purchased, acquired or condemned and the expenses incident to the acquiring thereof, or any other cost or expenses incurred by the city under this act other than the cost of actually filling such lands, any such city is hereby empowered and authorized to levy an annual tax of not exceeding three (3) mills on each dollar of assessed valuation of all property within the city. The city council or commission of any such city may create a fund into which all moneys so derived from taxation and moneys derived from rents and issues of the lands acquired under and by virtue of this act shall be paid and against which special fund warrants may be drawn or negotiable bonds issued to meet expenditures under this act. [L. '13, p. 45, § 19.]

§ 7987-20. Work Done by Contract—Day Labor.

When such city shall undertake any improvement authorized by this act and the expenditures required for the same exceed the sum of five hundred dollars, the same shall be done by contract and shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder, after due notice, under such regulation as may be prescribed by ordinance: Provided, That the city council or commission may reject all bids presented and readvertise in their discretion, or, if in the judgment of the city council or commission such work can be performed, or supplies or materials furnished by the city independent of contract, cheaper than under the bid submitted, it may after having so advertised and examined the bids, cause such work to be performed or supplies or material to be furnished independent of contract. This section shall be construed as a concurrent and cumulative power conferred on such cities and shall not be construed as in any wise repealing or affecting any law now in force relating to the performing, execution and construction of public works. [L. '13, p. 45, § 20.]

§ 7987-21. Eminent Domain—Lands Outside City.

The right of eminent domain is hereby extended to any such city of the second or third class for the condemnation of lands and other property, either within or without the corporate limits of such city, for the purpose of filling and draining such marsh lands, swamp lands, low lands, tide lands, or tide flats and in so doing constructing said canals or waterways as contemplated in this act; and every such city shall have the right to appropriate real estate or other property for the rights of way of such canals or waterways or whatever property is necessary to be appropriated or damaged for the construction thereof, and the filling and draining of such marsh lands, low lands, swamp lands, tidelands or tide flats and for other uses provided for in this act; and all the provisions of sections 7768 to 7822 of Remington and Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington, and acts amendatory thereof shall be applicable and used in appropriating and damaging lands as contemplated by this section except in so far as the same may be inconsistent with this act; and the right of eminent domain authorized by this section shall be exercised in the same manner and under the same procedure as is authorized by said sections 7768 to 7822, and acts amendatory thereof. [L. '13, p. 45, § 21.]

§ 7987-22. Act Concurrent.

This act shall not be construed as repealing or in any wise affecting Remington and Ballinger's Code, sections 7971 to 7987, or any other existing laws relative to the making of any such improvements as are embraced within this act, but this act shall be considered as concurrent with such existing laws. [L. '13, p. 46, § 22.]

CHAPTER XXXII.

ACCIDENT CLAIMS AND FUNDS.

§ 7995.

A charter provision requiring claims to be filed with the city council for injuries to the person caused by defects, want of repair, or obstructions in streets, does not apply to a claim against a city for negligently allowing an electric light pole to fall upon a servant of the city grading a street, as the provisions must be strictly construed, and not extended beyond its terms: Giuricevic v. Tacoma, 57 Wash. 323, 28 L. R. A., N. S., 533, 106 Pac. 908.

As to inclusion of claim for tort in statute requiring "claim" or "demand" against municipality to be presented to council, see note in 19 Ann. Cas. 1113. See, also, notes in 38 L. R. A., N. S., 1136 and 39 L. R. A., N. S., 1045.

As to rule of notice of defects or injury and its application to case of city's employees, injured through city's alleged negligence, see note in 28 L. R. A., N. S., 533.

The charter of Spokane requiring all claims for damages for personal injuries or for injuries to property, sustained by reason of the negligence of the city, to be filed with the city clerk within one month, applies to claims for damages to lots by reason of the negligent removal of lateral support in grading a street: Smith v. Spokane, 54 Wash. 276, 102 Pac. 1036.

As to municipal liability for removal of lateral or subjacent support of plaintiff's land, see note in 68 L. R. A. 698.

A charter provision requiring notice of claims to be filed with the city council for injuries to the person caused by defects, want of repair, or obstructions in streets, has no application to injuries to a servant of the city injured by reason of the city's failure to furnish a safe place to work, as the city is presumed to have notice of injury to its servants, and the purpose of the provision is to give notice of spurious claims: Giuricevic v. Tacoma, 57 Wash. 329, 28 L. R. A., N. S., 533, 106 Pac. 908.

As to liability of municipality for defect in street as dependent on notice or knowledge, when statute makes municipality liable for failure to repair, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913A, 691.

A claim against a city for personal injuries to a married woman need not be signed by the husband: Horton v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 316, 101 Pac. 1091.

A claim for damages sufficiently locates and describes the defect, where it describes a hole in a certain street "lying in front of the new ferry slip," and that plaintiff fell into a hole as she went from the ferry slip to said street, since the hole previously described is evidently intended: Horton v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 316, 101 Pac. 1091.

Where a claim against a city for personal injuries makes no mention of injury to her eyesight, although alleged in the complaint, plaintiff cannot recover therefor, when the claim was filed twenty-one days after the injury and she testifies that she knew her eyesight was injured within five days after the accident: Horton v. Seattle, 53 Wash. 316, 101 Pac. 1091.

A claim against a city for personal injuries to plaintiff's "limbs, side, back, and neck," admits of evidence of a goiter that developed subsequently and by reason of the accident where the ultimate result could not be known at the time of the accident, and the defendant had ample opportunity to investigate and claimed no surprise: Falldin v. Seattle, 57 Wash. 307, 106 Pac. 914.

The requirement of a city charter that claims for personal injuries shall be filed within thirty days and shall state the nature and extent of the injuries and the amount of the claim is for the purpose of giving timely notice, and does not preclude a recovery for additional injurious results that have developed since the claim was filed and were not known or anticipated at the time: Pierce v. Spokane, 59 Wash. 615, 110 Pac. 537.

Under a claim against a city for personal injuries alleging that plaintiff was greatly bruised and injured and her whole right side paralyzed, and that she suffered great pain under her kidney, it is permissible to show injuries to the right shoulder and back: Horton v. Seattle, 61 Wash. 301, 112 Pac. 366.

A complaint in an action against a city for personal injuries fails to state that the claim required by charter provisions was filed with the city council, as against a demurrer, where it merely alleges that the plaintiff caused the city and its officers and agents to be fully informed of the time, place, cause, etc., of the injury: Giuricevic v. Tacoma, 57 Wash. 329, 28 L. R. A., N. S., 533, 106 Pac. 908.

It is a reasonable and valid requirement that claims against a city for personal injuries shall be in writing and verified with the city clerk within thirty days; and the same is not excused or substantially complied with by a verbal notice to other officers, or by the statement of an officer that he would report the claim to the city council, or that a letter to a councilman was not answered or objected to: Cole v. Seattle, 64 Wash. 1, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 344, 34 L. R. A., N. S., 1166, 116 Pac. 257.

An ordinance of a city requiring officers to investigate and report all claims or demands against the city that come to their knowledge does not excuse a claimant from filing a verified claim with the city clerk after bringing it to the notice of an officer of the city: Cole v. Seattle, 64 Wash. 1, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 344, 34 L. R. A., N. S., 1166, 116 Pac. 257.

The requirement that a claim against a city must be presented to the city council before action brought cannot be waived by any officers of the city other than the city council: Cole v. Seattle, 64 Wash. 1, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 344, 34 L. R. A., N. S., 1166, 116 Pac. 257.

This section has no application to claims as to which the city charter did not require any notice or demand: Wolpers v. Spokane, 66 Wash. 633, 120 Pac. 113.

The charter of the city of Spokane providing that all claims for damages for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained by reason of the negligence of the city or any officer, agent or servant thereof, be presented to the city council, has no application to claims arising out of the relation of master and servant and the failure of the city to furnish a servant with a safe place to work: Wolpers v. Spokane, 66 Wash. 633, 120 Pac. 113.

As to the duty of master to furnish safe appliances and places for servant, see note in 33 Am. St. Rep. 766.

As to sufficiency of notice under employer's liability act, see note in 21 L. R. A., N. S., 233.

A claim against a city "accurately describes" the injury, within the requirements of a city charter, so as to admit proof of a sprained ankle causing permanent injuries, where it alleges that claimant's leg was fractured and bruised necessitating a surgical operation and that claimant will be disabled many months: Lindquist v. Seattle, 67 Wash. 230, 121 Pac. 449.

A claim by a husband and wife for personal injuries to the wife, required to be sworn to by the "claimant," may be sworn to by either, the wife being a proper party under section 182, and therefore a claimant: James v. Seattle, 68 Wash. 359, 123 Pac. 472.

Where a city ordinance provided that claims for personal injuries by reason of the city's negligence must be presented within thirty days, and that if the injury was caused by the existence of snow or ice or by reason of such place being out of repair, unsafe, or obstructed, the first provision relates to continuous negligence which the city could have provided against, and the latter provision refers only to temporary and quickly changing conditions; and hence thirty days is allowed for notice of an injury by reason of trapdoors being left partially open in a place where pedestrians "usually and continuously passed to and fro and over and in so passing walked continuously over and across said doors": Connolly v. Spokane, 70 Wash. 160, 126 Pac. 407.

This section requiring claims against a city for personal injuries to be filed within thirty days, giving the residence of the claimant, specifying the items of damage, and verified, is mandatory, and an action cannot be maintained unless the claim complies with all the requirements: Benson v. Hoquiam, 67 Wash. 90, 121 Pac. 58.

In such a case, notice to the city officers by a claimant resident in the city cannot take the place of the claim required to be filed with the city clerk: Benson v. Hoquiam, 67 Wash. 90, 121 Pac. 58.

Seattle charter, article 4, section 29, providing that all claims for damages against the city must be presented to the city council and filed with the city clerk within thirty days after the time when such claim for damages, accrues, all such claims to accurately locate and describe the defect that caused the injury, applies to actions for damages arising ex contractu as well as ex delicto, and bars an action for damages by a contractor for expense incurred and loss of profits through breach of contract, where no claim therefor was filed within the time limit: International Contract Co. v. Seattle, 69 Wash. 390, 125 Pac. 152.

This section, requiring a claim in tort against a city to state the claimant's residence by street and number, at the time of filing of the claim, and for six months prior to its accrual, is reasonable: Collins v. Spokane, 64 Wash. 153, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 840, 116 Pac. 663.

An answer admitting the filing and rejection of a claim against a city and denying all other allegations does not waive the objection that the claim filed was insufficient: Collins v. Spokane, 64 Wash. 153, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 840, 116 Pac. 663.

The fact that a claimant's residence was known to the city officials and the claim rejected on its merits does not excuse the statement of such residence in a claim against the city, as required by statute: Collins v. Spokane, 64 Wash. 153, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 840, 116 Pac. 663.

Objection to the sufficiency of a claim against a city need not be taken by plea in abatement, as the statute requiring the filing of the claim is mandatory and compliance is a condition precedent which must be alleged and proved: Collins v. Spokane, 64 Wash. 153, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 840, 116 Pac. 663.

Sections 7999-8001, authorizing cities to create an accident fund, and directing a payment of personal injury judgments therefrom, affects only the remedy, and is applicable to existing judgments for which no warrants were drawn when the law went into effect: State ex rel. Billings v. Lamprey, 57 Wash. 84, 106 Pac. 501.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

PUBLIC UTILITIES, ACQUISITION OF, AND BONDS FOR.

§ 8005. Public Utilities—Authority to Acquire and Operate.

Any incorporated city or town within the state be, and hereby is, authorized to construct, condemn and purchase, purchase, acquire, add to, maintain, conduct and operate waterworks, within or without its limits, for the purpose of furnishing such city or town and the inhabitants thereof, and any other persons, with an ample supply of water for all uses and purposes, public and private, including water power and other power derived therefrom, with full power to regulate and control the use, distribution and price thereof; to construct and maintain systems of sewerage, and systems and plants for refuse collection and disposal, with full jurisdiction and authority to manage, regulate and control the same within and without the limits of the corporation; to construct, condemn and purchase, purchase, acquire, add to, maintain and operate works, plants and facilities for the preparation and manufacture of all such stone or asphalt products or compositions or other materials which may be used in street construction or maintenance, together with the right to use the same, and also to fix the price of and to sell the same for use in the construction of municipal improvements of such city or town; to construct, acquire and operate public markets and one or more cold storage plants for the sale and preservation of butter, eggs, meats, fish, fruits, vegetables, and other perishable provisions; and to construct, condemn and purchase, purchase, acquire, add to, maintain and operate works, plants and facilities for the purpose of furnishing such city or town and the inhabitants thereof, and any other persons, with gas, electricity and other means of power and facilities for lighting, heating, fuel and power purposes, public and private, with full authority to regulate and control the use, distribution and price thereof, together with the right to handle and sell, or lease, any meters, lamps, motors, transformers and equipment or accessories of any and every kind, necessary and convenient for the use, distribution and sale thereof; to authorize the construction of such plant or plants by others for the same purpose, and to purchase such gas, electricity or power from others either within or without the city or town for its own use and for the purpose of selling to its inhabitants and to other persons doing business within such city or town, and to regulate and control the use and price thereof; to construct, condemn and purchase, purchase, acquire, add to, maintain, operate or lease cable, electric and other railways within the limits of such city or town for the transportation of freight and passengers above, upon or underneath the ground, with full authority to regulate and control the use and operation thereof, and to fix, alter, regulate and control the fares and rates to be charged thereon; and for the purposes aforesaid, it shall be lawful for any city or town in this state to take, condemn, and purchase, purchase, acquire and retain water from any public or navigable lake or watercourse percolating or subterranean, or any underflowing water within the state, and, by means of aqueducts or pipe-lines, to conduct the same to said city or town; and such city or town is hereby authorized and empowered to erect and build dams or other works across or at the outlet of any lake or watercourse in this state for the purpose of storing and retaining water therein up to and above high-water mark; and for all the purposes of erecting such aqueducts, pipe-lines, dams, or waterworks or other necessary structures in storing and retaining water, as above provided, or for any of the purposes provided for by this act, such city or town shall have the right to occupy and use the beds and shores up to the high-water mark of any such watercourse or lakes, and to acquire the right by purchase, or by condemnation and purchase, or otherwise, to any water, water rights, easements or privileges named in this act, or necessary for any of said purposes, and any such city or town shall have the right to acquire by purchase or by condemnation and purchase any lands, properties or privileges necessary to be had to protect the water supply of such city or town from pollution: Provided, That should private property be necessary for any such purposes or for storing water above high-water mark, such city or town may condemn and purchase, or purchase and acquire such private property: And provided further, That no such dam or other structure shall impede, obstruct or in any way interfere with public navigation of such lake or watercourse. [L. '13, p. 112, § 1.]

Under this section authorizing cities to condemn property for lighting, heating, and power purposes, "public and private," the word "private" will be eliminated as a nullity, as it is not so commingled with the public uses that they cannot be separated, and the remainder of the act is constitutional as a complete act capable of execution in accordance with the legislative intent: Tacoma v. Nisqually Power Co., 57 Wash. 420, 107 Pac. 199.

This section, authorizing cities to condemn for public purposes "works, plants, and facilities," either expressly or by necessary implication grants the right to acquire works and plants of private corporations already devoted to a public use: Tacoma v. Nisqually Power Co., 57 Wash. 420, 107 Pac. 199.

As to right of eminent domain as applied to property already devoted to public or quasi-public use, see note in 13 L. R. A. 432. See, also, notes in 3 L. R. A. 832; 7 L. R. A. 766; 58 L. R. A. 244; 60 L. R. A. 198; 66 L. R. A. 897.

This section, giving to cities the right to occupy and use the beds and shores of lakes up to the high-water mark, does not mean the highest water reached during annual flood periods, but means the upland boundary of tide and shore lands separating soil adapted for use from that which is submerged so long or frequently in ordinary seasons that vegetation will not grow upon it: Austin v. Bellingham, 69 Wash. 677, 126 Pac. 59.

Under Ballinger's Code, section 1077, requiring a town to sell bonds issued for the purpose of purchasing waterworks, as deemed for the best interests of the town, the town has no authority to issue bonds and deliver them to bankers who advanced the money to purchase the waterworks at the special instance and request of the town: Hansard v. Green, 54 Wash. 161, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1107, 24 L. R. A., N. S., 1273, 103 Pac. 40.

As to implied authority of municipality to borrow money and issue bonds, see note in 51 Am. St. Rep. 830.

§ 8010-1. Acquisition of Water for Irrigation and Domestic Use.

That all cities and towns within the state, other than cities of the first class, situated within the limits of any irrigation project owned and operated by the United States government, any water users' association, private individuals or corporation, where the water used for irrigation and domestic purposes is appurtenant or may become appurtenant to the land embraced within the limits of any such city or town are hereby authorized to purchase, contract for and acquire water for the purpose of furnishing said city or town and the inhabitants thereof with a supply of water for irrigation and domestic purposes, and may do so either by the entire city or town or by assessment districts as the mayor and council of said city or town may determine. [L. '11, p. 510, § 1.]

§ 8010-2. Submission.

Whenever the city council of any city or town shall deem it advisable that the city or town of which they are officers, should purchase a water right for said city or town and provide a piping system for the proper distribution of said water to the inhabitants thereof, the city or town council may provide therefor by ordinances, which shall specify and adopt the system or plan proposed, the amount of water measured in second-feet that it is possible to purchase, the cost thereof, together with the estimated cost as near as can be of the construction of a piping system, and the same shall be submitted for ratification or rejection to the qualified voters of said city or town at the general or special election, and for the purpose of providing for constructing and maintaining such water system for irrigation and domestic purposes, and issuing bonds to pay therefor, such cities and towns are hereby authorized to proceed in all ways in accordance with and apply all provisions of Remington and Ballinger's Code, sections 8005-8010. [L. '11, p. 511, § 2.]

§ 8010-3. City Engineer to Prepare Plans.

If the city or town council should decide to construct said piping system for the distribution of water under the provisions of this act, by the establishment and creation of assessment districts, then before any contract shall be let for such construction the mayor and council shall by ordinance or resolution adopt the plans therefor, which shall be prepared by the city engineer, and shall fix and establish tax assessment districts and such cities and towns are hereby authorized to charge the expenses of such waterworks for irrigation and domestic purposes to all the property included within such district which is contiguous or approximate to any street in which any main or lateral pipe of such waterworks is for irrigation and domestic purposes to be placed, and to levy special taxes upon such property to pay therefor, which assessment and tax shall be levied in accordance with the last general assessment of the property within said district for city purposes. [L. '11, p. 511, § 3.]

§ 8010-4. Procedure.

That for the purpose of providing for the establishment of such water system for irrigation and domestic purposes, for the establishment and creation of assessment districts, for the issuing of bonds to pay therefor, for the collection of all assessments and the enforcement of any lien created by this act, such cities and towns are hereby authorized to proceed in all ways in accordance with and to apply all provisions of any statute now in force or that may hereafter be enacted relative to local improvements: Provided, however, Such statute appertains to such cities or towns. [L. '11, p. 512, § 4.]

§ 8010-5. Rental.

The annual rental for the use of said water for irrigation and domestic purposes shall be fixed by the city or town council and the charges so fixed shall constitute a lien against the premises so furnished as provided by law. [L. '11, p. 512, § 5.]

§ 8010-6. Surplus.

Any city or town owning or operating its own gas, water, or electric plant shall have the right to dispose of any surplus gas, water or electricity, remaining after the wants of the inhabitants thereof have been supplied. [L. '11, p. 512, § 6.]

§ 8010-7. Conduits and Transmission Lines.

For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of section 8010-6 any municipality intending to make such purchase shall have authority to build and construct and maintain all necessary conduits and transmission lines from the boundaries of such municipality to the boundary of such city or town selling such surplus products. [L. '11, p. 512, § 7.]

CHAPTER XXXV.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENT BONDS.

§§ 8018-8028.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 481, § 71.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

INDEBTEDNESS AND FUNDING BONDS.

§ 8043-1. Special Election—Time for Voting.

At any special election held in any city for the purpose of submitting to the qualified electors any proposition or propositions to incur municipal indebtedness and to issue negotiable bonds therefor, the polls shall open and close at the same hours fixed by the laws of the state of Washington for the opening and closing of the polls at elections where national, state, county or municipal officers are elected, any provision in the charter of any such city to the contrary notwithstanding. [L. '11, p. 110, § 1.]

CHAPTER XL.

POLICE PENSION FUND.

§ 8078. Police Pension Board—Duties.

The mayor, clerk, treasurer, president of the city council of each of the incorporated cities of the first class of the state of Washington, or in case any of said cities has no city council, the commissioner who has supervision of the police department, together with three members of the police department of each of said cities, to be elected as hereafter provided, are, in addition to the duties now required of them, hereby created and constituted a board of trustees, of the relief and pension fund of the police department of each of said incorporated cities, and shall provide for the disbursement of the said relief and pension fund, and shall designate the beneficiaries thereof, as hereafter directed, which said board shall be known as the board of police pension fund commissioners. The police department of each incorporated city of the first class in the state of Washington, shall elect three regularly appointed, qualified and acting members of said department to act as members of said board; said election shall be held every two years, at the times and in the manner in this section provided. Not more than thirty nor less than fifteen days preceding the date fixed by law for the regular election of the mayor of such cities, written notice of nomination of any member of said department for membership on said board may be filed with the secretary of said board. Each notice of nomination shall be signed by not less than five members of said department, and nothing herein contained shall prevent any member of said department from signing more than one notice of nomination. Said election shall be held on a date to be fixed by the secretary of said board and shall be not less than five days and not more than ten days before the date fixed by law for the election of the mayor as aforesaid. Notice of the dates upon which said notice of nominations may be filed and of the date fixed for the election of said members of said board shall be given by the secretary of said board by posting written notices thereof in a prominent place in the police headquarters of said city. For the purpose of said election, the secretary of said board shall prepare and furnish printed or typewritten ballots in the usual form, containing the names of all the persons regularly nominated for such membership and shall furnish a ballot-box for said election. Each member of said police department shall be entitled to vote at said election for three persons as members of said board. The chief of said department shall appoint two members of said department to act as officials of said election, who shall be allowed their regular wages for said day, but shall receive no additional compensation therefor. Said election shall be held in the police headquarters of said department and the polls shall open at 7:30 A. M. and close at 8:30 P. M. The three nominees receiving the highest number of votes at said election shall be declared elected as members of said board, and their term shall commence on the same date as that of the term of office of the mayor of said city: Provided, That not more than thirty days after the taking effect of this act, a special election shall be held to elect members of said board from said department to serve until the expiration of the regular term of the present mayor of each of said cities. The secretary of said board shall fix the time for the filing of notices of nominations, allowing not less than five days for that purpose, and shall fix the date for said special election, which date shall be not less than five days after the expiration of the time fixed for the filing of notices of nominations. Said special election shall in every other respect be governed by the rules in this section provided for the holding of the regular election of members of said board. [L. '11, p. 55, § 1.]

§ 8081. Retirement for Age—Pension.

Whenever any person at the taking effect of this act, or thereafter, shall have been duly appointed or selected and sworn, and shall have served for twenty years or more, in the aggregate, as a member, in any capacity or rank whatever, of the regularly constituted police department of any such city which may hereafter be subject to the provisions of this act, and shall have reached the age of sixty years, said board may order and direct that such person be retired from further service in such police department, and from the date of the making of such order the service of such person in such police department shall cease, except in cases of emergency as hereinafter provided, and such person so retired shall thereafter, during his lifetime, be paid from such fund a yearly pension equal to one-half of the amount of salary attached to the rank which he held in said police department for the period of one year next preceding the date of such retirement. [L. '11, p. 57, § 2.]

§ 8082. Disabled in Service—Retirement—Pension.

Whenever any person, while serving as a policeman in any such city shall become physically disabled by reason of any bodily injury received in the immediate or direct performance or discharge of his duties as such policeman, or become incapacitated for service, said incapacity not having been caused or brought on by dissipation or abuse, of which the board shall be judge, said board may, upon his written request filed with the secretary of said board, or without such written request, if it deems it to be for the benefit of the public, retire such person from said department, and order and direct that he shall be paid from said fund during his lifetime, a yearly pension equal to one-half of the amount of salary attached to the rank which he may have held in said police department at the date of such retirement, but on the death of such pensioner his heirs or assigns, shall have no claims against or upon such police relief or pension fund: Provided, That whenever such disability shall cease, such pension shall cease, and such person shall be restored to active service at the same salary he received at the time of his retirement. [L. '11, p. 58, § 3.]

§ 8085. Death from Natural Causes—Benefit to Whom.

Whenever any member of the police department of such city shall, after five years of service in said department, die from natural causes, then his widow, or child, or children under the age of sixteen years, or if there be no widow or children, then his parents or unmarried sisters, minor brother or brothers, dependent upon him for support, shall be entitled to the sum of one thousand dollars from such fund. [L. '11, p. 58, § 4.]

§ 8088. Board—Meetings, Duties, Disbursement of Fund.

The board herein provided for shall hold monthly meetings on the first Mondays of each month and upon the call of its president. It shall issue warrants, signed by its president and secretary, to the persons entitled thereto for the amounts of money ordered paid to such persons from such fund by said board, which warrants shall state for what purpose such payments are made; it shall keep a record of its proceedings, which record shall be a public record; it shall, at each monthly meeting, send to the treasurer of such city a written or printed list of all persons entitled to payment from the fund herein provided for, stating the amount of such payments and for what granted, which list shall be certified to and signed by the president and secretary of such board, attested under oath. The treasurer of such city shall thereupon enter a copy of said list upon a book to be kept for that purpose and which shall be known as "The Police Relief and Pension Fund Book," and the said board shall direct payment of the amounts named therein to the persons entitled thereto, out of such fund. A majority of all the members of said board herein provided for shall constitute a quorum, and have power to transact business. [L. '11, p. 58, § 5.]

§ 8090. Sick Benefits.

Whenever any member of the police department of any such city shall, on account of sickness or disability, suffered or sustained while a member of said department, and not caused or brought on by dissipation or abuse, of which the board shall be judge, be confined to any hospital or to his home, and shall require nursing, care or attention, the said board shall pay the necessary hospital, care and nursing expenses of such member out of said fund, and the salary of said member shall continue while he is necessarily confined to such hospital or home and necessarily requires care and nursing on account of such sickness or disability for a period not exceeding six months, after which said period the other provisions of this act shall apply. [L. '11, p. 59, § 6.]

§ 8091. Payments Quarterly—Surplus to General Fund.

Payments provided for in this act shall be made monthly upon proper vouchers. If at any time there is more money in the fund provided for in this act than is necessary for the purposes of this act, then such surplus shall be transferred from such fund to the general fund of the city: Provided, That at all times enough money shall be kept in said fund to meet all payments provided for in this act. [L. '11, p. 59, § 7.]

TITLE LXI. NAVIGATION.

CHAPTER I. WATERWAYS ACROSS TIDE LANDS.

§ 8096.

This section has no application to street extensions across tide lands and harbor area: Chlopeck Fish Co. v. Seattle, 64 Wash. 315, 117 Pac. 232.

In a plat of streets across tide lands and harbor area, the designation at the end of certain streets, "city slip," does not indicate that such streets were to be reserved as open spaces for vessels, but rather, that they were dedicated to the city for a usable connection of the street with the open harbor, especially when such had been the previous use, and that intent was explained to the legislature at the time of the adoption of the plat: Chlopeck Fish Co. v. Seattle, 64 Wash. 315, 117 Pac. 232.

CHAPTER II. EXCAVATION OF WATERWAYS, AND FILLING TIDE LANDS BY PRIVATE CONTRACT.

Under this section and section 8107 the lands are liable only for the maximum of sixteen cents per cubic yard fixed by the contract, except where additional costs of bulkheads are approved by the governor, pursuant to a clause in the contract; and where the commissioner is threatening to issue certificates in excessive amounts to include distributed street and alley fill and additional bulkheads without the governor's approval, injunction will issue to restrain such action: Bussell v. Ross, 60 Wash. 344, 111 Pac. 165.

Where a contract for filling unplatted tide lands, under this section, limited the cost to sixteen cents per cubic yard, and subsequently the lands were platted, the cost of the fill in streets and alleys is to be added and charged to the abutting lands; even if it was contemplated, at the time the contract was made, that the land was to be platted, in view of section 8107, providing that the cost of filling streets and alleys shall be apportioned to the lands benefited, since the purchaser of platted tide lands, under his preference right, takes the fee of the abutting streets: Bussell v. Ross, 64 Wash. 418, 116 Pac. 1088.

Where a contractor filing state tide lands under a contract limiting the cost to sixteen cents per cubic yard, in good faith sublet the work to a dredging company at fifteen cents per yard and expended one cent per yard in supervision and engineering, the "actual cost" to him, within this section, giving a lien for the actual cost of the fill, is sixteen cents per cubic yard, without deducting the subcontractor's profit of three cents per cubic yard: Richards v. Bussell, 70 Wash. 554, 127 Pac. 198.

Under this section, the "cost of the work" includes the actual cost to the contractor and the added fifteen per cent allowed as his profit; hence in a contract limiting the "cost" of the fill to sixteen cents per cubic yard, it is proper when the work actually cost the contractor sixteen cents, to allow his lien therefor and fifteen per cent additional: Richards v. Bussell, 70 Wash. 554, 127 Pac. 198.

Where a contract for filling unplatted tide lands, under this section, limited the cost to sixteen cents per cubic yard, and subsequently the lands were platted, the cost of the fill in streets and alleys is to be added and charged to the abutting lands: Richards v. Bussell, 70 Wash. 554, 127 Pac. 198.

The certificate of the commissioner of public lands, given pursuant to this section, requiring him to determine the actual cost of filling state tide lands under a state contract, is presumptive evidence of the cost: Richards v. Bussell, 70 Wash. 554, 127 Pac. 198.

Where two contracts for filling contiguous tide lands were entered into at the same time, with a view of excavating one general system of waterways, there being two connecting waterways, the commissioner's certificates showing the amount of the liens by reason of the completion of one of the waterways under the first contract, against certain lots covered in the second contract, but which were nearer to and deriving their benefit from the completed canal under the first contract, are not prematurely issued, although the other waterway was not completed, since the two contracts were in substance one: Rich- ards v. Bussell, 70 Wash. 554, 127 Pac. 198.

This section, authorizing the foreclosure of liens for the cost of filling state tide lands "in the manner provided by law for the foreclosure of liens on real estate," does not authorize the allowance of any attorney's fee other than the ten dollars statutory costs: Richards v. Bussell, 70 Wash. 554, 127 Pac. 198.

In an action to foreclose the lien for filling state tide lands under this section, interest is properly allowed on installments of interest past due and unpaid: Richards v. Bussell, 70 Wash. 554, 127 Pac. 198.

§ 8107.

See notes to § 8103.

CHAPTER III.

ERECTION OF WHARVES.

§ 8112.

This section, providing that cities may authorize the construction of a wharf at the terminus of a street, has been superseded by constitution, article 15, and the laws enacted in pursuance thereof for the sale, lease or control of tide lands and harbor areas by agents of the state, so far as the same affects tide lands not owned by the city or included in public streets extended over the tide lands: State ex rel. Port Angeles v. Morse, 56 Wash. 654, 106 Pac. 147.

§ 8114.

Under the rule that counties have only such powers as are conferred by statute, and that statutes of eminent domain, being in derogation of common right, are to be strictly construed, a county has no power to condemn lands within a city of the first class for a public wharf or dock, not connected with a county road, since a wharf is in no sense a county road; section 8114 limiting the right of eminent domain to wharf sites at the terminus of county roads and not within the limits of first-class tide lands: State ex rel. Wauconda Investment Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 660, 124 Pac. 127.

Such power is not conferred by the act of 1911, page 3 (section 8147-1), authorizing a county to sell bonds in aid of enterprises undertaken by the state or county in aid of commerce and the "acquisition" of canals, docks, wharves, etc., the act not expressly conferring the power of eminent domain, and the power never being implied from the power to "acquire": State ex rel. Wauconda Investment Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 660, 124 Pac. 127.

CHAPTER IV.

VACATION OF WATERWAYS.

§ 8117. Procedure to Obtain.

Whenever any waterway heretofore established under the authority of the laws of this state, or any portion of such waterway, shall not have been excavated, or shall not be in use for the purposes of navigation, or shall no longer be required in the public interest to exist as a waterway, such waterway or portion thereof may be vacated by written order of the commissioner of public lands of the state of Washington whenever he shall be requested so to do by ordinance or resolution of the city council of the city in which such waterway is situate, in whole or in part, or, in case such waterway is situate, in whole or in part, in a port district organized under the laws of the state of Washington, whenever he shall be requested so to do by resolution of the port commission of such port district; and upon the making of such order the waterway or portion thereof shall thereupon be deemed to be and shall be thereby vacated: Provided, however, that if the waterway or portion thereof so vacated be navigable water of the United States or otherwise within the jurisdiction of the United States, a copy of such resolution or ordinance, together with a copy of said order of the commissioner of public lands certified to by him, shall be submitted to the secretary of war and chief of engineers of the United States for their approval, and if they approve the same such waterway or portion thereof shall thereupon be deemed to be and shall be thereupon vacated. [L. '13, p. 590, § 1.]

§ 8119. Disposal of Vacated Portion.

Should such city fail to make such selection within such time, or having within such time made such selection, the title of the remaining portions of such waterway so vacated shall vest in the state of Washington, unless the same be situate within the territorial limits of a port district created under the laws of the state of Washington, in which event such title shall vest in said port district. If subsequent to such vacation, the vacated waterway or portion of waterway shall be embraced within the limits of a port district created under the laws of the state of Washington, the title to such portions thereof as shall then remain undisposed of by the state shall vest in such port district. Such title so vesting shall be subject to any railroad or street railway crossings existing at the time of such vacation. [L. '13, p. 591, § 2.]

§ 8119-1. Preference Rights Annulled.

All preference rights of purchase created by the act of which this act is amendatory are hereby annulled. [L. '13, p. 591, § 3.]

§ 8119-2. Application of Act.

The provisions of this act shall not apply to any waterway or portion of waterway which forms, or by improving same may be made to form, a connection between a river or another waterway and any tidal water. [L. '13, p. 591, § 4.]

CHAPTER V.

RIVER IMPROVEMENTS.

§ 8145-1. Boundary Line Rivers—Overflow—Improvement.

Wherever and whenever a river is or shall be the boundary line or part of the boundary line between two counties, or it, or its tributaries or outlet or part thereof, flows through parts of two counties, and the waters thereof have in the past been the cause of damage, by inundation or otherwise, to the roads, bridges or other public property situate in or to other public interests of both such counties, or the flow of such waters shall have alternated between the said counties so at one time or times such waters shall have caused damage to one county and at another time or times to the other county, and it shall be deemed by the boards of county commissioners of both counties to be for the public interests of their respective counties that the flow of such waters be definitely confined to a particular channel, situate in whole or in part in either county, in a manner calculated to prevent such alternation or to prevent or lessen damage in the future, it shall be lawful for the two counties, and their boards of county commissioners are hereby empowered, pursuant to resolution, to enter into a contract in writing in the names of the respective counties for the purpose of settling all disputes in relation to any such situation, and providing ways and means for the control and disposition of such waters. Any such contract may provide:

(a) That it shall be operative in perpetuity, or only for a term of years or other measure of time to be specified therein.

(b) The amount of money to be expended by each county during each year of the life of said contract, or such other method of determining the amount of expenditure or dividing the financial burden as may be agreed upon.

(c) That an annual tax shall be levied, at the same time and in the same manner as other county taxes are levied, each year during the life of the contract, by the county commissioners of each county. The annual tax herein provided for need not be levied at the same rate for each county, but shall be at such rate in each county as will produce annually the amount of money for each county as is required for the fulfillment of the contract on its part: Provided, however, That in no event shall any such tax levy by either county exceed one mill on the dollar for any one year.

(d) That the general scheme for the improvement of such river shall be as stated in such contract, but by consent of the contracting parties, pursuant to resolution of each board of county commissioners, such scheme may be modified from time to time during the life of the contract. The contract may but need not provide the details of such scheme, but must designate the general purpose to be accomplished. So far as details are not specified in the contract, same shall be for future determination by joint action of the two boards of county commissioners. Any such contract may be subsequently modified or abrogated by mutual consent evidenced by separate resolution of both boards of county commissioners. [L. '13, p. 156, § 1.]

§ 8145-2. Funds Expended—Work—How Done.

When such a contract shall have been entered into the prosecution of the work of improvement and the expenditure of funds thereof shall be determined upon, controlled and provided for by joint action of the boards of county commissioners of the two counties. So acting jointly, they shall have power to employ subordinates, purchase material or equipment in open market or by contract, let contracts for work, or cause work to be done by day labor, and to reject any and all bids received for work or material. All vouchers, pay-rolls, reports, contracts and bonds on contracts shall be in duplicate, one copy to be filed in the office of the county auditor of each county: Provided, however, That the expenditure of said funds must be made in such manner so that the fund from each county is drawn on or expended alternately and such alternate expenditure shall be in proportion to the amount contributed by each county as nearly as may be practicable. [L. '13, p. 158, § 2.]

§ 8145-3. Tax Levy in Each County—Warrants—Claims.

When such a contract shall have been entered into it shall be the duty of each of the boards of county commissioners to make for their respective counties, each year, a tax levy at a rate sufficient to meet the requirements of the contract to be performed by the county, or sufficient to provide such lesser amount as the boards of county commissioners shall agree upon for such year, to be evidenced by separate resolution of each board, and when such levy shall be made the same shall be extended upon the tax-rolls of the county levying the same as other taxes shall be extended, and shall be collected in the same manner and shall be a lien upon the property as in the case of other taxes. The fund realized in each county by such tax levy shall go into a separate fund in the treasury of the county collecting the same, to be designated intercounty river improvement fund, and the entire fund so collected in the two counties shall be devoted to and be disbursed for the purposes specified in such contract and as in this act provided, and for no other purpose, but without regard to the particular county in which the work is performed, material required or expenditure made, it being the intent that the entire fund realized in the two counties shall be devoted to the one common purpose as if the two counties were one county and the two funds one fund. The fund in each county shall be disbursed by the county treasurer of such county upon warrants signed by the county auditor of that county. Such warrants shall be issued by order of the board of county commissioners of such county, or a majority thereof. Each county auditor shall, whenever requested by the county auditor of the other county, furnish the county auditor of the other county a statement of payments into and warrants drawn upon the fund of his county from time to time, and in addition thereto, each county auditor shall on the first Monday of January, April, July and October each year during the life of the contract furnish the other a complete statement thereof. Obligations incurred in the prosecution of such improvement and warrants issued shall be payable only out of said special funds, and no general obligation against or debt of either county shall be created thereby or by any contract entered into by virtue of this act, but it is not the intent of this act to deny to either county the right to have in the courts any proper proceeding to compel compliance with such contract on the part of the other county. [L. '13, p. 158, § 3.] § 8145-4. Eminent Domain—Proceedings.

When such a contract shall have been entered into the power of eminent domain is hereby vested in each of such counties, to acquire any lands necessary to straighten, widen, deepen, dike or otherwise improve any such river, its tributaries or outlet or to strengthen the banks thereof, or to acquire any land adjacent to such river or its tributaries, or the right to cut and remove timber upon the same for the purpose of preventing or lessening the falling of timber or brush into the waters of such river or tributaries, or to acquire any rock quarry, gravel deposit or timber for material for the prosecution of such improvement, together with the necessary rights of way for the same. Any such land, property or rights may be acquired by purchase instead of by condemnation proceedings. Said right of eminent domain shall extend to lands or other property owned by the state or any municipality thereof. The title to any such lands, property or rights so acquired shall vest in the county in which situate for the benefit of such enterprise and said fund, but when said contract shall have terminated by lapse of time or for any other reason, then such title shall be held by such county independent of any claims whatsoever of the other county, but any material, equipment or other chattel property on hand shall be converted into money and the money divided between the two counties in the ratio of their respective contributions to the fund. The exercise of such rights of eminent domain or purchase shall rest in the joint control of the two boards of county commissioners. Such eminent domain proceedings shall be in the name of and had in the county where the property to be acquired is situate, provided if either county shall fail or refuse to institute and prosecute any condemnation proceedings when directed so to do by any legal meeting provided for in section 8145-5, such proceeding may be instituted and prosecuted by and in the name of the other county. The proceedings may conform to the provisions of sections 921 and 926, inclusive, of Remington and Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington, or to any general law now or hereafter enacted governing eminent domain proceedings by counties. The awards in and costs of such proceedings shall be payable out of such funds. The purposes in this act specified are hereby declared to be county purposes of each and both of such counties. [L. '13, p. 159, § 4.]

§ 8145-5. Joint County Meeting—Procedure.

When such a contract shall have been entered into and occasion shall arise for the joint action of the two boards of county commissioners whether such joint action is provided for in this act or otherwise desired upon any matter having relation to such contract or the prosecution of such improvement, such joint action may be secured by a notice calling a joint meeting signed by two county commissioners, designating the time and place in either county of such meeting, served by one of the two county auditors upon the remaining county commissioners at least seven days (exclusive of the date of service or mailing) prior to the time so designated. If the notice is signed by two county commissioners of the same county the place of meeting shall be at some place in the other county designated in the notice. Such service may be personal or by mail addressed to the member in care of the county auditor of his county. The six county commissioners may constitute a legal meeting without notice by being present together for that purpose. The auditor's certificate of such personal service or mailing, attached to a copy of the notice, shall be made a part of the records of the meeting and be competent proof of the fact. Except in the case hereinafter provided for, the presence of four of the county commissioners shall be necessary to constitute a legal meeting. Each meeting shall be presided over by one of those present selected by vote. The county auditor of the county wherein the meeting is held shall be secretary of the meeting, and shall make duplicate record of its proceedings, one of which, with his certificate thereon, shall be forwarded to the county auditor of the other county, and such record shall be a part of the record of the board of county commissioners of each county. A majority vote of those present at any legal meeting shall be determinative upon any question properly considered at the meeting, and shall be binding upon each county as if enacted or adopted by its own board of county commissioners separately, but no joint meeting whatsoever shall in any manner continue, extend, change, alter, modify or abrogate the contract when made or any of the terms and conditions contained therein. Each county commissioner shall be paid out of said fund in his own county all disbursements made by him for traveling and other expenses incurred in attending any joint meeting or in any way connected with the prosecution of the improvement. Any legal meeting shall have power to adjourn to another time and place. An adjourned meeting shall have all the powers of the meeting of which it is an adjournment, but shall have no power after the end of the thirtieth day following the date of the original meeting of which it is an adjournment. If the three county commissioners of either county shall fail to attend any two meetings consecutively called, the notice for the next succeeding meeting may be also served upon the special commissioner hereinafter provided for, and if he and three county commissioners attend pursuant to such notice the four shall constitute a legal meeting, but if he does not so attend and three county commissioners do attend, the same shall constitute a legal meeting: Provided, All notices calling a joint meeting shall specify distinctly and separately each question to be considered at said meeting; and it shall be unlawful to consider any question at such meeting or at any adjourned meeting thereof except those which have been distinctly and separately specified, except in cases where all six county commissioners are present or five county commissioners present are unanimous on the question, and in any action which may be taken on any question other than those specified in the notice shall be void and shall not be binding on either county, except in cases where all six county commissioners are present or the action was by unanimous vote of five county commissioners present at such meeting. [L. '13, p. 161, § 5.]

§ 8145-6. Special Commissioner—Duties.

When such a contract shall have been entered into there shall be designated at the first legal joint meeting, or adjournment thereof, held in each calendar year a special commissioner to serve as such until the first joint meeting held in the ensuing year. If such designation shall not be made at any such first annual meeting, the United States engineer in charge of the district in which such improvement is located shall be such special commissioner until the next succeeding first annual meeting. If a special commissioner shall for any reason fail to serve as such officer, or be removed by unanimous vote of any legal meeting, a successor to him may be chosen at any subsequent legal joint meeting during his term. Such special commissioner shall have power to attend and vote at any joint meeting in the following cases and none other, to wit: (1) In cases specially so provided in section 8145-5; (2) In any case where the vote of any such joint meeting shall stand equally divided upon any question arising under this act or such contract or in the prosecution of the work of improvement. The special commissioner shall have no voice or vote except upon questions on which the vote of the county commissioners is equally divided. The procedure in cases covered by the foregoing subdivision (2) of this section shall be substantially as follows: It shall be the duty of the secretary of the meeting at which the division shall occur, if the attendance of the special commissioner at that meeting is not secured, to forthwith transmit to the special commissioner written notice of the fact of disagreement and the question involved, and of the time and place to which the meeting shall have been adjourned or at which the question will recur. If there shall be no such adjournment of the meeting, or if the secretary shall not give such notice, any two commissioners may in the manner provided in section 8145-5 call a joint meeting for the consideration of the question in dispute, and in such event either county auditor may give such notice to the special commissioner. No informality in the mode of securing the attendance of the special commissioner shall invalidate the proceedings of or any vote taken at any meeting which he shall attend and which he is empowered to attend by the provisions of this act. The special commissioner shall receive, to be paid equally out of the two funds, his traveling and other expenses incurred in attending meetings or otherwise in connection with the work of improvement, and such compensation for his services as shall be fixed by the joint meeting which shall have selected him, or failing to be so fixed, his compensation shall be ten dollars per day of actual service. [L. '13, p. 162, § 6.]

§ 8145-7. Act not Exclusive.

Nothing in this act contained shall be construed to prevent any county which may be a party to such contract from further caring for any such river or the banks thereof, as authorized so to do by existing laws or by such laws as may be hereafter enacted, provided the rights of neither county, as fixed by contract, shall be impaired thereby. [L. '13, p. 164, § 7.]

§ 8145-8. Act Creates No Liability.

No legal claim of any kind or character whatsoever in favor of one county and against the other shall be based upon or created by the enactment hereof, except such as may arise when the contract herein provided for shall have been entered into. After such contract shall have been entered into, should any loss or damage be sustained by either county occasioned by the overflow of any such river, if caused by any act or omission to act of the other county, its officers or agents, or any other cause whatsoever, then such county so suffering or sustaining said loss shall not be entitled to recover therefor from the other county, nor shall any cause of action, legal or equitable, be based thereon: Provided, however, That if either county shall suffer loss or damage because of the failure or refusal of the other county to perform any such contract on its part to be performed, the injured county shall have a cause of action against the defaulting county to recover the same, but the limit of recovery for any loss or damage suffered in any one year shall not exceed the sum of ten thousand dollars, and any such recovery shall be limited to such special fund, and in no event be recoverable out of the general fund of such defaulting county. If any such loss or damage shall be liquidated in an amount by agreement or by judgment, the defaulting county shall increase its tax levy for said special fund for the ensuing year sufficiently to provide for such liquidated amount: And provided further, That either county may have any proper action in the courts to compel the performance of the contract or any duty imposed thereby or by this act. [L. '13, p. 164, § 8.]

§ 8145-9. Warrants may be Issued—Limit of Tax Levy.

When such a contract shall have been entered into, it shall be lawful to issue warrants upon said fund, though there be at the time of such issuance no money in the fund, but in such cases the aggregate of such warrants so issued in any year shall not exceed one-half the amount of the next annual tax levy required by such contract. Such warrants shall be stamped by the county treasurer when presented to him for payment, to bear interest at a certain rate thereafter until paid, such rate to be the then current rate as determined by the county auditor. [L. '13, p. 165, § 9.]

CHAPTER VI.

CANAL, HARBOR AND RIVER IMPROVEMENTS.

§ 8146.

Abutting upland owners on a navigable lake, who purchased the shore lands from the state after the state had granted to the United States the right to lower the waters of the lake, take subject to such right: Bilger v. State, 63 Wash. 457, 116 Pac. 19.

An act of the state legislature in aid of a ship canal, granting to the United States the right to lower the waters of a navigable lake, is the grant of an easement, rather than a mere revocable license: Bilger v. State, 63 Wash. 457, 116 Pac. 19.

A license by the state to the United States to lower the waters of a lake, in aid of the construction of a canal, is one coupled with an interest, and not revocable, where the United States made and expended appropriations for the work on the faith thereof: Bilger v. State, 63 Wash. 457, 116 Pac. 19.

The act of 1909, creating a special fund and appropriating moneys therefrom to be expended in the construction of the Lake Washington canal, theretofore authorized by other legislation, cannot be invoked by taxpayers as in any manner affecting the authority for the construction of the canal: Bilger v. State, 63 Wash. 457, 116 Pac. 19.

The intention of the federal government to undertake the work of constructing a ship canal within the requirements of a state act providing therefor is sufficiently shown by federal appropriations amounting to over two and a quarter millions of dollars for the purpose: Bilger v. State, 63 Wash. 457, 116 Pac. 19.

§ 8147-1. Joint Aid River and Harbor Improvements—Bonds—Election.

Whenever the board of county commissioners of any county of the first class of this state shall deem it for the interest of the county to engage in or to aid the United States of America, the state of Washington, or any adjoining county or any city of this state, or any of them, in construction, enlargement, improvement, modification, repair or operation of any harbor, canal, waterway, river channel, slip, dock, wharf, or other public improvement, or any of the same, for the purposes of commerce, navigation, sanitation and drainage, or any thereof, or to acquire or operate wharf sites, dock sites, or other properties, rights or interests, or any thereof, necessary or proper to be acquired or operated for public enjoyment of any such public improvement, and to incur indebtedness to meet the cost thereof and expenses connected therewith, and issue bonds of the county for the payment of such indebtedness, or any thereof, such county is hereby authorized and empowered, by and through its county commissioners, to engage in or aid in any such public work or works, operation or acquisition, as aforesaid, and to incur indebtedness for such purpose or purposes to an amount, which, together with the then existing indebtedness of such county, shall not exceed five per centum of the taxable value of the taxable property in said county, as shown by the last previous assessment-roll thereof for state and county purposes, and to issue the negotiable bonds of the county for all or any of such indebtedness and for the payment thereof, in the manner and form and as provided in sections 1846 to 1851, inclusive, of Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington, and other laws of this state which shall then be in force, and to make part or all of such payment in bonds or in moneys derived from sale or sales thereof, or partly in such bonds and partly in such money: Provided, That said commissioners shall have first submitted the question of incurring such indebtedness to the voters of the county at a general or special election, and three-fifths of the voters voting upon the question shall have voted in favor of incurring the same. [L. '11, p. 3, § 1.]

The above reference is to Remington and Ballinger's Code, §§ 5026-5028 and 5085-5091.

TIME FOR APPLICATION.—A proceeding by a county under Laws of 1895, page 142, to provide for the payment of expenses incurred in constructing a drainage ditch under the unconstitutional act of 1899, must be commenced within a reasonable time, and a delay of more than eleven years is unreasonable: Lewis County v. McCutcheon, 53 Wash. 367, 101 Pac. 1083.

A resolution for the submission of a county bond issue is not illegal as combining several purposes in the conjunctive and disjunctive, from the fact that it recites that the money is to be expended for the specified purposes and other rights and interests necessary to the improvement or of securing the drainage or public interests to be derived therefrom, where the other matters referred to were but details in carrying out the enterprise: Blaine v. Hamilton, 64 Wash. 353, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 577, 116 Pac. 1076.

An election to authorize a bond issue may be submitted to the voters of a county as a single proposition, requiring one affirmative or negative vote, although it is proposed to raise four specified sums for distinct parts of the project—(1) the excavation of a canal from waters to the north of a harbor, (2) the deepening of a river to the south of the harbor, (3) the diversion of the waters of another tributary river, and (4) the erection of wharves and docks in aid or furtherance of the improvement—where it appears that all four parts are related, and in fact one general project for the creation of a great harbor and the utilization and uniting of the waters in and about it: Blaine v. Hamilton, 64 Wash. 353, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 577, 116 Pac. 1076.

Laws of 1895, chapter 2, passed for the single purpose of permitting King County to condemn a right of way for the Lake Washington Canal, and granting the power of eminent domain, expressly limited to the purposes mentioned in the first section, cannot be extended by implication to authorize a county to exercise the right of eminent domain to acquire a public wharf or dock, under this section: State ex rel. Wauconda Investment Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 660, 124 Pac. 127.

§ 8147-2. County Purpose.

That any and every such purpose as is mentioned in the foregoing section is hereby declared to be a county purpose. [L. '11, p. 4, § 2.]

§ 8147-3. Voting Prior to This Act.

That, in case, at any special or general election, in any such county, the question of incurring any such indebtedness or issuing any such bonds has been submitted to the vote of the voters of such county at any time within one year next prior to the day when this act shall become a law and be in force, and the vote at such election was such as would have authorized, by sufficient majority of votes, the incurring of such indebtedness and the issuance of such bonds had this act been then in force, and such vote been taken pursuant to the provisions of this act, then, and in that case, such vote and all the proceedings in connection therewith had or taken, in manner and form aforesaid, be, and the same hereby are, validated and confirmed, and such county is authorized and empowered, by and through its county commissioners, to proceed with the matters of incurring such indebtedness and issuing such bonds, and payment of such indebtedness, by sale of such bonds, or otherwise, and with the matter of engaging or aiding in the construction or other public work or acquisition or operation, intended or contemplated in incurring such indebtedness, in substantially the same manner as in cases under section 8147-1. [L. '11, p. 5, § 3.]

A bond issue in a specified sum for deepening the channel of a river "along the lines" laid out by Commercial Waterway District No. 1, and in a specified sum for diverting the waters of a river "along lines" adopted by Commercial Waterway District No. 2, is not invalid as being in aid of such districts, and beyond the authority of this section: Blaine v. Hamilton, 64 Wash. 353, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 577, 116 Pac. 1076.

The resolutions and acts of Congress appropriating money to pay the cost of making investigations and preliminary surveys for the construction of the "Lake Washington Canal," upon the state's securing a right of way therefor for the benefit of the United States (which was done), with the proviso that nothing therein contained shall be construed as an adoption of the project, did not manifest any intention on the part of the United States to construct or operate the canal within a reasonable time, or at all, within the meaning of this section: State ex rel. Burke v. Board of Commrs., 58 Wash. 511, 109 Pac. 350.

CHAPTER VI-A.

PORT DISTRICTS.

§ 8165-1. Port Districts Authorized.

Port districts for the acquirement, construction, maintenance, operation, development and regulation of a system of harbor improvements and rail and water transfer and terminal facilities within such districts, are hereby authorized to be established in the various counties of this state, as in this act provided. [L. '11, p. 412, § 1.]

The port district act, Laws of 1911, page 412, authorizing the creation of port districts as municipal corporations, is not unconstitutional as creating municipal corporations not recognized by the constitution, there being no express constitutional prohibition against the creation of municipal corporations other than counties, cities, towns and school districts specifically named in the constitution, and the creation of municipal corporations being an inherent legislative power without express authority therefor; especially in view of the fact that the constitutional provisions respecting counties, cities, towns and school districts only regulate and do not expressly authorize their creation, and in view of constitution, article 8, section 6, referring to "other municipal corporations" than those specially mentioned: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

The port district act is not void in its entirety from the mere fact that the port district may, in whole or in part, occupy the same territory as, and be superimposed upon another municipal corporation or corporations limited by the constitution in the amount of the expenditures that may be incurred for improvements of the same nature; and a complaint questioning the validity of a port district and its proposed indebtedness is insufficient where it does not appear that the indebtedness proposed would, with the existing indebtedness of the other municipality, exceed the constitutional limit: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

A port district election is not invalidated by the failure to show that county commissioners designated the polling places "by resolution," where it appears that the clerk of the board made arrangements for the polling places, the board allowed and paid rent therefor, and a fair expression of the wishes of the voters was not interfered with; nor by the fact that no notice of the polling places was given, when the statute did not require notice, and there was no claim of fraud or unfairness: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

Irregularity in a port district election, in that in a few small towns no notice of opening the registration polls was given as required by section 4765, does not invalidate the election, where it appears that all but a few hundred voters in such town voted, and the vote carried by a majority of over nine thousand: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

A port district election is not invalidated by the failure of the ballots to conform strictly to the expressions prescribed by law, and the fact that they contained other matter, where the matter was explanatory and did not mislead, but rendered the question submitted clear and certain: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

A port district election is not invalidated by an irregularity in the canvassing of the votes, the canvass being made by the general election board instead of the county commissioners as required by the port district act, in the absence of an allegation that the canvass made was incorrect and changed the result: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

A port district covering an entire county is a municipal corporation having an independent existence with power to incur indebtedness on its own account up to the constitutional limitation, and its creation is not an abuse of the power of the legislature in that it was created to avoid the constitutional limitation of indebtedness of the municipal corporations upon whose territory it was superimposed, where they were created for entirely different purposes, and its chief object was to provide public terminal facilities for both sea and land commerce, although the municipalities upon which it was superimposed had somewhat similar powers respecting the acquisition of such facilities: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

The port district act not providing the rate of interest that the commission may authorize on bonds sold, the commission will not be enjoined from selling at a discount bonds drawing four and one-half per cent interest, the limit specified in the resolution calling the election, where it is not alleged that the discount allowed will make usurious interest, the general powers of the commission clearly including the power to regulate the rate of interest, and there being nothing in the resolution respecting the rate at which the bonds should be sold: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

§ 8165-2. Formation of District.

At any general election or at any special election which may be called for that purpose, the board of county commissioners of any county in this state may, or on petition of ten per cent of the qualified electors of such county based on the total vote cast in the last general county election, shall, by resolution, submit to the voters of such county the proposition of creating a port district which shall be coextensive with the limits of such county as now or hereafter established. Such petition shall be filed with the county auditor, who shall within fifteen (15) days examine the signatures thereof and certify to the sufficiency or insufficiency thereof, and for such purpose the county auditor shall have access to all registration books in the possession of the officers of any incorporated city or town in such proposed port district. If such petition be found to be insufficient, it shall be returned to the persons filing the same, who may amend or add names thereto for ten days, when the same shall be returned to the county auditor, who shall have an additional fifteen (15) days to examine the same and attach his certificate thereto. No person having signed such petition shall be allowed to withdraw his name therefrom after the filing of the same with the county auditor. Whenever such petition shall be certified to as sufficient, the county auditor shall forthwith transmit the same, together with his certificate of sufficiency attached thereto, to the board of county commissioners, who shall submit such proposition at the next general election or, if such petition so requests, the board of county commissioners shall, at their first meeting after the date of such certificate, by resolution, call a special election to be held not less than thirty (30) days nor more than sixty (60) days from the date of such certificate. The notice of election shall state the boundaries of the proposed port district and the object of such election. In submitting the said question to the voters for their approval or rejection, the proposition shall be expressed on said ballot substantially in the following terms:

“Port of —, Yes.” (giving the name of the principal seaport city within such proposed port district, or if there be more than one city of the same class within such district, such name as may be determined by the board of county commissioners).

“Port of —, No.” (giving the name of the principal seaport city within such port district, or if there be more than one city of the same class within such district, such name as may be determined by the board of county commissioners).

Any petition for the formation of a port district may describe a district of less area than the county in which such petition is filed, and in such event the county commissioners shall fix a date for hearing on such petition and publish a notice of such hearing for two weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in such county, after which hearing the county commissioners may increase or diminish the boundaries of such proposed port district and thereafter the same procedure shall be followed as is prescribed in this act for the formation of the larger port district, except that the petition and election shall be confined solely to the lesser port district: And provided, That whenever two or more petitions for the formation of a port district shall be filed as herein provided, the petition describing the greater area shall supersede all others and an election shall first be held thereunder, and no lesser port district shall ever be created within the limits, in whole or in part, of any port district. [L. '11, p. 412, § 2; L. '13, p. 202, § 1.]

§ 8165-3. Powers of Commissioners.

Within five (5) days after such election the board of county commissioners shall canvass the returns, and if at such election a majority of the voters voting upon such proposition shall vote in favor of the formation of such district, the board of county commissioners shall so declare in its canvass of the returns of such election, and such port district shall then be and become a municipal corporation of the state of Washington and the name of such port district shall be "Port of ——" (inserting the name appearing on the ballot). The powers of the port district shall be exercised through a port commission consisting of three members, one from each of the three county commissioner districts of the county in which the port district is located, when the port district is coextensive with the limits of such county. When the port district comprises only a portion of the county, three commissioner districts, numbered consecutively, having approximately equal population and boundaries following ward and precinct lines, shall be described in the petition for the formation of the port district, and one commissioner shall be elected from each of said commissioner districts. No person shall be eligible to hold the office of port commissioner unless he is a qualified voter, a freeholder within such port district, and is and has been a resident for a period of three (3) years, except as hereinafter provided, of the commissioner district from which he is elected. Port commissioners shall hold office for a term of three (3) years and until their respective successors are elected and qualified, each term to commence on the second Monday in January following the election thereto. At the same election at which the proposition is submitted to the voters as to whether a port district shall be formed, three (3) commissioners shall be elected to hold office, respectively, for the term of one, two and three years. All candidates shall be voted upon by the entire port district, and the candidate residing in commissioner district number one receiving the highest number of votes in the port district shall hold office for the term of three (3) years; and the candidate residing in commissioner district number two receiving the highest number of votes in the port district shall hold office for the term of two (2) years, and the candidate residing in commissioner district number three receiving the highest number of votes in the port district shall hold office for the term of one (1) year, each of said terms to date from the second Monday in January following the election, but also to include the period intervening between the election and the second Monday in January following. All expenses of elections for the formation of such port districts shall be paid by the county holding such election, and such expenditure is hereby declared to be for a county purpose, and the money paid out for such purpose shall be repaid to such county by the port district, if formed. Nominations for port commissioners at the first special election and at subsequent general elections shall be by petition of one hundred (100) qualified electors of the commissioner district in which the candidate is a resident, to be filed in the office of the county auditor at least twenty (20) days prior to such election: Provided, however, That there shall be no election held on the first Saturday in December immediately following the creation of such port district: And provided further, That in the event of a vacancy in the office of port commissioner by death, resignation or otherwise, such vacancy shall be filled at the next general election, the vacancy in the interim to be filled by appointment by a majority vote of the remaining port commissioners. In the event that such ad interim appointment shall not be made by the remaining commissioners within fifteen (15) days following the occurrence of the vacancy, the appointment shall be made by the judge of the superior court of the county, and if there is more than one such judge, by such judge who is oldest in years: Provided, That if there be more than three such judges, the appointment shall be made by the three persons holding such office who are the oldest in service therein (in determining seniority, the oldest in years being hereby designated where length of service is equal), and if any one or more of those herein designated shall be unable or shall decline to act, the three shall be made up from the one or more next in seniority of service who are able to act and do not decline. Of the three persons so designated, the appointment made in writing by any two shall be valid. If there should be at the same time such number of vacancies that there are not in office a majority of the full number of commissioners fixed by law, a special election shall be called to fill the same, by the remainder, or, that failing, by the board of county commissioners of the county, such election to be held not more than forty (40) days after the occurring of such vacancies. A vacancy in the office of port commissioner shall occur by death, resignation, removal, conviction of a felony, nonattendance at meetings of the port commission for a period of sixty (60) days unless excused by the port commission, by any statutory disqualification, or by any permanent disability preventing the proper discharge of his duty.

All the foregoing provisions of this section are subject to the following provisos: That in any port district which has a population of more than eighty thousand as shown by the last official census of the United States, the port commission shall, provided the proposition for a commission of five members is adopted at an election as hereinafter provided, consist of five members, one from each of the three commissioner districts of the port district as hereinbefore prescribed, and two commissioners at large elected from the port district without regard to residence in commissioner districts. The two commissioners at large must have been residents of the port district for three years and shall be nominated and elected at the same time and in the same manner as the other commissioners except that the petition for their nomination may be signed by qualified electors residing in any part of the port district, and on the petition for the nomination and on the ballot the names of the candidates shall be designated as commissioners at large. The question of the number of commissioners shall be submitted at the first general election after the organization of any port district having said population of more than eighty thousand, or, in the case of any port district already established and having said population, then at the general election in December, 1913, or at any prior election called for some other purpose. There shall be printed on the ballot the words "In favor of a port commission of five members," and the words "Against a port commission of five members," so that every voter shall be enabled to vote for or against the proposition of increasing the number of commissioners to five. If at such election a majority of the voters voting on said proposition, shall vote in favor of a port commission of five members, then said proposition shall be thereby adopted and from and after five days after such election, if it be a general election, otherwise from and after five days after the next general election, the port commission shall consist of five members by the addition of two commissioners at large as hereinbefore provided, but if said proposition shall fail to receive the approval of a majority of the voters voting thereon, the port commission shall continue to consist of three members only. If the proposition shall have carried at a special election, at the next general election, or if submitted at a general election, then at the same general election the names of candidates for commissioners at large shall be printed on the ballot and shall be voted on, but in the latter case the election of commissioners at large shall be contingent upon the adoption of the proposition for a port commission of five members. If such proposition shall have been or shall be adopted, the two candidates for commissioner at large who receive the highest number of votes in the port district shall be elected, and of these two the candidate receiving the higher number of votes shall hold office for the term of three years, and the other shall hold office for the term of two years from the second Monday in January following, and in addition thereto both shall hold office for the period which begins five days after their election and extends to the commencement of the term on said second Monday in January. When the term of office of any commissioner at large shall be about to expire, his successor shall be elected at the general port district election next preceding the expiration of such term, and such successor shall hold office for the term of three years from the second Monday in January following. A majority of the persons holding the office of port commissioner at any time shall constitute a quorum of the port commission for the transaction of business, and the concurrence of a majority of the persons holding such office at the time shall be necessary and shall be sufficient for the passage of any resolution, but no business shall be transacted unless there are in office at least a majority of the full number of commissioners fixed by law. [L. '11, p. 414, § 3; L. '13, p. 204, § 2.]

§ 8165-3½. Elections.

A general election shall be held on the first Saturday in December of each year for the election of a port commissioner or commissioners and for the submission of propositions, and special elections shall be held at such times and for such purposes as the port commission may by resolution prescribe, subject to the limitations and pursuant to the requirements of this act. All elections shall be called and held as in this section provided except as in this act otherwise expressly provided. All notices of election shall be given by publishing the same for a period of ten days in a daily newspaper of general circulation published in said port district, or, if there is no daily newspaper published therein, then in at least two issues of a weekly newspaper published in said port district, such publication to be made within a period of twenty (20) days immediately preceding such election; and by posting, for at least ten (10) days prior to the date of election, a written or printed notice of such election in each polling place within such port district. The published notice shall give the time of holding the election, the hours the polls will remain open, the officer or officers to be elected, and a statement of the propositions to be submitted, and the posted notices shall, in addition, give the location of the polling places.

There shall be not less than one polling place in each of the various wards of any incorporated city within such port district, and one polling place within each precinct of each port district not within the limits of any incorporated city. It shall be the duty of the county commissioners in the formation of a port district, and of the port commission in all subsequent elections, to, at least twenty (20) days before each election, designate the polling places and appoint three election officers for each place of voting. At all elections the vote shall be by ballot. The polls shall be open between such hours of the day as the commission shall designate, but in every case the polls shall be open between 1 o'clock P. M. and 8 o'clock P. M. All electors who are, at the time of such election, duly qualified to vote within their respective precincts under the general election laws for state and county officers shall be entitled to vote at any election held in such port district.

Officers of the city and county having charge of the registration books of any city or precinct in a port district shall deliver the same for the use of the election officers at all port elections. In the event of such registration books being required by law to be used by any school district or other public corporation at the same time as the use thereof will be necessary by the port district, such books shall be delivered to the port commission and school district or other public corporation jointly, and the same polling places and registration books may be used jointly in such cases, and the same individuals may serve as election officers for all such joint elections, and in such cases the compensation of such election officers and other expense shall be so divided that the port district shall bear only its proportionate share thereof.

The manner of conducting and voting at elections under this act, opening and closing of polls, keeping of poll lists, canvassing the votes, declaring the result, and certifying the returns, shall be the same as provided by the general election laws governing the election of state and county officers, except as otherwise provided in this act.

Immediately after the closing of the polls the election officers shall then and there, without removing the ballot-box from the place where the ballots were cast, proceed to count the votes, and as soon as such count is completed a return thereof shall be signed by such election officers and securely enveloped and sealed and delivered, together with the ballot-box containing the ballots, to the port commission, or some person delegated to receive the same on their behalf.

Within five days after the election, the port commission shall meet and proceed to canvass the returns of such election, and shall thereupon declare the result. [L. '13, p. 208, § 3.]

§ 8165-4. Powers of District.

All port districts organized under the provisions of this act shall be and are hereby authorized to acquire by purchase or condemnation, or both, all lands, property, property rights, leases, or easements necessary for the purposes of the port districts, and to exercise the right of eminent domain in the acquirement or damaging of all land, property, property rights, leases or easements, and the levying and collection of assessments upon property for the payment of all damages and compensation in carrying out the provisions for which said district shall have been created, and such right shall be exercised in the same manner and by the same procedure as is or may be provided by law for cities of the first class, except in so far as such may be inconsistent with the provisions of this act, and the duties devolving upon the city treasurer under said law be and the same are hereby imposed upon the county treasurer for the purposes of this act; and to lay out, construct, condemn, purchase, acquire, add to, maintain, conduct and operate any and all systems of seawalls, jetties, wharves, docks, ferries, canals, locks, tidal basins and other harbor improvements, rail and water transfer and terminal facilities within such port district; to establish local improvement districts within such port districts, and to levy special assessments under the mode of annual installments extending over a period not exceeding ten (10) years on all property specially benefited by any local improvement, on the basis of special benefits, to pay, in whole or in part, the damages or costs of any improvements ordered in such local improvement district; to issue local improvement bonds in any such local improvement district to be repaid by the collection of local improvement assessments: Provided, That the levying and collection of all such assessments and issuance of bonds hereby authorized shall be in the manner now and hereafter provided by state law for the levying and collection of local improvement assessments and the issuance of local improvement bonds by cities of the first class, in so far as the same shall not be inconsistent with the provisions of this act: Provided, however, That the duties devolving upon the city treasurer under said laws be, and the same are hereby, imposed upon the county treasurer for the purposes of this act; and to own and control lands, leases and all easements in land necessary for the purposes of the port district; to improve navigable and non-navigable waters of the United States and the state of Washington within the port district; to create and improve for harbor purposes new waterways within the port district; to regulate and control all such waters and all natural or artificial waterways (waterways of commercial waterway districts excepted) within the limits of such port district so far and to the full extent that this state can grant the same, and remove obstructions therefrom; to straighten, widen, deepen and otherwise improve any and all waters, watercourses, bays, lakes or streams, whether navigable or otherwise, flowing through or located within the boundaries of such port district; to fix absolutely and without right of appeal or review the rates of wharfage, dockages, warehousing and port and terminal charges upon all improvements owned and operated directly by the port district itself, and ferry charges of ferries operated by itself: Provided, however, That the port commission shall file with the public service commission of the state of Washington its schedule of rates and charges so fixed, as is required by the laws of the state of Washington of public service corporations, and may not change any rate or charge so filed without first filing a notice of such change of rate or charge with the public service commission not less than thirty days prior to the going into effect of such change of rate or charge, and to fix, subject to state regulation rates of wharfage, dockage, warehousing and all necessary port and terminal charges upon all docks, wharves, warehouses, quays, or piers owned by said port district but operated under lease from it, to execute leases of all lands, wharves, docks and property owned and controlled by said port district upon such terms as the port commission may deem proper: Provided, That no lease shall be executed for a period longer than thirty (30) years, and every such lease shall be secured by a bond, with surety satisfactory to the port commission, in a penalty not less than the rental for one-sixth of the term, but in no case less than the rental for one year where the term is one year or more, conditioned to carry out and perform the terms and conditions of such lease: Provided, That in any lease the term of which exceeds five (5) years, and when so stipulated in the lease (the insertion of such stipulation to be discretionary with the port commission) the port commission shall accept, with surety satisfactory to the port commission, a bond conditioned to carry out and perform the terms and conditions of the lease for some part of the term, in no event less than five years (unless the remainder of the unexpired term is less than five years, in which case for the full remainder), and in every such case the port commission shall require of the lessee another or other like bond to be executed and delivered within two years, and not less than one year prior to the expiration of the period covered by the existing bond, covering an additional part of the term in accordance with the foregoing provisions in respect to the original bond, and so on until the end of the term, so that there will always be in force a bond securing the performance of the terms and conditions of the lease, and the penalty in every such bond shall be not less than the rental for one-half the period covered thereby, but no such bond shall be construed to secure the furnishing of any other bond; to sell and convey any property in any wise acquired or owned by the port district whenever the port commission of such district shall have by resolution declared such property to be no longer needed for the purpose of the port district, but no property which is a part of the comprehensive scheme or modification thereof adopted by vote of the people shall be sold or disposed of without the assent of a majority of the voters voting on the question of such proposed sale or disposition at a general or special election; to raise revenue by levy of an annual tax on all taxable property within such port district, not exceeding two mills in any one year: Provided, That such levy shall be made and taxes collected in the manner now or hereafter provided by law for the levy and collection of taxes in school districts of the first class; to borrow money and issue bonds in an amount not exceeding three (3) per cent of the taxable value of all property in such port district, upon a three-fifths majority vote of the qualified voters in such port district voting thereon. General bonds of any such district may be issued for any period not exceeding fifty (50) years. [L. '11, p. 418, § 4; L. '13, p. 210, § 4.]

An election to authorize the incurring of indebtedness by a port district is not invalidated in that the debt exceeded the statutory limit of two and one-half per cent of the assessed valuation of property within the district, where it appears that eight distinct propositions were voted on, and the aggregate indebtedness for all the propositions, exclusive of the last one, was within the limitation, and no other debt was contemplated or threatened; and the last proposition was separate from and additional to the others and contingent and expressly conditioned upon the event that, at some future time, the district should have the necessary legal authority and right to incur the indebtedness: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

As to right of municipality to contract for periodical payments throughout term of years, where aggregate would exceed debt limit, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1177.

The submission of the question of incurring indebtedness by a port district under section 4 of the act of 1911 is authorized after the adoption of the "comprehensive scheme" provided for in section 6, and prior to the adoption of the "detail plans" provided for in section 9: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

Section 4 of the act of 1911, empowering a port district to acquire or construct systems of seawalls, jetties, wharves, docks, ferries, canals, locks, tidal basins and other rail and water transfer and terminal facilities, and to issue local improvement bonds to pay for the same, contains a seeming inconsistency in also providing that no bonds shall ever be issued for the acquiring of any "dock or wharf" until such dock or wharf has been leased upon terms which will produce a net income sufficient to pay the bonds at maturity and the interest thereon, in view of the requirement in section 6 of the preliminary adoption of a comprehensive plan or scheme of the entire system; and such limitation as to docks and wharves can have no application, where a comprehensive scheme has been adopted, as required by section 6, in which there is no possibility of separating the earnings of the dock or wharf from the earnings of the other facilities making up the entire system; and hence it must be construed to apply only where a dock or wharf is acquired separately or together without the other facilities: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

§ 8165-5. Port Commissioners—Organization—Contracts.

All port commissioners shall serve without compensation. The port commission shall organize by the election from its own members of a president and secretary, shall by resolution adopt rules governing the transaction of its business and shall adopt an official seal. All proceedings of the port commission shall be by resolution recorded in a book or books kept for such purpose, which shall be public records. All funds of the port district shall be paid to the county treasurer, and all disbursements shall be made by such officer on warrants drawn by the county auditor upon order of or vouchers approved by the port commission. The port commission shall have authority to create and fill such positions and fix salaries and bonds thereof as it may by resolution provide. All materials required by the port district may be purchased in the open market or by contract, and all work ordered may be let by contract or done by day labor as the port commission may determine. Before awarding any contract the port commission shall cause to be published in some newspaper published within the district a notice for at least ten days before the letting of such contract, inviting sealed proposals for such work, plans and specifications for which must at the time of publication of such notice be on file in the office of the port commission subject to public inspection: Provided, however, That the port commission may at the same time, and as a part of the same notice, invite tenders for said work or materials upon plans and specifications to be submitted by the bidder. Such notice shall state generally the work to be done and shall call for proposals for doing the same to be sealed and filed with the commission on or before the day and hour named. Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified check payable to the order of the port commission for a sum not less than five per cent of the amount of the bid, and no bid shall be considered unless accompanied by such check. At the time and place named such bids shall be publicly opened and read and the commission shall proceed to canvass the bids and may let such contract to the lowest responsible bidder upon plans and specifications on file, or to the best bidder submitting his own plans and specifications. If, in the opinion of the commission, all bids are unsatisfactory, they may reject all of them and readvertise, and in such case all checks shall be returned to the bidders; but if such contract be let, then and in such case all checks shall be returned to the bidders, except that of the successful bidder, which shall be retained until a contract shall be entered into for the purchase of such materials or doing such work, and a bond given to the port district for the performance of the contract and otherwise conditioned as required by law, with sureties satisfactory to the commissioners, in an amount to be fixed by the commission, but not in any event less than twenty-five (25) per cent of the contract price. If said bidder fails to enter into said contract in accordance with said bid and furnish such bond within ten days from the date at which he is notified that he is the successful bidder, the said check and the amount thereof shall be forfeited to the port district. [L. '11, p. 420, § 5; L. '13, p. 214, § 5.]

§ 8165-6. Adoption of Harbor Improvement Plans.

It shall be the duty of the port commission of any port district, before creating any improvements hereunder, to adopt a comprehensive scheme of harbor improvement in such port district, after a public hearing thereon, of which at least ten days' notice shall be published in a daily newspaper of general circulation in such port district, and no expenditure for the carrying on of any harbor improvements shall be made by said port commission other than the necessary salaries, including engineers, clerical and office expense of such port district, and the cost of engineering, surveying, preparation and collection of data necessary for the making and adoption of a general scheme of harbor improvements in such port district, unless and until such comprehensive scheme of harbor improvement has been so officially adopted by the port commission and ratified by a majority vote of the people of such port district voting thereon in favor thereof at an election which shall be held for such purpose. [L. '11, p. 422, § 6; L. '13, p. 215, § 6.]

§ 8165-7. Improvement to Follow Plans Adopted.

When such general plans shall have been adopted or approved, as aforesaid, every improvement to be made by said commission shall be made substantially in accordance therewith unless and until such general plans shall have been changed by a majority vote of the qualified electors of the port district voting thereon at an election held for such purpose. [L. '11, p. 423, § 7; L. '13, p. 216, § 7.]

§ 8165-8. Improvements—Ownership of.

No improvements shall be acquired or constructed, by the port district, unless such improvements shall, when completed, be the property of such port district, the county in which such port district is located, any commercial waterway district created within its boundaries, any city within such port district, the state of Washington or the United States of America, and the funds of such port district may be expended in the acquirement or construction of any harbor improvement embraced in such general plan adopted as in this act provided in conjunction with the county in which such port district is located, any commercial waterway district created within its boundaries, any city in such port district, the state of Washington or the United States of America, or all or any of them. [L. '11, p. 423, § 8; L. '13, p. 216, § 8.]

§ 8165-9.

Repealed. See L. '13, p. 217, § 9.

Section 9 of the act of 1911, requiring the port commission to adopt detailed plans and an estimate of the expense of the proposed improvement and submit the same to the voters, as a prerequisite to the incurring of indebtedness, is satisfied by the adoption of plans that fairly inform the voters of the nature and extent of the proposed improvement, and it is not essential that plans be adopted in such detail as necessary for the final construction of the improvement: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

A resolution of a port district commission for the issuance and sale of bonds, providing that the net income shall be applied to the payment of principal and interest on the bonds from year to year, and a tax levied annually for support to pay the balance of the interest and bonds annually maturing, does not constitute the levy of a tax, but is nothing more than a pledge that the tax will be levied to make up any deficiency in the income: Paine v. Port of Seattle, 70 Wash. 294, 126 Pac. 628, 127 Pac. 580.

§ 8165-10. Local Improvements upon Majority Petition.

Whenever a petition signed by one hundred (100) freeholders in the district to be therein described, shall be filed with the port commission, asking that any portion of the general plan adopted be ordered, and defining the boundaries of a local improvement district to be assessed in whole or in part to pay the cost thereof, it shall be the duty of the port commission to fix a date for hearing on such petition, after which it may alter the boundaries of such proposed district and prepare and adopt detail plans of any such local improvement, declare the estimated cost thereof, what proportion of such cost shall be borne by such proposed local improvement district, and what proportion of the cost if any, but in any event not to exceed fifty per cent, shall be borne by the entire port district. At any time within two years thereafter, upon petition of the owners of a majority of the lands in such proposed local improvement district, fixed by the port commission, as shown in the office of the auditor of such county, asking that such improvement be ordered, the port commission shall forthwith by resolution order such improvement, provide the general funds of the port district to be applied thereto, acquire all lands necessary therefor, pay all damages caused thereby, and commence in the name of the port district such eminent domain proceedings and supplemental assessment or reassessment proceedings to pay all eminent domain awards as may be necessary to entitle said port district to proceed with such work, and shall thereafter proceed with such work, and shall make and file with the county treasurer its roll levying special assessments in the amount to be paid by special assessment against the property situated within such local improvement district in proportion to the special benefits to be derived by the property in such local improvement district from such improvement. Before the approval of such roll a notice shall be published ten (10) days in one or more daily newspapers of general circulation in such local improvement district, stating that such roll is on file and open to inspection in the office of the clerk of the port commission, and fixing a time not less than fifteen (15) nor more than thirty (30) days from the date of the first publication of such notice within which protests must be filed with the clerk of said port commission against any assessments shown thereon, and fixing a time when a hearing shall be held by said commission on said protests. After such hearing the port commission may alter any and all assessments shown on such roll and may then by resolution approve the same, but in the event of any assessment being raised a new notice similar to such first notice shall be given, after which final approval of such roll may be made by the port commission. Any person feeling aggrieved by any such assessments shall perfect an appeal to the superior court of such county within ten (10) days after such approval in the manner now provided by law for appeals from assessments levied by cities of the first class in this state. Engineering and office expenses in all cases shall be borne by the general district. [L. '11, p. 424, § 10.]

§ 8165-11. Fifty Per Cent of Cost Paid from General Fund.

Whenever any improvement shall be ordered, payment for which shall be made in part from assessments against property specially benefited, not more than fifty (50) per cent of the cost thereof shall ever be borne by the entire port district, nor shall any sum be contributed by it to any improvement acquired or constructed with or by any other body, exceed such amount, unless a majority vote of the electors of the port district shall consent to or ratify the making of such expenditure. [L. '11, p. 425, § 11.]

§ 8165-12. Funds in Anticipation of Revenues.

Any port commission is hereby authorized, prior to the receipt of taxes raised by levy, to borrow money or issue the warrants of the district in anticipation of the revenues to be derived by such district from the levy of taxes for the purpose of such district during the first year, and such warrants shall be redeemed from the first money available from such taxes when collected. [L. '11, p. 426, § 12.]

§ 8165-13. County Treasurer—Funds.

The county treasurer shall create a fund to be known as the "Port of — Fund," into which shall be paid all money received by him from the collection of taxes in behalf of such port district, and no money shall be disbursed therefrom except upon warrants of the county auditor issued as in this act provided. The county treasurer shall also maintain such other special funds as may be prescribed by the port commission, into which shall be placed such moneys as the port commission may by its resolution direct, and from which disbursements shall be made upon proper warrants of the county auditor issued against the same by authority of the port commission. [L. '11, p. 426, § 13.]

§ 8165-14. Cumulative Act.

CHAPTER VII.
COMMERCIAL WATERWAYS.

§ 8166.

This section is void in that it directs an assessment to be made on the lands benefited, but no person or board is authorized to make the assessment, and no provision is made for an assessment-roll or equalization of the same, and the owners are given no notice or opportunity to be heard; and the provisions therein for a jury to assess the damages for land taken cannot be construed as authorizing the jury to assess the benefits: State ex rel. Bussell v. Abraham, 61 Wash. 601, 112 Pac. 671.

As to the validity of eminent domain statute which fails to provide for notice to land owner of proceedings to condemn, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913A, 1256.

§ 8166a. Organization—Powers and Duties of Commissioners.

Any county or portion of a county requiring commercial waterways may be organized into a commercial waterway district, and when so organized such district, and the board of commissioners hereinafter provided for, shall have and possess the power herein conferred, or that may hereafter be conferred by law upon such district and board of commissioners, and said district shall be known and designated as commercial waterway district No. — of the county of —, the state of Washington, and shall have the right to sue and be sued by and in the name of its board of commissioners hereinafter provided for, and shall have perpetual succession, and shall adopt and use a seal.

The commissioners hereinafter provided for, and their successors in office, shall, from the time of the organization of such commercial waterway district, have the power, and it shall be their duty to manage and conduct the business and affairs of the district; make and execute all necessary contracts, employ and appoint such agents, officers and employees as may be required, and prescribe their duties, and perform such other acts as hereinafter provided, or that may hereafter be provided by law. [L. '11, p. 12, § 1.]

Laws of 1911, page 11, providing for the organization of commercial waterway districts, prescribing the duties and powers of the commissioners and the court procedure, being a general act, applicable alike to all citizens upon the same terms, it is not unconstitutional as a special or private law or granting special privileges to a class of citizens: State ex rel. Puget Mill Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 425, 123 Pac. 791.

As to the validity or invalidity of special statutes according to its aim and effect, see note in 93 Am. St. Rep. 111.

The commercial waterway district law (section 8166 et seq.) having been declared unconstitutional because of its failure to provide lawful means for levying the assessments authorized, it was competent for the legislature, by retroactive acts (section 8166a et seq.), to legalize and validate attempted organizations and all district indebtedness under the old law, except assessments, and to add provisions curing defects in the old law by virtue of which lawful assessments could thereafter be made, since it does not impair the obligation of a contract: State ex rel. Bussell v. Abraham, 64 Wash. 621, 117 Pac. 501.

As to retrospective laws, see note in 120 Am. St. Rep. 468.

As to general rule against construing statute so as to give it a retrospective effect, see notes in 10 L. R. A. 407; 12 L. R. A. 50.

As to retroactive law legalizing municipal contracts, see note in 27 L. R. A. 696.

This act does not limit the power of the commissioners in establishing a district as to the exact work to be done, since the act authorizes the commissioners to improve any and all rivers . . . located within the district and to initiate definite improvements without limitation by the brief description in the petition: State ex rel. Puget Mill Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 425, 123 Pac. 791.

Under this section, giving a commercial waterway district the right to sue and be sued in the name of its board of commissioners, the commissioners may institute condemnation proceedings in their own name for the construction of a waterway: State ex rel. Puget Mill Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 425, 123 Pac. 791.

The act of 1911, page 11, providing for the organization of commercial waterway districts, prescribing the powers and duties of the commissioners, and the court procedure is not unconstitutional as embracing more than one subject, the act being sufficiently broad to embrace all matters included, which are all germane to the general subject: State ex rel. Puget Mill Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 425, 123 Pac. 791.

A provision authorizing a railroad company to condemn property is germane to the title "An act to provide for the formation of corporations," and does not violate the organic act which provides that every law shall embrace but one subject, to be expressed in the title: State ex rel. Great Northern R. Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 572, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 793, 123 Pac. 996.

As to effect where title of statute embraces more than one subject, see note in 79 Am. St. Rep. 456.

§ 8167a. Petition, Contents and Requisites of—Cost Bond.

For the purpose of the formation of such waterway district a petition shall be presented to and filed with the board of county commissioners of the county in which said proposed commercial waterway district is located, which petition shall set forth the object for the creation of said district; shall designate the boundaries thereof and set forth therein the area of land to be benefited by the proposed commercial waterway system, and shall also contain the names of all freeholders residing within said proposed district, so far as known, and shall contain a brief description of the proposed system of waterways, route over which the same is to be constructed, together with the proposed spurs or branches, if any there may be, and the termini thereof, and set forth the further fact that the establishment of said district and the proposed system of commercial waterways will be of special benefit to the property included therein, and will be conducive to the public health and sanitation and increase the public revenue. Said petition shall be signed by the owners of at least a majority of the area of land in the proposed district, or by their agents, and shall pray that the same may be organized under the provisions of this act. Said petitioners shall at the time of the filing of said petition file a bond with such county commissioners, running to the state of Washington, in the penal sum of five hundred dollars, with two or more sureties, to be approved by the board of county commissioners, conditioned that they will pay all costs in case said district, for any reason, shall not be established. [L. '11, p. 12, § 2.]

§ 8168a. Hearing, Notice of—Objections—Extension of Boundaries.

Said petition shall be heard at a regular or special meeting of the board of county commissioners of said county, and said board of county commissioners shall give notice of said hearing by publishing such notice for at least two weeks in two successive issues of some weekly newspaper printed and published in said county, and in case no such newspaper be printed or published in said county, then in some such newspaper of general circulation therein, before the time at which the same is to be heard. Said notice shall give a general description of the nature of the improvement petitioned for, the boundaries and approximate area of the proposed district, the number of freeholders residing therein, so far as known, as shown by said petition, the number of petitioners on said petition, together with the total estimated amount of acreage represented to be owned by said petitioners. Said notice shall further state that said petition is on file at the office of said county commissioners, where the same may be examined or inspected by any person interested in said proposed district. When such petition is presented for hearing, the board of county commissioners shall hear the same, or may adjourn said hearing from time to time, not exceeding one month in all; and any person or corporation may appear before said board of county commissioners and make objections to the establishment of said district, or the proposed boundary lines thereof, and upon a final hearing said board of county commissioners shall make such changes in the proposed boundaries as they may deem to be proper, and shall establish and define such boundaries, and shall ascertain and determine the area of land that will be benefited by said proposed system of commercial waterways, and shall find whether the proposed commercial waterways will be conducive to the public health, sanitation, welfare and convenience, increase the public revenue, and be of special benefit to the majority of the land included within said boundaries of said proposed district so established by said board of county commissioners: Provided, That no changes shall be made by said board of county commissioners in said boundary lines so as to include territory outside of the boundaries described in said petition: Provided further, That any person or corporation owning lands within the proposed boundaries and who did not sign said petition, or any person, or corporation owning land not included within the proposed boundaries may file a petition with the board of county commissioners asking that the proposed boundaries be extended so as to include other lands described therein; setting forth in said petition the reason therefor, but no person, persons or corporations not owning land included within the boundaries, as originally petitioned for, shall have the right to file such petition unless they ask therein to have their own lands included within the proposed boundaries: Provided, Any corporation owning land within the boundaries described in the original petition may also petition the board of county commissioners for an extension of the proposed boundaries: Provided further, That the boundaries of any commercial waterway district heretofore or hereafter established may be extended by the board of county commissioners so as to include other lands in said county, upon petition signed by the owners of a majority of the area of said lands in the proposed extension; which said petition for extension shall set forth and contain, with reference to the extension, such matters and things and data so far as applicable, as is provided for in the petition required for presentation to the board of county commissioners for the purpose of the formation of the original waterway district: Provided further, That all necessary expenses incident to making such extension, together with the proportionate share of the first cost of any system of commercial waterways existing in the original commercial waterway district at the time of making said extension, shall be levied against and apportioned to the land included in such extension as in this act provided. In such case, the board of county commissioners shall give like notice as provided for in this section of the hearing of the original petition, and the final hearing thereof may in such case be continued from time to time for a period of not exceeding sixty days, and if on final hearing the board of county commissioners deem it advisable and for the best interest of all concerned, they may grant the prayer of said petitioners in whole or in part, and said board of county commissioners of such county shall enter an order on the records of their office setting forth all facts found by them upon the final hearing of said petition, and which may be adduced by them from the evidence heard upon the final hearing thereof. [L. '11, p. 13, § 3.]

§ 8169a. Notice of Election, Requisites of—Commissioners.

Upon the entry of the findings of the final hearing of said petition as set forth in the last preceding section, said board of county commissioners of said county, if they find said proposed system of commercial waterways will be of special benefit to the majority of the area of lands included within said boundaries and will be conducive to the public health, sanitation, welfare and convenience, and will increase public revenue, shall give notice of an election to be held in such proposed commercial waterway district for the purpose of determining whether the same shall be organized under the provisions of this act as a commercial waterway district of the state of Washington, and for the further purpose of choosing at such election three commissioners, who shall be known and designated as "Commercial Waterway Commissioners" for said district proposed to be organized, which said three commissioners shall, upon their election, be the district authorities of said commercial waterway district, and such notice shall describe the boundaries as established by the board of county commissioners on its final hearing of said petition and shall state the name of such proposed commercial waterway district, and approximately, the area of land in said district to be benefited thereby, and the same shall be published for, at least, two weeks prior to such election in a weekly newspaper printed and published within the county within which said district is located, and in case no such newspaper be printed or published in such county, then in such newspaper of general circulation therein for two successive issues thereof, and shall be posted for the same period in at least four public places within the boundaries of said proposed district, which notice shall designate the places within the proposed district where the said election shall be held and require the voters to cast ballots which shall contain the words, "Commercial Waterway District, Yes" or "Commercial Waterway District, No," and also names of the persons voted for for commissioners for said commercial waterway district. The board of county commissioners shall also appoint two judges, one inspector and two clerks for each of said election places and the compensation shall be the same as hereinafter provided for, and shall be a charge upon said district in case the same be established and shall be paid in the same manner as other expenses are paid which are incurred in the establishment and construction of said improvement. In case said district be not established, then all costs and expenses shall be collectible from the bond hereinafter provided for, and any person having a charge against said district shall have a right of action thereon. [L. '11, p. 15, § 4.]

§ 8170a. Electors—Returns—Oath and Bond of Commissioners.

Said election shall be held on the day designated in such notice and shall be conducted as hereinafter provided for, and no person shall be entitled to vote at such election unless he shall be a qualified elector of the county in which such district is located, and shall have resided within the boundaries of said proposed district for a period of not less than ninety days next preceding the date of such election, or, unless he shall be the owner of real estate situated within said proposed district. The board of county commissioners shall on the Monday next succeeding said election count and canvass the votes cast thereat, and if on said canvass and count it appears that the majority of votes cast are for the "Commercial Waterway District, Yes," the board shall immediately enter an order upon its records declaring the proposed territory duly organized as a commercial waterway district, giving to such district a proper number, followed by the name of the county and state, and shall, also, declare the three persons who received the highest number of votes duly elected commercial waterway commissioners of such commercial waterway district for the following respective terms of office: The one receiving the highest number of votes three years; the one receiving the next highest number of votes, two years; and the third member one year. Said commissioners so elected shall hold office for said respective terms and until their successors are elected and qualified. Said board shall cause a copy of the order entered of record duly signed to be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and from and after the date of such filing said organization shall be deemed complete, and the members of said board of commissioners so chosen at such election, before entering upon the discharge of their duties shall qualify as county commissioners are required to qualify, and to enter into a bond payable to the state of Washington for the benefit of said district with two or more sureties in the penal sum of not less than one thousand ($1,000) dollars nor more than five thousand ($5,000) dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of their duties as commercial waterway commissioners, to be approved by the board of county commissioners and to be filed with the county clerk of the county in which said district is situated. The members of each successive board of commercial waterway commissioners, whether elected or appointed, shall before entering upon their duties take an oath and enter into a bond, as herein provided, and after being approved by the board of county commissioners shall be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county in which said district is situated. [L. '11, p. 17, § 5; L. '13, p. 115, § 1.]

§ 8171a. General Elections, Time and Manner of Holding—Judges, etc.

A general election for the election of one member of said board of commercial waterway commissioners for such district shall be held upon the first Tuesday after the first Monday in December of each year after the year in which said district shall have been established and organized, and the term of office of the persons elected thereat shall begin the second Monday of the following January: Provided, That in case of districts heretofore organized an entire board of commissioners shall be elected at the first election to be held hereunder, whose terms of office shall be one, two and three years respectively from said second Monday in January following, in accordance with the respective number of votes received by said three persons as provided in section 8170a for original elections. Said elections shall be held in accordance with the school laws of the state of Washington. No official ballot shall be required at the first or any subsequent election, and the law known as the direct primary law of this state shall have no application to the election held under this act, and the expense thereof shall be defrayed by said district, and the judges, clerks, and inspectors of said election shall each receive as compensation for the services rendered at such election the sum of three ($3.00) dollars per day; Provided, That at least thirty days' notice immediately preceding any such general election shall be given thereof by the board of commissioners of such commercial waterway district by posting the same in four public places within the said district. Said notice shall designate the voting places and contain the names of two electors of said district for each of said voting places as judges of said election, and the name of one elector of said district, for each of said voting places as inspector thereof, the same to be chosen by said board of commissioners. Said board of commissioners shall act as a canvassing board to canvass the votes of each election, and they shall meet the day following such election and canvass said votes and declare the result thereof and issue certificates of election. [L. '11, p. 18, § 6; L. '13, p. 116, § 2.]

§ 8172a. Powers of Commissioners—Acquisition of Rights of Way, etc.

Any commercial waterway district organized or validated under the provisions of this act, or attempted to be organized under the provisions of any previous act and validated under the provisions of any other act, shall have the following powers and authority:

(a) The right of eminent domain, with power by and through its board of commissioners to cause to be condemned and appropriated private property for the use of said organization in the construction and maintenance of a system of commercial waterways and make just compensation therefor: Provided, That the property of private corporations may be subjected to the same rights of eminent domain as that of private individuals: Provided further, That the said board of commissioners shall have the power to acquire by purchase all the property necessary to make the improvements herein provided for.

(b) Said board of commissioners herein provided shall have the right, power and authority to straighten, widen, deepen and improve any and all rivers, watercourses, streams, whether navigable or otherwise, flowing through or located within the boundaries of said district.

(c) To construct all needed and auxiliary ditches, canals, flumes, locks, dikes, and all other artificial appliances in the construction of a commercial waterway system, and which may be necessary or advisable to protect the land in any commercial waterway district, from overflow, or to assist and become necessary in the preservation and maintenance of such commercial waterway system.

(d) In the accomplishment of the foregoing objects, the commissioners of such waterway district are hereby given the right, power and authority by purchase or the exercise of the power and authority of eminent domain, or otherwise, to acquire all necessary and needed rights of way in the straightening, deepening, or widening, or otherwise improving of such rivers, watercourses or streams, and such auxiliary ditches, canals, flumes and dikes herein above mentioned, and when so acquired shall have and are hereby given the right, power and authority by and with the consent and approval of the United States government in cases where such consent is necessary, to divert, alter and change the bed or course of or otherwise improve any such river, watercourse or stream aforesaid, or to deepen, widen and straighten the same: Provided, That such diversion, alteration or change shall not be had without payment of compensation or damages for any property rights, riparian or otherwise, that may be taken or damaged thereby.

(e) The right, power and authority to acquire the necessary and needed rights of way for any and all purposes created by this act may be acquired by the commissioners of any waterway district over and across or upon any land or interest therein of the state of Washington, or any county of this state, and streets, alleys, and avenues, or public places of any city, town or municipal corporation of this state: Provided, however, That the construction of such commercial waterway or commercial waterways shall not have the effect of impairing any right, power or authority now existing on the part of any city or town to construct in, upon, underneath, above or across such commercial waterway or commercial waterways, sewers, water pipes, mains, the granting of any franchise thereon, or improve by the way of planking, replanking, paving, repaving or any other power, right and authority which, but for this act, such city or town would have in or to such street, avenue, alley or public place, except, however, that such right, power and authority on behalf of such city or town shall not be exercised either by such city or town or by any person or persons, firms or corporations, to whom it might grant any right or franchise which will materially impair the efficiency of said commercial waterway or commercial waterways. The provisions of this section as regards such system of commercial waterway or commercial waterways, to be constructed within the boundaries of any incorporated city or town, shall apply to the extension or enlargement of any commercial waterway or commercial waterways already existing upon, over and across any street, avenue, alley or public place of any city or town, as well as the original construction thereof. [L. '11, p. 19, § 7.]

§ 8173a. State's Interest in Shore Lands Vested in District—Disposal.

All the right, title and interest of the state of Washington in and to so much of the beds and shores of any navigable river, stream, waterway or watercourse located within the boundaries of any commercial waterway district up to and including the line of ordinary high tide in waters where the tide ebbs and flows and up to and including the line of ordinary high water within the banks of any navigable rivers and lakes, to the extent that the same, under any proceedings to be had under this act, shall cease to become part of such river, stream, waterway or watercourse by reason of the diversion of such river, stream, waterway or watercourse, under any proceedings had under this act, are hereby given and granted and vested in the respective commercial waterway districts now existing, or hereafter to be formed, and the commissioners of such respective commercial waterway districts are hereby given the right, power and authority to sell such beds and shores in such manner and upon such notice and proceedings as govern, under the existing laws of the state, the board of county commissioners in the sale and disposition of any real estate belonging to the counties of this state. The proceeds of such sales are to be used for the benefit of such commercial waterway districts, and the payment of any expenses connected with the construction of such commercial waterways or maintenance thereof: Provided, however, That the commissioners of such commercial waterway district may, in their discretion, exchange such abandoned beds and shores, for other property needed in the straightening, deepening or widening of such rivers, watercourses or streams, and which exchange may be made upon such terms and conditions and in such areas as, in the discretion of such commissioners, they may deem advisable and for the best interests of such commercial waterway district without any notice or other formality or proceedings whatever. [L. '11, p. 21, § 8.]

§ 8173-1. Lowering of Shore Lines—Water Line to be Boundary—Title.

In every case where the state of Washington has heretofore sold to any purchaser from the state any second class shore lands bordering upon navigable waters of this state by description wherein the water boundary of the land so purchased is not defined, such water boundary shall be held and is hereby declared to be the line of ordinary navigation in such water; and whenever such waters have heretofore been or shall hereafter be lowered by any action done or authorized either by the state of Washington or the United States such water boundary shall thereafter be held and is hereby declared to be the line of ordinary navigation as the same shall be found in such waters after such lowering, and there is hereby granted and confirmed to every such purchaser, his heirs and assigns, all such lands: Provided, however, That this act shall not apply to such portions of such second class shore lands which shall as hereinafter provided be selected by the commissioner of public lands of the state of Washington for harbor areas, slips, docks, wharves, warehouses, streets, avenues, parkways and boulevards, alleys, or other public purposes: Provided, further, That all shore lands and the bed of Lake Washington from the southerly margin of the plat of Lake Washington shore lands southerly along the westerly shore of said lake to a line three hundred feet south of and parallel with the east and west center line of section 35, township 24 north, range 4 east, W. M., are hereby reserved for public uses and are hereby granted and donated to the city of Seattle for public park, parkway and boulevard purposes, and as a part of its public park, parkway and boulevard system and any diversion or attempted diversion of such lands so donated from such purposes shall cause the title to said lands to revert to the state. [L. '13, p. 667, § 1.]

§ 8173-2. Commissioner of Public Lands to Survey and Select Dock Sites, etc.—Title of Streets.

Within twelve months after the taking effect of this act it shall be the duty of the commissioner of public lands to survey such second class shore lands and in platting such survey to designate thereon as selected for public use all of such shore lands as in the opinion of said commissioner of public lands is available, convenient or necessary to be selected for the use of the public as harbor areas and sites for slips, docks, wharves, warehouses, streets, avenues, parkways and boulevards, alleys and other public purposes. Upon the filing of such plat in the office of the commissioner of public lands, the title to all harbor area so selected shall remain in the state, the title to all selections for streets, avenues and alleys shall vest in any city or town within the corporate limits of which they may be then situate, otherwise in the county in which situate, the title to and control of any lands so selected and designated upon such plat for parkway and boulevard purposes shall, if the same lie outside of the corporate limits of any city or town and if the same form a part of the general parkway and boulevard system of a city of the first class, be in such city, the title to all selections for commercial waterway district purposes shall vest in the commercial waterway district in which situate, or for which selected, and the title to all selections for slips, docks, wharves, warehouses and other public purposes shall vest in the port district if they be situate in a port district, otherwise in the county in which situate. [L. '13, p. 668, § 2.]

§ 8174a. State, Counties and Cities may Sign Petition—Appropriations.

(a) Whenever the county owns any lands situated within the boundaries of the proposed commercial waterway district, the county auditor, when so directed by the board of county commissioners of the county in which such lands are situated, is hereby authorized to sign the petition praying for the formation of such commercial waterway districts for and on behalf and as the act and deed of such county, and when so signed the same shall be considered in determining the question of majority signature in the area of the land to the petition for a formation of such district.

(b) Whenever any city or town owns any land situated within the boundaries of a proposed commercial waterway district, the city comptroller, when so directed by the council of said city or town in which such lands are situated, is hereby authorized to sign the petition praying for the formation of such commercial waterway districts for and on behalf and as the act and deed of such city or town, and when so signed the same shall be considered in determining the question of majority signature in the area of land to the petition for the formation of such district.

(c) Whenever the state of Washington owns any land situated within the boundaries of the proposed commercial waterway district the commissioner of public lands of the state of Washington, when so directed by the board of said land commissioners of said state, is hereby authorized to sign the petition praying for the formation of such commercial waterway district for and on behalf and as the act and deed of such state, and when so signed the same shall be considered in determining the question of majority signature in the area of the land to the petition for the formation of such district.

(d) Whenever any highway, roads or bridges are maintained by the county in which a commercial waterway district may be established, as herein provided, and it shall appear that the construction and maintenance of such commercial waterway system will be beneficial to such highways, roads, and bridges or which will be beneficial to such highways, roads and bridges as may hereafter be constructed or maintained by the county in which such system of commercial waterways is situated, then the board of county commissioners of such county may, and it shall be the duty of such board to appropriate to such commercial waterway district an amount of money sufficient to pay the proportionate share of such county in accordance with the benefits received or to be received; whenever it may appear to the board of county commissioners of any county that any improvements made or to be made in any commercial waterway district under the provisions of this act shall, on account of the health of the people of the county, be beneficial in respect thereto, the board of county commissioners may make an appropriation of money to such commercial waterway district in such an amount to such board as may seem proper.

(e) Whenever it shall appear to the city or town council of any incorporated city or town, not included or wholly or partly included within the limits of any commercial waterway district that the construction and maintenance of such commercial waterway system will be of special commercial benefit and will be beneficial to the health and sanitation of the inhabitants of such incorporated city or town and to the general welfare of the said city or town, then the said city or town council is hereby empowered and authorized to appropriate such amount of money out of the general funds of the said city or town as may to the said city or town council seem proper and just to such commercial waterway system, or the city or town council may for such purpose levy an assessment upon all the property in said city and town subject to taxation by said city or town, which shall not exceed one-half mill for each dollar of property.

(f) Public highways, streets and alleys shall not be considered in computing the area of said district. [L. '11, p. 22, § 9.]

§ 8175a. Board of Commissioners, Powers and Duties of—Vacancies.

Said board of commercial waterway commissioners hereinbefore provided for shall have the exclusive charge of the construction and maintenance of all commercial waterways or commercial waterway systems which may be constructed within the said district, and shall be the executive officers thereof, with full power to bind said district by their acts in the performance of their duties as provided by law. In case of vacancy or vacancies occurring in said board by the death, failure to elect, failure to qualify, resignation, such vacancy or vacancies shall be filled at once from the freeholders and qualified electors of said district by the judge of the superior court of said county, and said appointee shall serve until the next annual election and until his successor is elected and qualified: Provided, That in counties where there may be more than one superior judge, the judge eldest in age shall make such appointment. [L. '11, p. 24, § 10; L. '13, p. 117, § 3.]

§ 8176a. Petition for Construction, Contents—Parties.

Whenever it is desired to prosecute the construction of a system of waterways within said district, said district, by and through its board of commissioners, shall file a petition in the superior court of the county in which said district is located, setting forth therein the route or routes over which the same is to be constructed, with a reasonably accurate description thereof, together with the estimated cost of such proposed improvement, showing therein the names of the land owners whose lands are to be benefited by such proposed improvement, the description of the land owned by each such land owner, and the maximum amount of benefits to be derived by each such lot, tract or parcel of land set forth therein from the construction of said proposed improvement, and that the same will be conducive to the public health, sanitation, convenience and welfare and increase the value of all of said property for purposes of public revenue. Said petition shall further set forth a reasonably accurate description of the tracts or parcels of land or property which will be taken or damaged by said improvement, and the names of the owners and occupants thereof, and all persons having any interest therein so far as known to the officers filing the petition or appearing from the records in the office of the county auditor, the total amount of land necessary to be taken therefor, and an estimate of the value of said land so sought to be taken. The said petition shall set forth as defendants therein all persons or corporations whose lands would be benefited by said improvement, or whose lands are sought to be appropriated for said improvement, or whose lands will be damaged thereby, or who have any interest in any of said lands or property as mortgagee, or otherwise appearing on the records of the county auditor's office. Said petition shall also set forth that said proposed system of waterways is necessary, and that all lands sought to be appropriated for rights of way or other purposes are necessary to be used in the construction and maintenance of said improvement. [L. '11, p. 24, § 11.]

§ 8177a. Board may Employ Engineers, Surveyors, etc.

In the preparation of the facts and data to be inserted in said petition and filed therewith for the purpose of presenting the matter to the said superior court, or any other time, the said board of commissioners of said commercial waterway district may employ one or more good and competent engineers, surveyors and draftsmen to assist them in compiling data required to be presented to the court with said petition as hereinbefore provided, and such legal and other assistance as may be necessary, with full power to bind said district for the compensation of such assistance or employees employed by them, and such services shall be taxed as costs in the suit. [L. '11, p. 25, § 12.]

§ 8177-1. Summons—Service—Proof.

A summons stating briefly the objects of the petition and containing a description of the land, real estate, premises or property sought to be appropriated or damaged, and those which it is claimed to be benefited by such improvement, and stating the court wherein said petition is filed, the date of the filing thereof and when the defendants are required to appear (which shall be ten days, exclusive of the day of service, if served within the county in which the petition is pending, and if in any other county, then twenty days after such service, and if served by publication, then within thirty days from the date of the first publication), shall be served on each and every person named therein as owner, encumbrancer, tenant or otherwise interested therein. Said summons must be subscribed by the commissioners, or their attorney, running in the name of the state of Washington and directed to the defendants; and service thereof shall be made by delivering a copy of such summons to each of the persons or parties so named therein, if a resident of the state, or in case of the absence of such person or party from his or her usual place of abode, by leaving a copy of such notice at his or her usual place of abode, or in case of a foreign corporation, at its principal place of business in this state, with some person more than sixteen years of age; in case of domestic corporations, said service shall be made upon the president, secretary or other director or trustee for such corporation; in case of minors, on their guardians; or in case no guardian shall have been appointed, then on the person who has the care and custody of such minor; in case of idiots, lunatics or insane persons, on their guardian; or in case no guardian shall have been appointed, then on the person in whose care or charge they are found. In case the land, real estate, premises or other property sought to be appropriated or damaged, or which it is claimed will be benefited by such improvement, is state, tide, school or county land, the summons shall be served on the auditor of the county in which the land, real estate, premises or other property sought to be appropriated or damaged, or which it is claimed will be benefited, is situated. In all cases where the owner or person claiming an interest in such real or other property is a nonresident of this state, or where the residence of such owner or person is unknown, an affidavit of one or more of the commissioners of said district shall be filed that such owner or person is a nonresident of this state, or that after diligent inquiry his residence is unknown or cannot be ascertained by such deponent, service may be made by publication thereof in a newspaper published in the county where such lands are situated, once a week for three successive weeks; and in case no newspaper is published in such county, then such publication may be had in a newspaper published in the county nearest to the county in which lies the land sought to be appropriated or damaged, or which it is claimed will be benefited by said improvement. Such publication shall be deemed service upon each nonresident person or person whose residence is unknown. Such summons may be served by any competent person over twenty-one years of age. Due proof of service of such summons by affidavit of publication shall be filed with the clerk of such court before the court shall proceed to hear the matter. Want of service of such notice shall render the subsequent proceedings void as to the person not served; but all persons or parties having been served with summons as herein provided, either by publication or otherwise, shall be bound by the subsequent proceedings. In all cases not otherwise provided for service of notice, order and other papers in the proceedings authorized by this chapter may be made as the superior court, or the judge thereof, may direct: Provided, That personal service upon any party outside of the state shall be of like effect as service by publication. [L. '11, p. 25, § 13.]

§ 8177-2. Defendants may Appear for Hearing.

Any or all of said defendants may appear jointly or separately at the time and place appointed for hearing said petition, or to which the same may have been adjourned. If the court or judge thereof shall have satisfactory proof that all of the defendants in said action have been duly served with said summons, as above provided, and shall be fully satisfied by competent proof that said improvement is practicable and conducive to the public health, sanitation, welfare and convenience, and will increase the value of said lands for the purpose of public revenue, and that the contemplated use for which the land, real estate, premises or other property sought to be appropriated is really a public use, and that the land, real estate, premises or other property sought to be appropriated are required and necessary for the establishment of said improvement, the court or judge thereof shall cause a jury of twelve qualified persons to be impaneled to fix the compensation and to assess the damages and benefits, as herein provided, if in attendance upon his court, unless a jury is waived; and if not he may, if satisfied that the public interests require the immediate construction of said improvement, direct the sheriff of his county to summons from the citizens of the county in which the petition is filed as many qualified persons as may be necessary in order to form a jury of twelve persons, unless a jury be waived. If necessary, to complete the jury in any case, the sheriff, under the directions of the court or the judge thereof, shall summons as many qualified persons as may be required to complete the jury from the citizens of the county in which the petition is filed. In case a special jury is summoned the cost thereof shall be taxed as part of the cost in the proceedings and paid by the district seeking to appropriate said land, the same as other costs in the case; and no person shall be competent as a juror who is a resident of, or land owner in, the district seeking to appropriate said land. The jurors at such trial shall make in each case a separate assessment of damages which shall result to any person, corporation or company, or to the state, by reason of the appropriation and use of such land, real estate, premises or other property for said improvement and shall ascertain, determine and award the amount of damages to be paid to said owner or owners, respectively, and to all tenants, encumbrancers and others interested, for the taking or injuriously affecting such land, real estate, premises or other property for the establishment of said improvement; and shall further find a maximum amount of benefits per acre or per lot or tract to be derived by each of the land owners. And upon a return of the verdict into court the same shall be reported as in other cases; whereupon, a decree shall be entered in accordance with the verdict so rendered, setting forth all the facts found by the jury, and decreeing that said property be appropriated, and directing the commissioners of the district to draw their warrant on the county treasurer for the amount awarded by the jury to each person for damages sustained by reason of the establishment of said improvement, payable out of the funds of said district. [L. '11, p. 27, § 14.]

Under this section, providing for the establishment of a commercial waterway district when the court shall have satisfactory proof that all of the defendants have been served, failure to serve all of the defendants does not vitiate the proceedings as to defendants already duly served, in view of the provision that want of service shall render the proceedings void as to the parties not served, but that all persons served shall be bound, and sections 8185a and 8186a, providing for bringing in persons not served and for subsequent trials in such cases: State ex rel. Puget Mill Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 425, 123 Pac. 791.

As to sufficiency of service upon single partner in action against partnership, see note in 20 Ann. Cas. 1238.

§ 8181a. Procedure as to Parties Claiming Interest in Property Damaged.

Such jury shall also ascertain the just compensation to be paid to any person claiming an interest in any lot, parcel of land or property which may be taken or damaged by such improvement, whether or not such person's name or such lot, parcel of land or other property is mentioned or described in such petition: Provided, Such person shall first be admitted as a party defendant to said suit by such court and shall file a statement of his interest in and description of the lot, parcel of land or other property in respect to which he claims compensation. [L. '11, p. 29, § 15.]

§ 8182a. View by Jury.

The court may, upon the motion of such district or of any defendant, direct that said jury (under the charge of any officer of the court and accompanied by such person or persons as may be appointed by the court to point out the property sought to be taken or damaged) shall view the lands and property affected by said improvement. [L. '11, p. 29, § 16.]

§ 8183a. Buildings—Assessment, and Measure, of Damages.

If there be any building standing, in whole or in part, upon any land to be taken, the jury shall add to their finding of the value of the land taken the damages to said building. If the entire building is taken, or if the building is damaged so that it cannot be readjusted to the premises, then the measure of damages shall be the fair market value of the building. If part of the building is taken or damaged and the building can be readjusted or replaced on the part of the land remaining, then the measure of damages shall be the cost of readjusting or moving the building, or the part thereof left, together with the depreciation in the market value of said building by reason of said readjustment or moving. [L. '11, p. 29, § 17.]

§ 8184a. Separate Findings as to Several Interests—Adverse Claimants.

If the land and buildings belong to different parties, or if the title to the property be divided into different interests by lease or otherwise, the damages done to each of such interests may be separately found by the jury on the request of any party. In making such findings, the jury shall first find and set forth in their verdict the total amount of the damage to said land and buildings and all premises therein, estimating the same as an entire estate and as if the same were the sole property of one owner in fee simple; and they shall then apportion the damages so found among the several parties entitled to the same, in proportion to their several interests and claims and the damages sustained by them respectively, and set forth such apportionment in their verdict. No delay in ascertaining the amount of compensation shall be occasioned by any doubt or contest which may arise as to the ownership of the property, or any part thereof, or as to the extent of the interest of any defendant in the property to be taken or damaged, but in such case the jury shall ascertain the entire compensation or damage that should be paid for the property and the entire interests of all the parties therein, and the court may thereafter require adverse claimants to interplead, so as to fully determine their rights and interests in the compensation so ascertained. And the court may make such order as may be necessary in regard to the deposit or payment of such compensation. [L. '11, p. 30, § 18.]

§ 8184-1. Providing for Omission—Levy.

If the board of waterway commissioners shall, at any time, discover that any lands within said district will be benefited by the waterway system, and the same were by mistake, inadvertence or other cause omitted from the assessment of benefits as provided for herein, or which were omitted for the reason that they were not at the time of assessing the benefits provided for herein, for any cause, subject to a legal assessment, said commissioners shall file a petition in the superior court in the original cause setting forth the facts of such benefits, describing the lands omitted, the reason the same were omitted in said original proceedings and giving the names of the owners or reputed owners thereof and praying that said original cause, as to such lands, be opened up for further proceedings for the assessment of the alleged benefits, and upon the filing of said petition summons shall issue thereon and be served on the defendants named in said petition the same as summons is served and issued in original proceedings, and the jury, in assessing the benefits, shall take into consideration the length of time said lands are to receive the benefits from said improvement and its future maintenance, estimating said time from the date when said lands first became legally assessable, which date must be found by the jury in their verdict as to each tract or parcel found to be benefited: Provided, That a jury may be waived as in other proceedings herein: And provided, further, That in case the expense and the cost of the improvements has been paid for by assessments levied against the land assessed in the original proceedings before the lands provided for in this section are assessed, as provided herein, then, in such case, the assessments levied from time to time on said last-mentioned land shall be paid into the maintenance fund of said district. [L. '11, p. 30, § 19.]

§ 8184-2. Appeal to Supreme Court.

Every person or corporation feeling himself or itself aggrieved by any judgment for damages or compensation or any assessment of benefits provided in this act, may appeal to the supreme court of the state within thirty days after the entry of the judgment, and such appeal shall bring before the supreme court the propriety and justness of the amount of compensation or damages or assessment of benefits in respect to the parties to the appeal. Upon such appeal no bonds shall be required and no stay shall be allowed. [L. '11, p. 31, § 20.]

§ 8185a. Procedure—Judgment—New Trial, Parties not Served.

Upon the return of the verdict the proceedings of the court regarding new trial and the entry of judgment thereon shall be the same as in other civil actions, and the judgment shall be such as the nature of the case shall require. The court shall continue or adjourn the case from time to time as to all occupants and owners named in such petition who shall not have been served with process or brought in by publication, and new summons may issue or new publication may be made at any time; and upon such occupants or owners being brought in, the court shall impanel a jury to ascertain the compensation so to be made to such defendant or defendants for property taken or damaged, and to ascertain and determine the maximum benefits received by any such property, and like proceedings shall be had for such purpose as herein provided. [L. '11, p. 31, § 21.]

§ 8186a. Change in Ownership—Procedure.

The court shall have power at any time, upon proof that any such owner or owners named in such petition who has not been served with process has ceased to be such owner or owners since the filing of such petition, to impanel a jury unless a jury be waived, and ascertain the just compensation to be made for the property, or the damages thereto or benefits received by said property which has been owned by the person or persons so ceasing to own the same, and the court may, upon any finding or findings of any jury or juries, or at any time during the course of such proceedings enter such order. [L. '11, p. 32, § 22.]

§ 8187a. Infants, Insane, etc., Guardian ad Litem for.

When it shall appear from the said petition or otherwise, at any time during the proceedings upon such petition, that any infant or insane or incompetent person is interested in any property that is to be taken or damaged, or benefited, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem for such infant or insane or incompetent person to appear and defend him, her or them, and the court shall make such order or decree as it shall deem proper to protect and secure the interest of such infant or insane or incompetent person in such property or the compensation which shall be awarded therefor and benefits to be assessed. [L. '11, p. 32, § 23.]

§ 8188a. Finality and Conclusiveness of Judgment—Costs—Appeal.

Any final judgment or judgments rendered by said court upon any finding or findings of any jury or juries, or upon any finding or findings of the court in case a jury be waived, shall be lawful and sufficient condemnation of the land or property to be taken, or of the right to damage the same in the manner proposed, upon the payment of the amount of such findings and all costs, which shall be taxed as in other civil cases: Provided, That in any case defendant recovers no damages, no costs shall be taxed. Such judgment or judgments shall be final and conclusive as to the damages caused by such improvement, and as to the compensation to be allowed for property taken, unless appealed from, and no appeal from the same shall delay proceedings, if such district shall pay into court for the owners and parties interested, as directed by the court, the amount of the judgment and costs, and such districts, after making such payment into court, shall be liable to such owner or owners or parties interested for the payment of any further compensation or damages which may at any time be finally awarded to such parties so appealing in said proceeding, and his or her costs, and shall pay the same on the rendition of judgment therefor and abide any rule or order of the court in relation to the matter in controversy. In case of an appeal to the supreme court of the state by any party to the proceedings, the money so paid into the superior court by such district, as aforesaid, shall remain in the custody of said superior court until the final determination of the proceedings. If the owner of the land, real estate, premises, or other property accepts the sum awarded by the jury or the court, he shall be deemed thereby to have waived conclusively an appeal to the supreme court and final judgment may be rendered in the superior court as in other cases. [L. '11, p. 32, § 24.]

§ 8189a. Title Vests upon Payment of Judgment into Court.

The court, upon proof that just compensation so found by the jury, or by the court in case the jury is waived, together with the costs, has been paid to the person entitled thereto, or has been paid into court as directed by the court, shall enter an order that the district shall have the right at any time thereafter to take possession of or damage the property in respect to which such compensation shall have been so paid or paid into court as aforesaid, and thereupon the title to any property so taken shall be vested in fee simple in such district. [L. '11, p. 33, § 25.]

§ 8190a. Dismissal When Damages and Costs Exceed Benefits.

In case the damages or amount of compensation for such property, together with the estimated costs of the improvement, amount to more than the maximum amount of benefits which will be derived from said improvement, or, if said improvement is not practicable, or will not be conducive to the public health, sanitation, welfare and convenience, or will not increase the public revenue, the court shall dismiss such proceedings, and in such case a judgment shall be rendered for the costs of said proceedings against said district, and no further proceedings shall be had or done therein; and upon the payment of the costs, said organization shall be dissolved by decree of said court. [L. '11, p. 34, § 26.]

§ 8191a. Conflicting Claims to Money Paid into Court—Procedure.

Any person or corporation claiming to be entitled to any money ordered paid by the court, as provided in this chapter, may apply to the court therefor, and upon furnishing evidence satisfactory to the court that he is entitled to the same, the court shall make an order directing the payment of such claimant of the portion of such money as he or it may be found entitled to; but if, upon application, the court or judge thereof shall decide that the title to the land, real estate or premises specified in the application of such claimant is in such condition as to require that an action be commenced to determine the title of claimants thereto, it shall refuse such order until such action is commenced and the conflicting claims to such land, real estate or premises be determined according to law. [L. '11, p. 34, § 27.]

§ 8192a. Collection of Assessments—Extension on Tax-rolls.

Upon the entry of the judgment, the clerk of said court shall immediately prepare a transcript which shall contain a list of the names of all persons and corporations benefited by said improvement and the amount of benefit derived by each, respectively, and shall duly certify the same, together with a list of the lands benefited by such improvement belonging to each person and corporation, and shall file the same with the auditor of the county for convenience of reference; and from and after the entry of such judgment in the office of the clerk of the court in which the same is rendered, all the lands included in the list of lands benefited by such improvement shall stand charged with the entire cost and expense of said improvement and the other costs, expenses and charges provided for by this act, not exceeding with respect to any lot or tract of land (so far as concerns the original cost) the maximum amount stated or declared in such judgment to be the maximum amount of benefits to be derived by such lot or tract of land or the owners thereof, and all such lands shall thereafter be subject to the assessments to be levied by the board of commissioners for said purposes, which assessments shall be levied pro rata in proportion to the maximum amount of benefits as to each lot or tract of land as stated or declared in such judgment. All assessments shall be levied from time to time by the board of commissioners by written notice to be addressed to and served on the county assessor of the county, which notice shall be so served on the county assessor on or before the first day of November in each year, or as soon thereafter as practicable, and such assessments shall be levied against and apportioned to the lands in such district benefited by said improvement in proportion to the maximum benefits originally determined by the judgment of the court and such assessments shall fall due during the then ensuing calendar year at the time of the falling due of general taxes, and the amount so designated shall be added by the county assessor to the general taxes of each person or corporation, and to the general taxes against each lot or tract of land or other property, according to such notice, and the several amounts thereof shall be placed upon the general tax-rolls in the office of the county assessor and shall be deemed for all purposes a part of the general taxes, and shall constitute liens against each such lot or tract of land of equal rank with state, county and city taxes and shall have the same priority over all other liens as state, county and city taxes have, and shall be subject to the same interest and penalties in case of delinquency as in case of general taxes, and for all purposes of delinquency, certificates of delinquency, foreclosure and other proceedings leading up to final payment, enforcement and collection, such assessments shall be deemed a part of the general taxes as aforesaid. The amount of the assessment levied by the commissioners during any one year shall not exceed twenty-five per cent of the amount estimated by the board of commissioners to be necessary to pay the costs of the proceedings and the establishment of said district and waterway system, and the cost of construction of said work: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to assessments levied to pay the principal or interest of any bonds issued under authority of this act, or levied for maintenance charges as provided by section 8197a. And provided further, That where the amount realized from the original assessment shall not prove sufficient to complete the original plans and specifications of any waterway system, alterations, extensions or changes therein for which the said original assessment was made, the board of commissioners of said district shall make such further assessment as may be necessary to complete said system according to the original plans and specifications, which assessment shall be made and collected in the manner provided herein for the original assessment. This amendment shall not be construed to impair or prejudice any proceedings had or taken by any commercial waterway district prior to this amendment under the act hereby amended or any other act relating to commercial waterway districts, but all such proceedings may be continued and carried out under the provisions of this act as hereby amended the same as if originally commenced under the provisions of this act as hereby amended. All proceedings, acts and things which may heretofore have been had or done or attempted to be had or done under the provisions of the act hereby amended or any other act of the legislature relating to commercial waterways shall be considered and deemed a full compliance with the provisions of this amendatory act with reference thereto. And in all cases where any county assessor has prior to this amendment entered upon any county tax-rolls by direction of the board of commissioners of any such district an assessment ordered by them and made pro rata in proportion to the several amounts fixed in any such court judgment as the respective maximum amounts of benefits to be derived by each lot or tract of land, notwithstanding that the provisions of this section or of the other sections of the act of which this act is amendatory have not been strictly pursued, nevertheless the said entries upon said tax-rolls be and the same are hereby validated and confirmed and given the same effect in all respects as if the said amounts had been entered upon such tax-rolls strictly in accordance with the provisions of the law then existing, and all such assessments shall be treated as if levied under the provisions of said act as hereby amended. [L. '11, p. 34, § 28; L. '13, p. 118, § 4.]

§ 8193a. Dismissal—Levy and Collection of Taxes to Pay Costs.

In the event of the dismissal of said proceedings and the rendition of judgment against said district, as hereinbefore provided, said waterway commissioners shall levy a tax upon all the real estate within said district, taking as a basis the last equalized assessment of said real estate for state and county purposes, sufficient to pay said judgment and the cost of levying said tax, and shall cause said tax-roll to be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court in which such judgment was rendered. If said tax is not paid within sixty days after the filing of said tax-roll, the court shall, upon the application of any party interested, direct said real estate to be sold in payment of said tax, said sale to be made in the same manner and by the same officer as is or may be provided by law for the sale of real estate for taxes for general purposes; and the same right of redemption shall exist as in the sale of real estate for the payment of taxes for general purposes. [L. '11, p. 36, § 29.]

§ 8194a. Construction—Letting of Contract—Contractor's Bonds.

After the filing of said transcript said commissioners of such waterway district shall proceed at once in the construction of said improvement, and in carrying on said construction or any extensions thereof, they shall have full charge and management thereof, shall have the power to employ such assistance as they may deem necessary and purchase all material and employ all labor that may be necessary in the construction and carrying on of the work of said improvement; and shall have power to let the whole or any portion of said work to any responsible contractor which said contract shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder after advertising for bids for such work in two successive issues of some weekly newspaper printed and published in such county, and shall in such case enter into all necessary agreements with such contractor that may be necessary in the premises: Provided, That the commissioners of said commercial waterway district may sell or otherwise dispose of all excavating material of every kind in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as in their discretion they may deem advisable and for the best interest of such commercial waterway district without any notice or other formalities or proceedings whatever. The proceeds of any sales of such excavated material are to be used for the benefit of such commercial waterway district and the payment of any expense connected with the cost of construction or maintenance thereof: Provided further, That in case the whole or any portion of said improvement is let to any contractor said commissioners shall require said contractor to give a bond in double the amount of the contract price of the whole or of such portion of said work covered by said contract, with two or more sureties to be approved by the board of commissioners of said waterway district and running to said district as obligee therein, conditioned for the faithful and accurate performance of said contract by said contractor, his executors, administrators or assigns, according to the terms and conditions of said agreement, and shall cause said contractor to enter into a further or additional bond in the same amount, with two or more good and sufficient sureties to be approved by said board of commissioners of said waterway districts in the name of said district as obligee therein, conditioned that said contractor, his executors, administrators or assigns, or subcontractor, his executors, administrators or assigns, performing the whole or any portion of said work under contract of said original contractor, shall pay or cause to be paid all just claims for all persons performing labor or rendering services in the construction of said work, or furnishing materials, merchandise or provisions of any kind or character used by said contractor or subcontractor, or any employee thereof in the construction of said improvement: Provided further, That no sureties on said last-mentioned bond shall be liable thereon unless the persons or corporation performing said labor and furnishing said materials, goods, wares, merchandise and provisions, shall, within ninety days after the completion of said improvement file their claim, duly verified, that the amount is just and due and remains unpaid, with the board of commissioners of said waterway district. [L. '11, p. 36, § 30; L. '13, p. 120, § 5.]

§ 8195a. Changes in Location, System, etc., Procedure to Obtain.

The work on said improvement shall begin and shall be completed with all expedition possible, and said board of commissioners of such waterway district, or any contractor thereunder, shall have no power whatever to change said route or system of improvement or the manner of doing the work therein so as to make any radical changes in said improvement, without the written consent of all the land owners to be benefited thereby, and the land owners which may be damaged thereby. And in case any substantial changes in said system of improvement or the manner of the construction thereof shall be deemed necessary by said board of commissioners at any time during the progress thereof, and if the written consent to such changes cannot be procured from said land owners, then said commissioners, for and on behalf of said district, shall file a petition in the superior court of the county within which said district is located, setting forth therein the changes which they deem necessary to be made in the plan or manner of the construction of said improvement, and praying therein to be permitted to make such changes, and upon the filing thereof, the commissioners shall cause a summons to be served, setting forth the prayer of said petition, which summons shall be served in the same manner as the service of summons in the case of the original petition, upon all the land owners of or others claiming any lien or record interest in the lands benefited or damaged by said improvement or by said proposed change in said improvement, and any or all of said parties so served may appear in said cause and submit their objections thereto, and after the time for the appearance of all of said parties has expired, the court shall proceed to hear said petition at once without further delay, and if it appears during the course of said proceedings that the property rights of any of said land owners will be affected by such proposed change in said improvements, then the court, after having passed upon all preliminary questions as in the original proceedings shall cause, unless a jury be waived, a jury to be impaneled as in the case of the original proceeding for the establishment of said improvements, and upon the final hearing of said cause, the jury shall return a verdict finding the amount of damages, if any, sustained by all persons and corporations, the same as upon the original petition, by reason of such proposed change, and shall readjust the amount of benefits claimed to have been increased or diminished by any of said land owners by reason of said proposed change in said improvements, and the proceedings thereafter shall be the same as to rendering judgment, appeal therefrom, payment of compensation and damages and filing of the certificate with the auditor, as hereinbefore provided for in the proceedings upon the original petition, and said commissioners shall have a right thereafter to proceed with the construction of said improvements according to the changes made therein. [L. '11, p. 37, § 31.]

§ 8196a. Payments to Contractor—Reserve.

During the construction of said improvement said commissioners shall have the right to allow payment thereof, in installments as the work progresses, in proportion to the amount of work completed: Provided, That no allowance or payment shall be made for said work to any contractor or subcontractor to exceed seventy-five per cent of the proportionate amount of the work completed by such contractor or subcontractor, and twenty-five per cent of the contract price shall be reserved at all times by said board of commissioners until said work is wholly completed, and shall not be paid upon the completion of said work until ninety days have expired for the presentation of all claims for labor performed and materials, goods, wares, merchandise and provisions furnished or used in the construction of said improvements; and upon the completion of said work and the payment of all claims hereinbefore provided for according to the terms and conditions of said contract, said commissioners shall accept said improvement and pay the contract price therefor. [L. '11, p. 39, § 32.]

§ 8197a. Annual Maintenance Tax, Levy of.

The board of commissioners of any commercial waterway district shall on or before the first day of November of each year, make an estimate of the cost of maintenance of the waterway system, constructed in such district which estimate shall include the cost of making any necessary repairs that it might become necessary to make in the maintenance of such system. Such estimates shall be made for the succeeding year and the amount so estimated shall be certified by the board of commissioners to the auditor of the county in which such district is located, on or before said date and the amount thereof shall be levied against and apportioned to the lands in such district benefited by said improvement in proportion to the maximum benefits originally assessed by the judgment of the court, and said amount shall be added to the general taxes against said lands and collected therewith. [L. '11, p. 39, § 33.]

§ 8198a. Board, Organization and Officers of—Warrants.

The board of commissioners of such district shall elect one of their number chairman and one secretary, and shall keep minutes of all their proceedings, and may issue warrants of such district in payment of all claims of indebtedness against such district; such warrants shall be in form and substance the same as county warrants, or as near the same as may be practicable, and shall draw interest at a rate to be fixed by said board, from the date of their presentation to the treasurer for payment, as hereinafter provided, and shall be signed by the chairman and attested by the secretary of said board: Provided, That no warrants shall be issued by said board of commissioners in payment of any indebtedness of such district for less than the face or par value. [L. '11, p. 40, § 34; L. '13, p. 122, § 6.]

§ 8199a. Issuance of Bonds and Payments of Warrants.

At any time after the entry of a judgment in a proceeding brought under the foregoing provisions of this act, the board of commissioners of such waterway district may issue bonds as hereinafter provided for all or any part of the total amount of the cost of construction of said improvement, together with the cost of the establishment of the district and any and all other expenses of every kind connected with the completion of such waterway system, including the damages assessed and compensation made to land owners for right of way and the expenses and costs of the entire proceedings, and the purpose of issuing such bonds may embrace, in whole or in part, the funding of any outstanding warrants or obligations of such district. In case such bonds are issued there is hereby appropriated and pledged for the payment thereof a sufficient amount of all the maximum benefits stated or declared, or to be stated or declared, by the judgment of the court against all the lands benefited and to be benefited by the improvement within such district and there is hereby appropriated and pledged for such payment a sufficient amount of all sums charged against such lands and the assessments therefor as will be sufficient to pay all such bonds as the same or any part thereof become due; and while any such bonds shall be outstanding the board of commissioners shall at no time levy any assessments for any purpose, other than their payment, which shall so far impair the fund to be realized from the collection of all the assessments as to jeopardize the payment of such bonds or to reduce such fund below the point where there will be ample amounts still leviable to provide for the payment thereof. The bonds hereby authorized shall not be sold for less than their par value. All bonds and warrants issued under the authority of this act shall be legal securities which may be used by any bank or trust company for deposit with the state treasurer, or any county or city treasurer as security for deposits in lieu of a surety bond under any law relating to deposits of public moneys. When the county treasurer shall have on hand money of such district available for the payment of the warrants of such district, he shall call such warrants in the same manner and under the same conditions as county warrants. [L. '11, p. 40, § 35; L. '13, p. 122, § 7.]

§ 8200a. Bonds—Form, Denomination, Interest—Coupons.

Said bonds shall be numbered from one upwards, consecutively, and be in denominations of not less than one hundred ($100) dollars, nor more than one thousand ($1,000) dollars. They shall bear the date of issue, shall be made payable to the bearer in not more than ten (10) years nor less than five (5) years from the date of their issue, and bear interest at a rate not exceeding seven per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, with coupons attached for each interest payment. The bonds and each coupon shall be signed by the chairman of the board of waterway commissioners, and shall be attested by the secretary of the board, and the seal of such district shall be affixed to each bond, but not to the coupons: Provided, however, That said coupons in lieu of being so signed may have printed thereon a fac-simile of the signatures of such officers. [L. '11, p. 41, § 36; L. '13, p. 124, § 8.]

§ 8201a. Bonds may be Exchanged for Warrants.

Said bonds may be exchanged at not less than their par value for an equal amount of the warrants of the district issuing such bonds. [L. '11, p. 41, § 37.]

§ 8202a. Liquidation of Bonds, Levy of Assessment for—Separate Fund.

Beginning five years before said bonds shall become due, the commissioners of such commercial waterway district issuing them are hereby authorized and required to levy four annual assessments each equal to twenty-five per cent of the total amount necessary to liquidate said bonds at maturity; such assessments shall be collected by the county treasurer and kept as a separate fund for the sole purpose of liquidating said bonds in accordance with the provisions of the following section. [L. '11, p. 41, § 38; L. '13, p. 124, § 9.]

§ 8203a. Bonds, Payment of and Calls for.

It shall be the duty of the treasurer in any county in which there may be a district issuing bonds under the provisions of this chapter to call in for payment on each interest day on and after five years from the date of any such bonds in numerical order beginning with bond number one, as many of such bonds as can be paid out of the funds on hand for that purpose. Said call shall be published for two consecutive weeks in the newspaper doing the county printing, the first publication to be two weeks prior to the said interest day, and shall state the numbers of bonds so called and that interest thereon will cease on said interest day. [L. '11, p. 41, § 39; L. '13, p. 124, § 10.]

§ 8204a. Payment of Coupons, Annual Levy for.

It shall be the duty of such waterway commissioners annually to levy an assessment sufficient for the payment of the coupons hereinbefore mentioned as they fall due. The proceeds of said levy shall be set apart by the county treasurer as a special fund to be known as the "Interest Fund." Said coupons shall be considered for all purposes as warrants drawn upon the funds of the district issuing bonds under the provisions of this chapter, and, when presented to the county treasurer, and no funds are in the treasury to pay said coupons, it shall be his duty to indorse said coupons as presented for payment in the same manner as other warrants upon the funds of said district are indorsed, and thereafter said coupons shall bear interest at the same rate as the bond to which they belong and be subject to call in the same manner as other warrants. [L. '11, p. 42, § 40; L. '13, p. 125, § 11.]

§ 8205a. Registration of Bonds.

Before the bonds are delivered to the purchaser they shall be presented to the county treasurer, who shall register them in a book kept for that purpose and known as the bond register, in which register he shall enter the number of each bond, the date of issue, the maturity, amount and rate of interest, to whom and when payable, and the proceeds derived from the sale of said bonds shall in all cases be paid by the purchaser thereof to the county treasurer. [L. '11, p. 42, § 41.]

§ 8206a. Warrants—Presentation and Indorsement—Calls for.

All warrants issued under the provisions of this chapter shall be presented by the holders thereof to the county treasurer, who shall indorse thereon the day of presentation for payment, with the additional indorsement thereon, in case of nonpayment, that they are not paid for want of funds; and no warrant shall draw interest under the provisions of this act until it is so presented and indorsed by the county treasurer. And it shall be the duty of such treasurer, from time to time, when he has sufficient funds in his hands for that purpose, to advertise in the newspaper doing the county printing for the presentation to him for payment of as many of the outstanding warrants as he may be able to pay: Provided, That thirty days after the first publication of said notice of the treasurer calling in any of said outstanding warrants, said warrants shall cease to bear interest, which shall be stated in the notice. Said notice shall be published two weeks consecutively, and said warrants shall be called in and paid in the order of their indorsement. [L. '11, p. 42, § 42.]

§ 8207a. Submission of Questions to Jury.

Upon the trial of any questions of issue by a jury under the provisions of this chapter the trial court may, in its discretion, submit all questions to be found by the jury in the form of separate findings, or may submit to such jury separate forms of verdict on all such questions to be found by the jury therein. [L. '11, p. 43, § 43.]

§ 8208a. Eminent Domain Extended to Public Lands.

All state, county, school district, or other lands belonging to other public corporations shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter, and such corporations, by and through the proper authorities, shall be made parties in all proceedings herein affecting said lands, and shall have the same rights as private persons, and their lands shall be subject to the right of eminent domain the same as the lands of private persons or corporations. [L. '11, p. 43, § 44.]

§ 8209a. Assessment of Benefits Against State and Municipalities—Payment.

In case lands belonging to the state, county, school district or other public corporation are benefited by any improvement instituted under the provisions of this chapter, all benefits shall be assessed against such lands, and the same shall be paid by the proper authorities of such public corporation at the times and in the manner as assessments are called and paid in case of private persons, out of any general fund of such corporation. [L. '11, p. 43, § 45.]

§ 8210a. Fees for Service of Process.

Fees for services of all process necessary to be served under the provisions of this chapter shall be the same as for like services in other civil cases, or as is or may be provided by law. [L. '11, p. 43, § 46.]

§ 8211a. Compensation of Board, Objections to.

In performing their duties under the provisions of this chapter the board of waterway commissioners shall receive such compensation as may be just and reasonable for all necessary services actually performed, not exceeding three dollars per day, to be determined and allowed by the court upon presentation by said commissioners, or either of them, of an itemized statement duly verified by either or all of such board, that the same is just, reasonable, necessary and that such services were actually performed, and that no part of said compensation has ever been paid, and in case such services are rendered by said board in the establishment or construction of said improvement, or any extension thereof, the amount thereof so allowed by the court shall be deemed to be a part of the cost of the construction and establishment of said improvement, and in case such compensation to be allowed by the court shall be for services rendered by said board in the repairing or maintenance of such improvement, such allowance shall be added to the annual cost of maintenance of such system: Provided, That any person interested therein may file objections to the allowance asked for either in whole or in part, and such claims so filed shall not be passed upon or allowed by the court until the expiration of thirty days from the filing thereof. Said board of commissioners, or the member thereof, presenting such claims or allowance, shall, at the time of the filing thereof in the court, post notices in at least four public places within said district, which said notices shall set forth therein the fact that an application for allowance has been filed in said court, giving the date of the filing thereof and the amount of the allowance applied for, and demand that any and all persons having any interest therein shall file objections in said court, if any they have, to the allowance of such claim or any portion thereof, within thirty days from the filing of such application for allowance, and the court shall hear said application and the objections thereto, if any be made and filed, and shall in its discretion, make such allowance in such amount as it may deem to be just in the premises, and the same shall be paid as other claims against said district are paid. [L. '11, p. 43, § 47.]

§ 8212a. Court may Compel Performance by Mandatory Injunction.

The superior court may compel the performance of the duties imposed by this chapter, and may, in its discretion, on proper application therefor, issue its mandatory injunction for such purpose. [L. '11, p. 44, § 48.]

§ 8212b. Former Districts Declared Valid.

The organization, establishment and creation of all commercial waterway districts in this state heretofore had, or made, or attempted under the provisions of Remington and Ballinger's Code, sections 8166 to 8212, under which attempted organization, establishment or creation, an organized district has been maintained since the date of such attempted organization, establishment or creation is hereby for all purposes declared legal and valid, and such commercial waterway districts are hereby declared duly organized, established and created. And all debts, contracts and obligations heretofore made or incurred by or in favor of any such commercial waterway district so attempted to be organized, established and created, and all official bonds or other obligations executed in connection with or in pursuance of such attempted organization, are hereby declared legal and valid and of full force and effect: Provided, That nothing herein shall be construed to legalize or validate any attempted assessment or condemnation which may have been had by such district prior to the passage of this act. [L. '11, p. 10, § 1; L. '11, p. 45, § 49.]

§ 8212c. Districts Formed Under Previous Acts.

Nothing herein contained shall be considered as repealing any of the provisions of any act of the legislature relating to the validation and legalization of commercial waterway districts and obligations incurred by such attempted organizations, but all provisions of this act relating to the conferring of rights, powers and authority shall be deemed applicable to all commercial waterway districts, whether organized or validated under the provisions of this act or organized or validated or legalized under or by virtue of any other act. All proceedings, acts and things which may heretofore have been had or done or attempted to be had or done under the provisions of any other act of the legislature relating to commercial waterways shall be considered and deemed a full compliance with the provisions of this act with reference thereto. And any such district so validated or legalized shall be permitted to continue its operations in accordance with the provisions of this act with like effect as if said district had been originally organized under the provisions hereof, and as if said acts, proceedings or things had been had or done by it under the provisions of this act, it being the intention hereby to enable and permit such validated or legalized district to continue and complete its operations with like force and effect as if such district had been organized and had proceeded under the provisions of this act. [L. '11, p. 45, § 50.]

CHAPTER VII-A.

PUBLIC WATERWAYS.

§ 8212-1. Public Waterway District—Improvement by County.

Whenever in any county of this state the owners of lands bordering upon or accessible to any navigable water shall desire to improve their said lands, hereinafter designated as the "district," by the construction of a new public waterway, or the deepening or enlargement of an existing public waterway, for the floatage of vessels and the drainage of swamp and overflowed lands, and the proposed improvement will increase the public revenues and be of other public benefit, they may present the plan of such proposed waterway to the board of county commissioners of such county, hereinafter designated the "board," and have the same acted upon as provided in this act. [L. '11, p. 64, § 1.]

§ 8212-2. Accessible Lands.

Lands shall be deemed accessible to such waterway when by reason of their nearness to the same their value will be materially increased by the construction or deepening or widening of such waterway. [L. '11, p. 64, § 2.]

§ 8212-3. Petition—Signatures—Map—Evidence—Hearing.

The plan of such proposed waterway shall be presented to the board by a written petition of owners of lands which it is represented will be improved by the construction, deepening or widening of such waterway; and such petition shall be signed by the owners of thirty-five per cent or more of the area of lands in the district, and shall be verified by one or more of the petitioners to the effect that the signatures attached are the genuine signature of the persons or corporations signing the same. Each petitioner shall add a description of the lands he owns. If petitioners are unmarried persons they shall so state. If lands are owned by married persons, husband and wife shall join in the petition. If a petitioner is a corporation, the signature shall be accompanied by a certified copy of a resolution of the board of directors or trustees of the corporation authorizing the person signing the petition for the corporation to execute it. If lands included in the petition are owned by minors, insane persons, or other persons under guardianship in this state, the petition may be signed by the guardians of such persons: Provided, That the signature be accompanied by a certified copy of an order of the superior court having the guardianship of such person in charge, authorizing the guardian to sign the petition. A petition may consist of one or more separate papers or sheets which are identified with the subject matter.

The petitioners shall file with the board, with their petition, a map of the lands in the district and a statement showing each separate ownership of lands as shown by the public records of the county, and their location in the county, with the names of the owners as shown by such records, and the location of the proposed waterway if a new waterway is to be constructed. If an existing waterway is to be deepened the map shall show its location, and if it is to be widened the map shall show its location and the extent to which it is to be widened. With the petition there shall also be presented satisfactory evidence from the real property records of the county that the petitioners are severally the owners in fee simple of their respective tracts of land, and that all taxes and assessments due thereon are paid. If it is proposed that any lands in the district shall be filled with the material dug or dredged from such waterway, the petition shall so state, and the map of the district and plan of the improvement shall show the location, depth and yardage of such fill. The petition may also fix the price per cubic yard at which such fill shall be charged to the land filled, which charge shall be added to the assessment for the improvement to be made upon such lands and be paid as a part thereof. If the price of filling is not fixed by the petition it may be fixed by the board.

At any time after the filing of such petition one or more of the petitioners may file and record in the office of the auditor of the county, notice of the pendency of the proceeding, describing the boundaries of the proposed district, and from the time of such filing all persons shall be deemed to have notice of the pendency of the proceeding and be bound thereby. Upon the hearing upon such petition, hereinafter provided, if the same be denied any person interested may file in the office of said county auditor a certified copy of the order denying the same, whereupon the auditor shall enter the discharge of the notice of the pendency of the proceeding on the margin of the record thereof. And the like discharge may be filed whenever the proceeding is terminated for any other reason. [L. '11, p. 65, § 3.] § 8212-4. Petitioner to File Bond—Costs.

Said petitioners shall at the time of filing their petition with the board, file a bond executed by one or more of their number as principals, and in behalf of all, and by a surety corporation authorized to become surety upon public bonds in this state, which bond shall run to the state of Washington as obligee and be in the sum of five hundred dollars, conditioned that they will pay all costs of the proceeding in case for any reason the petition shall not be granted, or in case no fund shall thereafter be created for the payment of the expense attending said proposed waterway improvement. And said petitioners shall, from time to time as the board shall estimate and order, pay the costs and expenses of such proceeding. [L. '11, p. 66, § 4.]

§ 8212-5. Hearing—Dismissal—Notice—Objections.

Said petition, after the filing thereof, shall be taken up and considered by the board at the next regular or special meeting thereof, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, and if the petition be defective in any particular it may be amended and an adjournment of the matter may be had to permit of such amendment, for a time not exceeding thirty days. If the petition be defective and be not sufficiently amended within the adjournment taken, it shall be dismissed. But if such petition be in fact sufficient, or if by amendment it be made sufficient, it shall be the duty of the board to enter an order setting a time for a public hearing thereon within thirty days from the date of such order, and directing the clerk of the board to give notice of the time and place of such hearing in the official newspaper of the county by publication therein at least once each week for three successive weeks before the time of hearing; and in case there be no such official newspaper, then in some newspaper of general circulation in said county. Such notice shall be addressed to the owners of lands not petitioning, as shown by the petition or as may be ascertained to be the fact, and to all other persons known and unknown having or claiming an interest in the lands in the district, and shall state the pendency of the proceeding, its object, the names of the signers of the petition, the number of acres of land they claim to own, the whole number of acres proposed to be improved, the boundaries of the lands to be included in the improvement district, and the time and place of hearing. And notice shall also be given that at the time and place named, or at such time as the same may be adjourned to, the board will consider the petition under the provisions of this act, and will hear all objections offered by interested parties and grant or refuse the petition as it may be advised. The clerk of the board shall keep a record of all orders, hearings and proceedings of the board in reference to such waterway district in a separate bound book, designated as the record of proceedings as to such district. [L. '11, p. 67, § 5.]

§ 8212-6. Consent of Owner—Findings—Decree.

At the time and place prescribed in the said notice any owner of land within said proposed improvement district may file with the board his written consent to the proposed improvement, and he shall then be considered as a petitioner; and if the owners of more than one-half of the lands within the district, including the lands represented by the petition, shall assent to the prayer of said petition, the board shall then proceed to hear and consider any objections which may have been filed at that or any previous time, and may adjourn such hearing from day to day. If the board after full hearing on the merits of the proposed waterway shall be satisfied that the same will be of benefit to the public interests, and that private benefit will result to the lands within the district sufficient to equal the cost of the proposed improvement, they may make findings accordingly and declare their intention to establish the waterway district under the name of the "—— Waterway District" and make the improvement as prayed for; but if the owners of less than one-half of the lands in the district shall assent to the creation thereof and the making of the proposed improvement, the board shall deny the petition and the proceeding shall be dismissed. [L. '11, p. 68, § 6.]

§ 8212-7. Right to Sue and be Sued.

Upon the entry of an order creating such waterway district by the board, it shall have power to perform all the duties and exercise all of the authority conferred upon it by this act, and shall have the right to sue and be sued in all matters pertaining to such district as the representative thereof, in the same manner and to the same extent as in all other county affairs. But such district shall bear all the expenses of such action on the part of the board, and the county shall be at no expense or charge therefor. [L. '11, p. 68, § 7.]

§ 8212-8. Right of Eminent Domain.

Said board shall have the right of eminent domain for the acquisition of lands necessary to the construction or widening of the proposed waterway, and may cause all necessary lands to be condemned and appropriated or damaged for the use of said waterway, and make just compensation therefor. The private property of the state, the county, and other public or quasi-public corporations (except incorporated cities and towns), and of private corporations, shall be subject to the same rights of eminent domain at the suit of said board as the property of private individuals. [L. '11, p. 68, § 8.]

§ 8212-9. Bridging Part of Cost.

Whenever in aid of the construction or widening of any such waterway it shall be necessary to cross or disturb any existing public highway or railroad, the cost of bridging the waterway or otherwise substantially continuing the highway or railroad may be ascertained and paid as a part of the cost of the improvement if such cost is not otherwise provided for. [L. '11, p. 69, § 9.]

§ 8212-10. Order to Condemn.

Whenever the said board shall desire to condemn and acquire land, or damage lands or property for any purpose authorized by this act, said board shall make an order therefor wherein it shall be provided that such land or damages shall be paid for wholly by special assessment upon the property within said waterway district, and the proceeding thereafter shall be as herein specified. [L. '11, p. 69, § 10.]

§ 8212-11. Compensation Ascertained by Jury or Court.

The board shall file a petition, verified by its chairman and signed by the prosecuting attorney, in the superior court of the county, praying that the property described may be taken or damaged for the purpose specified and that compensation therefor be ascertained by a jury or by the court in case a jury be waived. Such petition shall allege the creation of the waterway district and contain a copy of the order directing the proceeding, a reasonably accurate description of the lots or parcels of land or other property which will be taken or damaged, and the names of the owners and occupants of said lands and of persons having any interest therein so far as known to the said board, or as appears from the records in the office of the county auditor. [L. '11, p. 69, § 11.]

§ 8212-12. Summons Issued and Served.

Upon the filing of the petition aforesaid a summons returnable as summons in other civil actions, shall be issued and served upon the persons made parties defendant, together with a copy of the petition, as in other civil actions; and in case any of the defendants are unknown or reside out of the state, a summons for publication shall issue and publication be made and return and proof thereof be made in the same manner as is or shall be provided by the laws of the state for service upon nonresident or unknown defendants in other civil actions. Notice so given by publication shall be sufficient to authorize the court to hear and determine the suit as though all parties had been sued by their proper names and had been personally served. [L. '11, p. 69, § 12.]

§ 8212-13. Service on Commissioner of Public Lands—Attorney General—Duties.

In case the land or other property sought to be taken or damaged is state land, the summons and copy of petition shall be served upon the commissioner of public lands; if it is county land it shall be served upon the county auditor, and if school land, upon the county auditor and the chairman of the board of directors of the school district. Service upon other parties defendant, public or private, shall be made in the same manner as is or shall be provided by law for service of summons in other civil actions. If the state is made a defendant the attorney general shall represent it. If the county is a defendant the court shall appoint an attorney to represent it at all stages of the proceedings, and may allow him compensation for his services as costs of the proceeding. [L. '11, p. 70, § 13.]

§ 8212-14. Jury to Ascertain Compensation.

Upon the return of said summons, or as soon thereafter as the business of the court will permit, the said court shall proceed to the hearing of such petition and shall adjudicate whether the proposed condemnation is for a public use, and if its judgment is that the proposed use is public, it shall impanel a jury to ascertain the just compensation to be paid for the lands or property taken or damaged, unless a jury be waived; but if any defendant or party in interest shall demand, and the court shall deem it proper, separate juries may be impaneled as to the separate compensation or damages to be paid to any one or more of such defendants or parties in interest. Should the court determine that the proposed use is not public, it shall dismiss the proceeding. [L. '11, p. 70, § 14.]

§ 8212-15. File Statement of Interest.

The jury or court shall also ascertain the just compensation to be paid to any person found to have an interest in any lot or parcel of land or property which may be taken or damaged for such improvement, whether or not such person's name or such lot or parcel of land or other property is mentioned or described in said petition: Provided, That such person shall first be admitted as a party defendant to such suit by such court and shall file a statement of his interest in, and a description of, the lot or parcel of land or other property in respect to which he claims compensation. [L. '11, p. 71, § 15.]

§ 8212-16. Jury View Property.

The court may upon motion of the petitioners, or of any defendant, direct that the jury under the charge of an officer of the court and accompanied by such person or persons as may be appointed by the court to point out the property sought to be taken or damaged, shall view the lands or property taken or damaged for the proposed improvement. [L. '11, p. 71, § 16.]

§ 8212-17. Damage to Building.

If there be any building standing in whole or in part upon any land to be taken, the jury or court shall add to the finding of the value of the land taken, the value or damage to such building as the case may require. If the entire building is taken, or if it is damaged so that it cannot be readjusted to premises of the owner, then the measure of damages shall include the fair market value of the building. If part of the building is taken, or it is damaged but can be readjusted or replaced on premises of the owner, then the measure of damages shall be the cost of readjusting or moving the building or part thereof left, together with the depreciation in the market value of said building by reason of said readjustment or moving. [L. '11, p. 71, § 17.]

§ 8212-18. Damages as Interest Appears—Interpleader.

If the land and buildings belong to different parties, or if the title to the property be divided into different interests by lease or otherwise, the damage done to each of such parties or interests may be separately found by the jury or court on the written request of any party. And in making such findings the jury or court shall first find and set forth the total amount of the damage to said lands and buildings and all premises therein, estimating the same as an entire estate and as if the same were the sole property of one owner in fee simple; and they shall then apportion the damages so found among the several parties entitled to the same in proportion to their several interests and claims. But no delay in ascertaining the amount of compensation shall be occasioned by any doubt or contest which may arise as to the ownership of the property or any part thereof, or as to the extent of the interest of any defendant in the property to be taken or damaged, but in such case the jury or court shall ascertain the entire compensation or damage that should be paid for the property and the court may thereafter require adverse claimants to interplead so as to fully determine their rights and interests in the compensation so ascertained, and may make such order as may be necessary in regard to the deposit or payment of such compensation and the division thereof. [L. '11, p. 71, § 18.]

§ 8212-19. Procedure Same as Civil Actions.

Upon the filing of the findings of the jury or court, the proceedings of the court regarding new trial and the entry of judgment thereon, shall be the same as in other civil actions, and the judgment shall be such as the nature of the case may require. The final judgment of the court shall be that the lands and property taken and damaged shall, upon payment of the sums awarded, vest in the county as and for a public waterway. The court shall continue or adjourn the case from time to time as to all defendants named in such petition who shall not have been served with process or brought in by publication, and new summons may issue or new publication be made at any time, and upon such defendants being brought in the court may impanel a jury to ascertain the compensation so to be made to such defendants for property taken or damaged, or may proceed without a jury if none be demanded, and like proceedings shall be had for such purpose as are herein provided. [L.'11, p. 72, § 19.]

§ 8212-20. Substitute Defendant.

The court shall have power at any time, upon proof that any defendant who has not been served with process has ceased to be an owner since the filing of such petition, to substitute the new owner as a defendant, and after due service of the summons and petition upon him proceed as though he had been a party in the first instance; and the court may upon any finding of the jury, or at any time during the course of the proceedings, enter every such order, rule, judgment or decree as the nature of the case may require. [L. '11, p. 73, § 20.]

§ 8212-21. Guardian ad Litem.

When it shall appear from said petition or otherwise, at any time during the proceedings upon such petition, that any infant, insane or distracted person is interested in any property that is to be taken or damaged, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem for such infant or insane or distracted person to appear and defend for him, her or them; and the court shall make such order or decree as it shall deem proper to protect and secure the interest of such infant or insane or distracted person in such property, or the compensation which shall be awarded therefor. [L. '11, p. 73, § 21.]

§ 8212-22. Findings to State Damage.

The compensation to be ascertained by the jury or court shall be irrespective of any benefit from the improvement proposed, and the finding shall state separately the value of land taken from any tract and the damage, if any, to remaining land by reason of the severance. [L. '11, p. 73, § 22.]

§ 8212-23. Judgment Final.

Any final judgment rendered by said court upon the findings of the court or a jury, shall be the lawful and sufficient condemnation of the land or property to be taken, or of the right to damage the same in the manner proposed, upon the payment of the amount of such findings and all costs which shall be taxed as in other civil cases: Provided, That in case any defendant recovers no award, no costs shall be taxed. Such judgment shall be final and conclusive as to the damages caused by such improvement, unless appealed from, and no appeal from the same shall delay proceedings under the order of said board if it shall pay into court for the owners and parties interested, as directed by the court, the amount of the judgment and costs; but such board after making such payment into court shall be liable to such owner or owners, or parties interested, for the payment of any further compensation which may at any time be finally awarded to such parties so appealing in said proceeding, and his or her costs, and shall pay the same on the rendition of judgment therefor and abide any rule or order of the court in relation to the matter in controversy. In case of an appeal to the supreme court of the state by any party to the proceedings, the money so paid into the superior court by the board, as aforesaid, shall remain in the custody of said superior court until the final determination of the proceedings. If the owner of the land, real estate, premises, or other property, accepts the sum awarded by the jury or the court, he shall be deemed thereby to have waived conclusively an appeal to the supreme court and final judgment may be rendered in the superior court as in other cases. [L. '11, p. 73, § 23.]

§ 8212-24. Order to Take Possession of Property.

The court upon proof that the judgment, together with costs, has been paid to the person entitled thereto, or has been paid into court, shall enter an order that the board shall have the right at any time thereafter to take possession of or damage the property in respect to which such compensation shall have been so made or paid into court as aforesaid, and thereupon the title to any property so taken shall be vested in fee simple in the public as a water highway. [L. '11, p. 74, § 24.]

§ 8212-25. Assessment for Damages—Interest—Expenses.

Said board shall, upon the entry of the condemnation judgment, file in the same proceeding a supplementary petition, praying the court that an assessment be made upon the lands in the district for the purpose of raising an amount necessary to pay the compensation and damages awarded for the property taken or damaged, with costs of the proceedings, and for the estimated cost of the proposed improvement; and the court shall thereupon appoint three competent disinterested persons as commissioners to make such assessment. Said commissioners shall include in such assessment the compensation and damages awarded for the property taken or damaged, with legal interest from the date of entry of the judgment, and with all costs and expenses of the proceedings incurred to the time of their appointment, or to the time when said proceedings was referred to them, together with the probable further costs and expenses of the proceeding, including therein the estimated cost of making and collecting such assessment. The petitioners for the improvement shall be entitled to have included in the costs of the proceeding, and repaid to them, such reasonable sums as they may have expended in preparing the maps and plans of the improvement and procuring the names of land owners for filing with the petition. Such expenditures to be approved and allowed by the court. [L. 11, p. 74, § 25.]

§ 8212-26. Commissioners' Compensation.

Said commissioners, before entering upon their duties, shall take and subscribe an oath that they will faithfully perform the duties of the office to which they are appointed, and will to the best of their abilities make true and impartial assessments according to the law. Every commissioner shall receive compensation at the rate of five dollars per day for each day actually spent in making the assessment herein provided for, upon his filing in the proceeding a verified statement showing the number of days he has actually spent therein; and upon the approval of said statement by the judge of the court in which the proceeding is pending, the board shall issue a warrant in the amount so approved, upon the special fund created to pay the awards and costs of said proceeding; and the fees of such commissioners so paid, and all expenses returned by them and allowed by the court shall be included in the cost and expense of such proceeding. [L. '11, p. 75, § 26.]

§ 8212-27. Assessment—Apportionment.

It shall be the duty of such commissioners to examine the lands in the district and to apportion and assess the amount of the judgment, interest and costs as hereinbefore defined, of the condemnation proceeding, and of the estimated cost of the proposed improvement, and of the price of any fill made with material dug or dredged from such waterway, upon the several lots, blocks, tracts and parcels of land in said district, in the proportion in which they will be severally benefited; which assessment shall be a proportionate charge upon each square foot of land contained in each separate lot, block, tract or parcel of land. [L. '11, p. 75, § 27.]

§ 8212-28. Roll of Owners.

The commissioners shall make or cause to be made an assessment-roll in which shall appear the names of the owners, so far as known, a description of each lot, block, tract or parcel of land or other property, and the amounts assessed thereon as special benefits thereto, specifying separately the benefits from the opening of the waterway, for construction, and for fill if any, and certify such assessment-roll to the court before which said proceeding is pending, within sixty days after the date of the order referring said proceeding to them, or within such extension of said period as shall be allowed by the court. In determining the benefit to be assessed upon any lot or parcel of land for the opening of the waterway, the commissioners shall ascertain from the finding of the court or jury whether or not it is remaining land after the severance of land taken from an original lot or parcel for right of way of such proposed waterway, and the damage awarded to such remaining land, if any, allowed by reason of the severance; and for such opening shall assess as benefits to such remaining land only the excess of the benefit accruing thereto over the damage awarded by the finding. [L. '11, p. 76, § 28.]

§ 8212-29. Court to Order Hearing—Notice.

Upon its completion the commissioners shall return their assessment-roll into court, and thereupon the court shall make an order setting a time for the hearing thereon before the court, which day shall be at least thirty days after the entry of such order. The commissioners shall give notice of such assessment and of the day fixed by the court for the hearing thereon in the following manner:

(1) They shall at least twenty days prior to the date fixed for the hearing on said roll, mail to each owner of the property assessed, whose name and address is known to them, a notice substantially in the following form:

“(Title of cause.) To —: Pursuant to an order of the superior court of the state of Washington, in and for the county of —, there will be a hearing in the above-entitled cause on — at —, upon the assessment-roll prepared by the commissioners heretofore appointed by said court to assess the property specially benefited by the (here describe nature of improvement); and you are hereby required if you desire to make any objection to said assessment-roll, to file your objections to the same before the date herein fixed for the hearing upon said roll, a description of your property and the amount assessed against it for the aforesaid improvement is as follows: (Description of property and amount assessed against it.)

_____,
_____,
Commissioners."

(2) They shall cause at least twenty days' notice to be given of the hearing, when a daily newspaper is published in such county, by publishing the same in at least five successive issues of said paper; or if no daily newspaper is published in said county and a weekly newspaper is published therein, then in each issue of such weekly newspaper for two successive weeks. Such notice so required to be published may be substantially as follows:

"(Title of cause.) Special Assessment Notice. Notice is hereby given to all persons interested, that an assessment-roll has been filed in the above-entitled cause providing for the assessment upon the property benefited of the cost of (here insert brief description of improvement) and that said roll has been set down for hearing on the ____ day of ____ at _____. The boundaries of said assessment district are substantially as follows: (here insert an approximate description of the assessment district.) All persons desiring to object to said assessment-roll are required to file their objections before said date fixed for the hearing upon said roll, and appear on the day fixed for hearing before said court.

_____,
_____,
Commissioners."

§ 8212-30. Affidavits Filed.

On or before the day fixed for the hearing, the affidavit of one or more of the commissioners shall be filed in said court showing the mailing of the notices above prescribed, and an affidavit of the publisher of the newspaper showing the publication of notice, with a copy of the published notice attached, which affidavit shall be received as prima facie proof of the giving of notice as herein required. [L. '11, p. 78, § 30.]

§ 8212-31. Court Order New Notice.

If twenty days shall not have elapsed between the first publication of such notice and the day set for hearing, the hearing shall be continued until such time as the court shall order. The court shall retain full jurisdiction of the matter until final judgment on the assessments, and if the notice given shall prove invalid or insufficient the court shall order new notice to be given. [L. '11, p. 78, § 31.]

§ 8212-32. Hearing Objections—Findings.

Any person interested in any property assessed and desiring to object to the assessment thereon, shall file his objections to such report at any time before the day set for hearing said roll, and serve a copy thereof upon the prosecuting attorney. As to all property to the assessment upon which no objections are filed and served, as herein provided, default may be entered and the assessment confirmed by the court. On the hearing of objections the report of the commissioners shall be competent evidence to support the assessment, but either party may introduce such other evidence as may tend to establish the right of the matter. The hearing shall be conducted as in other cases at law tried by the court without a jury; and if it shall appear that the property of the objector is assessed more or less than it will be benefited, or more or less than its proportionate share of the cost of the condemnation and improvement, the court shall so find, and it shall also find the amount in which said property ought to be assessed and correct the assessment accordingly. Judgment shall be entered confirming the assessment-roll as originally filed or as corrected, as the case may require. [L. '11, p. 78, § 32.]

§ 8212-33. Roll may be Recast.

The court before which any such proceeding may be pending shall have authority at any time before final judgment to modify, alter, change, annul or confirm any assessment-roll returned as aforesaid, or cause any such assessment-roll to be recast by the same commissioners whenever it shall be necessary for the obtainment of justice; or it may appoint other commissioners in the place of all or any of the commissioners first appointed for the purpose of making such assessment or modifying, altering, changing or recasting the same, and may take all such proceedings and make all such orders as may be necessary to make a true and just assessment of the cost of such condemnation and improvement according to the principles of this act, and may from time to time, as may be necessary, continue the proceeding for that purpose as to the whole or any part of the premises. [L. '11, p. 79, § 33.]

§ 8212-34. Appeal shall not Invalidate.

The judgment of the court confirming the assessment-roll shall have the effect of a separate judgment as to each tract or parcel of land or other property assessed, and any appeal from such judgment shall not invalidate or delay the judgment except as to the property concerning which the appeal is taken. Such judgment shall be a proportionate lien upon each square foot of the property assessed from the date of entry until payment shall be made. [L. '11, p. 79, § 34.]

§ 8212-35. Interest on Assessments.

The clerk of the court in which such judgment is rendered shall certify a copy of the assessment-roll as confirmed, and of the judgment confirming the same, to the treasurer of the county, or if there has been an appeal taken from any part of such judgment, then he shall certify such part of the roll and judgment as is not included in such appeal, and the remainder when final judgment is entered: Provided, That if upon such appeal the judgment of the superior court shall be affirmed, the assessments on such property as to which appeal has been taken shall bear interest at the same rate and from the same date which other assessments not paid within the time hereafter provided shall bear. Such copy of the assessment-roll shall be sufficient warrant to the county treasurer to collect the assessments therein specified in the manner hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 79, § 35.]

§ 8212-36. Treasurer to Publish Notice.

The treasurer receiving such certified copy of the assessment-roll and judgment shall immediately give notice thereof by publishing such notice at least once in the official newspaper or newspapers of such county, if such newspaper or newspapers there be; and if there be no such official newspaper, then by publishing such notice in some newspaper of general circulation in the county. Such notice may be in substantially the following form:

“SPECIAL ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

Public notice is hereby given that the superior court of — county, state of Washington, has rendered judgment for a special assessment upon property benefited by the following improvement (here insert the character and location of the improvement in general terms) as will more fully appear from the certified copy of the assessment-roll on file in my office, and that the undersigned is authorized to collect such assessments. All persons interested are hereby notified that they can pay the amounts assessed, or any part thereof, without interest, at my office (here insert location of office) within sixty days from the date hereof.

Dated this — day of —, A. D. 191—.

Treasurer of — county, Washington.”

§ 8212-37. Payment.

The owner of any land charged with an assessment under this act, may discharge the same from all liability for the cost of such condemnation and improvement by paying the entire assessment charged against his land, without interest, within the time fixed by the notice of the county treasurer for the payment thereof; or within said time he may pay a part of such assessment and allow the remainder to continue as an assessment upon his land to be collected and paid as hereinafter provided; or within said time he may pay the entire assessment per square foot upon any part of his land, providing that he shall when paying such partial assessment give to the treasurer a description of the tract paid for. [L. '11, p. 80, § 37.]

§ 8212-38. Treasurer to Note Payment.

When any assessment shall be paid either in full or in part only, within the time for payment without interest fixed by his notice, the treasurer shall note the fact of such payment opposite the assessment. [L. '11, p. 81, § 38.]

§ 8212-39. Installments—Collection.

Immediately after the expiration of the time fixed by his notice for payment of assessments without interest, the treasurer shall divide the several assessments which remain unpaid in whole or in part into ten equal amounts or installments, as near as may be, without fractional cents, and enter said installments upon the roll opposite the several assessments, numbering the same from one (1) to ten (10) successively. And thereafter said treasurer shall annually for ten years, before the time fixed by law for the collection of state and county taxes, add one of the said assessment installments with interest for one year from the expiration of the time for payment without interest, or of the anniversary thereof, at the rate of seven per cent per annum on the entire unpaid assessment, to the tax levied upon the property assessed, where said tax appears upon the county tax-roll, and collect said installment and interest, without reduction of percentage for prepayment, at the same time and in the same manner as state and county taxes are collected. And after delinquency said installments and interest shall be subject to the same charges for increased interest and penalties as are other delinquent taxes. But no tax sale of lands assessed under this act shall discharge the same from the lien of any unpaid installments of the assessment against it until all installments and interest are fully paid. [L. '11, p. 81, § 39.]

§ 8212-40. Assessment Payments Noted.

As each assessment installment is paid the treasurer shall note the payment thereof in the proper place upon the assessment-roll. [L. '11, p. 82, § 40.]

§ 8212-41. May Discharge Payments.

The owner of any lands assessed under this act may at any time after the time fixed by the treasurer's notice for payment without interest, discharge his lands from the unpaid assessment by paying the principal of all installments unpaid with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent per annum to the next anniversary of the time fixed as aforesaid; or he may pay one or more installments, with like interest, beginning with installment No. 10 and continuing in the inverse numerical order of installments. The successor in title to any part of his lands may have the proportionate assessment segregated on the roll and charged to such part upon his producing to the treasurer his recorded deed to such part. [L. '11, p. 82, § 41.]

§ 8212-42. Seven Per Cent Interest.

The last installment of any assessment paid shall include interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent per annum to the actual date of payment. [L. '11, p. 82, § 42.]

§ 8212-43. Provision for Public Use.

Should any of the lands assessed under this act be taken for or dedicated to public use, for highway or any other public purpose, before the taking or dedication shall be complete or take effect there shall be paid to the county treasurer a sum equal to the principal of the unpaid assessment upon said land at its proportionate rate per square foot, with interest thereon for one year at seven per cent; and the treasurer shall credit the principal sum paid to the unpaid installments upon the tract as originally assessed. [L. '11, p. 82, § 43.]

§ 8212-44. Treasurer Make Report.

Immediately after expiration of the time fixed by the treasurer for the payment of assessments levied under this act, he shall report to the board in writing the sum collected by him and in his hands to the credit of the assessment-roll; and thereafter and on or before the first day of January and July in each year he shall make written reports to said board of the sums collected by him upon said roll, stating in detail the amount of principal, interest and penalty so collected, the amount of principal remaining uncollected, and also, in detail, the principal and interest paid out by him under authority of the board, and the balance in his hands to the credit of the roll. [L. '11, p. 82, § 44.]

§ 8212-45. Bonds may be Issued.

Should the owners of any lands assessed to pay for an improvement contemplated by this act, fail to pay the assessments thereon in full on or before the day fixed by the treasurer's notice as the time for payment without interest, the board shall provide and issue bonds of the district to the total amount of the unpaid assessments, which bonds may either be issued to persons contracting to perform the work of making the improvement, or exchange with them for warrants; or be issued in exchange for work or materials; or they may be sold outright as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 83, § 45.]

§ 8212-46. Interest on Bonds.

Such bonds shall be issued pursuant to an order made by the board and by their terms shall be made payable on or before a date not to exceed ten years from and after the date of their issue, which latter date shall also be fixed by such order. They shall bear interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, which interest shall be payable semi-annually at periods named; shall have attached thereto interest coupons for each interest payment; shall be of such denomination as shall be provided in the order directing the issue, but not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars; shall be numbered from one upward consecutively and each bond shall be signed by the president of the board and attested by its clerk: Provided, however, That said coupons may, in lieu of being so signed, have printed thereon fac-simile signatures of said officers. Each bond shall in the body thereof refer to the improvement to pay for which the same is issued; shall provide that the principal sum therein named and the interest thereon shall be payable out of the fund created for the payment of the cost and expense of said improvement, and not otherwise; and shall not be issued in an amount which, together with the assessments already paid, will exceed the cost and expense of the said condemnation and improvement. [L. '11, p. 83, § 46.]

§ 8212-47. Par Value Maintained.

Said bonds, whether sold or exchanged, shall be disposed of for not less than their par value and accrued interest. [L. '11, p. 84, § 47.]

§ 8212-48. Advertise for Bids.

Before making any sale of such bonds the board shall advertise the sale and invite sealed bids therefor, by publication in the county official newspaper at least once, and in such other manner as it sees fit, for a period of thirty days. At the time and place fixed for receiving bids the board shall open all bids presented and may either award the bonds to the highest bidder or reject all bids. Delivery of the bonds and payment therefor may be as required by the board. The purchaser of any such bonds shall pay the money due therefor to the county treasurer, who shall place it in the district fund. [L. '11, p. 84, § 48.]

§ 8212-49. Treasurer to Call Bonds for Payment.

The treasurer shall pay the interest on the bonds authorized to be issued by this act, on presentation of matured coupons therefor, out of the funds of the district in his hands. Whenever there shall be sufficient money in any such fund (not less than one thousand dollars) over and above sufficient for the payment of matured interest on all outstanding bonds, to pay the principal of one or more bonds, the treasurer shall call in and pay such bonds in their numerical order: Provided, That the said call for bonds shall be made by publication in the official newspaper of the county if there be one, or otherwise in some newspaper of general circulation in the county, within five days after the semi-annual interest period, and shall state that bonds numbered — (giving the serial numbers of the bonds called) will be paid on presentation; and that after a date named, not more than fifteen days thereafter, interest on the bonds called shall cease. [L. '11, p. 84, § 49.]

§ 8212-50. Claim Limited.

Neither the holder nor owner of any bond issued under authority of this act shall have any claim therefor against any person, body or corporation, except from the special assessment made for the improvement for which such bond was issued; but his remedy in case of nonpayment shall be confined to the enforcement of such assessment. A copy of this section shall be plainly written, printed or engraved on each bond so issued. [L. '11, p. 84, § 50.]

§ 8212-51. May be Reassessed.

In all cases of assessments for improvements under this act, wherein such assessment shall have failed to be valid in whole or in part for want of form or insufficiency, informality or irregularity, or nonconformance with the provisions of this act, the board is hereby authorized to cause such assessments to be reassessed and to enforce their collection in accordance herewith. [L. '11, p. 85, § 51.]

§ 8212-52. Construction—Bonds—Claims—Deposit.

After the confirmation of the assessment-roll of any improvement district provided for herein, the board shall proceed at once with the construction of the improvement, and in carrying on said construction it shall have full charge and management thereof and the power to employ such assistants as it may deem necessary, and purchase all material required in such construction; and it shall have power to let the whole or any part of the work of said improvement to the lowest and best bidder therefor, after public advertisement and call for bids; and in case of such letting of a contract it shall have the power also to enter into all necessary agreements with the contractor in the premises: Provided, That in the case of the letting of a contract the board shall require the contractor to give a bond in the amount of the contract price, with sureties to be approved by the board and running to the board as obligee therein, conditioned for the faithful and accurate performance of his contract by said contractor, and that he will pay, or cause to be paid, all just claims of all persons performing labor upon or rendering services in doing said work, or furnishing materials, merchandise or provisions used by said contractor in the construction of said improvement.

Said bond shall be filed and recorded in the office of the auditor of the county and every subcontractor on any such work shall file and record a like bond in the full amount of his subcontract. Unless otherwise paid their claims for labor or services, materials, merchandise or provisions, the claimants may have recourse by suit upon such bond in their own names: Provided, That no such claim or suit shall be maintained unless the persons making said claim shall within thirty days after the completion of said improvement, file their claims, duly verified, to the effect that the amounts thereof are just and due and are unpaid, with the clerk of the board. Each bidder for a contract to be let under this section shall deliver with his bid a check for five per cent of the amount of the bid, drawn upon a bank in this state and certified by the bank, as surety to the board that the bidder will enter into the contract with the board. The checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned to them when an award of the contract has been made by the board. [L. '11, p. 85, § 52.]

§ 8212-53. Payment in Installments.

During the construction of the improvement said board shall have the right to allow payment therefor to contractors in installments as the work progresses, in proportion to the amount of work completed: Provided, That no such allowance or payment shall be made for exceeding seventy-five per cent of the proportionate amount of the work completed; and twenty-five per cent of the contract price shall be reserved at all times by said board until such work is fully completed, and shall not be paid until thirty days have expired after such completion. Upon completion of the work and the production of satisfactory evidence to the board that all just claims for labor, materials, goods, wares, merchandise and provisions furnished to the contractor have been paid, the board shall accept the improvement and pay the contract price therefor. [L. '11, p. 86, § 53.]

§ 8212-54. Form of Warrants.

The indebtedness of any such district on contracts, or upon employment or for supplies, shall be paid by warrants on the district fund only, to be issued by the board upon allowed written claims. Such warrants shall be in form the same as county warrants, or as nearly the same as may be practicable; shall draw the legal rate of interest from the date of their presentation to the county treasurer for payment, and shall be signed by the chairman and attested by the clerk: Provided, That no warrants shall be issued in payment of any indebtedness of such district for less than the face or par value. [L. '11, p. 86, § 54.]

§ 8212-55. Warrants Presented.

All warrants issued under the previous section of this act may be presented by the holders thereof to the county treasurer, who shall pay them or indorse thereon the date of presentation for payment and if the same are not paid, and the reason for their nonpayment; and no warrant shall draw interest until it is so presented and indorsed by the county treasurer. It shall be the duty of the treasurer from time to time, when he has sufficient funds in his hands for the purpose, to give notice to warrant holders to present their warrants for payment; such notice to be given by advertisement in the county newspaper. And thirty days after the first publication of said notice the warrants called shall cease to bear interest. Said notice shall be published once each week for two weeks consecutively, and such warrants shall be called and paid in the order of their indorsement. [L. '11, p. 87, § 55.]

§ 8212-56. Rights of Municipal Corporations.

State, school, county, school district, and other lands belonging to other public corporations which will be benefited by the construction, deepening or widening of any such waterway, and which are not devoted to public use, shall be subject to the provisions of this act, and the owners thereof by and through the proper authorities, shall be made parties in all proceedings affecting said lands, and shall have the same rights and be liable to the same right of eminent domain as the lands of private persons or corporations. [L. '11, p. 87, § 56.]

§ 8212-57. Assessment of Lands.

Lands belonging to the state, and school, county, school district and other lands belonging to public corporations and which are not devoted to public use, which are benefited by any improvement instituted under the provisions of this act, shall be assessed in the same manner as lands of private persons and corporations, and the assessment shall be paid by the proper authorities. [L. '11, p. 87, § 57.]

§ 8212-58. Right of Appeal.

Every defendant feeling aggrieved by any condemnation judgment for compensation or damages, or by any judgment confirming an assessment upon land for benefits under this act, may appeal to the supreme court of the state from such judgments within thirty days after the entry thereof. An appeal from a condemnation judgment may bring before the supreme court either the legality of the proceeding as a taking for a public use, or the justness of the amount of compensation or damages awarded to the appellant; but an appeal from a judgment confirming an assessment of benefits shall bring before the supreme court only the justness of the assessment against the property of the appellant. Two or more defendants may join in an appeal. The bill of exceptions or statement of facts upon such appeals shall contain only such portions of the evidence in the case as relates to the property of the appellants. Otherwise than as provided in this section such appeals shall be taken as provided by law in appeals to the supreme court from final judgments in actions at law. [L. '11, p. 87, § 58.]

§ 8212-59. Provision for Payment.

Any defendant in a condemnation proceeding under this act, whose remaining land, or whose other lands in the district, shall be assessed for benefits arising from the improvement, may pay his assessments in full, if they be less than his condemnation judgment, at or before the time fixed by the treasurer for the payment of assessments without interest, by satisfying his judgment upon the judgment docket and producing to the treasurer the certificate of the county clerk that the judgment has been satisfied. And if his assessments be greater than his condemnation judgments he may, within the same time, pay his assessment to the extent of his judgment by the like satisfaction and the like production of the clerk's certificate to the treasurer. In each case the treasurer shall note the payment and the manner thereof on the assessment-roll and report the same to the board. [L. '11, p. 88, § 59.]

§ 8212-60. Providing for Filling Property.

At any time before the completion of excavations required for the construction, deepening or widening of a waterway under this act, when there will be surplus material dug or dredged from such waterway, any owner of land within the district, for the filling of whose land no provision has theretofore been made, may have such surplus material delivered upon his land for filling purposes upon paying the cost of such delivery in a sum to be fixed by the board. The sum so fixed shall be paid to the treasurer at such time and in such manner as the board may prescribe, and shall be credited to the district fund. [L. '11, p. 88, § 60.]

§ 8212-61. Road Fund.

Should there be any money remaining in the district fund after the payment in full of all of the obligations of the district, it shall be transferred to and become a part of the road fund of the county. [L. '11, p. 89, § 61.]

§ 8212-62. Uncalled Sums to Road Fund.

Should any sum of money paid into court as compensation or damages for land or property taken or damaged in any condemnation proceeding under this act be uncalled for for the period of two years, the county clerk shall satisfy the judgment therefor and pay the money in his hands to the treasurer for the road fund of the county. But upon application to the board of county commissioners within four years after such payment, the party entitled thereto shall be paid such money by the county without interest: Provided, That if any such party, being a natural person, was under legal disabilities when such money was paid to the treasurer, the time within which he or his legal representatives shall make application for the payment thereof shall not expire until one year after his death or the removal of his disabilities. [L. '11, p. 89, § 62.]

§ 8212-63. Corporate Authority Control.

Every waterway constructed, deepened or widened under this act shall, from and after the completion thereof, be a public highway for vessels and an outlet for swamp or overflow water which may be drained into it from any lands in the district or tributary thereto, and shall be under the care and control of the board of county commissioners of the county as are other highways: Provided, That whenever any such waterway shall thereafter be included within the limits of any city or town, the care and control thereof shall pass to the corporate authorities of such city or town. [L. '11, p. 89, § 63.]

§ 8212-64. Concurrent Act.

This act shall not be held to be an exclusive method of constructing, deepening or widening such waterways, nor in conflict with any other method which may be provided by law. [L. '11, p. 89, § 64.]

§ 8212-65. Fees.

The fees for the service of all process necessary to be served under the provisions of this act shall be the same as those for like services in other civil cases. [L. '11, p. 90, § 65.]

§ 8212-66. Injunction.

The superior court may compel the performance of duties imposed by this act, and may on proper application therefor issue its mandatory injunction for such purpose. [L. '11, p. 90, § 66.]

TITLE LXII.
NOTARIES PUBLIC.

CHAPTER I.
NOTARIES PUBLIC.

§ 8298.

Under this section, a notary cannot, unless it is required by law, administer an oath with such binding force as is necessary to support a charge of perjury, in case of a false sworn statement: State v. Dal-

As to indictment for perjury and therein of description of authority of court or officer, see note in 124 Am. St. Rep. 660.

§ 8298-1. Powers of Notaries in Banks and Corporations.

It shall be lawful for any notary public who is a stockholder, director, officer or employee of a bank or other corporation to take the acknowledgment of any party to any written instrument executed to or by such corporation, or to protest for nonacceptance or nonpayment bills of exchange, drafts, checks, notes and other negotiable instruments which may be owned or held for collection by such corporation: Provided, It shall be unlawful for any notary public to take the acknowledgment of an instrument by or to a bank or other corporation of which he is a stockholder, director, officer or employee, where such notary is a party to such instrument individually or to protest any negotiable instrument owned or held for collection by such corporation, where such notary is individually a party to such instrument. [L. '13, p. 89, § 1.]

TITLE LXIV.

OFFICERS.

CHAPTER I.

OFFICIAL BONDS.

§ 8325.

The failure of an officer to give a bond, which was a ministerial act for the security of the government and not a condition precedent to his authority to act, does not render him merely a de facto officer, but he is a de jure officer under a defeasible title, and subject to the disqualification of holding other offices attached to the office: State ex rel. Chealander v. Carroll, 57 Wash. 202, 106 Pac. 748.

As to who are de facto, as distinguished from de jure, officers, and herein of failure to qualify, see note in 140 Am. St. Rep. 176.

tion, although there was no law authorizing him to receive the same, is a breach of his official bond for which his surety is liable; but the recovery must be limited to the fees received during the term of office covered by the bond: Skagit County v. American Bonding Co., 59 Wash. 8, 109 Pac. 199.

As to when sureties are relieved for acts of officer because not done virtute officii, see note in 78 Am. St. Rep. 420. See, also, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 581, and 21 L. R. A. 735.

As to extension of surety's liability when officer is holding over after term, see note in 35 L. R. A. 88.

§ 8335.

§ 8344.

See notes to § 3937.

CHAPTER V.

INSPECTION AND SUPERVISION OF PUBLIC OFFICERS.

§ 8351. Officers to Keep Accounts—Penalty—Deposit of Collections.

It shall be the duty of every public officer and employee to keep all accounts of his office in the form prescribed and to make all reports required by the state auditor. Refusal or neglect to perform these duties shall be deemed an offense against the efficiency of public administration and the welfare of the people, and shall be punished by removal from office, after trial and conviction by a court of competent jurisdiction. Every public officer and employee whose duty it is to collect or receive payments due or for the use of the public shall deposit such moneys collected or received by him with the treasurer of the taxing district once every twenty-four consecutive hours. In case a public officer or employee collects or receives funds for the account of a taxing district of which he is an officer or employee, he shall, during the Saturday of each week, pay to the proper officer of the taxing district for account of which the collection was made or payment received, the full amount collected or received during the current week for the account of such taxing district. [L. '11, p. 108, § 1.]

§ 8352. State Examiners—Appointment—Compensation.

After the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision shall have formulated and installed the system of uniform accounting in any or all classes of public offices, the state auditor is hereby empowered to appoint additional assistants as required to administer the provisions of this chapter; said additional assistants shall be known as state examiners, who shall each be paid eight dollars per day for the time necessary to the performance of his duties, and in addition thereto his railroad fare once to and from the place of examination. [L. '11, p. 108, § 1.]

§ 8354.

Under this section, a claim verified by a notary public using his seal cannot be objected to as not in the form prescribed by the bureau, where it is not made to appear that the bureau had prescribed any form when the affidavit was made: Frasier v. Cowlitz County, 67 Wash. 312, 121 Pac. 459.

§ 8355. Expenses of Bureau Levied Among Counties.

The expense of maintaining and operating the bureau herein provided for shall be paid out of the state general fund in the same manner as other state employees. [L. '11, p. 108, § 1.]

§ 8356. Expenses for Local Examinations in Tax Districts.

The expense of auditing public accounts shall be borne by each taxing district for the auditing of all accounts under its jurisdiction and the state auditor is hereby authorized and empowered to certify the expense of such audit to the auditor of the county in which said taxing district is situated, who shall promptly issue his warrant on the county treasurer payable out of the current expense fund of the county, said fund, except as to auditing the financial affairs and making inspection and examination of the county, to be reimbursed by the county auditor out of the money due said taxing district at the next monthly settlement of the collection of taxes and to be transferred monthly by the county treasurer to the current expense fund: Provided, That when such examiners are used in auditing the accounts of state offices and institutions, they shall be paid by the state. [L. '11, p. 108, § 1.]

Rem. & Bal. Code, section 8356 et seq., as amended by Laws of 1911, page 108, does not violate constitution, article 11, section 12, providing that the legislature shall not impose taxes upon counties, cities or other municipal corporations, or their inhabitants, but may by general laws vest such power in the corporate authorities, since the purpose of the law to secure a uniform system of bookkeeping and accounting, and supervision thereof, is a matter of public concern incidental to the municipality as an agency of the state, and not merely a matter of local self-government: State ex rel. Clausen v. Burr, 65 Wash. 524, 118 Pac. 639.

TITLE LXV.

PARTNERSHIPS AND BUSINESS NAMES.

§ 8366.

See notes to § 228.

CHAPTER II.

ASSUMED BUSINESS NAMES.

§ 8369.

See notes to § 228.

Partners may maintain an action upon a contract entered into by them as individuals without having complied with this section, where before suit brought they filed the required certificate showing that they were then doing business under the assumed name by which they sued, and that they were the only members of the firm: Church v. Wilkeson-Tripp Co., 58 Wash. 262, 137 Am. St. Rep. 1059, 108 Pac. 596; 109 Pac. 113.

As to necessity of consistency in complaint with respect to representation or individual capacity of party, see note in 1 L. R. A. 161.

Failure to plead or show a compliance with this section, directed against concealed partnerships, goes only to the capacity to sue, and is waived unless raised by demurrer: Bowman v. Harrison, 59 Wash. 56, 109 Pac. 192.

This section is directed against concealed partnerships, and it is not necessary to plead and show a compliance therewith in order to maintain an action, where the firm name discloses the surnames of the partners: Bowman v. Harrison, 59 Wash. 56, 109 Pac. 192.

The provisions of sections 8369, 8373, relate only to the capacity to sue, and are waived unless objection is raised by demurrer: Pierson v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 61 Wash. 450, 112 Pac. 509.

A contract of partnership between plaintiff and a third person is inadmissible to show a defect of parties plaintiff, or a necessity for filing the names of the partners under this section, where the contract was dated after the plaintiff's cause of action arose against the defendants: Ryder-

Gougar Co. v. Garretson, 53 Wash. 71, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1053, 101 Pac. 498.

The objection that a partnership, doing business under an assumed name, cannot maintain an action because it had failed to file with the county clerk the designation of the firm with the names of all the partners, as required by this section, goes only to the capacity to sue, and is waived if not raised by demurrer or answer: Hale v. City Cab, Carriage & Transfer Co., 66 Wash. 459, 119 Pac. 837.

A person conducting a business in which he alone is interested, in the name of a company containing his full name, is exempt from filing with the county clerk the designation of the firm with the true and real names of all persons conducting the business or having an interest therein, pursuant to this section, by section 8372, providing that nothing in the act shall prevent the lawful use of a partnership designation if the same includes the true and real name or names of all the parties conducting such business or having an interest therein: Merrill v. Caro Investment Co., 70 Wash. 482, 127 Pac. 122.

Under this section, exempting partnerships in which the firm name contains all the names of the partners from the necessity of filing with the county clerk the designation of the firm with the true names of all the partners, plaintiffs, doing business under the name of "Hale-Tindall Co.," which contains the names of all the partners, are exempt from the requirements of the statute: Hale v. City Cab, Carriage & Transfer Co., 66 Wash. 459, 119 Pac. 837.

§ 8373.

See notes to § 8369.

TITLE LXVI.

PAUPERS.

CHAPTER II.

MOTHERS' PENSIONS.

§ 8385-1. Counties to Help Destitute Mothers.

In every county it shall be the duty of the county commissioners to provide out of the moneys of the county treasurer an amount sufficient to meet the purposes of this law, for the support of women, whose husbands are dead, or are inmates of a penal institution or an insane asylum or who are abandoned by their husbands and such abandonment has continued for more than one year or because of total disability of their husbands, and who are unable to support their children, when such women are destitute and are mothers of children under the age of fifteen years and such mothers and children reside in such counties. [L. '13, p. 644, § 1.]

§ 8385-2. Allowance.

The allowance to each of such women shall not exceed fifteen ($15) dollars per month when she has but one child under the age of fifteen years, and if she has more than one child under the age of fifteen years, it shall not exceed the sum of fifteen dollars a month for the first child, and five dollars a month for each of the other children under the age of fifteen years. [L. '13, p. 644, § 2.]

§ 8385-3. Juvenile Court to Make Allowance.

Such allowance shall be made by the juvenile court in the counties where such court is held and elsewhere by the superior court, and only upon the following conditions: (1) The child or children for whose benefit the allowance is made must be living with the mother of such child or children; (2) When by means of such allowance the mother will be able to maintain a home for her child or children; (3) The mother must in the judgment of the court, be a proper person, morally, physically and mentally, for the bringing up of her children; (4) No person shall receive the benefit of this act who shall not have been a resident of a county in which such application is made for at least one year next before the making of such application for such allowance. [L. '13, p. 645, § 3.]

§ 8385-4. Benefits Cease When.

Whenever any child shall reach the age of fifteen years any allowance made to the mother of such child for the benefit of such child shall cease. The court may in its discretion at any time before such child reaches the age of fifteen years, discontinue or modify the allowance to any mother and for any child. [L. '13, p. 645, § 4.]

§ 8385-5. Penalties.

Any person procuring fraudulently any allowance for a person, not entitled thereto, shall be deemed guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '13, p. 645, § 5.]

§ 8385-6. Prosecuting Attorney to Bring Proceedings.

In each case where an allowance is made to any woman under the provisions of this act, an order to that effect shall be entered upon the records of the court, making such allowance. Proceedings to obtain the benefit of this act shall be instituted and maintained in the same manner as proceedings are instituted and maintained in the juvenile court and the prosecuting attorney shall render all necessary assistance to applicants under this act and shall appear in every such proceeding and through the probation officer, the charity commissioner or any person having knowledge of the facts, shall carefully investigate the merits of every application to the end that this act may be fairly administered and no person granted relief hereunder except those justly entitled thereto, and no officer of the court or county officer shall receive any fees for any service rendered in carrying out the provisions of this act. A certified copy of said order shall be filed with the county auditor of the county in which such child's mother is resident, and thereupon and thereafter and so long as such order remains in force and unmodified it shall be the duty of the county auditor each month to draw his warrant on the current expense fund of the county in favor of the mother for the amount specified in such order, which warrant shall be by the auditor delivered to the mother upon her executing duplicate receipts therefor, one to be retained by the auditor and the other to be filed by the clerk with the other records in the proceedings relating to such child or children. It shall be the duty of the county treasurer to pay such warrant out of funds in the current expense fund of the county. [L. '13, p. 645, § 6.]

TITLE LXVII.

PHYSICIANS.

CHAPTER I.

PHYSICIANS AND OSTEOPATHS.

§ 8386.

An act prohibiting the practice of medicine without first obtaining a license is not objectionable as embracing more than one subject from the fact that it contains provisions affecting a variety of practitioners having different systems and methods of treatment: State v. Greiner, 53 Wash. 46, 114 Pac. 897.

As to construction of constitutional provisions relative to titles of statutes, see note in 1 Ann. Cas. 584.

As to validity of statute having title more comprehensive than body of act, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 102.

As to application of statutes regulating practice of medicine to persons giving special kinds of treatment, see notes in 3 L. R. A., N. S., 762; 24 L. R. A., N. S., 103; 25 L. R. A., N. S., 129.

An act prohibiting the practice of medicine without first obtaining a license is within the acknowledged powers of the state: State v. Greiner, 63 Wash. 46, 114 Pac. 897.

As to physician as person subject to license, see note in 129 Am. St. Rep. 293.

As to power to tax operations as affected by constitutional requirement that taxes be uniform, see notes in 2 Ann. Cas. 325; 15 Ann. Cas. 986.

§ 8389.

Under this section and section 8406, providing that licensees shall use only such titles as are designated in their diplomas, "or those having no diplomas" only such as are designated in their licenses, an applicant is entitled to a license upon a showing that he has been in continuous practice in one locality for the two years previous to the passage of the act, without any diploma, and although not "legally" engaged in practice as required by the then existing statute making practice without a license a misdemeanor: In re Christensen, 59 Wash. 314, 109 Pac. 1040.

This section requires that an applicant for a license to practice medicine, based upon a diploma and prior practice in this state, as distinguished from one who had been "practicing" in one locality for two years, must have been "legally" engaged in such practice, and does not authorize a license to one who was practicing in this state without any license in violation of the then existing law: In re Harold, 59 Wash. 322, 109 Pac. 1043.

As to constitutionality of regulations as to practicing medicine, and herein of licenses, see note in 14 L. R. A. 581.

As to effect of failure to procure license, see note in 16 L. R. A. 425.

The loss or destruction of the statement of the medical board showing the grounds for its refusal of license to practice, required by this section, to be filed and kept of record, does not entitle an applicant to a rehearing, other records of the board showing the rejection and reasons therefor: State ex rel. Stanley v. Witter, 68 Wash. 356, 123 Pac. 471.

Neither does failure to notify an applicant that a license has been refused entitle him to a rehearing: State ex rel. Stanley v. Witter, 68 Wash. 356, 123 Pac. 471.

Under this section, the court on appeal has a right to administer the provisions of the medical act relating to examinations: In re Littlefield, 61 Wash. 150, 112 Pac. 234.

An appeal from the decisions of the medical board refusing a physician a license to practice, under this section, brings up for review all questions of fact, notwithstanding expert evidence may be required to determine the qualifications of the applicant, in view of the provisions requiring a trial de novo, and that the examination papers be a part of the record, and that the case stand for trial as an ordinary civil action: In re Littlefield, 61 Wash. 150, 112 Pac. 234.

Appeal lies from the order of the board of medical examiners refusing a license to practice, under this section: State ex rel. Brunn v. State Board of Medical Examiners, 61 Wash. 623, 112 Pac. 746.

§ 8393. Examination Fee.

Each applicant, on making application, shall pay the secretary of the board a fee of twenty-five ($25) dollars, which shall be turned over to the treasurer of the board, who shall retain fifteen ($15) dollars for the fee in his possession until the board shall have passed upon the credentials of the applicant, and in case they are insufficient the sum of fifteen ($15) dollars shall be returned upon application.

All money received or collected by said board or any member or officer thereof, during any month, shall be turned over, before the tenth day of the succeeding month to the state treasurer together with a verified statement showing the sources from which such money was derived. The treasurer of said board shall give security bond to be approved by and deposited with the auditor of the state, in the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000). The cost of said bond shall be paid by the state.

Each member of the board of medical examiners shall receive a compensation of five dollars per day for each day in which he is actually and necessarily engaged in attendance upon meetings of the board, in going to and returning from the place of meeting, and all necessary expenses incurred in attending such meetings. All such compensation and expenses, and all other expenses incident to the execution of the provisions of this act shall be paid by the state treasurer upon warrants drawn by the state auditor upon the presentation of proper vouchers to be approved by a majority of said board, as in the case of state officers. The secretary and treasurer of said board shall receive a compensation to be determined by said board not to exceed fifty dollars per annum. [L. '13, p. 256, § 1.]

This section requires that an appeal to the supreme court from an order of the superior court on appeal from the medical board must be taken within sixty days, and an appeal not so taken will be dismissed: Stewart v. State Board of Medical Examiners, 62 Wash. 59, 112 Pac. 1106.

As to review of an action of medical board, see note in 20 L. R. A. 355.

§ 8400.

A law making it a criminal offense to practice medicine without a license is valid: State v. Dodson, 54 Wash. 31, 102 Pac. 872.

§ 8406.

See notes to § 8389.

CHAPTER III.

DENTISTRY.

§ 8421.

An information charging the practicing of medicine without a license in the language of the statute is sufficient without setting forth the requirements for obtaining the license which are not made a part of the substantive crime, and without pleading matters made by the statute prima facie evidence of the fact that the accused had no license: State v. Dechmann, 57 Wash. 690, 107 Pac. 858.

This section, prohibiting the practice of dentistry without a license is not unconstitutional by reason of conflict with the constitution or by reason of its maladministration by state authority: Brown v. State, 59 Wash. 195, 109 Pac. 802.

As to validity of statute requiring license for practice of dentistry, see note in 5 Ann. Cas. 1005.

Upon a prosecution for practicing medicine without a license, the statutory prima facie case is made against the defendant by proof that no license is on file with the county clerk, without proving that the defendant was not a practicing physician before the law went into effect: State v. Dodson, 54 Wash. 31, 102 Pac. 872.

A conviction for practicing medicine without a license cannot be objected to in that there were two forms of offense proven, where there was no attempt to charge more than one crime, and the testimony as to the several indicia of practicing was merely evidentiary, especially where the only objection to such evidence was that it was immaterial and the accused admitted that he had no license: State v. Hanover, 55 Wash. 403, 104 Pac. 624.

In a prosecution for practicing medicine without a state license filed of record in the county of defendant's residence, there is a failure of proof where the state fails to show the residence of the defendant, although it was shown that he practiced medicine in the county charged without any license filed in such county: State v. Dechmann, 57 Wash. 690, 107 Pac. 858.

§ 8423. Fees—Compensation of Board.

Each member of the board of dental examiners shall receive a compensation of five dollars a day for each day in which he is actually and necessarily engaged in attendance upon the meetings of the board, and in going to and returning from the place of meeting, and all necessary expenses incurred in attending such meetings; all such compensation and all other expenses incident to the execution of the provisions of this act shall be paid by the state treasurer upon warrants drawn by the state auditor upon the presentation of proper vouchers to be approved by a majority of said board as in the case of state officers. The secretary of said board shall receive a compensation to be determined by said board not to exceed one hundred dollars per annum. He shall give surety bond to be approved by and deposited with the auditor of the state in the sum of one thousand dollars. The costs of said bond shall be paid by the state. All money received or collected by said board or any member or officer thereof during any month shall be turned over to the state treasurer before the tenth day of the succeeding month together with a verified statement showing the sources from which such money was derived. The board shall make an annual report of its proceedings to the governor on or before the first day of January of each year together with an account of money received and disbursed by them pursuant to this act. [L. '13, p. 254, § 1.]

CHAPTER IV.

VETERINARY.

§ 8437. Registry of Practitioners—Disposition of Fees and Funds.

The board shall keep a register of all registered practitioners in the state setting forth such facts as the board may see fit. All money received or collected by said board or any member or officer thereof during any month shall be turned over before the tenth day of the succeeding month to the state treasurer together with a verified statement showing the sources from which such money was derived. The treasurer of said board shall give surety bond to be approved and deposited with the auditor of the state in the sum of one thousand dollars. The cost of said bond shall be paid by the state. [L. '13, p. 253, § 1.]

§ 8438. Compensation of Board.

Each member of the board of veterinary medical examiners shall receive a compensation of five dollars per day for each day in which he is actually and necessarily engaged in attendance upon the meetings of the board and in going to and returning from the place of meeting and all necessary expenses incurred in attending such meetings. All such compensation and expenses and all other expenses incident to the execution of the provisions of this act shall be paid by the state treasurer upon warrants drawn by the state auditor upon the presentation of proper vouchers to be approved by a majority of said board as in the case of state officers. The secretary and treasurer of the board shall each receive a compensation to be determined by said board and not to exceed fifty dollars per annum. [L. '13, p. 253, § 2.]

§ 8443. Board to Render Account to Governor.

The board shall render on or before January 1st of each year to the governor a concise statement or report of all matters pertaining to the duties imposed upon the board in this act and making such suggestions as they shall deem expedient and proper. [L. '13, p. 254, § 3.]

CHAPTER V.

PHARMACY.

§ 8456. Compensation of Board—Bond by Secretary.

Each member of the state board of pharmacy shall receive a compensation of five dollars a day for each day in which he is actually and necessarily engaged in attendance upon meetings of the board and in going to and returning from the place of meeting, and all necessary expenses incurred in attending such meeting; all such compensation and expenses and all other expenses incident to the execution of the provisions of this act shall be paid by the state treasurer upon warrants drawn by the state auditor, upon the presentation of proper vouchers to be approved by a majority of said board, as in the case of state officers.

The secretary of said board shall receive a compensation to be determined by said board not to exceed one hundred dollars per annum.

All money received or collected by said board or any member or officer thereof during any month shall be turned over before the tenth day of the succeeding month, to the state treasurer together with a verified statement showing the sources from which such money was derived. The secretary of said board shall give a surety bond to be approved by and deposited with the auditor of the state, in the sum of one thousand ($1,000) dollars. The cost of said bond shall be paid by the state. [L. '13, p. 257, § 1.]

§ 8459.

This section does not impliedly repeal section 6275, relating to the sale and disposal of intoxicating liquors and requiring sales by druggists for medical purposes to be upon the written prescription of a reputable physician, since repeals by implication are not favored, and this rule has special application where the laws relate to different subjects: State v. Krook, 58 Wash. 23, 107 Pac. 1032.

This section amending the pharmacy law so as to provide that "no other license shall be necessary under any ordinance of any city" to make sales of intoxicating liquors under the pharmacy act, merely means that the state law shall govern and was not intended to authorize sales without a state license and physician's prescription: State v. Krook, 58 Wash. 23, 107 Pac. 1032.

As to licenses to druggists, see note in 129 Am. St. Rep. 294.

As to legality of sale of liquor by druggists, as affected by element of intent, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1345.

CHAPTER VI.

OPTOMETRY.

§ 8473. Disposition of Fees—Salary of Board.

Each member of the board of examiners in optometry shall receive a compensation of five dollars a day for each day in which he is actually and necessarily engaged in attendance upon meetings of the board, and in going to and returning from the place of meeting, and necessary expenses incurred in attending such meetings; all such compensation and expenses and all other expenses incident to the execution of the provisions of this act shall be paid by the state treasurer upon warrants drawn by the state auditor upon the presentation of proper vouchers, to be approved by a majority of said board as in the case of state officers. The secretary-treasurer of said board shall receive a compensation to be determined by said board not to exceed one hundred dollars per annum. All money received or collected by said board or any member or officer thereof during any month shall be turned over before the 10th day of the succeeding month to the state treasurer together with a verified statement showing the sources from which such money was derived. [L. '13, p. 250, § 1.]

§ 8478-1. Annual License Fee.

Every registered optometrist and every optometrist practicing under an exemption certificate shall in every year after 1914 pay to said board of examiners the sum of one dollar as a license fee for such year, such payment shall be made prior to the tenth day of January in each and every year, and in case of default of payment of such fee by any person, and after twenty days' notice of such default, his certificate may be revoked by the board of examiners until such fee is paid. [L. '13, p. 251, § 14.]

CHAPTER VII.

NURSES.

§ 8485. Expenses and Compensation of Board.

Each member of the nurses' examining board shall receive a compensation of five dollars per day for each day in which she is actually and necessarily in attendance upon the meetings of the board and in going to and returning from the place of meeting, and all necessary expenses incurred in attending such meetings. All such compensation and expenses and all other expenses incident to the execution of the provisions of this act shall be paid by the state treasurer upon warrants drawn by the state auditor upon presentation of proper vouchers to be approved by a majority of said board, as in the case of state officers. The secretary and treasurer of said board shall receive a compensation to be determined by said board and not to exceed one hundred dollars per annum. All money received or collected by said board or any officer or any member thereof during any month shall be turned over to the state treasurer before the tenth day of the succeeding month together with a verified statement showing the sources from which such money was derived. [L. '13, p. 255, § 1.]

TITLE LXVIII.

PRISONS AND REFORMATORIES.

CHAPTER IV.

PENITENTIARY PRODUCTS AND EMPLOYMENT OF CONVICTS.

§§ 8559—8567.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 648, § 10.

§ 8559-1. Purchase Jute and Other Fabrics.

The state board of control is authorized and empowered to purchase jute and other products and fabrics for use in the state penitentiary; and the jute and other fabrics and products manufactured at the state penitentiary shall be sold for such prices as shall in the judgment of the board be for the best interests of the state. [L. '11, p. 645, § 1.]

§ 8559-2. Sold Directly to Citizens of State—Exception.

The jute grain sacks and other fabrics and products manufactured at the state penitentiary shall be sold directly to the farmers, oyster growers or wool growers of the state of Washington, who are actually engaged in farming, oyster culture and wool growing, and no sacks shall be sold within the state of Washington to any person not engaged in farming or oyster culture and wool growing: Provided, however, That the state board of control may, between April 1st and January 1st of each year, dispose of any of the penitentiary products, including grain sacks, in the open market of the world at such prices as they shall deem to be for the best interests of the state. The products sold to residents of the state of Washington shall be sold under such rules, regulations and terms as may be provided by said board, for cash: Provided, That the said board of control may in its discretion accept in lieu of cash a certificate of deposit upon any state or national bank doing business in the state of Washington, payable not later than the fifteenth day of December of the current year, said certificate of deposit to bear interest at the rate of three per cent per annum. The products of the penitentiary shall be sold as near as may be in the order of the making of written application therefor, on blanks to be provided by the board. All payments for jute products and other fabrics and products shall be made to the superintendent of the state penitentiary, who is alone authorized to receipt therefor, and he shall keep a correct account of all sales, showing to whom sold, when sold, the quantity of each article sold, and the amount paid; and the warden of the penitentiary shall submit a transcript of said account of sales to the legislature through the board at each session thereof, and shall report the amount of such sales monthly to the state auditor. [L. '11, p. 645, § 2.]

§ 8559-3. Authority of Board.

The state board of control is authorized to purchase jute and other raw material for use in the penitentiary in the open market of the world, upon such terms as shall be for the best interests of the state; and the said board is authorized to make such freight arrangements for the transportation of such raw material and jute as may be for the best interests of the state; and the board of control in conjunction with the superintendent of the penitentiary may appoint a purchasing agent or agents for the purchase of such raw material or jute, and an agent or agents for the sale and disposition of the manufactured product, which agents shall be under the direction and exclusive jurisdiction of the state board of control, and the compensation and necessary expenses of such agents shall be paid out of the proper fund provided by law for the penitentiary. [L. '11, p. 646, § 3.]

§ 8559-4. Prices—Profit Allowed—Distribution.

The price at which all grain sacks manufactured at the penitentiary shall be offered for sale shall be fixed by the state board of control at such time in each year as the board shall consider proper, which price shall not exceed the estimated cost of manufacturing thereof plus a profit of twelve and one-half per cent on said estimated cost; and the board shall apportion all sacks manufactured among the grain growing counties of the state of Washington, pro rata, according to the quantity of grain produced in each of said counties, during the current year as determined by the state grain inspector, and it shall be the duty of the state grain inspector to ascertain and determine approximately the yield of grain in each of said counties for said purpose. Such estimate shall be furnished to the board on or before December 31st, of each year, and it shall be the duty of the board immediately following such apportionment to cause notice to be published in an official newspaper in each of the said counties, in which notice of the quantities of grain sacks apportioned to such county and the price fixed for the sale of the same shall be stated, and the manner and time of application shall be set forth: Provided, however, That such apportionment shall not be necessary from June 1st to January 1st of each year, at which time the grain sacks manufactured at the penitentiary may be sold in the open market of the world. [L. '11, p. 646, § 4; L. '13, p. 98, § 1.]

§ 8559-5. Application for Sacks.

Any resident of the state of Washington actually engaged in growing grain within the state may apply for as many of said sacks as he shall require for his individual use, which application shall be made upon blanks prescribed and furnished by the board. In making the application he shall state, under oath, the acreage of grain sown by him for that season, the probable aggregate yield therefrom, that the sacks applied for are for his individual use, and such other facts as the board of control may require. All such applications for grain sacks must be made and filed with the superintendent of the state penitentiary prior to the first day of April of each year. In the event that all of the sacks assigned to any one county shall not be applied for and sold, the state board of control shall apportion the amount not applied for in such county pro rata to such counties as may have therein an excess of applications in proportion to the excess, and if there shall be no excess the sacks not applied for shall not be sold until the first day of June, during which time any resident of the state of Washington, actually engaged in growing grain within said state may apply for such sacks in accordance with the terms of this act and upon the conditions herein stated, and after June first any sacks not sold may be sold anywhere in the open market of the world on such terms and prices as the board of control shall deem to be for the best interests of the state. [L. '11, p. 642, § 5; L. '13, p. 99, § 2.]

§ 8559-6. Payment.

Upon receiving notice of the acceptance of his application, wholly or in part, the applicant shall forthwith transmit to the superintendent of the state penitentiary one-tenth of the purchase price of said sacks, and the balance before delivery and not later than September first. If payment in full is not made before September first, in cash or by certificate of deposit, as provided for in this act, the one-tenth paid as above shall be forfeited to the state of Washington. [L. '11, p. 647, § 6.]

§ 8559-7. Board Make Rules.

The state board of control shall make all rules and regulations consistent with this act, and necessary to carry into effect the purposes thereof, and shall provide a uniform and complete form of application for sacks and furnish the same free of cost to all applicants therefor. [L. '11, p. 648, § 7.]

§ 8559-8. Construction.

This act shall be construed liberally with reference to the powers and duties of the warden of the state penitentiary and the state board of control, so that the best interests of the state will be subserved thereby. [L. '11, p. 648, § 8.]

§ 8575-1. Employment of Convicts on Roads.

Whenever there are persons confined in the state penitentiary who are physically able to perform manual labor upon the public highways, and who shall not be engaged in other work required by the state board of control, the same may be employed upon the construction and improvement of the public highways within the state. [L. '13, p. 347, § 1.]

§ 8575-2. Monthly List of Eligibles.

The board of control shall monthly certify to the state highway commissioner the number of persons in the institution named who may be used for the work authorized under this act, and the state highway commissioner shall, whenever possible, use such persons in the building or repair of public roads. [L. '13, p. 347, § 2.]

§ 8575-3. Supervision of Work and Men.

The work done, as in this act provided, shall be under the direction and supervision of the state highway commissioner, but the control and management of all the persons taken from the said penitentiary shall be under the supervision of the state board of control. The expense of the care, maintenance and transportation of all persons so taken from said institution to work upon the roads shall be paid out of the fund or funds authorized to be used upon the particular road upon which such work is being done: Provided, That a part of such expense equalizing twenty-five cents per day per person so employed shall be paid out of the appropriation for the maintenance of the particular institution from which such persons are taken. [L. '13, p. 347, § 3.]

TITLE LXX. RAILROADS AND PUBLIC UTILITIES.

CHAPTER I.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION.

§ 8626-1. Short Title.

This act shall be known as the "Public Service Commission Law," and shall apply to the public services herein described and the commission hereby created. [L. '11, p. 538, § 1.]

It is within the police powers of the state to regulate telegraph and telephone rates by surrendering the control to a properly constituted commission, subject to judicial review, under article 12 of the constitution, providing for the organization of corporations, and declaring telegraph and telephone companies to be common carriers subject to legislative control: State ex rel. Webster v. Superior Court, 67 Wash. 37, 120 Pac. 861.

The power to fix rates being reserved by the constitution, the same is not an incident to the right of a city to frame a special charter; and there being no express grant or waiver of the constitutional reservation, a city franchise to a telephone company granted under authority of a special charter is a mere license or permission, subject to control by the police power of the state, and the obligations thereof are not binding upon the state as a contract within the meaning of the federal constitution: State ex rel. Webster v. Superior Court, 67 Wash. 37, 120 Pac. 861.

Where a city, in granting a franchise to a telephone company fixing maximum rates, reserved the right to alter, amend or annul the conditions of the franchise, it cannot raise the objection that the state, in raising the rates in the exercise of its police power, will impair the obligations of the contract: State ex rel. Webster v. Superior Court, 67 Wash. 37, 120 Pac. 861.

Such act does not violate the constitutional prohibition against class legislation or deprivation of equal protection of the laws by reason of the exceptions enumerated in the proviso, the classification being within the discretion of the legislature and founded on a reasonable basis: State v. Somerville, 67 Wash. 638, 122 Pac. 324.

As to legislative regulation of rates of telegraph companies, see note in 33 L. R. A. 181.

As to validity of statute or ordinance regulating rates of telephone company, see note in 10 Am. St. Rep. 134; also note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 308.

Under the public utilities act of 1911, page 538, authorizing the public service commission to fix reasonable rates and charges for public service corporations which are required to furnish adequate and sufficient services and facilities, the commission has power to require a telephone company to raise its rates above the maximum permitted by its city franchise, where such increased rate has become necessary to provide sufficient revenue to give an adequate service: State ex rel. Webster v. Superior Court, 67 Wash. 37, 120 Pac. 861.

The public utilities act of 1911, page 538, providing for a public service commission with power to establish reasonable rates and charges for public service corporations, is a "general law," within constitution, article 11, section 10, authorizing the adoption of special charters by cities subject to general laws, constitution, article 12, section 18, having required the legislature to establish reasonable maximum rates for railroads and other common carriers, and providing that a railroad commission may be established and its powers defined: State ex rel. Webster v. Superior Court, 67 Wash. 37, 120 Pac. 861.

§ 8626-2. Public Service Commission—Appointment—Term—Removal.

There shall be and there is hereby created, a public service commission consisting of three persons, one of whom shall be elected as chairman, to be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate. The terms of the commissioners first appointed under the provisions of this act shall be, one for the term of six years, one for the term of four years, and one for the term of two years; and thereafter the term of each commissioner shall be six years from and after the expiration of the term of his predecessor. Each commissioner shall hold office until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified.

The governor may remove any commissioner for inefficiency, neglect of duty or misconduct in office, giving to him a copy of the charges against him, and an opportunity of being publicly heard in person or by counsel in his own defense, upon not less than ten days' notice. If such commissioner shall be removed the governor shall file in the office of the secretary of state a complete statement of all charges made against such commissioner, and his findings thereon, together with a complete record of the proceedings, and there shall be no right to review of the same in any court whatsoever.

The governor shall fill all vacancies in the office of commissioner by appointment, and the person so appointed shall fill out the unexpired term of his predecessor. [L. '11, p. 538, § 2.]

§ 8626-3. Qualifications, Oath, Bond, and Compensation.

No commissioner shall hold any other office under the government of the United States or of this state, or of any county or municipal corporation within this state, nor shall he engage in any occupation or business inconsistent with his duties as such commissioner, nor shall he hold any official relation or be interested in the bonds, stocks, mortgages, securities, contracts or earnings of any public service company embraced within the provisions of this act.

Before entering upon the duties of his office he shall take and subscribe an oath of office, to the effect that he will support the constitution of the United States and the constitution and laws of the state of Washington, and faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of his office as required by law, and that he is not interested, directly or indirectly, in any public service company embraced within the provisions of this act, or any of its bonds, stocks, mortgages, securities, contracts or earnings.

Before entering upon the duties of his office, each commissioner shall give a surety company bond (the cost of said bond to be paid by the state) in the sum of twenty thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties.

Each commissioner shall receive an annual salary of five thousand dollars payable in the same manner as the salaries of other state officers. [L. '11, p. 539, § 3.]

§ 8626-4. Secretary.

The commission shall have a secretary to be appointed by it and hold office at its pleasure. The secretary shall keep full and accurate minutes of all transactions and proceedings of the commission, and perform such duties as may be required by the commission. He shall receive an annual salary of two thousand dollars. [L. '11, p. 539, § 4.]

§ 8626-5. Duties of Attorney General.

It shall be the duty of the attorney general to represent and appear for the people of the state of Washington and the commission in all actions and proceedings involving any question under this act, or under or in reference to any act or order of the commission; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general generally to see that all laws affecting any of the persons or corporations herein enumerated are complied with, and that all laws, the enforcement of which devolves upon the commission, are enforced, and to that end he is authorized to institute, prosecute and defend all necessary actions and proceedings. [L. '11, p. 540, § 5.]

§ 8626-6. Organization, Meetings, Official Seal, Employees, Expenses and Reports.

The office of the commission shall be at the state capital, where the commission shall reside. The commission shall at all times be open and in session for the transaction of business. They shall be known collectively as "The Public Service Commission of Washington" and shall adopt and use an official seal.

The commission may appoint an expert rate clerk and statistician at a salary of not to exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000) per annum, an engineer at a salary of not to exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000) per annum, an inspector of safety appliances at a salary of not to exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000) per annum, an expert accountant at a salary not to exceed eighteen hundred dollars ($1,800) per annum, a stenographer competent to report hearings at a salary of not to exceed eighteen hundred dollars ($1,800) per annum, and such engineers, inspectors, accountants, experts, clerks, and other assistants as it may deem necessary, at such rates of compensation as it may determine upon.

All employees of the commission shall take an oath before entering upon the discharge of their duties, to faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of their several offices.

The commissioners, secretary, and other employees of the commission shall be entitled to receive from the state their actual necessary expenses when traveling on the business of the commission.

The commission is authorized to procure all necessary books, maps, charts, stationery, instruments, office furniture and other appliances deemed by the commission necessary.

All proceedings of the commission, and all documents and records in its possession, shall be public records. The commission shall make and submit to the governor an annual report containing full and complete accounts of the transactions and proceedings of its office, together with the information gathered by the commission as herein required, and such other facts, suggestions and recommendations as may be by it deemed necessary, which report shall be published as the reports of the heads of departments. [L. '11, p. 540, § 6.]

§ 8626-7. Quorum—Powers of a Commissioner.

A majority of the commissioners shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business, for the performance of any duty, or for the exercise of any power of the commission, and may hold hearings at any time or place within or without the state. Any investigation, inquiry or hearing which the commission has power to undertake or to hold may be undertaken or held by or before any commissioner. All investigations, inquiries and hearings of a commissioner shall be and be deemed to be the investigations, inquiries and hearings of the commission, and all findings, orders or decisions, made by a commissioner, when approved and confirmed by the commission and filed in its office, shall be and be deemed to be the findings, orders or decisions of the commission. [L. '11, p. 541, § 7.]

§ 8626-8. Definitions.

§ 8626-9. Charges—Duties of Common Carriers.

All charges made for any service rendered or to be rendered in the transportation of persons or property, or in connection therewith, by any common carrier, or by any two or more common carriers, shall be just, fair, reasonable and sufficient.

Every common carrier shall construct, furnish, maintain and provide safe, adequate and sufficient service facilities, trackage, sidings, railroad connections, industrial and commercial spurs and equipment to enable it to promptly, expeditiously, safely and properly receive, transport and deliver all persons or property offered to or received by it for transportation, and to promote the safety, health, comfort and convenience of its patrons, employees and the public.

All rules and regulations issued by any common carrier affecting or pertaining to the transportation of persons or property shall be just and reasonable. [L. '11, p. 546, § 9.]

§ 8626-10. Duty of Carriers and Persons to Expedite Traffic.

Every common carrier shall under reasonable rules and regulations promptly and expeditiously receive, transport and deliver all persons or property offered to or received by it for transportation. All persons receiving cars for loading shall promptly and expeditiously load the same, and all persons receiving property shall promptly and expeditiously receive and remove the same from the cars and freight-rooms. [L. '11, p. 547, § 10.]

§ 8626-11. Distribution of Cars.

Every railroad company shall upon reasonable notice, furnish to all persons and corporations who may apply therefor and offer property for transportation sufficient and suitable cars for the transportation of such property in carload lots. In case at any particular time a railroad company has not sufficient cars to meet all the requirements for transportation of property in carload lots, all cars available for such purpose shall be distributed among the several applicants therefor, without unjust discrimination between shippers, localities or competitive or noncompetitive points. [L. '11, p. 547, § 11.]

§ 8626-12. Railroads shall Keep a Distributing Book.

Every railroad company shall keep, subject to the inspection of any bona fide shipper, a book or books known as "car distributing book," which shall be kept by such officer or officers, employees of such railroad, and in such manner and form as the commission shall direct, showing among other things all orders for cars received by such railroad company, the name of the person ordering the same, the time when and place where such cars are required, the time when and place where such cars were supplied, and such other matters and information as the commission may prescribe. [L. '11, p. 547, § 12.]

§ 8626-13. Switch and Sidetrack Connections.

A railroad company upon the application of any shipper shall construct, maintain and operate upon reasonable terms a switch connection or connections with a lateral line of railway or private sidetrack owned, operated or controlled by such shipper, and shall upon the application of any shipper, provide upon its own property a sidetrack and switch connection with its line of railway, whenever such a sidetrack and switch connection is reasonably practicable, and can be put in with safety and the business therefor is sufficient to justify the same. [L. '11, p. 548, § 13.]

§ 8626-14. Tariff Schedules—Publication.

Every common carrier shall file with the commission and shall print and keep open to the public inspection schedules showing the rates, fares, charges and classification for the transportation of persons and property within the state between each point upon its route and all other points thereon; and between each point upon its route and all points upon every route leased, operated or controlled by it; and between each point on its route or upon any route leased, operated or controlled by it and all points upon the route of any other common carrier, whenever a through route and joint rate shall have been established or ordered between any two such points. If no joint rate over a through route has been established, the several carriers in such through route shall file, print and keep open to the public inspection, as aforesaid, the separately established rates, fares, charges and classifications, applied to the through transportation. The schedules printed as aforesaid, shall plainly state the places between which property and persons will be carried, and shall also contain classification of passengers or property in force, and shall also state separately all terminal charges, storage charges, icing charges, and all other charges which the commission may require to be stated, all privileges or facilities granted or allowed, and any rules or regulations which may in any wise change, affect, or determine any part, or the aggregate of, such aforesaid rates, fares and charges, or the value of the service rendered to the passenger, shipper or consignee. Such schedule shall be plainly printed in large type, and a copy thereof shall be kept by every such carrier readily accessible to and for inspection by the public in every station or office of such carrier where passengers or property are respectively received for transportation, when such station or office is in charge of any agent, and in every station or office of such carrier where passenger tickets for transportation or tickets covering sleeping or parlor car or other train accommodation are sold or bills of lading or receipts for property are issued. All or any of such schedules kept as aforesaid shall be immediately produced by such carrier for inspection upon the demand of any person. A notice printed in bold type and stating that such schedules are on file with the agent and open to inspection by any person and that the agent will assist any such person to determine from such schedules any transportation rates or fares or rules or regulations which are in force shall be kept posted by the carrier in two public and conspicuous places in every such station or office. The form of every such schedule shall be prescribed by the commission and shall conform in the case of railroad companies as nearly as may be to the form of schedules required by the interstate commerce commission under the act of Congress entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February fourth, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto.

The commission shall have power, from time to time, in its discretion, to determine and prescribe by order such changes in the form of such schedules as may be found expedient, and to modify the requirements of this section in respect to publishing, posting and filing of schedules either in particular instances or by general rule or order applicable to special or peculiar circumstances or conditions.

The commission may, in its discretion, suspend the operation of this section in whole or in part as applied to vessels engaged in jobbing business not operating on regular routes. [L. '11, p. 548, § 14.]

§ 8626-15. Changes in Schedule—Notice Required.

Unless the commission otherwise orders no change shall be made in any classification, rate, fare, charge, rule or regulation which shall have been filed and published by a common carrier in compliance with the preceding section, except after thirty days' notice to the commission and to the public published as aforesaid, which shall plainly state the changes proposed to be made in the schedule then in force, and the time when the changed rate, classification, fare or charge will go into effect; and all proposed changes shall be shown by printing, filing and publishing new schedules or shall be plainly indicated upon the schedules in force at the time and kept open to public inspection. The commission, for good cause shown, may by order allow changes in rates without requiring the thirty days' notice and the publication herein provided for. When any change is made in any rate, fare, charge, classification, rule or regulation, the effect of which is to increase any rate, fare or charge then existing, attention shall be directed to such increase by some character on the copy filed with the commission immediately preceding or following the item in such schedule, such character to be designated by the commission. [L. '11, p. 550, § 15.]

§ 8626-16. Concurrence in Joint Tariffs—Contracts, Agreements or Arrangements Between Carriers.

The names of the several carriers which are parties to any joint tariff shall be specified therein, and each of the parties thereto, other than the one filing the same, shall file with the commission such evidence of concurrence therein or acceptance thereof as may be required or approved by the commission; and where such evidence of concurrence or acceptance is filed, it shall not be necessary for the carriers filing the same also to file copies of the tariffs in which they are named as parties.

Every common carrier shall file with the commission copies of every contract, agreement or arrangement with any other common carrier or common carriers relating in any way to the transportation of persons or property. [L. '11, p. 550, § 16.]

§ 8626-17. Common Carriers to File Interstate Tariffs.

Every common carrier shall print and file or cause to be filed with the commission schedules showing the rates, fare, charges and classifications for the transportation of persons and property between all points within the state and all points without the state upon its route, and between each point within the state and all points without the state upon every route leased, operated or controlled by it, and between each point upon its route within the state and all points without the state upon the route of any common carrier, whenever a through route and joint rate shall have been established between any two such points. If no joint rate over a through route has been established, the carrier operating within this state shall print and file with the commission the separately established rates, fares, charges and classifications applied to the through transportation. The schedules printed aforesaid shall plainly state the places between which property and persons will be carried, and shall also contain the classification of passengers or property in force, and shall also state separately all terminal charges, storage charges, icing charges or other charges which the commission may require to be stated, all privileges granted or allowed, and any rules or regulations which may in anywise change, affect or determine any part or the aggregate of such aforesaid rates, fares, and charges or the value of the service rendered to the passenger, shipper or consignee. [L. '11, p. 551, § 17.]

§ 8626-18. Published Rates to be Charged—Free or Reduced Transportation.

No common carrier shall charge, demand, collect or receive a greater or less or different compensation for transportation of persons or property, or for any service in connection therewith, than the rates, fares and charges applicable to such transportation as specified in its schedules filed and in effect at the time; nor shall any such carrier refund or remit in any manner or by any device any portion of the rates, fares, or charges so specified excepting upon order of the commission as hereinafter provided, nor extend to any shipper or person any privileges or facilities in the transportation of passengers or property except such as are regularly and uniformly extended to all persons and corporations under like circumstances. No common carrier shall, directly or indirectly, issue or give any free ticket, free pass or free or reduced transportation for passengers between points within this state, except its employees and their families, its officers, agents, surgeons, physicians and attorneys at law; to ministers of religion, traveling secretaries of railroad Young Men's Christian Associations, inmates of hospitals, charitable and eleemosynary institutions and persons exclusively engaged in charitable and eleemosynary work; to indigent, destitute and homeless persons and to such persons when transported by charitable societies or hospitals, and the necessary agents employed in such transportation; to inmates of the national homes or state homes for disabled volunteer soldiers and of soldiers and sailors' homes, including those about to enter and those returning home after discharge; to necessary caretakers of livestock, poultry, milk and fruit; to employees of sleeping-car companies, express companies, and to linemen of telegraph and telephone companies; to railway mail service employees, post-office inspectors, customs inspectors and immigration inspectors; to newsboys on trains; baggage agents, witnesses attending any legal investigation in which the common carrier is interested; to persons injured in accidents or wrecks and physicians and nurses attending such persons; to the National Guard of Washington when on official duty, and students going to and returning from state institutions of learning: Provided, That this provision shall not be construed to prohibit the interchange of passes for the officers, attorneys, agents and employees and their families, of railroad companies, steamboat companies, express companies and sleeping-car companies with other railroad companies, steamboat companies, express companies and sleeping-car companies, nor to prohibit any common carrier from carrying passengers free with the object of providing relief in cases of general epidemic, pestilence, or other calamitous visitation: And provided, further, That this provision shall not be construed to prohibit the exchange of passes or franks for the officers, attorneys, agents, employees, and their families of such telegraph, telephone and cable lines, and the officers, attorneys, agents, employees, and their families of other telegraph, telephone or cable lines, or with railroad companies, express companies or sleeping-car companies: Provided, further, That the term "employee" as used in this section shall include furloughed, pensioned, and superannuated employees, persons who have become disabled or infirm in the service of any such common carrier, and the remains of a person killed or dying in the employment of a carrier, those entering or leaving its service and ex-employees traveling for the purpose of entering the service of any such common carrier; and the term "families" as used in this section shall include the families of those persons named in this proviso, also the families of persons killed and the widows during widowhood and minor children during minority of persons who died while in the service of any such common carrier: And provided, further, That nothing herein contained shall prevent the issuance of mileage, commutation tickets or excursion passenger tickets: And provided, further, That nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the issuance of free or reduced transportation by any street railroad company for mail carriers or policemen or members of fire departments, city officers, and employees when engaged in the performance of their duties as such city employees.

Common carriers subject to the provisions of this act may carry, store or handle, free or at reduced rates, property for the United States, state, county or municipal governments, or for charitable purposes, or to or from fairs and exhibitions for exhibition thereat, and may carry, store or handle, free or at reduced rates, the household goods and personal effects of its employees and those entering or leaving its service and those killed or dying while in its service.

Nothing in this act shall be construed to prohibit the making of a special contract providing for the mutual exchange of service between any railroad company and any telegraph or telephone company, where the line of such telegraph or telephone company is situated upon or along the railroad right of way and used by both of such companies. [L. '11, p. 551, § 18.]

§ 8626-19. Railroads shall have Scales.

It shall be the duty of all railroads operating in this state, to provide suitable facilities for the testing of all track scales used by such railroads. The commission is hereby authorized, after a hearing, upon its own motion and after notice to the railroads operating in this state, to order a suitable car or other device or facility to be provided by the railroad companies operating in this state, to be used in testing the track scales used by such railroads, the expenses of providing such car, device or facility to be equitably and reasonably apportioned among the different railroad companies by the commission. Such car, device or facility shall be used by the commission to test the accuracy of all track scales, and the different railroad companies shall transport and move such car, device or facility without charge therefor, to the different places designated by the commission under such reasonable rules and regulations as the commission may prescribe. Such car, device or facility may be used in adjoining states to test the scales of railroad companies and for that purpose may be taken beyond the limits of the state under such reasonable rules and regulations for the due care and return thereof as the commission may prescribe. The commission is hereby authorized to prescribe and collect a reasonable fee sufficient to cover the cost and expenses connected therewith for the inspection and testing of all scales. [L. '11, p. 554, § 19.]

§ 8626-20. Unjust Discrimination.

No common carrier shall, directly or indirectly, by any special rate, rebate, drawback, or other device or method, charge, demand, collect or receive from any person or corporation a greater or less compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered in the transportation of persons or property except as authorized in this act, than it charges, demands, collects or receives from any person or corporation for doing a like and contemporaneous service in the transportation of a like kind of traffic under the same or substantially similar circumstances and conditions. [L. '11, p. 555, § 20.]

§ 8626-21. Unreasonable Preference.

No common carrier shall make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any person or corporation or to any locality or to any particular description of traffic in any respect whatsoever, or subject any particular person or corporation or locality or any particular description of traffic, to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever. [L. '11, p. 555, § 21.]

§ 8626-22. Long and Short Haul.

No common carrier, subject to the provisions of this act, shall charge or receive any greater compensation in the aggregate for the transportation of persons or of a like kind of property, for a shorter than for a longer distance over the same line in the same direction, the shorter being included within the longer distance, or to charge any greater compensation as a through rate than the aggregate of the intermediate rates, subject to the provisions of this act; but this shall not be construed as authorizing any such common carrier to charge and receive as great a compensation for a shorter as for a longer distance or haul. Upon application of a common carrier the commission may by order authorize it to charge less for a longer than for a shorter distance for the transportation of persons or property in special cases after investigation by the commission, but the order must specify and prescribe the extent to which the common carrier making such application is relieved from the operation of this section, and only to the extent so specified and prescribed shall any common carrier be relieved from the operation and requirements of this section. [L. '11, p. 555, § 22.]

§ 8626-23. False Billing, etc., by Carrier or Shipper.

No common carrier, or any officer or agent thereof, or any person acting for or employed by it, shall assist, suffer or permit any person or corporation to obtain transportation for any person or property between points within this state at less than the rates then established and in force in accordance with the schedules filed and published in accordance with the provisions of this act, by means of false billing, false classification, false weight or weighing, or false report of weight, or by any other device or means. No person, corporation, or any officer, agent or employee of a corporation, who shall deliver property for transportation within the state to a common carrier, shall seek to obtain or obtain such transportation for such property at less than the rates then established and in force therefor, as aforesaid, by false billing, false or incorrect classification, false weight or weighing, false representation of the contents or substance of a package, or false report or statement of weight, or by any device or means, whether with or without the consent or connivance of a common carrier or any of its officers, agents or employees.

No person, corporation, or any officer, agent, or employee, of a corporation, shall knowingly or willfully, directly or indirectly, by false statement or representation as to the cost, value, nature or extent of injury, or by the use of any false billing, bill of lading, receipt, voucher, roll, account, claim, certificate, affidavit or deposition, knowing the same to be false, fictitious or fraudulent, or to upon any false, fictitious or fraudulent statement or entry, obtain or attempt to obtain any allowance, rebate or payment for damage, or otherwise, in connection with or growing out of the transportation of persons or property, or agreement to transport such persons or property, whether with or without the consent or connivance of such common carrier or any of its officers, agents or employees, whereby the compensation of such carrier for such transportation shall be in fact made less than the rates then established and in force therefor.

No person, corporation, or any officer, agent or employee of a corporation, who shall deliver property for transportation within the state to a common carrier, shall seek to obtain or obtain such transportation by any false representation, false statement or false paper or token as to the contents or substance thereof, where the transportation of such property is prohibited by law. [L. '11, p. 556, § 23.]

§ 8626-24. Discrimination Prohibited—Connecting Lines.

Every railroad company shall, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the commission, afford all reasonable, proper and equal facilities for the interchange of passengers, tonnage and cars, loaded or empty, between the lines, owned, operated, controlled or leased by it and the lines of every other railroad company; and shall, under such regulations as the commission may prescribe, receive and transport, without delay or discrimination, the passengers, tonnage and cars, loaded or empty, of any connecting line of railroad: Provided, That perishable freight of all kinds and livestock shall have precedence of shipment. Every railroad company as such is required to receive from every other railroad company at a connecting point the tonnage carried by such other railroad company in the cars in which the same may be loaded, and haul the same through to the point of destination if the destination be upon a line owned, operated or controlled by such railroad company, or, if the destination be upon the line of some other railroad company, to haul such tonnage in such cars through to the connecting point upon the line operated, owned, controlled or leased by it by way of route over which such car is billed, and there deliver the same to the next connecting carrier, under such regulations as the commission may prescribe. [L. '11, p. 557, § 24.]

§ 8626-25. Fares and Transfers on Street Railroads.

No street railroad company shall charge, demand or collect more than five cents for one continuous ride within the corporate limits of any city, or town. Every street railroad company shall upon such terms as shall be just and reasonable, furnish to its passengers transfers entitling such passengers to one continuous trip over and upon portions of its lines within the same city or town not reached by the originating car. [L. '11, p. 558, § 25.]

§ 8626-26. Duties of Gas, Electrical and Water Companies.

All charges made, demanded or received by any gas company, electrical company or water company for gas, electricity or water, or for any service rendered or to be rendered in connection therewith, shall be just, fair, reasonable and sufficient.

Every gas company, electrical company and water company shall furnish and supply such service, instrumentalities and facilities as shall be safe, adequate and efficient, and in all respects just and reasonable.

All rules and regulations issued by any gas company, electrical company or water company, affecting or pertaining to the sale or distribution of its product, shall be just and reasonable.

Every gas company, electrical company and water company shall construct and maintain such facilities in connection with the manufacture and distribution of its product as will be efficient and safe to its employees and the public. [L. '11, p. 558, § 26.]

§ 8626-27. Gas, Electrical and Water Companies shall File Schedules.

Every gas company, electrical company and water company shall file with the commission and shall print and keep open to public inspection schedules in such form as the commission may prescribe, showing all rates and charges made, established or enforced, or to be charged or enforced, all forms of contract or agreement, all rules and regulations relating to rates, charges or service, used or to be used, and all general privileges and facilities granted or allowed by such gas company, electrical company or water company. [L. '11, p. 558, § 27.]

§ 8626-28. Change in Schedule—Notice Required.

Unless the commission otherwise orders, no change shall be made in any rate or charge or in any form of contract or agreement or in any rule or regulation relating to any rate, charge or service, or in any general privilege or facility which shall have been filed and published by a gas company, electrical company or water company in compliance with the requirements of the preceding section, except after thirty days' notice to the commission and publication for thirty days, which notice shall plainly state the changes proposed to be made in the schedule then in force and the time when the change will go into effect and all proposed changes shall be shown by printing, filing and publishing new schedules, or shall be plainly indicated upon the schedules in force at the time and kept open to public inspection. The commission, for good cause shown, may allow changes without requiring the thirty days' notice by duly filing, in such manner as it may direct, an order specifying the changes so to be made and the time when it shall take effect. All such changes shall be immediately indicated upon its schedules by the company affected. When any change is made in any rate or charge, form of contract or agreement, or any rule or regulation relating to any rate or charge or service, or in any general privilege or facility, the effect of which is to increase any rate or charge, then in existence, attention shall be directed on the copy filed with the commission to such increase by some character immediately preceding or following the item in such schedule, such character to be in form as designated by the commission. [L. '11, p. 559, § 28.]

§ 8626-29. Published Rates to be Charged—Exceptions.

No gas company, electrical company or water company shall charge, demand, collect or receive a greater or less or different compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered than the rates and charges applicable to such service as specified in its schedule filed and in effect at the time, nor shall any such company directly or indirectly refund or remit in any manner or by any device any portion of the rates or charges so specified, or furnish its product at free or reduced rates except to its employees and their families, and its officers, attorneys, and agents; to hospitals, charitable and eleemosynary institutions and persons engaged in charitable and eleemosynary work; to indigent and destitute persons; to national homes or state homes for disabled volunteer soldiers and soldiers' and sailors' homes: Provided, That the term "employees" as used in this paragraph shall include furloughed, pensioned and superannuated employees, persons who have become disabled or infirm in the service of any such company; and the term "families," as used in this paragraph, shall include the families of those persons named in this proviso, the families of persons killed or dying in the service, also the families of persons killed, and the widows during widowhood, and the minor children during minority of persons who died while in the service of any of the companies named in this paragraph: And provided, further, That water companies may furnish free or at reduced rates water for the use of the state, or for any project in which the state is interested.

No gas company, electrical company or water company shall extend to any person or corporation any form of contract or agreement or any rule or regulation or any privilege or facility except such as are regularly and uniformly extended to all persons and corporations under like circumstances. [L. '11, p. 560, § 29.]

§ 8626-30. Unreasonable Preference.

No gas company, electrical company or water company shall make or grant any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any person, corporation, or locality, or to any particular description of service in any respect whatsoever, or subject any particular person, corporation or locality or any particular description of service to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever. [L. '11, p. 560, § 30.]

§ 8626-31. Unjust Discrimination.

No gas company, electrical company or water company shall, directly or indirectly, or by any special rate, rebate, drawback or other device or method, charge, demand, collect or receive from any person or corporation a greater or less compensation for gas, electricity or water, or for any service rendered or to be rendered, or in connection therewith, except as authorized in this act, than it charges, demands, collects or receives from any other person or corporation for doing a like or contemporaneous service with respect thereto under the same or substantially similar circumstances or conditions. [L. '11, p. 561, § 31.]

§ 8626-32. Sliding Scale of Charges.

Nothing in this act shall be taken to prohibit a gas company, electrical company or water company from establishing a sliding scale of charges, whereby a greater charge is made per unit for a lesser than a greater quantity for gas, electricity or water, or any service rendered or to be rendered. [L. '11, p. 561, § 32.]

§ 8626-33. Distribution Without Discrimination.

Every gas company, electrical company or water company, engaged in the sale and distribution of gas, electricity or water, shall, upon reasonable notice, furnish to all persons and corporations who may apply therefor and be reasonably entitled thereto, suitable facilities for furnishing and furnish all available gas, electricity and water as demanded. [L. '11, p. 561, § 33.]

§ 8626-34. Existing Contracts—Effect.

Nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent any gas company, electrical company or water company from continuing to furnish its product or the use of its lines, equipment or service under any contract or contracts in force at the date this act takes effect, or upon the taking effect of any schedule or schedules of rates subsequently filed with the commission, as herein provided, at the rates fixed in such contract or contracts: Provided, That the commission shall have power, in its discretion, to direct by order that such contract or contracts shall be terminated by the company party thereto, and thereupon such contract or contracts shall be terminated by such company as and when directed by such order: Provided further, That the commission shall have no power to order the termination of any contract relating to the furnishing of water for irrigation or irrigation and domestic use, where such contract is based upon a consideration passing at the time of the execution of such contract. [L. 11, p. 561, § 34.]

§ 8626-35. Charges and Service of Telephone and Telegraph Companies.

All rates, tolls, contracts and charges, rules and regulations of telephone and telegraph companies, for messages, conversations, services rendered and equipment and facilities supplied, whether such message, conversation or service to be performed be over one company or line or over or by two or more companies or lines, shall be fair, just, reasonable and sufficient, and the service so to be rendered any person, firm or corporation by any telephone or telegraph company shall be rendered and performed in a prompt, expeditious and efficient manner and the facilities, instrumentalities and equipment furnished by it shall be safe, kept in good condition and repair, and its appliances, instrumentalities and service shall be modern, adequate, sufficient and efficient.

Every telephone and telegraph company operating in this state shall provide and maintain suitable and adequate buildings and facilities therein, or connected therewith, for the accommodation, comfort and convenience of its patrons and employees.

Every telephone company shall, upon reasonable notice, furnish to all persons and corporations who may apply therefor and be reasonably entitled thereto suitable and proper facilities and connections for telephonic communication and furnish telephone service as demanded. [L. '11, p. 562, § 35.]

§ 8626-36. Tariff Schedule—Publication.

Every telephone and telegraph company shall file with the commission and shall print and keep open to public inspection at such points as the commission may designate, schedules showing the rates, tolls, rentals, contracts and charges of such companies for messages, conversations and services rendered and equipment and facilities supplied for messages and services to be performed within the state between each point upon its line and all other points thereon, and between each point upon its line and all points upon every other similar line operated or controlled by it, and between each point on its line or upon any line leased, operated or controlled by it and all points upon the line of any other similar company, whenever a through service and joint rate shall have been established or ordered between any two such points. If no joint rate covering a through service has been established, the several companies in such through service shall file, print and keep open to public inspection as aforesaid the separately established rates, tolls, rentals, contracts and charges applicable for such through service. The schedules printed as aforesaid shall plainly state the places between which telephone or telegraph service, or both, will be rendered, and shall also state separately all charges and all privileges or facilities granted or allowed, and any rules or regulations or forms of contract which may in any wise change, affect or determine any of the aggregate of the rates, tolls, rentals or charges for the service rendered. A schedule shall be plainly printed in large type, and a copy thereof shall be kept by every telephone company and telegraph company readily accessible to and for convenient inspection by the public at such places as may be designated by the commission, which schedule shall state the rates charged from such station to every other station on such company's line, or on any line controlled and used by it within the state. All or any of such schedules kept as aforesaid shall be immediately produced by such telephone company or telegraph company upon the demand of any person. A notice printed in bold type, and stating that such schedules are on file and open to inspection by any person, the places where the same are kept, and that the agent will assist such person to determine from such schedules any rate, toll, rental, rule or regulation which is in force shall be kept posted by every telephone company and telegraph company in a conspicuous place in every station or office of such company. [L. '11, p. 563, § 36.]

§ 8626-37. Changes in Schedules.

Unless the commission otherwise orders, no change shall be made in any rate, toll, rental, contract or charge, which shall have been filed and published by any telephone or telegraph company in compliance with the requirements of the preceding section, except after thirty days' notice to the commission and publication for thirty days as required in the case of original schedules in the preceding section, which notice shall plainly state the changes proposed to be made in the schedule then in force, and the time when the changed rate, toll, contract or charge will go into effect, and all proposed changes shall be shown by printing, filing and publishing new schedules, or shall be plainly indicated upon the schedules in force at the time and kept open to public inspection. The commission for good cause shown may allow changes in rates, charges, tolls, rentals or contracts without requiring the thirty days' notice and publication herein provided for, by an order specifying the change so to be made and the time when it shall take effect, and the manner in which the same shall be filed and published. When any change is made in any rate, toll, contract, rental or charge, the effect of which is to increase any rate, toll, rental or charge then existing, attention shall be directed on the copy filed with the commission to such increase by some character immediately preceding or following the item in such schedule, which character shall be in such form as the commission may designate. [L. '11, p. 564, § 37.]

§ 8626-38. Concurrence in Joint Tariffs, Contracts, Agreements or Arrangements Between Telephone and Telegraph Companies.

The names of the several companies which are parties to any joint rates, tolls, contracts or charges of telephone companies and telegraph companies for messages, conversations and service to be rendered shall be specified therein, and each of the parties thereto, other than the one filing the same, shall file with the commission such evidence of concurrence therein or acceptance thereof as may be required or approved by the commission; and where such evidence of concurrence or acceptance is filed, it shall not be necessary for the companies filing the same to also file copies of the tariff in which they are named as parties. [L. '11, p. 565, § 38.]

§ 8626-39. Telephone and Telegraph Companies shall Furnish Copies of Contracts.

Every telephone and telegraph company shall file with the commission, as and when required by it, a copy of any contract, agreement or arrangement in writing with any other telephone company or telegraph company, or with any other corporation, association or person relating in any way to the construction, maintenance or use of a telephone line or telegraph line or service by, or rates and charges over and upon, any such telephone line or telegraph line. [L. '11, p. 565, § 39.]

§ 8626-40. Schedule Rate to be Charged—Exceptions.

No telephone or telegraph company shall charge, demand, collect or receive different compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered than the charge applicable to such service as specified in its schedule on file and in effect at that time, nor shall any telephone company or telegraph company refund or remit, directly or indirectly, any portion of the rate or charge so specified, nor extend to any person or corporation any form of contract or agreement or any rule or regulation or any privilege or facility except such as are specified in its schedule filed and in effect at the time, and regularly and uniformly extended to all persons and corporations under like circumstances for like or substantially similar service.

No telephone company or telegraph company subject to the provisions of this act shall, directly or indirectly, give any free or reduced service or any free pass or frank for the transmission of messages by either telephone or telegraph between points within this state, except to its officers, employees, agents, pensioners, surgeons, physicians, attorneys at law, and their families, and persons and corporations exclusively engaged in charitable and eleemosynary work, and ministers of religion, Young Men's Christian Associations, Young Women's Christian Associations; to indigent and destitute persons, and to officers and employees of other telephone companies, telegraph companies, railroad companies and street railroad companies. [L. '11, p. 565, § 40.]

§ 8626-41. Unjust Discrimination.

No telegraph or telephone company shall, directly or indirectly, or by any special rate, rebate, drawback or other device or method, charge, demand, collect or receive from any person or corporation a greater or less compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered with respect to communication by telegraph or telephone or in connection therewith, except as authorized in this act than it charges, demands, collects or receives from any other person or corporation for doing a like and contemporaneous service with respect to communication by telegraph or telephone under the same or substantially the same circumstances and conditions. [L. '11, p. 566, § 41.]

§ 8626-42. Unreasonable Preference.

No telegraph company or telephone company shall make or give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any person, corporation or locality, or subject any particular person, corporation or locality to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever. [L. '11, p. 566, § 42.]

§ 8626-43. Existing Contracts—Effect.

Nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent any telegraph company or telephone company from continuing to furnish the use of its line, equipment or service under any contract or contracts in force at the date this act takes effect or upon the taking effect of any schedule or schedules of rates subsequently filed with the commission, as herein provided, at the rates fixed in such contract or contracts: Provided, however, That the commission shall have power, in its discretion, to direct by order that such contract or contracts shall be terminated by the telephone company or telegraph company party thereto, and thereupon such contract or contracts shall be terminated by such telephone company or telegraph company as and when directed by such order. [L. '11, p. 567, § 43.]

§ 8626-44. Unjust Discrimination.

No telephone or telegraph company subject to the provisions of this act shall charge or receive any greater compensation in the aggregate for the transmission of any long distance conversation or message of like kind for a shorter than for a longer distance over the same line, in the same direction, within this state, the shorter being included within the longer distance, or charge any greater compensation for a through service than the aggregate of the intermediate rates subject to the provision of this act, but this shall not be construed as authorizing any such telephone company or telegraph company to charge and receive as great a compensation for a shorter as for a longer distance. Upon application of any telephone company or telegraph company the commission may, by order, authorize it to charge less for longer than for a shorter distance service for the transmission of conversation or messages in special cases after investigation, but the order must specify and prescribe the extent to which the telephone company or telegraph company making such application is relieved from the operation of this section, and only to the extent so specified and prescribed shall any telephone company or telegraph company be relieved from the requirements of this section. [L. '11, p. 567, § 44.]

§ 8626-45. Transmission of Messages of Other Lines.

Every telephone company or telegraph company operating in this state shall receive, transmit and deliver, without discrimination or delay, the messages of any other telephone or telegraph company. [L. '11, p. 568, § 45.]

§ 8626-46. Charges, Duties of Wharfingers.

All charges made for any service rendered or to be rendered in the receipt, storage or handling of property or in connection therewith by any wharfinger or warehouseman shall be just, fair, reasonable and sufficient. Every wharfinger or warehouseman shall furnish and supply such wharves, docks, buildings, service, instrumentalities and facilities as shall be safe, adequate and efficient and in all respects just and reasonable. All rules and regulations issued by any wharfinger or warehouseman affecting or pertaining to the dockage, storage, handling and care of property shall be just and reasonable. Every wharfinger and warehouseman shall construct and maintain such facilities in connection with his warehouse, wharf, dock and structure as will be efficient and safe to its employees and the public. [L. '11, p. 568, § 46.]

§ 8626-47. Tariff Schedule—Publication.

Every warehouseman or wharfinger shall file with the commission and shall print and keep open to the public inspection schedules in such form as the commission may prescribe, showing all rates and charges made, used or enforced, or to be charged or enforced, all forms of contract or agreement, all rules and regulations relating to rates, charges or service used or to be used, and all general privileges and facilities granted or allowed by such warehouseman or wharfinger. [L. '11, p. 568, § 47.]

§ 8626-48. Change in Schedule, Notice Required.

Unless the commission otherwise orders, no change will be made in any rate or charge or in any form of contract or agreement or in any rule or regulation relating to any rate, charge or service, or in any general privilege or facility which shall have been filed and published by the wharfinger or warehouseman in compliance with the requirements of the preceding section, except by thirty days' notice to the commission and publication for thirty days, which schedule shall plainly state the changes to be made in the schedule then in force and the time when the change will go into effect, and all proposed changes shall be shown by printing, filing, and publishing new schedules or shall be plainly indicated upon the schedules in force at the time and kept open to the public inspection. The commission for good cause shown may allow changes without requiring the thirty days' notice by duly filing in such manner as it may direct an order specifying the changes so to be made and the time when it shall take effect; all such changes shall be immediately indicated upon its schedule by the warehouseman or wharfinger. [L. '11, p. 568, § 48.]

§ 8626-49. Published Rates to be Charged—Exceptions.

No wharfinger or warehouseman shall charge, demand, collect, or receive a greater, less or different compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered, than the rates charged applicable to such service as specified in its schedule filed and in effect at the time. Nor shall any such wharfinger or warehouseman directly or indirectly refund or remit in any manner or by any device, any portion of the rate or charge so specified, or furnish dockage, wharfage or storage or free or reduced rates except to its employees and their families and its officers, attorneys and agents; to hospitals, charitable and eleemosynary institutions and persons engaged in charitable and eleemosynary work; to indigent and destitute persons; to national homes or state homes for disabled volunteer soldiers and soldiers' and sailors' homes: Provided, That the term "employees," as used in this section shall include furloughed, pensioned and superannuated employees, persons who have become disabled or infirm in the service of such wharfinger or warehouseman, and the term "families," as used in this section, shall include the families of those persons named in this proviso, also the families of persons killed or dying in the service, also the families of persons killed, and the widows, during widowhood, and the minor children during minority of persons who died while in the service of any such wharfinger or warehouseman.

No wharfinger or warehouseman shall extend to any person or corporation any form of contract or agreement, or any rule or regulation or any privilege or facility except as are regularly and uniformly extended to all persons and corporations under like circumstances. [L. '11, p. 569, § 49.]

§ 8626-50. Unreasonable Preference.

No wharfinger or warehouseman shall make or grant any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any person, corporation or locality, or to any particular description of service in any respect whatsoever, or subject any particular person, corporation or locality or any particular description of service or traffic to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatever. [L. '11, p. 570, § 50.]

§ 8626-51. Unjust Discrimination.

No wharfinger or warehouseman shall, directly or indirectly or by any special rate, rebate, drawback or other device or method, charge, demand, collect or receive from any person or corporation a greater or less compensation for the wharfage, dockage or storage of property, or for any service rendered or to be rendered or in connection therewith, except as authorized by this act, than it charges, demands, collects or receives from any person or corporation for doing a like or contemporaneous service with respect thereto under the same or substantially similar circumstances and conditions. [L. '11, p. 570, § 51.]

§ 8626-52. Service Without Discrimination.

Every wharfinger or warehouseman shall upon demand furnish to all persons or corporations who may apply therefor and be reasonably entitled thereto suitable facilities for storing and transferring property from such warehouse, wharf, dock or structure, to any vessel and from any vessel to any such warehouse, wharf, dock or structure. [L. '11, p. 570, § 52.]

§ 8626-53. Charges and Services to be Fixed by Commission.

Whenever the commission shall find, after a hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, as herein provided, that the rates, fares or charges demanded, exacted, charged or collected by any common carrier for the transportation of persons or property within the state or in connection therewith, or that the regulations or practices of such common carrier affecting such rates are unjust, unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory, or unduly preferential, or in any wise in violation of the provisions of law, or that such rates, fares or charges are insufficient to yield a reasonable compensation for the service rendered, the commission shall determine the just, reasonable or sufficient rates, fares or charges, regulations or practices to be thereafter observed and enforced and shall fix the same by order as hereinafter provided.

Whenever the commission shall find, after such hearing, that the rules, regulations, practices, equipment, appliances, facilities or service of any such common carrier in respect to the transportation of persons or property are unjust, unreasonable, unsafe, improper, inadequate or insufficient, the commission shall determine the just, reasonable, safe, adequate, sufficient and proper rules, regulations, practices, equipment, appliances, facilities or service to be observed, furnished, constructed or enforced and be used in the transportation of persons and property by such common carrier, and fix the same by its order or rule as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 571, § 53.]

§ 8626-54. Charges and Service of Gas Companies, Electrical and Water Companies to be Fixed by Commission.

Whenever the commission shall find, after a hearing had upon its own motion, or upon complaint as herein provided, that the rates or charges demanded, exacted, charged or collected by any gas company, electrical company or water company, for gas, electricity or water, or in connection therewith, or that the rules, regulations, practices or contracts affecting such rates or charges are unjust, unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory or unduly preferential, or in any wise in violation of the provisions of the law, or that such rates or charges are insufficient to yield a reasonable compensation for the service rendered, the commission shall determine the just, reasonable, or sufficient rates, charges, regulations, practices or contracts to be thereafter observed and in force, and shall fix the same by order as hereinafter provided.

Whenever the commission shall find, after such hearing, that the illuminating or heating power, purity or pressure of gas, the efficiency of electric lamp supply, the voltage of the current supplied for light, heat or power, or the purity, volume and pressure of water, supplied by any gas company, electrical company or water company, as the case may be, is insufficient, impure, inadequate or insufficient, it shall order such improvement in the manufacture, distribution or supply of gas, in the manufacture, transmission or supply of electricity, or in the storage, distribution or supply of water, or in the methods employed by such gas company, electrical company or water company, as will in its judgment be efficient, adequate, just and reasonable.

Whenever the commission shall find, after hearing, that any rules, regulations, measurements, or the standard thereof, practices, acts or services of any such gas company, electrical company or water company are unjust, unreasonable, improper, insufficient, inefficient or inadequate, or that any service which may be reasonably demanded is not furnished, the commission shall fix the reasonable rules, regulations, measurements or the standard thereof, practices, acts or service to be thereafter furnished, imposed, observed and followed, and shall fix the same by order, or rule, as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 571, § 54.]

§ 8626-55. Commission to Fix Charges and Service of Telephone and Telegraph Companies.

Whenever the commission shall find, after a hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, that the rates, charges, tolls or rentals demanded, exacted, charged or collected by any telegraph company or telephone company for the transmission of messages by telegraph or telephone, or for the rental or use of any telegraph line, telephone line or any telegraph instrument, wire, appliance, apparatus or device or any telephone receiver, transmitter, instrument, wire, cable, apparatus, conduit, machine, appliance or device, or any telephone extension or extension system, or that the rules, regulations or practices of any telegraph company or telephone company affecting such rates, charges, tolls, rentals or service are unjust, unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory or unduly preferential, or in any wise in violation of law, or that such rates, charges, tolls or rentals are insufficient to yield reasonable compensation for the service rendered, the commission shall determine the just and reasonable rates, charges, tolls or rentals to be thereafter observed and in force, and fix the same by order as hereinafter provided.

Whenever the commission shall find, after such hearing that the rules, regulations or practices of any telegraph company or telephone company are unjust or unreasonable, or that the equipment, facilities or service of any telegraph company or telephone company is inadequate, inefficient, improper or insufficient, the commission shall determine the just, reasonable, proper, adequate and efficient rules, regulations, practices, equipment, facilities and service to be thereafter installed, observed and used, and fix the same by order or rule as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 573, § 55.]

§ 8626-56. Charges and Service of Wharfingers and Warehouseman to be Fixed by Commission.

Whenever the commission shall find, after a hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, as herein provided, that the rates or charges demand, exacted, charged or collected by any wharfinger or warehouseman for the receipt, storage or handling of freight, or in connection therewith, or that the rules, regulations or practices affecting such rates or charges are unjust, unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory or unduly preferential, or in any wise in violation of the provisions of law, or that such rates and charges are insufficient to yield a reasonable compensation for the service rendered, the commission shall determine the just, reasonable or sufficient rates, charges, rules, regulations, or practices to be thereafter observed and in force, and shall fix the same by order as hereinafter provided.

Whenever the commission shall find, after such hearing, that the rules, regulations or practices of any wharfinger or warehouseman are unjust or unreasonable, or that the equipment, facilities or service of any wharfinger or warehouseman are inadequate, inefficient, improper, insufficient or unsafe, the commission shall determine the just, reasonable, proper, adequate, efficient and safe rules, regulations, practices, equipment, facilities and service to be thereafter installed, observed and used, and fix the same by order of the commission as hereinafter provided. [L. '11, p. 573, § 56.]

§ 8626-57. Joint Rates and Through Routes on Railroads.

Whenever the commission shall be of opinion, after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, that the rates and charges in force over two or more railroads, between any two points in the state, are unjust, unreasonable or excessive, or that no satisfactory through route or joint rate exists between such points, and that the public necessities and convenience demand the establishment of a through route and a joint rate between such points, the commission may order such railroads to establish such through route, and may establish and fix a joint rate which will be fair, just, reasonable and sufficient, to be followed, charged, enforced, demanded and collected in the future, and the commission may order that carload freight moving between such points shall be carried by the different companies, parties to such through route and joint rate, without being transferred from the originating cars. In case no agreement exists between such railroads for the interchange of cars, then the commission, before making such order, shall be empowered to, and it shall be its duty, to make rules for the expeditious and safe return and proper compensation for the cars so loaded by the company or companies receiving the same. [L. '11, p. 574, § 57.]

§ 8626-58. Interstate Fares—Rates, Charges, etc.

The commission shall have power, and it is hereby made its duty, to investigate all interstate, rates, fares, charges, classifications or rules or practices in relation thereto, for or in relation to the transportation of persons or property or the transmission of messages or conversations, where any act in relation thereto shall take place within this state, and when the same are, in the opinion of the commission, excessive or discriminatory, or are levied or laid in violation of the act of Congress entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereof, or in conflict with the rulings, orders or regulations of the interstate commerce commission, the commission shall apply, by petition, to the interstate commerce commission for relief, and may present to the interstate commerce commission all facts coming to its knowledge as to violations of the rulings, orders or regulations of that commission, or as to violations of the said act to regulate commerce or acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto. [L. '11, p. 575, § 58.]

§ 8626-59. Powers of Commission to Provide Rules for Expediting Traffic.

The commission shall have, and it is hereby given, power to provide by proper rules and regulations the time within which all railroads shall furnish, after demand therefor, all cars, equipment and facilities for the handling of freight in carload and less than carload lots, and receiving, gathering and transporting, after demand, of all express packages and the delivery thereof at destination, the extent of free gathering and distributing limits for express packages in cities and towns, the distance that freight shall be transported each day after receipt, the time within which consignors or persons ordering cars shall load the same, and the time within which consignees and persons to whom freight may be consigned shall unload and discharge the same and receive freight from the freight-rooms, and to provide the penalties to be paid to consignors and consignees for delays on the part of railroads to conform to such rules, and prescribe the penalty to be paid by consignors and consignees to railroads for failure to observe such rules. [L. '11, p. 575, § 59.]

§ 8626-60. Weighing of Freight—Scale Tests.

The commission shall have power to enforce reasonable regulations for the weighing of cars and freight offered for shipment over any line of railroad, and to test the weights made by any railroad and scales used in weighing freight on cars. [L. '11, p. 576, § 60.]

§ 8626-61. Track Connections.

Whenever the commission shall find, after a hearing made upon complaint or upon its own motion, that the public necessities and conveniences would be subserved by having track connections made, between any two or more railroads at any of the points hereinafter specified, the commission shall order any two or more railroads of the same or similar gauge to make physical connections at any and all crossings, and at all points where a railroad shall begin or terminate at or near any other railroad, and at all towns or cities where two or more railroads enter the limits of the same, so that the cars of any such railroad company may be speedily transferred from one railroad to another, and shall order whether the expense thereof shall be borne jointly or otherwise. [L. '11, p. 576, § 61.]

§ 8626-62. Sidetrack Connections.

Whenever the commission shall find, after a hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, as herein provided, that application has been made by any shipper for a switching connection or connections with a lateral line of railway or private sidetrack owned, operated or controlled by such shipper, or that application has been made by any shipper for the installation of a sidetrack upon the property of such railroad, and that such switch connection or sidetrack is reasonably practicable, can be put in with reasonable safety, and the business therefor is sufficient to justify the same, and that the railroad company has refused to install or provide the same, the commission shall enter its order requiring such connection or the construction of such sidetrack: Provided, Such shipper so to be served shall pay the legitimate cost and expense of constructing such connection or sidetrack as shall be determined in separate items by the commission, and before the railroad company shall be compelled to incur any cost in connection therewith the same shall be secured to the railroad company in such manner as the commission may require. Whenever such lateral line of railway, private sidetrack or sidetrack upon the property of the railroad company shall be constructed under the provisions of this section, any person or corporation shall be entitled to connect therewith or use the same upon the payment to the shipper incurring the primary expense of a reasonable proportion of the cost thereof, to be determined by the commission after notice to the interested parties: Provided, That such connection can be made without unreasonable interference with the right of such shipper incurring the primary expense. [L. '11, p. 576, § 62.]

§ 8626-63. Investigation of Wrecks.

Every public service company is hereby required to give immediate notice to the commission of every accident resulting in death or injury to any person occurring on its lines, plant or system, in such manner as the commission may prescribe. The commission may require reports to be made by any common carrier of all wrecks, collisions or derailments occurring on the line of any such common carrier. Such notice shall not be admitted as evidence or used for any purpose against such public service company giving such notice in any suit or action for damages growing out of any matter mentioned in such notice.

The commission is hereby authorized and directed to investigate all accidents that may occur upon the lines of any common carrier resulting in loss of life, to any passenger or employee, and may investigate any and all accidents or wrecks occurring on the line of any such common carrier, or any accident resulting in death or injury to any person occurring in connection with the plant or system of any public service company. Notice of such investigation shall be given in all cases for a sufficient length of time to enable the public service company affected to participate in the hearing and such notice may be given orally or in writing, in such manner as the commission may prescribe.

Such witnesses may be examined as the commission may deem necessary and proper to thoroughly ascertain the cause of the accident or wreck and fix the responsibility therefor. Such examination and investigation may be conducted by the inspector or any deputy inspector, and such inspector or deputy inspector shall have the power to administer oaths, issue subpoenas and compel the attendance of witnesses, and when such examination is conducted by the inspector or deputy inspector, he shall make a full and complete report thereof to the commission. [L. '11, p. 577, § 63.]

§ 8626-64. Power of Commission to Order Repairs or Changes.

Whenever the commission shall, after a hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, find that, additional tracks, switches, terminals, terminal facilities, stations, motive power or any other property, apparatus, equipment, facilities or device for use by any common carrier in, or in connection with the transportation of persons or property, ought reasonably to be provided, or any repairs or improvements to, or changes in, any theretofore in use ought reasonably to be made, or any additions or changes in construction should reasonably be made thereto, in order to promote the security or convenience of the public or employees, or in order to secure adequate service or facilities for the transportation of passengers or property, the commission may, after a hearing, either on its own motion or after complaint, make and serve an order directing such repairs, improvements, changes or additions to be made. [L. '11, p. 578, § 64.]

§ 8626-65. Commission to Investigate Equipment, Track, etc.

If upon investigation the commission shall find that the equipment or appliances in connection therewith, or the apparatus, tracks, bridges or other structures of any common carrier are defective, and that the operation thereof is dangerous to the employees of such common carrier or to the public, it shall immediately give notice to the superintendent or other officer of such common carrier of the repairs or reconstruction necessary to place the same in a safe condition, and may also prescribe the rate of speed for trains or cars passing over such dangerous or defective track, bridge or other structure until the repairs or reconstruction required are made, and may also prescribe the time within which the same shall be made. Or if, in its opinion, it is needful or proper, it may forbid the running of trains or cars over any defective track, bridge or structure until the same be repaired and placed in a safe condition.

There shall be no appeal from or action to review any order of the commission made under the provisions of this section. [L. '11, p. 579, § 65.]

§ 8626-66. Safety Appliances—Fixing of Standards.

Each locomotive on every railroad in this state shall be equipped with power-driving wheel brakes and appliances for operating the train brake system, so equipped that the engineer on the locomotive drawing such train can control its speed without requiring brakeman to use the common hand-brakes for that purpose, with couplers coupling automatically by impact, which can be coupled or uncoupled without the necessity of men going between the locomotive and the locomotive or car to which the same is being coupled or from which it is being uncoupled, and with proper flanges, sill steps and grab-irons, or uncoupling levers in lieu of such grab-irons, and, excepting such as may be assigned to daylight runs or switching service exclusively, with electric headlights of approved design and capacity (except that locomotives may be operated without such headlight upon permission and order of the commission), with proper cocks, valves, pistons, valve stems and appliances which will prevent the escape of steam in such volume as to obstruct the view of the engineman operating such locomotive, and, in the case of locomotives used in the switching service, with proper foot-boards and toe-boards, and with a headlight on each end, and with such other appliances, apparatus and machinery necessary for safe operation of the locomotive or the train to which the same is attached, as the commission may prescribe: Provided, That in case of emergency the commission may permit the use of road engines in switching service.

Each car shall be equipped with couplers coupling automatically, which can be coupled or uncoupled without the necessity of men going between the ends of the cars, with power brakes, with proper hand-brakes, sill steps and grab-irons, and, where secure ladders and running-boards are required, with such ladders and running-boards, and all cars having ladders shall also be equipped with secure hand holds or grab-irons on their roofs at the tops of such ladders, and with such other appliances necessary for the safe operation of such cars, and the trains containing such cars, as may be prescribed by the commission: Provided, That in the loading and hauling of long commodities requiring more than one car, hand-brakes may be omitted from all save one of the cars, while they are thus combined for such purpose: And provided further, That in the operation of trains not less than eighty-five per cent of the cars in such train, which are associated together, shall have their power brakes used and operated by the engineer of the locomotive drawing such train.

Every street-car shall be equipped with proper and efficient brakes, steps, grab-irons or hand-rails, fenders or aprons or pilots, and with such other appliances, apparatus and machinery necessary for the safe operation of such street-car as the commission may prescribe.

The commission shall, as soon as practicable, after the taking effect of this act, designate the number, dimensions, location and manner of application of the appliance provided for herein, or such as may be prescribed by the commission, and shall give notice of such designation to all railroad companies and street railroad companies subject to the provisions of this act, by such means as the commission may deem proper, and thereafter such number, dimensions, location and manner of application as designated by the commission shall remain as the standards of equipment to be used on all cars and locomotives subject to the provisions of this act. The commission shall have power to add to, change or modify said standards of equipment at any time or to provide different standards under different circumstances and conditions: Provided, That the commission may, upon full hearing, for good cause, extend the period within which any railroad or street railroad may comply with the provisions of this section with respect to the equipment of locomotives or cars actually in service at the date of the passage of this act. The commission is hereby given authority to fix the time within which such modification or change shall become effective or obligatory. After the time so fixed it shall be unlawful to use any car, motor, or locomotive which does not comply with the standards so prescribed by the commission: Provided, That when any car, motor or locomotive shall have been properly equipped as provided in this act, and such equipment shall have become defective or insecure while such car, motor or locomotive was being used by such railroad company upon its line of railroad, such car, motor or locomotive may be hauled from the place where such equipment was first discovered to be defective or insecure to the nearest available point where such car, motor or locomotive can be repaired, without liability for the penalties imposed herein if such movement is necessary to make such repairs, and such repairs cannot reasonably be made except at such repair point. Nothing in this proviso shall be construed to permit the hauling of defective cars by means of chains instead of drawbars in revenue trains, or in association with other cars that are commercially used, unless such defective cars contain livestock or perishable freight.

It shall be unlawful for any railroad company or street railroad company to use or operate any car, motor, locomotive or train that is defective, or any car, motor, locomotive or train upon which any appliance, machinery or attachment thereto belonging is defective, or to knowingly operate its train over any defective track, bridge or other structure, excepting in cases of emergency and under proper precautions: Provided, That this section shall not apply to boarding and outfit cars when moved as work trains, or to trains consisting wholly of logging trucks or of logging trucks and a passenger-car or caboose at the rear end thereof, or of logging trucks and not to exceed five freight-cars at the rear end thereof. [L. '11, p. 579, § 66.]

§ 8626-67. Duties of Inspector of Safety Appliances.

It shall be the duty of the inspector of tracks, bridges, structures, and equipment, and such deputies as may be appointed to inspect all equipment, and appliances connected therewith, and all apparatus, tracks, bridges and structures, depots and facilities and accommodations connected therewith, and facilities and accommodations furnished for the use of employees, and make such reports of his inspection to the commission as may be required. He shall, on discovering any defective equipment or appliances connected therewith, rendering the use of such equipment dangerous, immediately report the same to the superintendent of the road on which it is found, and to the proper official at the nearest point where such defect is discovered, describing the defect. Such inspector may, on the discovery of any defect rendering the use of any car, motor or locomotive dangerous, condemn such car, motor or locomotive, and order the same out of service until repaired and put in good working order. He shall, on discovering any track, bridge or structure defective or unsafe in any particular, report such condition to the commission, and, in addition thereto, report the same to the official in charge of the division of such railroad upon which such defect is found. In case any track, bridge or structure is found so defective as to be dangerous to the employees or public for a train or trains to be operated over the same, the inspector is hereby authorized to condemn such track, bridge or structure and notify the commission and the office in charge of the division of such railroad where such defect is found of his action concerning the same, reporting in detail the defect complained of, and the work or improvements necessary to repair such defect. He shall also report to the commission the violation of any law governing, controlling or affecting the conduct of public service companies in this state.

The inspector, or such deputies as may be appointed, shall have the right and privilege of riding on any locomotive, either on freight or passenger trains, or on the caboose of any freight train, for the purpose of inspecting the track or any railroad in this state: Provided, That the engineer or conductor in charge of any such locomotive or caboose may require such inspector to produce his authority, under the seal of the commission, showing that he is such inspector or deputy inspector.

The inspector, or such deputy inspector or inspectors as may be appointed, shall, when required by the commission, inspect any street railroad, gas plant, electrical plant, water system, telephone line or telegraph line, and upon discovering any defective or dangerous track, bridge, structure, equipment, apparatus, machinery, appliance, facility, instrumentality or building, rendering the use of the same dangerous to the public or to the employees of the company owning or operating the same, report the same to the commission and to the official in charge of such road, plant, system or line. [L. '11, p. 582, § 67.]

§ 8626-68. Safeguarding Frogs and Switches.

Every railroad and street railroad operating in this state shall so adjust, fill, block and securely guard all frogs, switches and guard-rails so as to protect and prevent the feet of persons being caught therein. [L. '11, p. 583, § 68.]

§ 8626-69. Trains shall Stop at Railroad Crossings.

All railroads and street railroads, operating in this state shall cause their trains and cars to come to a full stop at a distance not greater than five hundred (500) feet before crossing the tracks of another railroad crossing at grade, excepting at crossings where there are established signal towers and signal men, interlocking plants or gates. [L. '11, p. 584, § 69.]

§ 8626-70. Gas Plants, Electrical Plants and Water Systems—Repairs, Improvements and Changes.

Whenever the commission shall find, after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, that repairs or improvements to, or changes in, any gas plant, electrical plant or water system ought to be made, or that any additions or extensions should reasonably be made thereto, in order to promote the security or convenience of the public or employees, or in order to secure adequate service or facilities for manufacturing, distributing or supplying gas, electricity or water, the commission may enter an order directing that such reasonable repairs, improvements, changes, additions or extensions of such gas plant, electrical plant or water system be made. [L. '11, p. 584, § 70.]

§ 8626-71. Telephone and Telegraph Companies—Repairs, Improvements and Changes.

Whenever the commission shall find, after a hearing had on its own motion, or upon complaint, that repairs or improvements to, or changes in, any telegraph line or telephone line ought reasonably to be made, or that any additions or extensions should reasonably be made thereto in order to promote the security or convenience of the public or employees, or in order to secure adequate service or facilities for telegraphic or telephonic communications, the commission shall make and serve an order directing that such repairs, improvements, changes, additions or extensions be made in the manner to be specified therein. [L. '11, p. 584, § 71.]

§ 8626-72. Docks, Wharves and Warehouses—Repairs, Improvements and Changes.

Whenever the commission shall find, after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, that repairs or improvements to, or changes in, any dock, wharf or warehouse ought reasonably to be made, or that any additions or extensions should reasonably be made thereto in order to promote the security or adequate service or facilities for the receipt, storage or handling of freight, the commission shall make and serve an order directing that such repairs, improvements, changes, additions or extensions shall be made in the manner specified therein. [L. '11, p. 585, § 72.]

§ 8626-73. Physical Connections and Joint Rates Between Telephone and Telegraph Companies.

Whenever the commission shall find that any two or more telephone companies, whose lines form a continuous line of communication, or could be made to do so by the construction and maintenance of suitable connections for the transfer of messages or conversations at common points between different localities which are not reached by the line of either company alone, and that such connections or facilities for the transfer of messages or conversations at common points can reasonably be made, an efficient service obtained and that a necessity exists therefor, or shall find that any two or more telegraph or telephone companies, have failed to establish joint rates or charges for service by or over their said lines, and that joint rates or charges ought to be established, the commission may, by its order, require such connection to be made, and that conversations be transmitted and messages transferred, and prescribe through lines and joint rates and charges to be made, and to be used, observed and in force in the future, and fix the same by order to be served upon the company or companies affected. [L. '11, p. 585, § 73.]

§ 8626-74. Inspectors of Gas, Electric and Water Meters.

The commission may appoint inspectors of gas and water meters whose duty it shall be when required by the commission to inspect, examine, prove and ascertain the accuracy of any and all gas and water meters used or intended to be used for measuring or ascertaining the quantity of gas for light, heat or power, or the quantity of water furnished for any purpose by any public service company to or for the use of any person or corporation, and when found to be or made to be correct such inspectors shall seal all such meters and each of them with some suitable device to be prescribed by the commission.

No public service company shall thereafter furnish, set or put in use any gas or water meter which shall not have been inspected, proved and sealed by an inspector of the commission under such rules and regulations as the company may prescribe.

The commission may appoint inspectors of electric meters whose duty it shall be when required by the commission to inspect, examine, prove and ascertain the accuracy of any and all electric meters used or intended to be used for measuring and ascertaining the quantity of electric current furnished for light, heat or power by any public service company to or for the use of any person or corporation, and to inspect, examine and ascertain the accuracy of all apparatus for testing and proving the accuracy of electric meters, and when found to be or made to be correct the inspector shall stamp or mark all such meters and apparatus with some suitable device to be prescribed by the commission. No public service company shall furnish, set or put in use any electric meters the type of which shall not have been approved by the commission.

Every gas company, electrical company and water company shall prepare and maintain such suitable premises, apparatus and facilities as may be required and approved by the commission for testing and proving the accuracy of gas, electric or water meters furnished for use by it by which apparatus every meter may be tested.

If any consumer to whom a meter has been furnished shall request the commission in writing to inspect such meter, the commission shall have the same inspected and tested, and if the same, on being so tested, shall be found to be more than four per centum if an electric meter, or more than two per centum of a gas meter, or more than two per centum if a water meter, defective or incorrect to the prejudice of the consumer, the expense of such inspection and test shall be borne by the gas company, electrical company or water company, and if the same, on being so tested shall be found to be correct within the limits of error prescribed by the provisions of this section, the expense of such inspection and test shall be borne by the consumer.

The commission shall prescribe such rules and regulations to carry into effect the provisions of this section as it may deem necessary, and shall fix the uniform and reasonable charges for the inspection and testing of meters upon complaint. [L. '11, p. 585, § 74.]

§ 8626-75. Power to Administer Oaths.

Each commissioner shall have power to administer oaths, certify to all official acts, and to issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and the production of papers, waybills, books, accounts, documents and testimony in any inquiry, investigation, hearing or proceeding in any part of the state.

The superior court of the county in which any such inquiry, investigation, hearing or proceeding may be had, shall have power to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of papers, waybills, books, accounts, documents and testimony as required by such subpoena. The commission or the commissioner before which the testimony is to be given or produced, in case of the refusal of any witness to attend or testify or produce any papers required by the subpoena, shall report to the superior court in and for the county in which the proceeding is pending by petition, setting forth that due notice has been given of the time and place of attendance of said witnesses, or the production of said papers, and that the witness has been summoned in the manner prescribed in this act, and that the fees and mileage of the witness have been paid or tendered to the witness for his attendance and testimony, and that the witness has failed and refused to attend or produce the papers required by the subpoena, before the commission, in the cause or proceedings named in the notice and subpoena, or has refused to answer questions propounded to him in the course of such proceeding, and ask an order of said court, compelling the witness to attend and testify before the commission. The court, upon the petition of the commission, shall enter an order directing the witness to appear before said court at a time and place to be fixed by the court in such order, and then and there show cause why he has not responded to said subpoena. A copy of said order shall be served upon said witness. If it shall appear to the court that said subpoena was regularly issued by the commission, the court shall thereupon enter an order that said witness appear before the commission at said time and place as fixed in said order, and testify or produce the required papers, and upon failing to obey said order, said witness shall be dealt with as for contempt of court. In all proceedings before the commission the commission shall have the right, in their discretion, to limit the number of witnesses testifying upon any subject or proceeding to be inquired of before the commission. [L. '11, p. 587, § 75.]

§ 8626-76. Depositions—Service of Process—Witness' Fees.

The commission shall have the right to take the testimony of any witness by deposition, and for that purpose the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, waybills, documents, papers and accounts may be enforced in the same manner as in the case of hearings before the commission, or any member thereof. Process issued under the provisions of this act shall be served as in civil cases. Each witness who shall appear before the commission under subpoena shall receive for his attendance three dollars ($3) per day and five (5) cents per mile traveled by the nearest practicable route in going and returning from the place of hearing: Provided, That no witness shall be entitled to fees or mileage from the state of Washington when summoned at the instance of the public service corporations affected. The claim by any witness that any testimony sought to be elicited may tend to incriminate him shall not excuse such witness from testifying, but such evidence or testimony shall not be used against such person on the trial of any criminal proceeding, excepting in a prosecution for perjury. The commissioner shall have power to compel the attendance of witnesses at any place within the state. [L. '11, p. 588, § 76.]

§ 8626-77. Inspection of Books, Papers and Documents.

The commission and each commissioner, or any person employed by the commission, shall have the right, at any and all times, to inspect the accounts, books, papers and documents of any public service company, and the commission, or any commissioner, may examine under oath any officer, agent or employee of such public service company in relation thereto, and with reference to the affairs of such company: Provided, That any person other than a commissioner who shall make any such demand shall produce his authority from the commission to make such inspection. [L. '11, p. 589, § 77.]

§ 8626-78. Reports.

Every public service company shall annually furnish to the commission a report in such form as the commission may require, and shall specifically answer all questions propounded to it by the commission, upon or concerning which the commission may need information. Such annual reports shall show in detail the amount of capital stock issued, the amounts paid therefor and the manner of payment for same, the dividends paid, the surplus fund, if any, and the number of stockholders, the funded and floating debts and the interest paid thereon, the cost and value of the company's property, franchises and equipment, the number of employees and the salaries paid each class, the accidents to passengers, employees and other persons and the cost thereof, the amounts expended for improvements each year, how expended and the character of such improvements, the earnings or receipts from each franchise or business and from all sources, the proportion thereof earned from business moving wholly within the state and the proportion earned from interstate traffic, the nature of the traffic movement showing the percentage of the ton miles each class of commodity bears to the total ton mileage, the operating and other expenses and the proportion of such expense incurred in transacting business wholly within the state, and the proportion incurred in transacting interstate business, such division to be shown according to such rules of division as the commission may prescribe, the balances of profit and loss, and a complete exhibit of the financial operations of the carrier each year, including an annual balance sheet. Such report shall also contain such information in relation to rates, charges or regulations concerning fares, charges or freight, or agreements, arrangements or contracts affecting the same, as the commission may require; and the commission may, in its discretion, for the purpose of enabling it the better to carry out the provisions of this act, prescribe the period of time within which all public service companies subject to the provisions of this act shall have, as near as may be, a uniform system of accounts, and the manner in which such accounts shall be kept. Such detailed report shall contain all the required statistics for the period of twelve months ending on the last day of any particular month prescribed by the commission for any public service company. Such reports shall be made out under oath and filed with the commission at its office in Olympia within three months after the close of the designated year for which such report is made, unless additional time be granted in any case by the commission. The commission shall have authority to require any public service company to file monthly reports of earnings and expenses, and to file periodical or special, or both periodical and special, reports concerning any matter about which the commission is authorized or required by this or any other law, to inquire into or keep itself informed about, or which it is required to enforce, such periodical or special reports to be under oath whenever the commission so requires.

The commission may, in its discretion, prescribe the forms of any and all accounts, records and memoranda to be kept by public service companies, including the accounts, records and memoranda of the movement of traffic, sales of its product, the receipts and expenditures of money. The commission shall at all times have access to all accounts, records and memoranda kept by public service companies, and may employ special agents or examiners, who shall have power to administer oaths and authority, under the order of the commission, to examine witnesses and to inspect and examine any and all accounts, records and memoranda kept by such companies. The commission may, in its discretion, prescribe the forms of any and all reports, accounts, records and memoranda to be furnished and kept by any public service company whose line or lines extend beyond the limits of this state, which are operated partly within and partly without the state, so that the same shall show any information required by the commission concerning the traffic movement, receipts and expenditures appertaining to those parts of the line within the state. [L. '11, p. 589, § 78.]

§ 8626-79. Production of Books and Records.

In case any public service company shall refuse to exhibit at its principal office in the United States any book, record or document to the commission or to any member thereof, or to any agent or employee thereof properly authorized, or to furnish a sworn copy of such book, record or document on demand the commission may require from any such company the production within the state, at such time and place as it may designate, of any books, records or documents kept by such company without the state.

The commission may require from any public service company the production of any books, records or documents kept by such company in any office or place without the state of Washington. Such demand shall be served upon the public service company in the manner provided for the service of orders herein. Such public service company shall have the right to appear before the commission and show cause, if any there be, why such order should not be complied with and such order shall be made after such hearing as the commission may deem proper. [L. '11, p. 591, § 79.]

§ 8626-80. Complaints.

Complaint may be made by the commission of its own motion or by any person or corporation, chamber of commerce, board of trade, or any commercial, mercantile, agricultural or manufacturing society, or any body politic or municipal corporation, by petition or complaint in writing, setting forth any act or thing done or omitted to be done by any public service corporation in violation, or claimed to be in violation, of any provision of law or of any order or rule of the commission: Provided, That no complaint shall be entertained by the commission except upon its own motion, as to the reasonableness of the schedule of the rates or charges of any gas company, electrical company, water company, or telephone company, unless the same be signed by the mayor, council or commission of the city or town in which the company complained of is engaged in business, or not less than twenty-five consumers or purchasers of such gas, electricity, water or telephone service: Provided, further, That when two or more public service corporations, (meaning to exclude municipal and other public corporations) are engaged in competition in any locality or localities in the state, either may make complaint against the other or others that the rates, charges, rules, regulations or practices of such other or others with or in respect to which the complainant is in competition, are unreasonable, unremunerative, discriminatory, illegal, unfair or intending or tending to oppress the complainant, to stifle competition, or to create or encourage the creation of monopoly, and upon such complaint or upon complaint of the commission upon its own motion, the commission shall have power, after notice and hearing as in other cases, to, by its order, subject to appeal as in other cases, correct the abuse complained of by establishing such uniform rates, charges, rules, regulations or practices in lieu of those complained of, to be observed by all of such competing public service corporations in the locality or localities specified as shall be found reasonable, remunerative, nondiscriminatory, legal, and fair or tending to prevent oppression or monopoly or to encourage competition, and upon any such hearing it shall be proper for the commission to take into consideration the rates, charges, rules, regulations and practices of the public service corporation or corporations complained of in any other locality or localities in the state.

All matters upon which complaint may be founded may be joined in one hearing, and no motion shall be entertained against a complaint for misjoinder of complaints or grievances or misjoinder of parties; and in any review of the courts of orders of the commission the same rule shall apply and pertain with regard to the joinder of complaints and parties as herein provided: Provided, All grievances to be inquired into shall be plainly set forth in the complaint. No complaint shall be dismissed because of the absence of direct damage to the complainant.

Upon the filing of a complaint, the commission shall cause a copy thereof to be served upon the person or corporation complained of, which shall be accompanied by a notice fixing the time when and place where a hearing will be had upon such complaint. The time fixed for such hearing shall not be less than ten days after the date of the service of such notice and complaint, excepting as herein provided. Rules of practice and procedure not otherwise provided for in this act may be prescribed by the commission. [L. '11, p. 592, § 80; L. '13, p. 452, § 1.]

§ 8626-81. Hearings, Orders and Record.

At the time fixed for the hearing mentioned in the preceding section, the complainant and the person or corporation complained of shall be entitled to be heard and introduce such evidence as he or it may desire. The commission shall issue process to enforce the attendance of all necessary witnesses. At the conclusion of such hearing the commission shall make and render findings concerning the subject matter and facts inquired into and enter its order based thereon. A copy of such order, certified under the seal of the commission, shall be served upon the person or corporation complained of, or his or its attorney, which order shall, of its own force, take effect and become operative twenty days after the service thereof, except as otherwise provided. Where an order cannot, in the judgment of the commission, be complied with within twenty days, the commission may prescribe such additional time as in its judgment is reasonably necessary to comply with the order, and may, on application and for good cause shown, extend the time for compliance fixed in its order. A full and complete record of all proceedings had before the commission, or any member thereof, on any formal hearing had, and all testimony shall be taken down by a stenographer appointed by the commission, and the parties shall be entitled to be heard in person or by attorney. In case of an action to review any order of the commission, a transcript of such testimony, together with all exhibits introduced, and of the record and proceedings in the cause, shall constitute the record of the commission. [L. '11, p. 593, § 81.]

§ 8626-82. Increase in Rates—Suspension.

Whenever any public service company shall file with the commission any schedule, classification, rule or regulation, the effect of which is to increase any rate, fare, charge, rental or toll theretofore charged, the commission shall have power, either upon its own motion or upon complaint, upon notice, to enter upon a hearing concerning such proposed increase and the reasonableness and justness thereof, and pending such hearing and the decision thereon the commission may suspend the operation of such rate, fare, charge, rental or toll for a period of ninety (90) days from the time the same would otherwise go into effect, and after a full hearing the commission may make such order in reference thereto as would be provided in a hearing initiated after the same had become effective: Provided, That if any such hearing cannot be concluded within the period of suspension, as above stated, the commission may, in its discretion, extend the time of suspension for a further period not exceeding sixty (60) days. If the commission shall at the conclusion of the hearing refuse to permit such increase, either in whole or in part, no supersedeas shall be granted in any action or proceeding brought to review the order of the commission pending the final determination of such action by the superior court, or if appealed to the supreme court by such supreme court. [L. '11, p. 594, § 82.]

§ 8626-83. Order Requiring Joint Action.

Whenever any order of the commission shall require joint action by two or more public service companies, such order shall specify that the same shall be made at their joint cost, and the companies affected shall have thirty days, or such further time, as the commission may prescribe, within which to agree upon the part or division of cost which each shall bear, and costs of operation and maintenance in the future, or the proportion of charges or revenue each shall receive from such joint service and the rules to govern future operations. If at the expiration of such time such companies shall fail to file with the commission a statement that an agreement has been made for the division or apportionment of such cost, the division of costs of operation and maintenance to be incurred in the future and the proportion of charges or revenue each shall receive from such joint service and the rules to govern future operations, the commission shall have authority, after further hearing, to enter a supplemental order fixing the proportion of such cost or expense to be borne by each company, and the manner in which the same shall be paid and secured. [L. '11, p. 594, § 83.]

§ 8626-84. Remunerative Charges cannot be Changed.

Whenever the commission shall find, after hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint as herein provided, that any rate, toll, rental or charge with has been the subject of complaint and inquiry is sufficiently remunerative to the public service company affected thereby, it may order that such rate, toll, rental or charge shall not be changed, altered, abrogated or discontinued, nor shall there be any change in the classification which will change or alter such rate, toll, rental or charge without first obtaining the consent of the commission authorizing such change to be made. [L. '11, p. 595, § 84.]

§ 8626-85. Rules and Regulations.

The commission is hereby authorized and empowered to adopt, promulgate and issue rules and regulations covering the bulletining of trains, showing the time of arrival and departure of all trains, and the probable arrival and departure of delayed trains; the conditions to be contained in and become a part of contracts for transportation of persons and property, transmission and delivery of messages and conversations, and the furnishing and supply of gas, electricity and water, and any and all services concerning the same, or connected therewith; the time that station rooms and offices shall be kept open; rules governing demurrage and reciprocal demurrage, and to provide reasonable penalties to expedite the prompt movement of freight and release of cars, the limits of express deliveries in cities and towns, and generally such rules as pertain to the comfort and convenience of the public concerning the subjects treated of in this act. Such rules and regulations shall be promulgated and issued by the commission on its own motion, and shall be served on the public service company affected thereby as other orders of the commission are served. Any public service company affected thereby, and deeming such rules and regulations, or any of them, improper, unjust, unreasonable, or contrary to law, may within twenty days from the date of service of such order upon it file objections thereto with the commission, specifying the particular grounds of such objections. The commission shall, upon receipt of such objections, fix a time and place for hearing the same, and after a full hearing may make such changes or modifications thereto, if any, as the evidence may justify. The commission shall have, and it is hereby given, power to adopt rules to govern its proceedings, and to regulate the mode and manner of all investigations and hearings: Provided, No person desiring to be present at such hearing shall be denied permission. Actions may be instituted to review rules and regulations promulgated under this section as in the case of orders of the commission. [L. '11, p. 595, § 85.]

§ 8626-86. Review.

Any complainant or any public service company affected by any order of the commission, and deeming it to be contrary to law, may, within thirty days after the service of the order upon him or it, apply to the superior court of the county in which such proceeding was instituted for a writ of review, for the purpose of having its reasonableness and lawfulness inquired into and determined. Such writ shall be made returnable not later than thirty days from and after the date of the issuance thereof, unless upon notice to all parties affected a further time be fixed by the court, and shall direct the commission to certify its record in the case to the court. On such return day the cause shall be heard by the court, unless for good cause shown the same be continued. Said cause shall be heard by the court without the intervention of a jury on the evidence and exhibits introduced before the commission and certified to by it. Upon such hearing the superior court shall enter judgment either affirming or setting aside the order of the commission under review. In case said order is reversed by reason of the commission failing to receive testimony properly proffered, the court shall remand the cause to the commission, with instructions to receive the testimony so proffered and rejected, and enter a new order based upon the evidence theretofore taken, and such as it is directed to receive. The court may, in its discretion, remand any cause which is reversed by it to the commission for further action. [L. '11, p. 596, § 86.]

§ 8626-87. Supersedeas.

The pendency of any writ of review shall not of itself stay or suspend the operation of the order of the commission, but the superior court in its discretion may restrain or suspend, in whole or in part, the operation of the commission's order pending the final hearing and determination of the suit.

No order so restraining or suspending an order of the commission relating to rates, fares, charges, tolls or rentals, or rules or regulations, practices, classifications or contracts affecting the same, shall be made by the superior court otherwise than upon three days' notice and after hearing, and if a supersedeas is granted the order granting the same shall contain a specific finding, based upon evidence submitted to the court making the order, and identified by reference thereto, that great or irreparable damage would otherwise result to the petitioner, and specifying the nature of the damage: Provided, however, That when any rate has been in force for any length of time exceeding one year, and such rate is advanced by the public service company, and the order of the commission reinstates such prior rate, in whole or in part, no supersedeas shall be allowed in any case from such order pending the final determination of the cause in the superior court, or if appealed to the supreme court by such supreme court.

In case the order of the commission under review is superseded by the court, it shall require a bond, with good and sufficient surety, conditioned that such company petitioning for such review shall answer for all damages caused by the delay in the enforcement of the order of the commission, and all compensation for whatever sums for transportation, transmission or service any person or corporation shall be compelled to pay pending the review proceedings in excess of the sum such person or corporation would have been compelled to pay if the order of the commission had not been suspended.

The court may, in addition to or in lieu of the bond herein provided for, require such other or further security for the payment of such excess charges or damages as it may deem proper. [L. '11, p. 597, § 87.]

A railroad company is bound by an order of the railroad commission ordering the construction and maintenance of a spur track to serve a warehouse, and cannot have the same reviewed on certiorari on the theory that the order was a continuing one, where the company complied with the order by building the spur at the shipper's expense, which was paid, and took no appeal, this section providing that on appeal the superior court may in its discretion restrain or suspend the order pendente lite: Great Northern R. Co. v. Public Service Commission, 69 Wash. 579, 125 Pac. 948.

As to compelling railroads to light track within city, see note in 41 L. R. A. 422.

§ 8626-88. Appeal to the Supreme Court.

The commission, any public service company or any complainant may, within twenty days after the entry of judgment in the superior court in any action of review, prosecute an appeal to the supreme court of the state of Washington. The appellant shall have fifty days after the entry of such judgment in which to serve and file his opening brief, and the respondent shall have thirty days after the service of such opening brief in which to answer the same. The appellant shall have twenty days after the service of respondent's brief in which to reply to the same. After the filing of such brief, or the expiration of the time for filing briefs, the cause shall be assigned for hearing at the earliest motion day of the court, or at such other time as the court shall fix, and the clerk of the court shall notify the attorneys for the respective parties of the date set for the hearing in time to permit the parties to participate in the hearing. Such appeal shall be taken by giving a notice of appeal in open court at the time of the rendition of judgment, or by the service and filing of a notice of appeal within twenty days from and after the entry of the judgment.

The original transcript of the record and testimony filed in the superior court in any action to review an order of the commission, together with a transcript of the proceedings in the superior court, shall constitute the record on appeal to the supreme court.

No appeal shall be effective, when taken by a public service company or a complainant, unless a cost bond on appeal in the sum of two hundred dollars ($200) shall be filed within five days after the service of the notice of appeal.

The superior court may, in its discretion, suspend its judgment pending the hearing in the supreme court, upon the filing of a bond, with good and sufficient surety, conditioned as provided for bonds upon actions for review, or upon such other or further terms and conditions as it may deem proper. The general laws relating to appeals to the supreme court shall, so far as applicable and not in conflict with the provisions of this act, apply to appeals taken under the provisions of this act. [L. '11, p. 598, § 88.]

§ 8626-89. Rehearings.

Any public service company affected by any order of the commission, and deeming itself aggrieved, may, after the expiration of two years from the date of such order taking effect, petition the commission for a rehearing upon the matters involved in such order, setting forth in such petition the grounds and reasons for such rehearing, which grounds and reasons may comprise and consist of changed conditions since the issuance of such order, or by showing a result injuriously affecting the petitioner which was not considered or anticipated at the former hearing, or that the effect of such order has been such as was not contemplated by the commission or the petitioner, or for any good and sufficient cause which for any reason was not considered and determined in such former hearing. Upon the filing of such petition, such proceedings shall be had thereon as are provided for hearings upon complaint, and such orders may be reviewed as are other orders of the commission: Provided, That no order superseding the order of the commission denying such rehearing shall be granted by the court pending the review. In case any order of the commission shall not be reviewed, but shall be complied with by the public service company, such petition for rehearing may be filed within six months from and after the date of the taking effect of such order, and the proceedings thereon shall be as in this section provided. The commission, may, in its discretion, permit the filing of a petition for rehearing at any time. No order of the commission upon a rehearing shall affect any right of action or penalty accruing under the original order unless so ordered by the commission. [L. '11, p. 599, § 89.]

§ 8626-90. Commission may Change Orders.

The commission may at any time, upon notice to the public service company affected, and after opportunity to be heard as provided in the case of complaints rescind, alter or amend any order or rule made, issued or promulgated by it, and any order or rule rescinding, altering or amending any prior order or rule shall, when served upon the public service company affected, have the same effect as herein provided for original orders and rules. [L. '11, p. 600, § 90.]

§ 8626-91. Overcharge.

When complaint has been made to the commission concerning the reasonableness of any rate, fare, toll, rental or charge for any service performed by any public service company, and the same has been investigated by the commission, and the commission shall determine that the public service company has charged an excessive or exorbitant amount for such service, the commission may order that the public service company pay to the complainant the amount of the overcharge so found, with interest from the date of collection.

If the public service company does not comply with the order for the payment of the overcharge within the time limited in such order, suit may be instituted in any court of competent jurisdiction to recover the same, and in such suit the findings and order of the commission shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated. If the complainant shall prevail in such action, he shall be allowed a reasonable attorney's fee, to be fixed and collected as part of the costs of the suit. All complaints concerning overcharges shall be filed with the commission within two years from the time the cause of action accrues, and the petition for the enforcement of the order shall be filed in the court within one year from the date of the order of the commission. [L. '11, p. 600, § 91.]

§ 8626-92. Valuation of Property—Procedure.

The commission shall ascertain, as early as practicable, the cost of construction and equipment, the amount expended in permanent improvements, and proportionate amount of such permanent improvements charged in construction and to operating expenses respectively, the present as compared with the original cost of construction, and the cost of reproducing in its present condition the property of every public service company.

It shall also ascertain the amount and present market value of the capital stock and funded indebtedness of every public service company.

It shall also ascertain, in the case of companies engaged in interstate business, the relative value of the use to which such property in this state is actually put in the conduct of interstate business and state business respectively.

It shall also ascertain the total market value of the property of each public service company operating in this state used for the public convenience within the state.

It shall also ascertain the time intervening between the expenditure of money in the cost of construction and time when returns in the shape of dividends were first received by each of these companies.

It shall also ascertain the probable earning capacity of each public service company under the rates now charged by such companies and the sum required to meet fixed charges and operating expenses, and in case of a company doing interstate business it shall also ascertain the probable earning capacity of such company upon intrastate business, and the sum required to meet fixed charges and operating expenses on intrastate business, and the relative proportion of intrastate and interstate business, the relative proportion of the operating expenses connected therewith, the relative proportion of the revenue which should be derived therefrom.

It shall also ascertain the density of traffic and of population tributary to every public service company, and the conditions which will tend to show whether such traffic and population is likely to continue, increase, or diminish.

It shall also ascertain the existence of grades, curvatures and other physical conditions affecting the movement of traffic and business of common carriers.

It shall also ascertain whether the expenditures already made by any public service company in procuring its property were such as were justified by the then existing conditions, and such as might reasonably be expected in the immediate future and whether the money expended by such company has been reasonable for the present needs of the company and for such needs as may reasonably be expected in the immediate future.

The commission is hereby authorized to cause a hearing or hearings to be held at such time or times and place or places as the commission may designate for the purpose of ascertaining the matters and things provided for in this section.

The commission shall, before any hearing is had, notify the company concerned of the time and place of such hearing, by giving at least thirty days' written notice thereof, specifying that at the time and place designated a hearing will be held for the purpose of ascertaining the value of such company's property within the state, which shall be a sufficient complaint to authorize the commission to inquire into the matters designated in this section.

All companies affected shall be entitled to be heard and introduce evidence at such hearing. The evidence introduced at such hearing shall be reduced to writing and certified under the seal of the commission.

The commission shall make and render findings of fact in writing covering all matters in this section mentioned concerning which it is directed to inquire into, and shall make findings upon all matters concerning which evidence may have been introduced before it shall tend to show the value of the property used by such company for the public convenience.

Any company affected by the findings, or any of them, believing such findings, or any of them, to be contrary to law or the evidence introduced, or that such findings are unfair, unwarranted or unjust, may institute proceedings in the superior court of the state of Washington in the county in which said hearing has been held, or, if held in more than one county, then in the county in which said hearing was commenced, and have such findings reviewed, and their correctness, reasonableness and lawfulness inquired into and determined. Such review shall be heard by the court without the intervention of a jury and shall be heard upon the evidence and exhibits taken before the commission and certified to by it; and the court before which such hearing is had, in case it finds any such findings so sought to be reviewed unjust, incorrect, unreasonable, unlawful or not supported by the evidence, shall make new and correct findings to take the place of such as may not be sustained, unless such findings are set aside and reversed for error on the part of the commission in rejecting evidence properly proffered in which case it shall remand said hearing to the commission with instructions to receive the evidence so proffered and rejected and make the findings of fact on the evidence so proffered and that already received.

Said public service company or the commission shall have the right to appeal from the decision of the superior court to the supreme court of the state of Washington, as in civil cases. In case the supreme court finds any findings so sought to be reviewed unjust, incorrect, unlawful or unreasonable, or not supported by the evidence, it shall either make and render proper findings or remand the case to the superior court with instructions to make proper findings on the evidence already submitted, unless the same is reversed for error in rejecting evidence properly proffered, in which case the hearing shall be remanded to the commission with instructions to receive the evidence so proffered and make findings on the evidence so proffered and rejected and that already received.

The findings of the commission so filed, or as the same may be corrected by the courts, when properly certified under the seal of the commission, shall be admissible in evidence in any action, proceeding or hearing, excepting with respect to matters of assessment and taxation, in which the state or any officer, department or institution thereof, or any county, municipality, or other body politic and the public service company affected is interested, whether arising under the provisions of this act or otherwise, and such findings when so introduced shall be conclusive evidence of the facts stated in such findings as of the date therein stated under conditions then existing, except as a basis for taxation, and such facts can only be controverted by showing a subsequent change in conditions bearing upon the facts therein determined.

The commission shall hereafter, from time to time, cause further hearings to be had for the purpose of ascertaining the betterments, improvements, additions, and extensions made by any public service company to its property subsequent to the date of any prior hearing, and shall examine into all traffic movement and every matter and thing that would change, modify or affect any finding of fact previously made, and shall at such time make findings of fact supplemental to those theretofore made, showing the amount expended in betterments, improvements, extensions and additions since such prior findings and the cost of reproducing the same, the value of the property used by such company at the time of such subsequent hearing, the relative value of the use to which such property is put in the performance of intrastate and interstate business, respectively, and the value of the property of such company in the state used for the public convenience of intrastate business. Such hearing shall be had upon the same notice, the examination conducted in the same manner, and the findings so made shall have the same force and effect as is provided herein for such original notice, hearing and findings: Provided, That such findings made at such supplemental hearing shall be considered in connection with and as a part of the original findings except in so far as such supplemental findings shall change or modify the findings made at the original hearing. [L. '11, p. 601, § 92; L. '13, p. 662, § 1.]

See notes to § 8638.

§ 8626-93. Summary Proceedings.

Whenever the commission shall be of opinion that any public service company is failing or omitting, or about to fail or omit, to do anything required of it by law, or by order, direction or requirement of the commission, or is doing anything, or about to do anything, or permitting anything, or about to permit anything to be done contrary to or in violation of law or of any order, direction or requirement of the commission authorized by this act, it shall direct the attorney general to commence an action or proceeding in the superior court of the state of Washington for Thurston county or in the superior court of any county in which such company may do business, in the name of the state of Washington on the relation of the commission, for the purpose of having such violations or threatened violations stopped and prevented, either by mandamus or injunction. The attorney general shall thereupon begin such action or proceeding by petition to such superior court, alleging the violation complained of, and praying for appropriate relief by way of mandamus or injunction. It shall thereupon be the duty of the court to specify a time, not exceeding twenty days after the service of the copy of the petition, within which the public service company complained of must answer the petition. In case of default in answer or after answer, the court shall immediately inquire into the facts and circumstances in such manner as the court shall direct, without other or formal pleadings, and without respect to any technical requirement. Such persons or corporations as the court may deem necessary or proper to be joined as parties, in order to make its judgment, order or writ effective, may be joined as parties. The final judgment in any such action or proceeding shall either dismiss the action or proceeding or direct that the writ of mandamus or injunction, or both, issue as prayed for in the petition, or in such other modified form as the court may determine will afford appropriate relief. An appeal may be taken to the supreme court from such final judgment in the same manner and with the same effect as appeals from judgments of the superior court in actions to review orders of the commission. All provisions of this act relating to the time of appeal, the manner of perfecting the same, the filing of briefs, hearings and supersedeas, shall apply to appeals to the supreme court under the provisions of this section. [L. '11, p. 605, § 93.]

§ 8626-94. Penalties for Violations of Act or Orders.

Every public service company, and all officers, agents and employees of any public service company, shall obey, observe and comply with every order, rule, direction or requirement made by the commission under authority of this act, so long as the same shall be and remain in force. Any public service company which shall violate or fail to comply with any provision of this act, or which fails, omits or neglects to obey, observe or comply with any order, rule, or any direction, demand or requirement of the commission, shall be subject to a penalty of not to exceed the sum of one thousand dollars for each and every offense. Every violation of any such order, direction or requirement of this act shall be a separate and distinct offense, and in case of a continuing violation every day's continuance thereof shall be and be deemed to be a separate and distinct offense. [L. '11, p. 606, § 94.]

§ 8626-95. Officers and Employees Subject to Penalty.

Every officer, agent or employee of any public service company, who shall violate or fail to comply with, or who procures, aids or abets any violation by any public service company of any provision of this act, or who shall fail to obey, observe or comply with any order of the commission, or any provision of any order of the commission, or who procures, aids or abets any such public service company in its failure to obey, observe and comply with any such order or provision, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 606, § 95.]

§ 8626-96. Corporations Violating Act or Orders—Penalty.

Every corporation, other than a public service company, which shall violate any provision of this act, or which shall fail to obey, observe or comply with any order of the commission under authority of this act, so long as the same shall be and remain in force, shall be subject to a penalty of not to exceed the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000) for each and every offense. Every such violation shall be a separate and distinct offense, and the penalty shall be recovered in an action as provided in section 8626-98. [L. '11, p. 607, § 96.]

§ 8626-97. Persons Violating Act—Penalty.

Every person who, either individually, or acting as an officer or agent of a corporation other than a public service company, shall violate any provision of this act, or fail to observe, obey or comply with any order made by the commission under this act, so long as the same shall be or remain in force, or who shall procure, aid or abet any such corporation in its violation of this act, or in its failure to obey, observe or comply with any such order, shall be guilty of a gross misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 607, § 97.]

§ 8626-98. Suit for Penalties.

Actions to recover penalties under this act shall be brought in the name of the state of Washington in the superior court of Thurston county, or in the superior court of any county in or through which such public service company may do business. In all such actions the procedure and rules of evidence shall be the same as in ordinary civil actions, except as otherwise herein provided. All fines and penalties recovered by the state under this act shall be paid into the treasury of the state. [L. '11, p. 607, § 98.]

§ 8626-99. Orders and Rules Conclusive.

In all actions between private parties and public service companies involving any rule or order of the commission, and in all actions for the recovery of penalties provided for in this act, or for the enforcement of the orders or rules issued and promulgated by the commission, the said orders and rules shall be conclusive unless set aside or annulled in a review as in this act provided. [L. '11, p. 608, § 99.]

§ 8626-100. Findings Prima Facie Correct.

Whenever the commission has issued or promulgated any order or rule, in any writ of review brought by a public service company to determine the reasonableness of such order or rule, the findings of fact made by the commission shall be prima facie correct, and the burden shall be upon said public service company to establish the order or rule to be unreasonable or unlawful. [L. '11, p. 608, § 100.]

§ 8626-101. Commission shall Enforce Laws.

It shall be the duty of the commission to enforce the provisions of this act and all other acts of this state affecting public service companies, the enforcement of which is not specifically vested in some other officer or tribunal. [L. '11, p. 608, § 101.]

§ 8626-102. Companies Liable for Damages.

In case any public service company shall do, cause to be done or permit to be done any act, matter or thing prohibited, forbidden or declared to be unlawful, or shall omit to do any act, matter or thing required to be done, either by any law of this state, by this act or by any order or rule of the commission, such public service company shall be liable to the persons or corporations affected thereby for all loss, damage or injury caused thereby or resulting therefrom, and in case of recovery if the court shall find that such act or omission was willful, it may, in its discretion, fix a reasonable counsel or attorney's fee, which shall be taxed and collected as part of the costs in the case. An action to recover for such loss, damage or injury may be brought in any court of competent jurisdiction by any person or corporation. [L. '11, p. 608, § 102.]

§ 8626-103. Commission to Furnish Copy of Rates, etc.—Fees.

Upon application of any person the commission shall furnish certified copies of any classification, rate, rule, regulation or order established by such commission, and the printed copies published by authority of the commission, or any certified copy of any such classification, rate, rule, regulation or order, with seal affixed, shall be admissible in evidence in any action or proceeding, and shall be sufficient to establish the fact that the charge, rate, rule, order or classification therein contained is the official act of the commission. When copies of any classification, rate, rule, regulation or order not contained in the printed reports, or copies of papers, accounts or records of public service companies filed with the commission shall be demanded from the commission for proper use, the commission shall charge a reasonable compensation therefor. An action to recover for such loss, damage or injury may be brought in any court of competent jurisdiction by any such person or corporation. [L. '11, p. 609, § 103.]

§ 8626-104. Effect of Act—Release of Damages.

This act shall not have the effect to release or waive any right of action by the state or any person for any right, penalty or forfeiture which may have arisen or may hereafter arise under any law of this state; and all penalties accruing under this act shall be cumulative of each other, and a suit for the recovery of one penalty shall not be a bar to the recovery of any other: Provided, That no contract, receipt, rule or regulation shall exempt any corporation engaged in transporting livestock by railway from liability of a common carrier, or carrier of livestock, which would exist had no contract, receipt, rule or regulation been made or entered into. [L. '11, p. 609, § 104.]

§ 8626-105. Effect of Act upon Municipal Utilities.

Nothing in this act shall authorize the commission to make or enforce any order affecting rates, tolls, rentals, contracts or charges or service rendered, or the safety, adequacy or sufficiency of the facilities, equipment, instrumentalities or buildings, or the reasonableness of rules or regulations made, furnished, used, supplied or in force affecting any street railroad, telephone line, gas plant, electrical plant or water system owned and operated by any city or town, but all other provisions enumerated herein shall apply to public utilities owned by any city or town. [L. '11, p. 610, § 105.]

§ 8626-107. Public Service Commission to Act as Railroad Commission.

Whenever the terms "Railroad Commission of Washington," "Railroad Commissioner," or "Railroad Commission" occur in any law, contract or document, or whenever in any law, contract or document reference is made to such commission or commissioners, such terms or reference shall be deemed to refer to and include the public service commission as established by this act, so far as such law, contract or document pertains to matters within the jurisdiction of the said public service commission. [L. '11, p. 610, § 107.]

§ 8626-108. Constitutionality.

If any section, subdivision, sentence or clause of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portion of this act. [L. '11, p. 611, § 108.]

§ 8626-110. Transfer of Records.

The railroad commission of Washington shall transfer and deliver to the public service commission hereby created all books, maps, papers and records, furniture, equipment, instruments and supplies in its possession at the date of the taking effect of this act. [L. '11, p. 611, § 110.]

§ 8626-111. Pending Actions and Proceedings.

This act shall not affect pending actions or proceedings, civil or criminal, brought by or against the railroad commission of Washington, or by any other person or corporation, under the provision of chapter 81 of the Laws of 1905, or the acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto, but the same may be prosecuted or defended in the name of the railroad commission of Washington, or otherwise, with the same effect as though this act had not been passed. Any investigation, examination or proceeding undertaken, commenced or instituted by the railroad commission of Washington prior to the taking effect of this act may be conducted and continued to a final determination by the public service commission hereby created, in the same manner, under the same terms and conditions, and with like effect as though the railroad commission of Washington had not been abolished.

No cause of action arising under the provisions of chapter 81 of the Laws of 1905, or the acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto, or dependent thereon, shall abate by reason of the passage of this act, whether a suit or action has been instituted thereon at the time of the taking effect of this act or not, but actions may be brought upon such causes in the same manner, under the same terms and conditions, and with the same effect as though said chapter (and the acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto) had not been repealed.

All findings, orders and rules made, issued or promulgated by the railroad commission of Washington under the provisions of chapter 81 of the Laws of 1905, or the acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto, shall continue in force and have the same effect as though this act had not been passed, and the public service commission hereby created is empowered to enforce said findings, orders and rules in the same manner and under the same conditions as though said findings, orders and rules had been made, issued or promulgated by the public service commission hereby created. [L. '11, p. 611, § 111.]

For the act referred to, see Rem. & Bal. Code, §§ 8627-8671.

§ 8626-112. Construction of Act—Terms of Commissioners.

This act, in so far as it embraces the same subject matter, shall be construed as a continuation of chapter 81 of the Laws of 1905, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and the members of the railroad commission of Washington created by said act of 1905 shall during the remainder of their terms of office respectively constitute the public service commission created by this act. At the expiration of the term of each commissioner a commissioner shall be appointed under the provisions of this act. [L. '11, p. 612, § 112.]

§§ 8627-8661.

§ 8629.

An order of the railroad commission reducing switch charges, based largely upon an old rate that had been continued in force for some time, and upon conflicting evidence as to the time consumed in the service and as to the other services performed by the switching crew, is aided by the presumption that a rate continued in force for some time is presumed to be remunerative and by the presumption that the findings of the commission are correct; and the order will not be disturbed on appeal although the testimony is meager, indefinite, and unsatisfactory: Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 57 Wash. 134, 106 Pac. 611.

As to state regulation of railroad rates, see note in 62 Am. St. Rep. 289.

The provision in this section, giving to railroad companies the right of appeal from orders of the superior court on reviewing orders of the railroad commission, was not intended to restrict the right of appeal to railroad companies, in view of constitution, article 4, section 4, giving the supreme court appellate jurisdiction in all civil cases, and section 1716, providing that any party aggrieved may appeal from the final judgment in any action or proceeding: State ex rel. Great Northern R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 60 Wash. 218, 110 Pac. 1075.

This section is mandatory, and contemplates a compensatory bond to supersede the judgment pending the appeal to the supreme court, especially in view of the provision allowing appeal "as in other civil cases," and section 1722, providing for a stay in all cases: State ex rel. Puget Sound Elec. R. v. Mitchell, 60 Wash. 660, 111 Pac. 873.

An order of the railroad commission requiring a railroad to furnish modern flush-toilets at a depot waiting-room in a town of two thousand inhabitants is unreasonable, where there is no proof as to the inadequacy of existing facilities; and the same cannot be sustained on the theory that the commission found it necessary on "a view of the premises," since the law contemplates that all the evidence be preserved in the record for the purposes of review: State ex rel. Great Northern R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 60 Wash. 218, 110 Pac. 1075.

Orders of the railroad commission requiring a railroad to furnish running water for drinking purposes at its stations in small towns is unreasonable, in the absence of any evidence showing delinquency on the part of the company in the present service: State ex rel. Great Northern R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 60 Wash. 218, 110 Pac. 1075.

As to protection of corporations against undue burdens sought to be imposed under legislative power, see note in 62 Am. St. Rep. 165; also note in Ann. Cas. 1912C, 703.

Under this section of the railroad commission act, making the commission an intermediate tribunal with original jurisdiction to hear and determine questions relating to the duty of common carriers to furnish additional transportation facilities, the power to fix the time within which a depot must be completed is conferred by necessary implication: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Great Northern R. Co., 68 Wash. 257, 123 Pac. 8.

A railroad company having failed to avail itself of the right to appeal from a decision of the railroad commission ordering the construction of a depot within a specified time, is precluded from questioning its reasonableness or legality; the statute making the decision final if not appealed from: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Great Northern R. Co., 68 Wash. 257, 123 Pac. 8.

As to right of state to compel railroad company to equip its road, see note in 13 L. R. A., N. S., 320.

As to right of state to compel railroad to establish and maintain depot in every incorporated city, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 227.

Under this section, providing that an order of the railroad commission for furnishing additional facilities shall be served on the company by delivering a certified copy, an oral announcement by the chairman at the end of a hearing is not an order binding on the company, and does not preclude the commission from later entering a formal order and serving a copy on the company: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 68 Wash. 160, 123 Pac. 3.

In a proceeding to recover a penalty for failing to comply with an order of the railroad commission for the erection of a depot, complaint cannot be made of the order that it was indefinite as to the size and location of the building, where the company accepted and acted upon the order except as to the time for its erection, and it was definite as to such time: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 68 Wash. 160, 123 Pac. 3.

A penalty for failing to obey an order of the railroad commission to construct a depot within a specified time attaches at the expiration of the time limited, and it is no defense that the depot was constructed before suit for the penalty was commenced: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Great Northern R. Co., 68 Wash. 257, 123 Pac. 8.

In a prosecution to recover a penalty for failing to obey an order of the railroad commission to construct a depot within a specified time, which became final and conclusive because not appealed from, it is no defense that the defendant's system of work entailed such delay that the time fixed for performance was unreasonably short, where these facts were well known to the company at the time the order was made and the objection could have been raised on direct appeal from the order: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Great Northern R. Co., 68 Wash. 257, 123 Pac. 8.

In such a case, it is no defense that unprecedented floods delayed the performance, where such floods occurred after the expiration of the time prescribed by the order for performance: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Great Northern R. Co., 68 Wash. 257, 123 Pac. 8.

As to penalty as distinguished from liquidated damages, see note in 13 L. R. A. 671.

An order of the railroad commission requiring a railroad depot to be moved five hundred feet, in a town of seventy-five people, is unreasonable, where the only reason therefor was to bring the depot to the point on the railroad nearest the business center of the town: State ex rel. Great Northern R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 60 Wash. 218, 110 Pac. 1075.

An order of the railroad commission requiring the extension of a spur track so as to permit teams to load and unload cars at all points of the extension is not unreasonable, where it appears that there is such a necessity for team facilities to avoid inconvenience and delay; and it is not unreasonable in that it directs the particular manner in which the service shall be furnished, where the railroad company failed to show that the service could be furnished in some other manner less burdensome to it: State ex rel. Great Northern R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 60 Wash. 218, 110 Pac. 1075.

The original charter of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, authorizing it to maintain and enjoy a "continuous railroad" between its terminals, does not require it to operate all its through passenger-trains from terminus to terminus; but it maintains and enjoys a "continuous railroad" from terminus to terminus when it operates one passenger train daily each way directly between its terminals without change of cars or deviation, affording adequate service for all who desire to travel over its line; and mandamus will not issue to require it to do more: State ex rel. Whitehouse v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 53 Wash. 370, 102 Pac. 24.

It would be immaterial that its through trains were not run over the main line as originally laid out, where changes were made to reduce curves and grades, and the old line received an adequate local service: State ex rel. Whitehouse v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 53 Wash. 370, 102 Pac. 24.

Orders of the railroad commission respecting railroad service and facilities will not be set aside on appeal as unreasonable, unless they clearly so appear, the presumption being that they are reasonable: State ex rel. Great Northern R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 60 Wash. 218, 110 Pac. 1075.

An order of the railroad commission requiring a railroad to stop one of its passenger trains on flag at a town of seventy-five people, one and one-half miles from another town of the same size, where its trains stop, is not unreasonable, where there is a siding at such place, doing a freight business of two thousand seven hundred and thirty-eight dollars in a year, a sawmill and a paint-mill: State ex rel. Great Northern R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 60 Wash. 218, 110 Pac. 1075.

Orders of the railroad commission requiring a railroad to stop trains on flag at towns of two hundred and fifty inhabitants, which were business centers of considerable importance, are not unreasonable, where such service would enable residents to visit their county seat and transact business and return the same day: State ex rel. Great Northern R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 60 Wash. 218, 110 Pac. 1075.

An order of the railroad commission requiring an additional train from Anacortes to Burlington and return, to connect with the noon trains on the main line, is not unreasonable, in the absence of proof that its operation would result in a loss, where it appears that Anacortes is a city of five or six thousand inhabitants at the western terminus of a branch line, sixteen miles from the main line, doing a freight business of twenty thousand dollars per month, and eight hundred dollars for passenger fares, the present service furnishing only a morning mail service and no close connection with the noon trains in both directions on the main coast line: State ex rel. Great Northern R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 60 Wash. 218, 110 Pac. 1075.

An order of the railroad commission requiring a daily mixed freight and passenger service over a branch line fourteen miles long is unreasonable, where the income from passenger travel resulting therefrom was only nine cents per mile, and cost over thirty cents per mile, the present bi-weekly freight service was adequate, and a financial loss to the company, which loss would be increased by the change without any great necessity for it: State ex rel. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 62 Wash. 193, 113 Pac. 252.

An order of the railroad commission requiring a railroad to designate the name of a station in its tariffs, folders, and tickets as Bingen and White Salmon is unreasonable, where it appears that its station, in the village of Bingen of one hundred inhabitants, is but one and one-half miles from the business center of the town of White Salmon, having a population of eight hundred or more, the latter being the more appropriate name for the district, and the railroad company having recently changed the name of its station from Bingen to White Salmon in deference to the wishes of a majority of the patrons of the station, since the naming of its stations will not be interfered with in the absence of any public necessity therefor: State ex rel. Spokane etc. R. Co. v. Railroad Com., 69 Wash. 523, 125 Pac. 953.

The railroad commission act providing penalties for failure of the company to comply with orders of the commission for furnishing additional facilities cannot be held unconstitutional as in contravention of the fourteenth amendment of the federal constitution, in that the penalties are excessive, the imposition of penalties for disregard of police regulations being entirely within the control of the state: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 68 Wash. 160, 123 Pac. 3.

Under this section, prescribing a penalty if a railroad company "refuse or neglect" to obey any order of the railroad commission, the penalty is imposed for neglect, as well as refusal, to obey an order to construct a depot within a specified time, and the penalty cannot be restricted to cases of willful or contumacious refusal to obey an order, the word "neglect" meaning omission or forbearance, irrespective of carelessness or imprudence: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Great Northern R. Co., 68 Wash. 257, 123 Pac. 8.

A complaint filed by the railroad commission before itself, alleging that the depot facilities of the defendant at its various stations are inadequate, is a sufficient compliance with this section, requiring all grievances to be set out in the complaint, and confers jurisdiction to enter an order requiring the company to erect suitable depots at certain stations within a specified time: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 68 Wash. 160, 123 Pac. 3.

Objection that complaint of a railroad company's depot facilities at all its stations was too general and indefinite to authorize an inquiry as to the facilities at a specific station is waived where the company entered upon the trial of the issue without objection, and took no appeal to the courts from the order of the commission requiring the erection of a depot, sections 8629 and 8632 providing for pleading, trial, and appeal, and that issues shall be made up without delay as in civil cases; and the objection cannot be first raised in a subsequent proceeding to collect the penalty for failure to comply with the order: State ex rel. Railroad Com. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 68 Wash. 160, 123 Pac. 3.

Where the value of railway property has been fixed by the state railway commission pursuant to this section, passed March 8th and approved March 16, 1907, the state tax commission has no power to fix another valuation for the purposes of taxation, under section 9141, passed February 20th and approved March 6th, in view of both the object to be accomplished by the railway commission act and the fact that it was passed subsequently to the passage of the other act: State ex rel. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. Clausen, 63 Wash. 535, 116 Pac. 7.

The two acts are repugnant, except in so far as the state tax commission may estimate the value until such time as the valuation is fixed by a more certain method by the state railway commission, and this construction should be adopted in order to harmonize two acts passed at the same session, especially in view of the amendatory act of 1911 (section 8626-92), expressly making the railway commission valuations applicable for the purposes of assessment and taxation: State ex rel. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. Clausen, 63 Wash. 535, 116 Pac. 7.

As to erroneous or invalid levy or assessment as ground for enjoying collection of tax, see notes in 3 Ann. Cas. 564, and 12 Ann. Cas. 764.

In an action by a shipper for unjust discrimination by a common carrier, seeking to recover switching charges paid, a complaint alleging that the defendant falsely represented that such charges were paid by other shippers when in fact the defendant was absorbing or itself paying the switching charges of many other shippers, is insufficient where it fails to allege that the defendant had failed to comply with the provisions of the act to regulate commerce with reference to the filing of a schedule of rates and that the rate charged exceeded the rate shown on the schedule: Lilly Co. v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 64 Wash. 589, 117 Pac. 401.

In fixing reasonable rates for an interurban railroad, there should be allowed an annual renewal fund upon which to draw for necessary replacement; but, where the company has failed to provide the same for a number of years, it cannot ask that the traffic for any future year or years shall bear all the deterioration of past years: Puget Sound Electric Ry. v. Railroad Com., 65 Wash. 75, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 763, 117 Pac. 739.

The right of a carrier to fix rates which will earn a fair return on its investment is qualified by the rule that it cannot exact rates higher than the service is reasonably worth or more than the traffic will bear: Puget Sound Electric R. v. Railroad Com., 65 Wash. 75, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 763, 117 Pac. 739.

Where an interurban railroad had been charging rates that did not net an adequate return on its investment, and advanced all rates to such an extent that new rates within the ten mile zones of the terminal cities and a few other points, approximating ten per cent of the schedule and twenty-five per cent of the revenue from passenger traffic, were more than such traffic would bear, an order of the railroad commission is justified restoring the old rates within those zones, where that was all the patrons could afford to pay, and such reduced service was not rendered at a loss, and with increases at other points will produce a revenue of seven per cent on its investment: Puget Sound Electric R. v. Railroad Com., 65 Wash. 75, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 763, 117 Pac. 739.

Seven per cent upon the investment of an interurban railroad is shown to be a reasonable profit where it appears that the company loaned over two million dollars at six per cent to an allied corporation doing business in the same locality with approximately the same attendant risk as the interurban company: Puget Sound Electric R. v. Railroad Com., 65 Wash. 75, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 763, 117 Pac. 739.

The findings of a railroad commission upon the reasonableness of railroad rates, the determination of which calls for the exercise of economic as well as legal principles, should not be disturbed on appeal to the courts, unless it appears that they were made arbitrarily and without a full and due consideration of the facts: Puget Sound Electric R. v. Railroad Com., 65 Wash. 75, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 763, 117 Pac. 739.

The reduction of rates as to ten per cent of the passengers carried by an interurban road to a figure that will give a profit on the actual cost of that part of the haul, although not an adequate return upon the investment, is justified where the company thereby earns a revenue that it could not otherwise obtain and its profits on its other business is not affected and when the same is all that such patrons can afford to pay for the service; and such a rate is not unjust discrimination against persons and places: Puget Sound Electric R. v. Railroad Com., 65 Wash. 75, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 763, 117 Pac. 739.

It is not unjust discrimination to reduce the rates of an interurban railroad below the amounts charged by steam railroads touching certain points, where the railroads are not seeking to handle that class of traffic and have not the facilities or the time schedules to make them in reality competing lines: Puget Sound Electric R. v. Railroad Com., 65 Wash. 75, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 763, 117 Pac. 739.

The fact that a railway company's published tariff of rates is greater than the amount agreed upon between the railway and a logging company for the carriage of its logs is not conclusive evidence that the latter is discriminatory, where an independent consideration passed between the parties in addition to the rates charged: Sultan R. & Timber Co. v. Great N. R. Co., 58 Wash. 604, 109 Pac. 320, 1020.

This act, prohibiting discrimination between shippers by common carriers, does not prevent a railway company from entering into a contract with a shipper to carry particular goods at a fixed rate for a given time, or to the amount of a given quantity: Sultan R. & Timber Co. v. Great N. R. Co., 58 Wash. 604, 109 Pac. 320, 1020.

The law prohibiting discrimination between shippers is not violated by a contract of a railway company to carry the logs of a logging company between certain points at a specified rate, where part of the consideration therefor was the logging company's forbearance of the right to cross the railway at grade; and such contract is not void as against public policy: Sultan R. & Timber Co. v. Great N. R. Co., 58 Wash. 604, 109 Pac. 320, 1020.

As to discrimination between shippers by carriers of goods, see note in 1 Ann. Cas. 55.

The commerce act (U. S. Comp. Stats., Supp. 1909, pp. 1149-1153, sec. 6), prohibiting carriers from charging any greater or less fee for transportation than the rates and fares specified in their published tariffs, or from extending any other privileges, renders inoperative a prior contract whereby the railroad company, in consideration of land conveyed to it, agreed to give the grantor annual passes for the rest of his life, since the same must have been made subject to the constitutional power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce: Cowley v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 68 Wash. 558, 41 L. R. A., N. S., 559, 123 Pac. 998.

Where a railway company seeks to avoid a contract to carry goods on the ground that the same is void as against public policy, it must, as between itself and the carrier, establish the invalidity by direct evidence of the fact: Sultan R. & Timber Co. v. Great N. R. Co., 58 Wash. 604, 109 Pac. 320, 1020.

Where, after substantial performance, a contract for annual passes became illegal through the operation of the commerce act of 1887, the railroad company cannot be held for damages for failure to further perform the contract: Cowley v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 68 Wash. 558, 41 L. R. A., N. S., 559, 123 Pac. 998.

As to impossibility of performance as defense, see note in 70 Am. St. Rep. 832.

LIABILITIES OF CARRIERS OF LIVESTOCK: See 4 Remington's Digest,

"Carriers," §§ 36-1 to 42-2; Buck v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 53 Wash. 113, 101 Pac. 491; Spokane Grain Co. v. Great Northern Express Co., 55 Wash. 545, 104 Pac. 794; Bartelt v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 57 Wash. 16, 135 Am. St. Rep. 959, 106 Pac. 487; Carstens Packing Co. v. Southern Pac. Co., 58 Wash. 239, 27 L. R. A., N. S., 975, 108 Pac. 613; Pierson v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 61 Wash. 450, 112 Pac. 509.

This section, providing that no contract shall exempt a carrier of livestock from liability that would exist had no contract been entered into, does not invalidate an agreement with the shipper as to the value of the stock and limiting liability to such value; and the same is not void as against public policy when freely and fairly made in consideration of the rate given, a higher valuation being available at a higher rate: Carstens Packing Co. v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 64 Wash. 256, 116 Pac. 625.

As to carriers of livestock as common carriers, see note in 63 Am. St. Rep. 548.

CHAPTER II.

RIGHT TO CONSTRUCT AND OPERATE LINES.

§§ 8662, 8668.

See notes to § 8740.

§ 8670.

The consent of the Secretary of War to construct a bridge over a navigable stream is not a condition precedent to condemnation of tide lands to be reached by way of the bridge, inasmuch as the state has given its consent by sections 8670 and 8737, providing that bridges across navigable streams shall be so constructed as not to interfere with or obstruct navigation: State ex rel. Hulme v. Gray's Harbor & Puget Sound R. Co., 54 Wash. 530, 103 Pac. 809.

CHAPTER III.

EQUIPMENT REGULATIONS.

§ 8682.

Laws of 1899, page 49, section 1, providing that any person or company operating a railroad is required on or before the first day of October, 1899, to guard frogs and switches, applies to railroads organized after the act went into effect: Alberg v. Campbell Lumber Co., 66 Wash. 84, 119 Pac. 6.

It also applies to a logging road of a mill company used in getting out logs to the mill, and not engaged in public service as a common carrier: Alberg v. Campbell Lumber Co., 66 Wash. 84, 119 Pac. 6.

§ 8683.

This section does not limit the right of action to injuries from which death results, the object being only to extend the liability to actions for wrongful death: Alberg v. Campbell Lumber Co., 66 Wash. 84, 119 Pac. 6.

§ 8687-1. Full Train Crews.

It shall be unlawful for any person, corporation, company, or officer of court operating any railroad or railway, or part of any railroad or railway, in the state of Washington, and engaged, as a common carrier, in the transportation of freight or passengers, to operate over its road or any part thereof, or suffer or permit to be run over its road outside of the yard limits, any passenger, mail or express train consisting of four or more cars with less than a full passenger crew consisting of five men, to wit: one engineer, one fireman, one conductor, one brakeman and one flagman (said flagman to have had at least one year's experience in train service) and none of the said crew shall be required or permitted to perform the duties of train baggagemen or express messenger while on the road. [L. '11, p. 650, § 1.]

§ 8687-2. Six Men Crew—Exceptions.

It shall be unlawful for any person, corporation, company, or officer of court operating any railroad or railway, or part of any railroad or railway, in the state of Washington, and engaged, as a common carrier, in the transportation of freight or passengers, to operate over its road or any part thereof, or suffer or permit to be run over its road outside of the yard limits, any freight train consisting of twenty-five or more cars exclusive of engine and caboose, with less than a full train crew consisting of six men, to wit: one engineer, one fireman, one conductor, two brakemen and one flagman (said flagman to have had at least one year's experience in train service): Provided, however, That light engine, without cars, shall have the following crew, to wit: one engineer, one fireman and one conductor. [L. '11, p. 651, § 2.]

§ 8687-3. Separate Offenses.

Each train or engine run in violation of section 8687-1 or 8687-2 shall constitute a separate offense: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be construed as applying in the case of disability of one or more of any train crew while out on the road between division terminals, wrecking trains, or to any line, or part of line, where not more than two trains are run in each twenty-four hours. [L. '11, p. 651, § 3.]

§ 8687-4. Penalty—Fine.

Any person, corporation, company, or officer of court operating any railroad or railway, or part of any railroad or railway in the state of Washington, and engaged, as a common carrier, in the transportation of freight or passengers, who shall violate any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars ($100) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500) for each offense. [L. '11, p. 651, § 4.]

§ 8687-5. Duty of Commission.

It shall be the duty of the railroad commission to enforce this act. [L. '11, p. 652, § 5.]

CHAPTER IV.

TRANSPORTATION REGULATIONS.

§§ 8691-8716.

Repealed. See L. '11, p. 611, § 109.

CHAPTER VII.

FENCES AND CROSSINGS.

• § 8729.

This section, requiring railroads, where the same person owns land on both sides of the track, to put in and maintain necessary crossings and gates, was impliedly repealed by the acts of 1903 and 1907, covering the same subject, section 8730, which provided that the owner shall have the right to put in gates for his use at such places as may be convenient: Huffman v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co., 57 Wash. 494, 107 Pac. 362.

As to rule of construction determining repeal of statutes by implication, see note in 88 Am. St. Rep. 272.

§§ 8733—8735.

Repealed. See L. '13, p. 88, § 23.

§ 8733-1. Grade Crossings—Definitions.

The term "commission," when used in this act, means the Public Service Commission of Washington.

The term "highway," when used in this act, includes all state and county roads, streets, alleys, avenues, boulevards, parkways, and other public places actually open and in use, or to be opened and used, for travel by the public.

The term "railroad," when used in this act, means every railroad, including interurban and suburban electric railroads, by whatsoever power operated, for the public use in the conveyance of persons or property for hire, with all bridges, ferries, tunnels, equipment, switches, spurs, sidings, tracks, stations and terminal facilities of every kind, used, operated, controlled, managed, or owned by or in connection therewith. The said term shall also include every logging and other industrial railway owned or operated primarily for the purpose of carrying the property of its owners or operators or of a limited class of persons, with all tracks, spurs and sidings used in connection therewith. The said term shall not include street railways operating within the limits of any incorporated city or town.

The term "railroad company," when used in this act, includes every corporation, company, association, joint stock association, partnership or person, its, their or his lessees, trustees or receivers appointed by any court whatsoever, owning, operating, controlling or managing any railroad, as that term is defined in this section.

The term "over-crossing," when used in this act, means any point or place where a highway crosses a railroad by passing above the same.

The term "under-crossing," when used in this act, means any point or place where a highway crosses a railroad by passing under the same.

The term "over-crossing" or "under-crossing," shall also mean any point or place where one railroad crosses another railroad not at grade.

The term "grade crossing," when used in this act, means any point or place where a railroad crosses a highway or a highway crosses a railroad or one railroad crosses another, at a common grade. [L. '13, p. 74, § 1.]

§ 8733-2. Grade Crossing Prohibited.

All railroads and extensions of railroads hereafter constructed shall cross existing railroads and highways by passing either over or under the same, when practicable, and shall in no instance cross any railroad or highway at grade without authority first being obtained from the commission to do so. All highways and extensions of highways hereafter laid out and constructed shall cross existing railroads by passing either over or under the same, when practicable, and shall in no instance cross any railroad at grade without authority first being obtained from the commission to do so: • Provided, That this section shall not be construed to prohibit a railroad company from constructing tracks at grade across other tracks owned or operated by it within established yard limits. In determining whether a separation of grades is practicable, the commission shall take into consideration the amount and character of travel on the railroad and on the highway; the grade and alignment of the railroad and the highway; the cost of separating grades; the topography of the country, and all other circumstances and conditions naturally involved in such an inquiry. [L. '13, p. 75, § 2.]

§ 8733-3. Petitions for New Crossings—Hearing—Notice—Damage.

Whenever any railroad company desires to cross any highway or railroad at grade, it shall file a written petition with the commission setting forth the reasons why the crossing cannot be made either above or below grade, and whenever the county commissioners of any county, or the municipal authorities of any city or town, or the state officers authorized to lay out and construct state roads, desire to lay out or extend any highway across any railroad at grade, they shall file a written petition with the commission, setting forth the reasons why the crossing cannot be made either above or below grade. Upon receiving such petition the commission shall immediately investigate the same, giving at least ten days' notice to the railroad company or companies and the county or municipality affected thereby, of the time and place of such investigation, to the end that all parties interested may be present and be heard. If the highway involved is a state road, the state highway commissioner shall be notified of the time and place of hearing. The evidence introduced shall be reduced to writing and be filed by the commission. If the commission finds that it is not practicable to cross the railroad or highway either above or below grade, it shall make and file a written order in the cause, granting the right and privilege to construct a grade crossing. The commission, in its discretion, may provide in the order authorizing the construction of a grade crossing, or at any subsequent time, that the railroad company shall install and maintain proper signals, warnings, flagmen, interlocking devices, or other devices or means to secure the safety of the public and its employees. If upon investigation the commission shall find that it is impracticable to construct an over-crossing or under-crossing on the established or proposed highway, and shall find that by deflecting the established or proposed highway a practicable and feasible over-crossing or under-crossing or a safer grade crossing can be provided, it shall continue the hearing on the petition and hold a supplemental hearing thereon. At least ten days' notice of the time and place of such supplemental hearing shall be given to all land owners that may be affected by the proposed change in location of the highway. At such supplemental hearing the commission shall inquire into the propriety, advisability and necessity of changing and deflecting the highway as proposed for the purpose of securing an over-crossing, under-crossing, or safer grade crossing. If the proposed change in route of the highway involves the abandonment and vacation of a portion of an established highway, the owners of land contiguous to the portion of the highway to be vacated and abandoned shall, in like manner, be notified of the time and place of the supplemental hearing. At the conclusion of the hearing on the petition, the commission shall make and file its findings of fact in writing concerning the matters inquired into, and shall determine the location of the crossing which may be constructed, and whether the same shall be an under-crossing, over-crossing, or grade crossing, and shall determine whether or not any proposed change in the route of an existing highway, or the abandonment of a portion thereof is advisable or necessary to secure an over-crossing, under-crossing, or safer grade crossing. If the commission shall find and determine that a change in route of an existing highway, or abandonment and vacation of a portion thereof is necessary or advisable, it shall further find and determine what private lands, property, or property rights, if any, it is necessary to take, damage, or injuriously affect, for the purpose of laying out and constructing the highway along a new route, and what private lands, property or property rights, if any, will be affected by the proposed abandonment and vacation of a portion of an existing highway. The lands, property, and property rights found necessary to be taken, damaged, or affected shall be described in said findings with reasonable accuracy, and the right to take, damage or injuriously affect the same shall be acquired as hereinafter provided. In any action brought to acquire the right to take, damage, or injuriously affect any such lands, property, or property rights, the findings of the commission shall be conclusive as to the necessity for taking, damaging, or injuriously affecting the same. A copy of said findings shall be served upon all parties to the cause. [L. '13, p. 76, § 3.]

§ 8733-4. Petitions for Change in Existing Crossings—Notice—Findings—Order.

The mayor and city council, or other governing body of any city or town, or the county commissioners of any county within which any highway is crossed by any railroad, or any railroad company whose road is crossed by any highway, may file with the commission their or its petition in writing, alleging that the public safety requires an alteration in the method and manner of such crossing, and its approaches, the location of the highway or crossing, the closing or discontinuance of an existing highway crossing, and the diversion of travel thereon to another highway or crossing, or if not practicable to change such crossing from grade or to close and discontinue the same, the opening of an additional crossing for the partial diversion of travel and praying that the same may be ordered. Upon such petition being filed, the commission shall fix a time and place for hearing the petition and shall give not less than ten days' notice thereof to the petitioner, the railroad company and the municipality or county in which the crossing is situate. If the highway involved is a state highway, like notice shall be given to the state highway commissioner. If the change petitioned for requires that private lands, property, or property rights be taken, damaged, or injuriously affected to open up a new route for the highway, or requires that any portion of any existing highway be vacated and abandoned, ten days' notice of the hearing shall be given to the owner or owners of the private lands, property, and property rights which it is necessary to take, damage or injuriously affect, and to the owner or owners of the private lands, property, or property rights that will be affected by the proposed vacation and abandonment of the existing highway. The commission shall also cause said notice of hearing to be published once in some newspaper of general circulation in the community where such crossing is situate, which publication shall appear at least two days prior to the date of hearing. At the time and place fixed in the notice, all persons and parties interested shall be entitled to be heard and introduce evidence. At the conclusion of the hearing the commission shall make and file its written findings of fact concerning the matters inquired into in like manner as provided in the preceding section for findings of fact upon petition for new crossings. The commission shall also enter its order based upon said findings of fact, which shall specify whether the highway shall continue at grade or whether it shall be changed to cross over or under the railroad or whether said highway shall be closed and travel thereon diverted to another channel, or any other change that the commission may find advisable or necessary. In case the order made requires that private lands, property, or property rights be taken, damaged, or injuriously affected, the right to take, damage, or injuriously affect the same shall be acquired as hereinafter provided.

Petition for the change in any existing grade crossing, or for the elimination thereof, may be filed by the commission on its own motion, and proceedings thereon shall be the same as herein provided for the hearing and determination of a petition filed by a railroad company. [L. '13, p. 78, § 4.]

§ 8733-5. Duty to Maintain Crossings.

When a highway crosses a railroad by an over-crossing or under-crossing, the framework and abutments of the over-crossing or under-crossing, as the case may be, shall be maintained and kept in repair by the railroad company, and the roadway thereover or thereunder and approaches thereto shall be maintained and kept in repair by the county or municipality in which the same are situated, or if the highway is a state road, the roadway over or under the railroad shall be maintained and kept in repair as provided by law for the maintenance and repair of state roads: Provided, however, That this section shall not apply to over-crossings or under-crossings constructed prior to the passage of this act under special contracts between a railroad company and any county, municipality, or the state, in which different provision is made for the maintenance and repair of the under-crossing or over-crossing. [L. '13, p. 79, § 5.]

§ 8733-6. Apportionment of Cost of Crossings.

Subd. A. Whenever, under the provisions of this act, new railroads are constructed across existing highways, or highway changes are made either for the purpose of avoiding grade crossings on such new railroads, or for the purpose of crossing at a safer and more accessible point than otherwise available, the entire expense of crossing above or below the grade of the existing highway, or changing the route thereof, for the purpose mentioned in this subdivision, shall be paid by the railroad company.

Subd. B. Whenever, under the provisions of this act, a new highway is constructed across a railroad, or an existing grade crossing is eliminated or changed, the entire expense of constructing an over-crossing, under-crossing, or safer grade crossing, as the case may be, shall be apportioned by the commission between the railroad, municipality or county affected, or if the highway is a state road, between the railroad and the state, as justice may require, regard being had for the benefits accruing to the railroad, municipality, county, or state by reason of the improvement. If the highway involved is a state road, the amount not apportioned to the railroad company shall be paid as provided by law for constructing such state road. When an existing grade crossing is ordered eliminated by the construction of an over-crossing or under-crossing, the commission may in its discretion pay an amount not to exceed ten per cent of the cost thereof out of the appropriation provided in this act, and in such cases the state auditor is hereby authorized and required upon the requisition of the commission, to draw warrants on the state treasury payable to the party designated by the commission for such amount, and the state treasurer is hereby authorized and required to pay such warrants on presentation.

Subd. C. Whenever two or more lines of railroad owned or operated by different companies cross a highway, or each other, by an over-crossing, under-crossing or grade crossing required or permitted by this act or by an order of the commission, the portion of the expense of making such crossing not chargeable to any municipality, county, or to the state, shall be apportioned between said railroad companies by the commission unless said companies shall mutually agree upon an apportionment. If it becomes necessary for the commission to make an apportionment between the railroad companies, a hearing for that purpose shall be held, at least ten days' notice of which shall be given. [L. '13, p. 80, § 6.]

§ 8733-7. Payment of Costs and Apportionment of Construction Work.

In the construction of new railroads across existing highways, the railroads shall do or cause to be done all the work of constructing the crossings and road changes that may be required, and shall acquire and furnish whatever property or easements may be necessary, and shall pay, as provided in the preceding section, the entire expense of such work including all compensation or damages for property or property rights taken, damaged or injuriously affected. In all other cases the construction work may be apportioned by the commission between the parties who may be required to contribute to the cost thereof as the parties may agree, or as the commission may consider advisable. All work within the limits of railroad rights of way shall in every case be done by the railroad company owning or operating the same. The cost of acquiring additional lands, rights or easements to provide for the change of existing crossings shall, unless the parties otherwise agree, in the first instance be paid by the municipality or county within which the crossing is located; or in the case of a state road, shall be paid in the manner provided by law for paying the cost of acquiring lands, rights or easements for the construction of state roads. The expense accruing on account of property taken or damaged shall be divided and paid in the manner provided for dividing and paying other costs of construction. Upon the completion of the work and its approval by the commission, an accounting shall be had, and if it shall appear that any party has expended more than its proportion of the total cost, a settlement shall be forthwith made. If the parties shall be unable to agree upon a settlement, the commission shall arbitrate, adjust and settle the account after notice to the parties. In the event of failure and refusal of any party to pay its proportion of the expense, the sum with interest from the date of the settlement may be recovered in a civil action by the party entitled thereto. In cases where the commission has settled the account, the finding of the commission as to the amount due shall be conclusive in any civil action brought to recover the same if such finding has not been reviewed or appealed from as herein provided, and the time for review or appeal has expired. If any party shall review or appeal from any finding or order of the commission apportioning the cost between the parties liable therefor, the superior court or the supreme court, as the case may be, shall cause judgment to be entered in such review proceedings for such sum or sums as may be found lawfully or justly due by one party to another. [L. '13, p. 81, § 7.]

§ 8733-8. Plans and Specifications—Proposals.

Plans and specifications of changes in existing crossings proposed under this act, and an estimate of the expense thereof, shall be submitted to the commission for its approval before the commencement of the work. In case the work is to be done by contract, the proposals of the contractor shall be submitted to the commission and if it shall determine that the bids are excessive it shall have power to require the submission of new proposals. [L. '13, p. 82, § 8.]

§ 8733-9. Temporary Crossings.

The commission, in its discretion, good cause appearing therefor, and upon such conditions as it may prescribe, shall have power, without notice or hearing, to grant a permit to construct and maintain a temporary grade crossing for a period not exceeding six months, and may revoke such permit at any time: Provided, That nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prohibit the commission, after notice and investigation, from permitting the maintenance of a temporary grade crossing for a longer period than six months. Any order granting, refusing to grant, or revoking a permit for a temporary grade crossing shall not be reviewable. [L. '13, p. 83, § 9.]

§ 8733-10. Commission may Fix Time.

The commission, in any order requiring work to be done, shall have power to fix the time within which the same shall be performed and completed: Provided, That if any party having a duty to perform within a fixed time under any order of the commission shall make it appear to the commission that the order cannot reasonably be complied with within the time fixed by reason either of facts arising after the entry of the order or of facts existing prior to the entry thereof that were not presented, and with reasonable diligence could not have been sooner presented to the commission, such party shall be entitled to a reasonable extension of time within which to perform the work. An order of the commission refusing to grant an extension of time may be reviewed as provided for the review of other orders of the commission. [L. '13, p. 83, § 10.]

§ 8733-11. Practice and Procedure Before Commission.

Modes of procedure under this act, unless herein otherwise provided, shall be as provided in the Public Service Commission law, being chapter 117, of the Laws of 1911 for procedure under that act. The commission is hereby given power to adopt rules to govern its proceedings and to regulate the mode and manner of all investigations and hearings under this act. [L. '13, p. 83, § 11.]

The reference in this section is to §§ 8626-1 to 8626-112 herein.

§ 8733-12. Notices—Form and Manner of Service.

All notices required to be served by this act shall be in writing, and shall briefly state the nature of the matter to be inquired into and investigated. Notices may be served in the manner provided by law for the service of summons in civil cases, or by registered United States mail. When service is made by registered mail, the receipt of the receiving postoffice shall be sufficient proof of service. When, under the provisions of this act, it is necessary to serve notice of hearings before the commission on owners of private lands, property, or property rights, and such owners cannot be found, service may be made by publication in the manner provided by law for the publication of summons in civil actions, except that publication need be made but once each week for three consecutive weeks, and the hearing may be held at any time after the expiration of thirty days from the date of the first publication of the notice. [L. '13, p. 84, § 12.]

§ 8733-13. Review and Appeal.

Upon the petition of any party to a proceeding before the commission, any finding or findings, or order or orders of the commission, made under color of authority of this act, except as otherwise provided in section 8733-9, may be reviewed in the superior court of the county in which the crossing is located, and the reasonableness and lawfulness of such finding or findings, order or orders inquired into and determined, as provided in the Public Service Commission law (chapter 117, Laws 1911) for the review of findings and orders made under that act. An appeal may be taken to the supreme court from the judgment of the superior court in like manner as provided in said public service commission law for appeals to the supreme court. [L. '13, p. 84, § 13.]

See note to § 8733-11.

§ 8733-14. Employment of Engineers and Other Employees.

The commission may employ temporarily such experts, engineers, and inspectors as may be necessary to supervise changes in existing crossings undertaken under this act; the expense thereof shall be paid by the railroad upon the request and certificate of the commission, said expense to be included in the cost of the particular change of grade on account of which it is incurred, and apportioned as provided in this act.

The commission may also employ such engineers and other persons as permanent employees as may be necessary to properly administer this act, and the expense thereof shall be paid out of the appropriation herein provided. [L. '13, p. 85, § 14.]

§ 8733-15. Eminent Domain.

Whenever to carry out any work undertaken under this act it is necessary to take, damage, or injuriously affect any private lands, property, or property rights, the right so to take, damage, or injuriously affect the same may be acquired by condemnation as hereinafter provided.

Subd. A. In cases where new railroads are constructed and laid out by railroad company authorized to exercise the power of eminent domain, the right to take, damage, or injuriously affect private lands, property, or property rights shall be acquired by the railroad company by a condemnation proceeding brought in its own name and prosecuted as provided by law for the exercise of the power of eminent domain by railroad companies, and the right of eminent domain is hereby conferred on railroad companies for the purpose of carrying out the requirements of this act or the requirements of any order of the commission.

Subd. B. In cases where it is necessary to take, damage, or injuriously affect private lands, property, or property rights to permit the opening of a new highway or highway crossing across a railroad, the right to take, damage, or injuriously affect such lands, property, or property rights shall be acquired by the municipality or county petitioning for such new crossing by a condemnation proceeding brought in the name of such municipality or county as provided by law for the exercise of the power of eminent domain by such municipality or county. If the highway involved be a state highway, then the right to take, damage, or injuriously affect private lands, property, or property rights shall be acquired by a condemnation proceeding prosecuted under the laws relative to the exercise of the power of eminent domain in aid of such state road.

Subd. C. In cases where the commission orders changes in existing crossings to secure an under-crossing, over-crossing, or safer grade crossing, and it is necessary to take, damage, or injuriously affect private lands, property, or property rights to execute the work, the right to take, damage, or injuriously affect such lands, property, or property rights shall be acquired in a condemnation proceeding prosecuted in the name of the state of Washington by the attorney general under the laws relating to the exercise of the power of eminent domain by cities of the first class for street and highway purposes: Provided, however, That in the cases mentioned in this subdivision the full value of any lands taken shall be awarded, together with damages, if any accruing to the remainder of the land not taken by reason of the severance of the part taken, but in computing the damages to the remainder, if any, the jury shall offset against such damages, if any, the special benefits, if any, accruing to such remainder by reason of the proposed improvement. The right of eminent domain for the purposes mentioned in this subdivision is hereby granted. [L. '13, p. 85, § 15.]

§ 8733-16. Illegal Crossings Enjoined or Abated as Nuisance.

If an under-crossing, over-crossing, or grade crossing is constructed, maintained, or operated, or is about to be constructed, operated, or maintained, in violation of the provisions of this act, or in violation of any order of the commission, such construction, operation, or maintenance may be enjoined, or may be abated, as provided by law for the abatement of nuisances. Suits to enjoin or abate may be brought by the attorney general, or by the prosecuting attorney of the county in which the unauthorized crossing is located. [L. '13, p. 86, § 16.]

§ 8733-17. Mandamus.

If any railroad company, county, municipality, or officers thereof, or other person, shall fail, neglect, or refuse to perform or discharge any duty required of it or them under this act or any order of the commission, the performance of such duty may be compelled by mandamus, or other appropriate proceeding, prosecuted by the attorney general upon the request of the commission. [L. '13, p. 87, § 17.]

§ 8733-18. Penalty for Violation by Railroad.

If any railroad company shall fail or neglect to obey, comply with, or carry out the requirements of this act, or any order of the commission made under it, such company shall be liable to a penalty not to exceed five thousand dollars, such penalty to be recovered in a civil action brought in the name of the state of Washington by the attorney general. All penalties recovered shall be paid into the state treasury. [L. '13, p. 87, § 18.]

§ 8733-19. Obstructions in Highways.

Whenever, to carry out any work ordered under this act, it is necessary to erect and maintain posts, piers, or abutments in a highway, the right and authority to erect and maintain the same is hereby granted. [L. '13, p. 87, § 19.]

§ 8733-20. No New Right of Action Conferred.

Nothing contained in this act shall be construed as conferring a right of action for the abandonment or vacation of any existing highway or portion thereof in cases where no right of action exists independent of this act. [L. '13, p. 87, § 20.]

§ 8733-21. Act When not Operative.

This act shall not be operative within the limits of cities authorized to frame their own charters, and it shall not be construed to apply to street railway lines operating in, on, through, along, over, or across any street, alley or other public place within the limits of any incorporated city or town, except that no street-car line outside of cities authorized to frame their own charters shall cross a railroad at grade without express authority from the commission. [L. '13, p. 88, § 21.]

§ 8733-22. Constitutionality.

If any section, subdivision, sentence, or clause of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act. [L. '13, p. 88, § 22.]

§ 8736.

Upon condemnation of a railroad crossing under this section, the court may, in view of the settled rule that the right can be limited and exercised in a stipulated manner, adjudge the public use subject to defendant's right to use a logging road and upon condition that the petitioner shall construct and keep in repair an overhead crossing for the logging road: State ex rel. Union Lumber Co. v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 540, 127 Pac. 109.

An adjudication of public use and necessity for condemning a railroad crossing, on condition that the petitioner construct and maintain an overhead crossing for the defendant's logging road, is not objectionable, in that it is not accompanied by specifications for the construction of a trestle and grade, since that can be left to the trial and the determination of damages to be paid under a particular and designated use, to be shown by plats and appropriate specifications: State ex rel. Union Lumber Co. v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 540, 127 Pac. 109.

An adjudication of a public use and necessity for condemning a railroad crossing is not objectionable in that the petitioner must acquire other lands in order to carry out the scheme for an overhead crossing: State ex rel. Union Lumber Co. v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 540, 127 Pac. 109.

In condemning a railroad crossing on condition that the petitioner construct and keep in repair an overhead crossing for defendant's logging road, the court may limit the damages to the right condemned and the manner in which it is sought to be exercised: State ex rel. Union Lumber Co. v. Superior Court, 70 Wash. 540, 127 Pac. 109.

As to use enjoyed only by a limited number, see note in 102 Am. St. Rep. 819.

§ 8737.

See notes to § 8670.

§ 8738.

A railroad company may make a change in its location in order to correct an error in engineering, where it was found that high water in a river did not admit of a grade line upon the route as surveyed and adopted, both at common law and by virtue of this section: State ex rel. Sylvester v. Superior Court, 64 Wash. 594, 117 Pac. 487.

CHAPTER VIII.

APPROPRIATION OF LANDS AND HIGHWAYS FOR CORPORATE PURPOSES.

§ 8739.

This section and section 8740, granting to railway corporations the right of eminent domain, do not authorize condemnation of land held in trust for the public as a city street, since the law must be construed to relate to private property only, in the absence of an express or implied authority to take public lands: State ex rel. Schade Brewing Co. v. Superior Court, 62 Wash. 96, 113 Pac. 576.

As to power to take property already devoted to a public use by a governmental or political agency, see note in 37 L. R. A., N. S., 101.

§ 8740.

See notes to §§ 927, 8739.

There is a sufficient showing of reasonable necessity for the condemnation of land for a new depot and terminal grounds where it appears that the company's present depot is more than one mile from the business center of the city and inconvenient to patrons, that the present site is inadequate in size, and without sufficient trackage facilities to meet present necessities: State ex rel. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 397, 123 Pac. 529.

The power conferred by this section, authorizing a railway company to condemn lands for depots, yards, terminals, etc., is a continuing power, not exhausted by its exercise in the first instance, and may be resorted to to change the location of the depot; hence it is unnecessary, in condemning a connection between a main line and new terminals in a city, that there be a resolution of the board of directors in any particular form, as required by sections 8662 and 8668, relating to the construction of branch lines, those sections being inapplicable: State ex rel. Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Superior Court, 68 Wash. 397, 123 Pac. 529.

TITLE LXXI. REAL PROPERTY.

CHAPTER II.

DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS AFFECTING REAL PROPERTY.

§ 8745.

An oral agreement by a real estate agent having land for sale that if the plaintiff would purchase the land from the owner he would resell it within nine months, or if failing to do so, would refund the purchase price, is not an agreement for an interest in real estate within the statute of frauds: Herkenrath v. Ragley, 59 Wash. 52, 109 Pac. 279.

As to oral contracts to transfer interest in realty, see note in 3 L. R. A. 337.

A deed made to defendants in compromise of a suit to quiet title, pursuant to agreement, and delivered to and retained by their attorney with their knowledge, is accepted by them: Cogswell v. Cogswell, 70 Wash. 178, 126 Pac. 431.

As to what constitutes delivery and acceptance of deed, see note in 53 Am. St. Rep. 537.

An oral lease entered into in May, 1904, for the cropping season of 1905, is void by reason of the statute of frauds: O'Connor v. Enos, 56 Wash. 448, 105 Pac. 1039.

As to validity, under statute of frauds, of lease for more than one year, see note in 17 Am. St. Rep. 752.

As to lease to commence at future time; what is lease for one year, see note to 10 L. R. A. 726.

Under this section, requiring all conveyances of real estate to be by deed, and section 8746, requiring deeds to be acknowledged, and section 8802, providing that leases for any term not exceeding one year shall be valid without acknowledgment, an unacknowledged lease for one year with the privilege of renewal is void and unenforceable: Anderson v. Frye & Bruhn, 69 Wash. 89, 124 Pac. 499.

An assignment of a lease is valid without acknowledgment under the laws of this state: American Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Mafridge, 60 Wash. 180, 110 Pac. 1015.

An oral agreement abrogating a written contract for standing timber is void, as it involves an interest in land which must be in writing: Thill v. Johnston, 60 Wash. 393, 111 Pac. 225.

As to growing trees as within the meaning of land as the subject of sale under the statute of frauds, see notes in 9 Ann. Cas. 192 and 18 Ann. Cas. 971.

A deed absolute in form, but in trust for the grantors, is an express trust which cannot be proved by parol evidence: Kinney v. McCall, 57 Wash. 545, 107 Pac. 385.

Under this section an express trust in lands cannot be proved by parol testimony; and to give any standing in court, the trust must be ex maleficio: Pilcher v. Lotzgesell, 57 Wash. 471, 107 Pac. 340.

As to parol evidence to vary deed, see note in 11 Am. St. Rep. 844.

It is competent to prove an express trust, under a deed reciting a nominal consideration, by a contemporaneous writing signed by the trustee acknowledging that he held the land in trust; and such writing need not be acknowledged pursuant to the statute of frauds: Holmes v. Holmes, 65 Wash. 572, Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1021, 38 L. R. A., N. S., 645, 118 Pac. 733.

As to proof of express trust by written declaration of trustee, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1023.

A conveyance to the grantor's husband to retain title for a limited time, to be reconveyed on request, creates an express trust which cannot be established by parol: Kalinowski v. McNeny, 68 Wash. 681, 123 Pac. 1074.

Payment of the consideration of an oral contract for an interest in land is not such a part performance as to take the case out of the operation of the statute of frauds: Thill v. Johnston, 60 Wash. 393, 111 Pac. 225.

As to part payment as effecting a taking a sale of land out of the statute, see note in 125 Am. St. Rep. 394.

Possession does not take an oral sale of land out of the operation of the statute of frauds, where it was not referable to or in execution of the contract, but was without the consent of the vendor or after he had repudiated the sale or taken possession himself: Blakely v. Sumner, 62 Wash. 206, 113 Pac. 257.

As to possession of one of several parcels of land as part performance sufficient to satisfy statute, see note in 8 Ann. Cas. 80.

As to sufficiency of possession alone to take the contract out of the statute, see note in 8 L. R. A., N. S., 870.

Permitting another to cut wood on the land is not the taking of such possession by the vendee as to take an oral sale out of the statute of frauds: Blakely v. Sumner, 62 Wash. 206, 113 Pac. 257.

A parol lease of a logging right of way for a longer period than one year will not be set aside at the instance of the landlord, where the lessee took possession with the lessor's consent, constructed a road at an expense of five thousand dollars, benefited the land by ditches, and purchased the lessor's timber as an incident to procuring the right of way, as such course would be inequitable: Northcraft v. Blumauer, 53 Wash. 243, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1071, 101 Pac. 871.

Taking possession of land under an oral lease for the next season, plowing, cultivating, and summer-fallowing the land, is such part performance as to take the same out of the operation of the statute of frauds: O'Connor v. Enos, 56 Wash. 448, 105 Pac. 1039.

An unacknowledged lease for a logging right of way, for a period of ten years, for a small annual rental, is taken out of the operation of the statute of frauds by part performance, where the lessee went into possession, built its road at a cost of forty thousand dollars, and complied with a contemporaneous agreement (which was the consideration for the lease) by clearing the land and a stream, and building fences and a bridge, involving the expenditure of a large amount of money, and increasing the rental value of the land: Koschnitzky v. Hammond Lumber Co., 57 Wash. 320, 106 Pac. 900.

An unacknowledged lease for more than one year becomes binding upon the lessee so as to entitle the lessor to recover damages as upon a valid lease, where the lessor, in consideration of the agreement to pay rent for the full five year term, made improvements not beneficial to the estate, for the sole use and benefit of the lessee, who took possession and performed the lease for two years, during which time the lessor made further expenditures for the same purposes: Forrester v. Reliable Transfer Co., 59 Wash. 86, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1093, 109 Pac. 312.

As to kind of possession necessary to take out of the statute a contract with reference to real estate, see note in 3 L. R. A., N. S., 807.

When an oral contract for the sale of standing timber to be cut immediately is executed, it cannot be attacked as affecting an interest in lands, within the statute of frauds, since, if not valid as a sale of personal property, it is valid as a license to enter and sever the timber: Bay View Land Co. v. Ferguson, 53 Wash. 323, 101 Pac. 1093.

As to effect of contract with respect to standing timber to pass title to same, see note in 6 L. R. A., N. S., 469.

An oral agreement by a widow to allow her community interest in real estate to go under her husband's will cannot be shown to divest her of her community interest, the statute requiring such conveyance to be by deed: Herrick v. Miller, 69 Wash. 456, 125 Pac. 974.

§ 8746.

See notes to § 8745.

Where a deed of all standing and lying timber contained an agreement that the grantee shall have three years from and after its date within which to "remove the timber," the grantee's interest ceases as to all timber not removed after that date, which then reverts to the grantor, since the intent of the parties controls the construction irrespective of distinctions, between the covenants and forfeitures or other technical questions: Allen & Nelson Mill Co. v. Vaughn, 57 Wash. 163, 106 Pac. 622.

Whether there was a contract for the sale of timber is for the jury, where the evidence was conflicting and one of the parties testified to the making of the contract, after all other negotiations had failed, and it appeared that he gave a check for the amount to be paid, indorsed on the face "payment in full for all timber" on the tract in question, which check was cashed: Haines & Spencer v. Kelley, 57 Wash. 219, 106 Pac. 776.

Under a deed of standing timber "to be cut and removed within two years from the date hereof" the grantee has no right to remove the timber after the expiration of the time fixed: Belcher v. Kleeb, 59 Wash. 166, 109 Pac. 798.

As to time within which standing timber reserved in a conveyance must be removed, see note in 6 Ann. Cas. 249.

As to rights of grantee under conveyance of timber not specifying time for removal, see note in 12 Ann. Cas. 918.

As to right to cut and remove timber after expiration of time specified in contract of sale, see notes in 4 Ann. Cas. 1050 and 12 Ann. Cas. 731.

In a deed of land reserving all timber and right to enter for the purpose of removing the timber and the construction and maintenance of a logging road thereon forever, the word "forever" will not be construed to refer only to the maintenance of the logging road because set off by commas with that clause, since punctuation is of little aid in construction, and the real value and essence of the reservation was the timber and right forever to remove it: Skamania Boom Co. v. Youmans, 64 Wash. 94, 116 Pac. 645.

As to punctuation as affecting construction of statutes, see note in 10 Ann. Cas. 1083.

As to grammatical construction of contracts, see note in 6 Ann. Cas. 55.

Where a deed of a half interest in a blacksmith-shop passed between father and son in consideration of a collateral contract for the payment to the grantor of six dollars per week, and the minds of the parties did not meet, one understanding that the money was to be paid for life, and the other only while the grantor worked in the shop, the deed and whole transaction should be set aside: Murkowski v. Murkowski, 61 Wash. 103, 112 Pac. 92.

As to mutuality of obligation where one party's obligation is not definite and certain, see note in 1 L. R. A., N. S., 445.

Equity will afford relief by the cancellation of an option on the mistake of only one party as to its meaning, where his manifest intent was to grant an option limited to one year for the purpose of perfecting title, the agreement as drawn failed to express the agreement intended, and after three years the title was not perfected and might never be, and the other party could be placed in his former position without working any injustice: Murray v. Sanderson, 62 Wash. 477, 114 Pac. 424.

As to contract for option, see note in 21 L. R. A. 129.

Where the lien of a purchase money mortgage was lost through a mistake in registering the land under the Torrens act, a new mortgage given to revive the lien is not, in the ordinary sense, given for an antecedent debt, and may be treated in equity as reinstating the lien of the original mortgage: Brace v. Superior Land Co., 65 Wash. 681, 118 Pac. 910.

As to right to reinstatement of mortgage released or discharged by mistake, see note in 26 L. R. A., N. S., 816.

Fraud will not be inferred and a deed set aside for want of capacity, where it appears that the grantor, an aged inmate of a charity hospital, upon inheriting an estate of the value of twenty thousand dollars through the death of his son, suffered a general breakdown and made voluntary conveyances of all the property to one heir to the exclusion of others, without any natural reason therefor, at a time when his mind was so weakened that he was peculiarly susceptible to influence, and he probably did not have sufficient intelligence to understand the nature of the transaction: Hattie v. Potter, 54 Wash. 170, 102 Pac. 1023.

As to capacity to contract and therein of contracts between general contract capacity and marriage capacity, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1238.

A claim of fraud and duress in securing a deed from the plaintiff in a settlement is not established where there was evidence that she took the advice of counsel and executed the deed after being advised not to do so; that defendant's threatened foreclosure of a mortgage placed her in no danger, and that she accepted the benefits accruing to her through the settlement and had not offered to return the same: Drew v. Bouffleur, 69 Wash. 610, 125 Pac. 947.

Fraud by the grantee, as ground for the cancellation of deeds, must be proved by clear and convincing evidence, and is not shown by the mere breach of the vendee's contract to pay certain debts as part of the consideration, since the necessary preconceived intention not to perform is not established merely by subsequent failure to perform: Hewett v. Dole, 69 Wash. 163, 124 Pac. 374.

In an action to cancel deeds for fraud, under a complaint asking general relief, the plaintiff may be given damages for partial failure of consideration although failing to establish the fraud: Hewett v. Dole, 69 Wash. 163, 134 Pac. 374.

As to right of grantor to cancellation of deed on ground of misrepresentation by grantee as to condition, value, etc., of property, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 405.

Where an addition contained twelve blocks numbered from 1 to 12 consecutively, each consisting of sixteen lots numbered from 1 to 16, consecutively, a deed of lots 7 and 8 in said addition is not void for uncertainty, as between grantor and grantee, where the grantors owned no lots 7 and 8 in said addition except in block 5, since the defect is latent and is explainable by extrinsic evidence: Wetzler v. Nichols, 53 Wash. 285, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1075, 101 Pac. 867.

A deed of the "west half of the south of the southwest section twenty-two" is indefinite and uncertain, and insufficient to show title to the north half of the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of the section: Brodsky v. Nelson, 57 Wash. 671, 107 Pac. 840.

As to effect of conveyance of part of tract of land acreage or fraction, see note in 2 Ann. Cas. 918.

A deed of the southwest quarter of a section is shown by the contemporaneous acts of the parties to have been executed by mistake as to the description of the tract intended to be conveyed, where it appears that the government quarter corner on the west side of the section was originally located by mistake nearly twenty chains north of its proper location, that when the deal was made this fact was unknown to the purchaser, who refused to consummate the deal until all the corners were located by a survey, whereupon a deputy county surveyor, with the parties attending, located all the corners except the unknown quarter corner which could not be found, and which he re-established halfway between the north and south lines of the section, and that the deal was thereupon consummated by the deed in question, and a fence was built on the line established by the survey, and possession taken and maintained by the parties for years in accordance with such survey and in ignorance of the true location of the quarter corner: Town v. Greed, 53 Wash. 350, 102 Pac. 239.

As to reformation of instruments on the ground of mistake, see note in 65 Am. St. Rep. 484.

Where grantors owned timber land beyond the granted land, and a sawmill to which the timber must be brought across the land conveyed, a reservation in the deed "excepting a strip of land thirty feet wide . . . for road purposes," must be reasonably construed as for the benefit of the grantor; and the use of a portion of the strip for a logging road, retaining the right of ingress and egress to the grantees, is not inconsistent with the terms of the exception clause, in view of the attendant facts and circumstances: Delano v. Luedinghaus, 70 Wash. 573, 127 Pac. 197.

As to effect of uncertainty, in deed or contract of sale, of description of land excepted or reserved, see note in 19 Ann. Cas. 1209.

Under this section, the acknowledgment of a fully prepared mortgage which the mortgagor inadvertently omitted to sign, and which contains the mortgagor's name as grantor, is equivalent in law to a signing of it, or to the adoption of the entire instrument, including the name written thereon as grantor: American Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Helgesen, 64 Wash. 54, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 390, 116 Pac. 837 (overruled on rehearing).

Under this section, the acknowledgment of a mortgage which the mortgagor inadvertently omitted to sign, and her intention to sign, is not equivalent to, or a substitute for, an actual signing, which is required by the statute in order to pass title, nor can it be said that she intended to adopt as her signature her name written in the mortgage as the grantor (overruling, on rehearing, 64 Wash. 54): American Savings Bank & Trust Co. v. Helgesen, 67 Wash. 572, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 390, 122 Pac. 26.

As to essentials to execution of deeds, see note in 13 L. R. A. 676.

As to estoppel by grantor to deny proper execution, see note in 2 L. R. A. 530.

Leaving a deed for the grantees with the notary who took the acknowledgment is a sufficient delivery to give the same priority over a judgment subsequently filed: Bender v. Ragan, 53 Wash. 521, 102 Pac. 427.

As to what constitutes delivery of a deed, see note in 53 Am. St. Rep. 537.

The delivery of a deed in favor of grandchildren to the grandparents, at whose request it was made, to be effective on the death of the grandparents, is in effect a delivery to the grandchildren: Simons v. Macomber, 60 Wash. 469, 111 Pac. 579.

As to deed not to be delivered until after grantor's death, see note in 54 L. R. A. 869.

The procuring of a deed from a railroad company by a banker, who looked after the interests of the grantee, and made final payment, is a sufficient delivery to the grantee, with acceptance and ratification by him, where he thereafter tried to obtain a statement from the banker and settle with him: Petticrew v. Greenshields, 61 Wash. 614, 112 Pac. 749.

As to the delivery of a deed to grantee subject to a future extrinsic condition, see note in 16 L. R. A., N. S., 941.

As to validation of an undelivered deed by ratification or estoppel of grantor, see note in 9 L. R. A., N. S., 945.

The evidence is insufficient to show mental incapacity to execute a deed, where it appears that the parties to the deed were brothers, who had lived together as bachelors and accumulated considerable property held by them in common under an agreement that the first to die should execute a deed to the survivor to avoid a testamentary disposition of the property, that the deed was executed the day after the grantor was taken to a hospital suffering from an illness from which he died a month later, that three witnesses present at the time clearly established that he fully understood the nature of the business, and the only evidence to the contrary being that of nonexperts as to the grantor's appearance during his stay at the hospital: Jackson v. Lamar, 58 Wash. 383, 108 Pac. 946.

As to opinion evidence as to mental capacity of person to execute contract or deed, see note in 4 Ann. Cas. 888.

The fact that a deed, absolute in form, was intended as a mortgage must be established by clear, satisfactory and convincing evidence, and is not shown where the grantor was indebted to the grantee, and conveyed to a trustee who had full power to sell for the amount of the debt, which was done, and no note or written evidence of the indebtedness was given: Washington Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Lietzow, 59 Wash. 281, 109 Pac. 1021.

As to whether a deed, absolute on its face, but intended as a mortgage, conveys the legal title, see note in 11 L. R. A., N. S., 209.

An obligation to build a canal and furnish water for irrigation, together with a contract for stipulated damages in case of default, to be performed in the future, is secured by an absolute deed, intended as a mortgage, where the same was not discharged by the deed but was left subsisting, and the performance of the contract was prosecuted after the deed was given: Boyer v. Paine, 60 Wash. 56, 110 Pac. 682.

Clear and convincing evidence is required to establish that an absolute deed was intended as a mortgage, even if there is a contemporaneous written agreement for a resale; and the same is insufficient, where the conveyance was made upon the grantee's furnishing money to redeem the property from a mortgage foreclosure sale, the grantor was given a mere option to repurchase, and remained in possession under an agreement to pay rent, especially where the option declared that it was the only contract, except the lease, existing between the parties, and there was no evidence that any debt was created: Kegley v. Skillman, 68 Wash. 637, 123 Pac. 1081.

As to right to foreclose, as an equitable mortgage, a deed intended as security for a debt, see note in 22 L. R. A., N. S., 572.

CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION.—The mortgagor's after-acquired title inures to the benefit of the purchaser at the mortgage foreclosure, although the then owners of the title were not made parties to the foreclosure suit: Gough v. Center, 57 Wash. 276, 106 Pac. 774.

Where a creditor made at different times two conveyances in fraud of creditors, a return of an execution nulla bona is prima facie evidence that there was no other property out of which to satisfy the debt, subjecting both conveyances to attack; and the burden is upon the defendants to show affirmatively that the second conveyance, which was set aside, was sufficient to satisfy the debt, in order to sustain the first conveyance on the theory of solvency at that time: Adams v. Wingard, 53 Wash. 560, 102 Pac. 426.

As to burden of proving insolvency, see note in 20 Am. St. Rep. 633.

When an aged parent conveys all his property to a daughter to the exclusion of other heirs, without any consideration for his future support, the burden of proof is upon the grantee to show by clear and convincing evidence that it was fair and fully understood by the grantor: Hattie v. Potter, 54 Wash. 170, 102 Pac. 1023.

As to burden of proof as to fraud against creditors in transfer from husband to wife, see note in 56 L. R. A. 323.

A deed and lease will not be set aside for fraud or mistake unless the evidence is clear and convincing: Johnson v. Conner, 48 Wash. 431, 93 Pac. 914.

Possession of a deed by the grantee raises a strong presumption of delivery, which is not overcome by the evidence of an extreme partisan, disappointed in not receiving a portion of the estate granted, who testified, seven years after the occurrence and several years after the death of both parties to the deed, that the grantor, who was on his death-bed at the time and had executed a deed to his brother, pursuant to a previous agreement, directed the notary to take care of the deed until he called for it, which he would do as soon as he got well, the notary having testified that the grantor executed the deed in order, as he stated, that his brother should have the estate in case of his death: Jackson v. Lamar, 58 Wash. 383, 108 Pac. 946.

A deed is presumptively executed and delivered on the date of its execution and acknowledgment: State v. Dana, 59 Wash. 30, 109 Pac. 191.

The presumption that a deed, properly executed and in the possession of the grantees, was duly delivered, can only be overcome by clear and convincing proof; and such proof is not made where it appears that the grantors voluntarily surrendered the granted premises to the grantees, entered upon premises taken in exchange, and consumed personal property received in exchange, and paid an agent's commission and long after the alleged fraud in securing possession of the deed from one of the grantors while intoxicated: Anderson v. Woolley, 61 Wash. 236, 112 Pac. 271.

As to presumption of delivery of deed, see notes in 12 L. R. A. 175 and 13 L. R. A. 677.

Where a mortgagor deeds the mortgaged premises to the mortgagee, taking back a lease with an option to purchase the property at the end of the term, the notes and mortgage being concealed, there is no presumption that the deed was intended as a mortgage, but clear and convincing evidence is required to overthrow the presumption that the written instruments are what they purport to be: Johnson v. National Bank of Commerce, 65 Wash. 261, 118 Pac. 21.

Where property was purchased in the name of a son, and the father built a house and lived on the property, the fact that the deed to the son was not recorded and was kept in the possession of the father until his death is not sufficient to overcome the presumption that the deed speaks its true intent and was not intended as a mortgage to secure advances made by the son: Dempsey v. Dempsey, 61 Wash. 632, 112 Pac. 755.

As to undelivered deed as memorandum to satisfy statute of frauds, see note in 22 L. R. A. 273.

EVIDENCE.—There is sufficient evidence to warrant the cancellation of a deed for incapacity of the grantor, where it appears that he was a weak old man, eighty-eight years of age, incoherent in his talk, with delusions that his son and others were trying to poison him, and a physician testified that he was totally incompetent to transact business, and he had sold the land worth three thousand dollars for twelve hundred and fifty dollars: Castle v. Dole, 54 Wash. 585, 103 Pac. 828.

The evidence sustains the findings that deeds and leases executed by an aged couple to their nephews were void and without the assent of the parties, where it appears that the grantors were French Canadians, unable to read or write the English language and had little comprehension of English or of the difference between wills, deeds, and leases; that they set out with the intention to make a will in favor of two nephews for one-third interest in their lands, with a ten-year lease in their favor; but upon deciding to will one-half to their daughter and one-fourth to the nephews, and with that intent, upon the advice of an attorney that the effect would be the same, they executed deeds for such interests, taking back life leases; and that upon learning of the consequence of their acts, they repudiated the transaction and refused to recognize the leases or accept a division of the crops thereunder: Sanpere v. Sanpair, 57 Wash. 524, 107 Pac. 369.

There is sufficient evidence of fraud entitling the grantor to a cancellation of his deed, where it appears that he was induced to make a trade of his property for thirty-two lots represented to be in a city center and worth one hundred dollars a lot, when they were seven miles from the business center and not worth over a dollar a lot, that the deed was not to be delivered until he had received two thousand dollars on a sale of twenty of the lots to a pretended purchaser, who paid fifty dollars without any intention of completing the purchase, and that delivery of the deed was wrongfully secured by the agent, who acted for both parties in the trade and was guilty of the frauds practiced: Hoerling v. Lowry, 58 Wash. 426, 108 Pac. 1090.

As to presumptions of undue influence sufficient to warrant cancellation of deed, see note in 94 Am. St. Rep. 104.

The evidence is sufficient to establish that a deed of certain blocks and lots in an upland plat, which overlapped tide lands belonging to the state at the time the plat was filed, was intended to convey only the upland portion of the overlapping blocks and lots mentioned, which was the only legal portion of the plat when filed, where it appears that the grantor had also acquired title to the tide lands from the state, that the deed made no mention of the overlapping tide lands as designated in the state tide land plat, and excluded the grantor's other lots and blocks of the upland plat which were wholly tide lands, that the tide land plat had been filed nine years, and the grantor and grantee testified that was the intention to convey only the uplands: Cook v. Hensler, 57 Wash. 392, 107 Pac. 178.

As to mistakes constituting grounds for canceling deeds, see note in 117 Am. St. Rep. 228.

Evidence contradicting a certified copy of the record of a deed, and showing that the grantors did not in fact execute and acknowledge the same, must be "clear, cogent and convincing"; and is insufficient where it merely appears that one of the grantors, on an improper cross-examination, could not say whether she executed the deed, and she did not deny that she had acknowledged it, having left everything to her attorney, and the attorney testified that the deed had been executed and delivered for the purpose of conveying the title: Thompson v. Schoner, 58 Wash. 642, 109 Pac. 116.

As to admissibility of parol evidence to show unauthorized alteration of written instrument, see note in 12 Ann. Cas. 985.

The evidence is insufficient to warrant the setting aside of a deed as fraudulent as to creditors, although the grantor was converting his real property into money with fraudulent intent to avoid payment of a judgment in a pending suit, where it appears that the grantee, a cousin of the grantor, was also a creditor and took the conveyance in discharge of an antecedent indebtedness, and it was not shown that he had such knowledge of the pending suit or so participated in the grantor's fraud as to cause him to lose the preference, the burden of proof to establish such notice being upon the plaintiff: National Survey Co. v. Udd, 65 Wash. 471, 118 Pac. 347.

The forgery of a deed is sufficiently established where qualified experts compared the signatures with one proven to be genuine by a witness who saw the grantor sign, and were of the opinion that they were not written by the same person, and no attempt was made by the other parties to disclose the circumstances or explain the absence of the original deed: O'Brien v. McKelvey, 66 Wash. 18, 118 Pac. 885.

As to forgery as a ground for cancellation of deed, see note in 92 Am. St. Rep. 272.

The plaintiff cannot complain of the admission of evidence of the intent of the grantor as to the lands sought to be conveyed by a deed, where the complaint did not rely upon the description, but tendered an issue as to the intent, which was met by the answer: Cook v. Hensler, 57 Wash. 392, 107 Pac. 178.

A deed may be shown by parol to have been intended as a mortgage, but the evidence must be clear, cogent, and convincing: Dempsey v. Dempsey, 61 Wash. 632, 112 Pac. 755.

As to when a deed absolute on its face cannot be construed as a mortgage, see note in 1 L. R. A. 240.

A deed of the "north half" of an irregular tract of land (a rectangle less a considerable triangle cut off the northeast corner) conveys an equal half of the area of the tract, and is unambiguous; hence it is inadmissible to explain, by testimony of transactions and conversations prior to the execution of the deed, the intent of the parties to convey that part of the tract lying north of a line midway between its north and south lines: Robinson v. Taylor, 68 Wash. 351, 123 Pac. 444.

A warranty deed of mortgaged premises to the mortgagee, a bank, by the mortgagor, who took back a lease with an option to purchase the property at the end of the term, is not shown by clear and convincing evidence, to have been intended as a mortgage, and findings to that effect are not sufficiently supported by testimony of the mortgagor that it was agreed that the deed should be the same as a mortgage in order to satisfy the bank examiner, that he gave a new note for the amount of the indebtedness at that time and that the property was worth twice the amount of the indebtedness, where his testimony was contradicted by the other witnesses, letters from the bank demanding "interest" and the bank-books indicating that the matter had been carried as a loan instead of real estate were satisfactorily explained, and the trial court found that no new note was given, and after the burning of a mill on the property, the mortgagor abandoned the property after expiration of the option, giving no heed to the maturity of payments due to perfect title, or to notice from the bank that he could have a reasonable time to effect a sale of the property: Johnson v. National Bank of Commerce, 65 Wash. 261, 118 Pac. 21.

In such a case the disparity between the amount of the indebtedness and the value of the property is not such as to lead to the conclusion that the deed was intended as security, where a number of experts testified that the property had no market value when the deed was given, the value being at that time less than the indebtedness, and the property was sold about nine years later in good faith for sixteen thousand dollars, the indebtedness amounted to fifteen thousand dollars, although the trial court found, upon the testimony of other witnesses, a disparity of about eight thousand dollars at the time the deed was given, which had greatly increased by enhanced value of the real estate after a period of financial depression: Johnson v. National Bank of Commerce, 65 Wash. 261, 118 Pac. 21.

Upon a conveyance of real estate to secure an antecedent debt, the grantee is not a bona fide purchaser: Brace v. Superior Land Co., 65 Wash. 681, 118 Pac. 910.

As to right of creditor having knowledge of the insolvency to secure himself, see note in 34 Am. St. Rep. 396, and see note in 10 L. R. A. 709.

As to who are bona fide purchasers, see note in 31 L. R. A. 612.

Where a contract for life support, in consideration of the conveyance of property, was not performed in a suitable manner as it should have been, the court may place the parties as nearly as possible in the position which they previously occupied, by canceling the conveyance upon payment of certain expenses incurred, taking into consideration the rental value of the property: Mordicott v. Caldwell, 68 Wash. 49, 122 Pac. 316.

As to remedy of grantor in conveyance given to secure his support on breach of condition by grantee, see note in 12 Ann. Cas. 899.

Where a contract for annual passes in consideration of the conveyance of property has become illegal by reason of the commerce act of 1887, the contract has been substantially performed, and the property has greatly increased in value, a court of equity will not decree a rescission and restitution of the property, rescission resting upon discretion and not absolute right: Cowley v. Northern Pac. R. Co., 68 Wash. 558, 41 L. R. A., N. S., 559, 123 Pac. 998.

A deed of land by metes and bounds including calls "to the harbor limit" and "parallel to said harbor line," which reserves a strip of land thirty feet wide off the northeast corner for a distance of one hundred and forty-eight and three-tenths feet for the purpose of a public road, must be taken to convey to the inner shore or high-water line, and not to the meander line, which was about one hundred feet distant where the water was from four to eight feet deep at high water, especially where the strip at high-water mark had been used as a roadway for several years prior to the execution of the deed, and was thereafter used by the public continuously as a road for more than ten years prior to the commencement of the action: Brown v. Bremerton, 69 Wash. 474, 125 Pac. 785.

The fact that a common grantor in his last deed reserved a strip of land thirty feet wide along the meander line for a public road does not show that a like reservation in a deed of a contiguous tract made six years previously of thirty feet "along the shore line" was intended to mean along the meander line: Brown v. Bremerton, 69 Wash. 474, 125 Pac. 785.

Evidence examined and held to establish that part of the consideration for deeds was the assumption of specified debts of the grantor: Hewett v. Dole, 69 Wash. 163, 124 Pac. 374.

Where a grantor conveyed "his one-half undivided interest" in four lots "and" two other lots, in which last two he held the whole title, without specifying whether he intended to convey the whole or only a half interest in the last two lots, the deed must be construed to convey only a half interest therein, as against a subsequent bona fide purchaser: Golden v. Pilchuck Tribe No. 42, Improved Order of Red Men, 71 Wash. 581, 129 Pac. 93.

A strict construction of a deed against a grantor will not be indulged where the description was not so ambiguous as to call for extrinsic aid, and other rules did not fail, and where no possession was taken under the deed: Golden v. Pilchuck Tribe No. 42, Improved Order of Red Men, 71 Wash. 581, 129 Pac. 93.

Where a grantor of the northeast quarter of a section reserved the right to itself and assigns to pass over the lands for hauling timber products and transporting logs and timber, and at the time the deed was made, it also owned the northwest quarter of the section, from which it had sold the timber with right of removal within five years, the intent of the reservation was to preserve its right to remove its timber from the northwest quarter, and was for the benefit of the purchaser of the timber, to whom the right reserved could be assigned: Campbell Lumber Co. v. Deep River Logging Co., 71 Wash. 70, 127 Pac. 566.

RELIEF AWARDED.—Whether an absolute deed was intended as a mortgage to secure a debt depends generally upon whether there was an existing indebtedness or liability which was still left subsisting and not discharged: Boyer v. Paine, 60 Wash. 56, 110 Pac. 682.

The dismissal, on the merits, of an action to cancel a deed has the effect of quieting the title of the defendants: Simmons v. Macomber, 60 Wash. 469, 111 Pac. 579.

A deed made without fraud, while the grantor was under no disability or infirmity, in consideration of a collateral contract which was in no sense an integral part of the deed, is not to be canceled for breach of the contract, since enforcement of the contract should be sought at law: Murkowski v. Murkowski, 61 Wash. 103, 112 Pac. 92.

Where a father, after conveying a life estate, deeded the reversion in consideration of an agreement that the grantees should care for and educate his three infant children until they became eighteen years of age, and the grantee failed to care for the children, but allowed the life tenants to perform the consideration and treat the land as their own for sixteen years, and then agreed to and participated in a different testamentary disposition of the property by the life tenants, they cannot claim a mutual mistake and want of consideration in agreeing to such testamentary disposition because of representations by the life tenants to the effect that the first deed conveying a life estate was lost and that the life tenants had since acquired the fee simple title: Simmons v. Macomber, 60 Wash. 469, 111 Pac. 579.

An action by judgment creditors to set aside a fraudulent conveyance cannot be maintained after the judgment has become dormant and the lien has expired: Seattle Brewing & Malting Co. v. Donofrio, 59 Wash. 98, 109 Pac. 335.

In an action to set aside a conveyance on the ground of fraud and duress, an answer alleging a voluntary sale upon full consideration without fraud or duress states a good defense: Mitchell v. Lidgerwood, 50 Wash. 290, 97 Pac. 61.

In an action on a covenant of general warranty of public lands, applied for by the grantor, but for which patent had not issued, it would be a good defense to the action if the grantee, knowing the conditions, upon consideration, agreed to perfect and complete the title, and the title failed through his neglect and default: Menasha Wooden Ware Co. v. Nelson, 53 Wash. 160, 101 Pac. 720.

A covenant against encumbrances protects against a building restriction in the chain of title of which the grantee had notice by record, as it covers known as well as unknown defects: Williams v. Hewitt, 57 Wash. 62, 135 Am. St. Rep. 971, 106 Pac. 496.

A covenant of ownership in fee simple is one of seisin in praesenti, and is broken, if at all, when made: Wick v. Rea, 54 Wash. 424, 103 Pac. 462.

Notice of an outstanding lease does not estop the grantee from recovering damages for breach of covenants against encumbrances: O'Connor v. Enos, 56 Wash. 448, 105 Pac. 1039.

The fact that grantees are estopped by their own acts to recover possession of the granted premises does not prevent recovery from the grantor of damages for breach of covenant against encumbrances by reason of an unexpired lease: O'Connor v. Enos, 56 Wash. 448, 105 Pac. 1039.

In an action for breach of covenant against encumbrances, evidence of the loss of a sale of the property by reason of the encumbrance is inadmissible to show the diminished value of the property: Williams v. Hewitt, 57 Wash. 62, 135 Am. St. Rep. 971, 106 Pac. 496.

In an action to quiet title, the plaintiff's title is sufficiently shown by a warranty deed, without having deraigned her title, where the defendants claimed under a common source through a void tax foreclosure naming the plaintiff as owner, and the validity of the plaintiff's deed was not disputed, in view of this section, providing that a warranty deed shall be deemed and held a conveyance in fee simple: Darrin v. Humes, 60 Wash. 537, 111 Pac. 767.

As to covenant of warranty, or against encumbrances, as binding covenantor to pay expenses of successfully defending against assault on title, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913B, 873.

The erection of a garage and storeroom on the street line of a lot is not a violation of a building restriction forbidding the erection of a "flat building or tenement house on said premises" or "any residence or other dwelling-house . . . nearer to the street line" than certain specified dwellings on adjoining property, such restrictions being construed strictly against the grantor and not extended beyond the clear meaning of the words used: Jones v. Williams, 56 Wash. 588, 106 Pac. 166.

There can be no forfeiture of land conveyed by absolute deed without conditions, pursuant to a contract to erect thereon a manufacturing plant, where the only condition precedent to the making of the conveyance was the expenditure of five thousand dollars in preparing the ground, which was fulfilled, and the contract fixed no time for the completion of the plant, the construction of which had simply been suspended and not abandoned, since the preliminary matters were merged in the deed, which could not be set aside for breach of condition not expressed in it: Jones-Thompson Inv. Co. v. Cascade Steel Foundry Co., 59 Wash. 601, 110 Pac. 417.

Conditions subsequent in a deed do not affect the estate until they are broken: Aumiller v. Dash, 51 Wash. 520, 99 Pac. 583.

As to the right to make and enforce building restrictions in deeds, see note in 21 Am. St. Rep. 494.

The grant of land with the "appurtenances" does not infer the grant of a right of way leading to the land over an existing road, where there was no existing easement: Malsch v. Waggoner, 62 Wash. 470, 114 Pac. 446.

As to the tendency of courts to deny the existence of an easement by implication, see note in 122 Am. St. Rep. 207.

The grant of a "right of way" fourteen feet wide, on condition that it shall be forfeited if the grantee erect any structure of any kind or fence or place any material or obstruction on said right of way other than the construction and repair of walks, is not limited to a walk for footmen; and the same would not be forfeited by the placing thereon of forty or fifty loads of earth for making the same more accessible and convenient for a driveway and which was not an obstruction, since forfeitures are to be strictly construed, and the violations of a condition must be willful and substantial and not merely technical: Central Christian Church v. Lennon, 59 Wash. 125, 109 Pac. 1027.

As to the elements of an easement, see note in 136 Am. St. Rep. 681.

A deed conveying a determinable fee may embrace a fee upon condition, entitling the tenant, for the time being, to all the rights of a fee simple: Aumiller v. Dash, 51 Wash. 520, 99 Pac. 583.

As to the nature and creation of determinable fees, see note in 15 L. R. A. 231.

A right of way deed releasing and forever quitclaiming a strip for railway purposes, to revert to the grantors if ceased to be used for such purposes, grants an easement only, although some language in the granting and habendum clause is appropriate to convey the fee: Pacific Iron Works v. Bryant Lumber & Shingle Mill Co., 60 Wash. 502, 111 Pac. 578.

As to what is a right of way, see note in 4 L. R. A. 275.

A connected title from the government is not shown, where the patent was to the heirs of the original entryman, there appearing to be two sons, and the title in question was derived from only one of them: Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Smith, 68 Wash. 269, 122 Pac. 1057.

Where a deed of land subject to mortgage recited immediately after the description "clear of all encumbrances except" the mortgage, only the equity of redemption subject to the mortgage was granted; and a general warranty in the habendum clause, covenanting that the property is free of all encumbrances and that the grantor will warrant and defend the same against all lawful claims of all persons whomsoever, is qualified by the prior recital of the lien, and applies only to the estate granted and not to the lien: Schaad v. Robinson, 59 Wash. 346, 109 Pac. 1072.

As to provision in deed whereby grantee assumes existing mortgage as covenant running with land, see note in 15 Ann. Cas. 1055.

As to construction and effect of absolute covenant in deed conveying property expressly subject to encumbrance, see note in 15 Ann. Cas. 982.

A building restriction in the chain of title, whereby the grantor in a warranty deed was prohibited from erecting certain kinds of buildings after ten years or building within a certain distance of the street, constitutes a breach of a covenant against encumbrances; and a right of action accrues immediately before assertion of any right under the restriction: Williams v. Hewitt, 57 Wash. 62, 135 Am. St. Rep. 971, 106 Pac. 496.

As to existence of restriction on use of land as breach of covenant against encumbrances, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913B, 1065.

Where one-half of the cost of a party-wall was secured by the party-wall agreement as a lien upon the lot, the same constitutes an encumbrance thereon and is a breach of covenant against encumbrances, notwithstanding the owner of the lot, upon payment of one-half of the cost, acquired a beneficial easement in the adjoining lot and party-wall; hence it is no defense in an action for breach of the covenant against encumbrances to allege that the plaintiff had paid for the wall, constructed a building thereon using the wall, and had derived benefits and advantages equal in value to the cost and expense incurred; and the defendant is not entitled to offset against the damages the value of the party-wall easements acquired and used by the plaintiff: Hoffman v. Dickson, 65 Wash. 556, Ann. Cas. 1913B, 869, 39 L. R. A., N. S., 67, 118 Pac. 737.

As to covenant to maintain division fence as covenant running with land, see note in 15 Ann. Cas. 57.

The unexpired term of a valid lease, subsisting at the date of the execution of a deed, is an encumbrance and a breach of covenants of warranty, and entitles the grantee to damages: O'Connor v. Enos, 56 Wash. 448, 105 Pac. 1039.

As to existence of right to enter and take minerals, as breach of covenant against encumbrances, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1140.

As to existence of right of way, for water ditch across premises as breach of covenant against encumbrances, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912D, 1119. See, also, 122 Am. St. Rep. 860 and 3 L. R. A. 790.

As to existing lease as encumbrance where grantee has notice, see note in 4 L. R. A., N. S., 313.

An action for breach of covenants of warranty lies where the defendant had previously sold the timber on the land to a third person, and the plaintiff was deceived and had no notice thereof, and did not know that the timber was being removed until it was gone; and it is no defense that the plaintiff was in possession as a bona fide purchaser with superior title, since the trespass and taking of the timber were by authority of the defendant, the covenant of warranty being broken on the delivery of the deed: Thomas v. West & Wheeler, 64 Wash. 344, 116 Pac. 1074.

As to actions for breach of warranty, see note in 2 L. R. A. 334.

Upon a breach of covenant of warranty against encumbrances by reason of an unexpired lease, the measure of damages is the rental value of the premises during the withholding: O'Connor v. Enos, 56 Wash. 448, 105 Pac. 1039.

Upon a breach of covenant of warranty against encumbrances by reason of an unexpired lease, the grantee cannot recover the costs incurred in a prior action to recover possession, where the court held in that action that they were estopped by their own acts to maintain that action, such judgment being conclusive: O'Connor v. Enos, 56 Wash. 448, 105 Pac. 1039.

It cannot be objected that damages for breach of covenant against encumbrances by reason of building restrictions are not susceptible of ascertainment with mathematical accuracy, the measure of damages being the diminished value of the land: Williams v. Hewitt, 57 Wash. 62, 135 Am. St. Rep. 971, 106 Pac. 496.

A covenant of warranty against encumbrances is one of indemnity and only nominal damages can be recovered for a breach, where the plaintiff fails to allege either an eviction or a discharge of the encumbrances: International Dev. Co. v. Clemans, 59 Wash. 398, 109 Pac. 1034.

Damages for a breach of a covenant against encumbrances and warranting the title against all "lawful" claims, cannot be recovered for attorney's fees and expense incurred in successfully defending an action by third persons to foreclose a party-wall lien which was decreed to be inferior to the title conveyed by the deed of warranty: Hoffman v. Dickson, 65 Wash. 556, Ann. Cas. 1913B, 869, 39 L. R. A., N. S., 67, 118 Pac. 737.

As to measure of damages in action for breach of covenant against encumbrances, see note in 3 L. R. A. 791.

As to attorneys' fees as damages, see note in 8 Am. St. Rep. 158.

Where lots in a plat included shore lands, which were afterward included in the state plat of the shore lands, the measure of damages for breach of covenant of quiet enjoyment in the deed of the lots is the proportion of the purchase price paid to the state which the area overlapped by the state plat bore to the total area of the lots: Cameron v. Burke, 61 Wash. 203, 112 Pac. 252.

No actual eviction is necessary in order to recover damages for breach of a covenant of quiet enjoyment, where a decree awarded an undivided interest to a tenant in common and the grantor had assumed to sell the whole interest as a unit: Black v. Barto, 65 Wash. 502, Ann. Cas. 1913B, 846, 118 Pac. 623.

As to effect of covenant for quiet enjoyment, see note in 2 L. R. A. 334.

As to measure of damages in action for breach of covenant for quiet enjoyment, see note in 53 Am. St. Rep. 120.

§ 8749.

A right of way deed releasing and forever quitclaiming a strip for railway purposes, to revert to the grantors if ceased to be used for such purposes, grants an easement only, although some language in the granting and habendum clause is appropriate to convey the fee: Pacific Iron Works v. Bryant Lumber & Shingle Mill Co., 60 Wash. 502, 111 Pac. 578.

As to the use to which railroad right of way may be devoted as against owner of the fee, see note in 36 L. R. A., N. S., 512.

As to distinction between conveyance of land and that of mere interest in land, see note in 29 L. R. A. 37.

§ 8750.

A mortgage to secure future advances is valid and takes precedence over laborers' liens for services performed after the mortgage is recorded: Heal v. Evans Creek Coal & Coke Co., 71 Wash. 225, 128 Pac. 211.

As to the validity of mortgages to secure future advances, see note in 116 Am. St. Rep. 690.

§ 8751.

See notes to § 5289.

§ 8754. Acknowledgments, Who Authorized to Take.

Acknowledgments of deeds, mortgages, and other instruments in writing may be taken, in this state, before a judge of the supreme court, or the clerk thereof, or the deputy of such clerk, before a judge of the superior court in this state, or the clerk thereof, or the deputy of such clerk, or before a justice of the peace, or a county auditor, or the deputy of such auditor, or a qualified notary public, or any qualified United States commissioner appointed by any district court of the United States for the state of Washington. All deeds, mortgages, and other instruments in writing at any time heretofore acknowledged according to the provisions of this act are hereby declared legal and valid, in so far as such acknowledgment is concerned. [L. '13, p. 29, § 1.]

A written grant of an interest in land—an easement for water-pipes—is valid without acknowledgment, as between the parties and subsequent purchasers with notice: Little v. Gibb, 57 Wash. 106 Pac. 491.

As to physical conditions which will charge purchaser of servient estate with notice of easement, see note in 8 L. R. A., N. S., 418.

§ 8756.

The execution and delivery of a deed in blank authorizes the party to whom it was intrusted to fill in the name of a grantee and vests title in the grantee: Clemmons v. McGeer, 63 Wash. 446, 115 Pac. 1081.

As to validity of deed to blank grantee, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 538.

As to the implied authority to fill in blank, see note in 38 L. R. A., N. S., 423.

Deeds and a bill of sale disposing of all the grantor's property during his last illness, and in view of approaching death, will not be set aside at the suit of persons as to whom there was no more than a bare possibility of heirship, and there was only the most meager testimony of mental incapacity on the part of the grantor, consisting principally of statements attributed to the physician that he was in a "dying condition," witnesses testified to his competency, and the witnesses to the deed were not called: Spackman v. Webb, 63 Wash. 5, 114 Pac. 877,

This section applies to acknowledgments taken in this state: Forrester v. Reliable Transfer Co., 59 Wash. 86, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1093, 109 Pac. 312.

§ 8760.

The acknowledgment of instruments required by statute to be acknowledged cannot be proved by parol, nor by any evidence other than the certificate of an officer authorized to take acknowledgments, written or annexed thereto; hence a lease not acknowledged on its face cannot be reformed to show that it was in fact acknowledged: Forrester v. Reliable Transfer Co., 59 Wash. 86, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1093, 109 Pac. 312.

A mere denial that a grantor did not acknowledge a deed she had signed is outweighed by the fact that she went before the notary for the purpose of acknowledging it, where there was other evidence that she actually acknowledged it: Drew v. Bouffleur, 69 Wash. 610, 125 Pac. 947.

§ 8765.

See notes to § 8748.

Under this section, and independently thereof, an after-acquired title inures to the benefit of the grantee, and this rule applies to titles acquired through mortgage foreclosures: Gough v. Center, 57 Wash. 276, 106 Pac. 774.

As to inuring of after-acquired title to the benefit of grantee, see note in 2 L. R. A. 335.

As to the effect of the covenant of warranty upon after-acquired title, see note in 2 L. R. A. 335.

As to the validity of mortgage of after-acquired title see note in 109 Am. St. Rep. 524. See, also, note in 21 L. R. A., N. S., 843.

§ 8766.

A deed from one spouse to another, reciting a consideration of ten thousand dollars, which is not attacked, is presumed to be made to a bona fide purchaser for value: Shorett v. Signor, 58 Wash. 89, 107 Pac. 1033.

A deed from one member of the community to another has the effect to make the land the separate property of the grantee, and this applies to a preference right to purchase shore lands through the conveyance of lots below high-water mark, where the community owned the upland, under section 6754, providing that a bona fide purchase of such lots from the upland owner gives the purchaser such preference right: Shorett v. Signor, 58 Wash. 89, 107 Pac. 1033.

CHAPTER III.

RECORDING INSTRUMENTS.

§ 8781.

The title of an act to amend a section "concerning the recording of deeds and mortgages," is broad enough to include a provision relating to the recording of assignments of mortgages: Seattle National Bank v. Ally, 66 Wash. 610, 120 Pac. 94.

The record of a deed of lots 7 and 8 in an addition without specifying the block is sufficient to put a subsequent purchaser on notice, where the grantors only owned lots

7 and 8 in block 5 of the addition, and where an inquiry of the grantor or grantees would have disclosed that the grantees were claiming the lots under such deed: Wetzler v. Nichols, 53 Wash. 285, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1075, 101 Pac. 867.

As to record of instrument out of line of title, as constructive notice, see note in 18 Ann. Cas. 13.

The grantee in a quitclaim deed, for value and without notice of a prior unrecorded quitclaim deed, is a bona fide purchaser, within this section, providing that all deeds shall be recorded and shall then be valid against subsequent bona fide purchasers: McDougall v. Murray, 57 Wash. 76, 26 L. R. A., N. S., 159, 106 Pac. 490.

As to priority between unrecorded conveyances, and effect of recording conveyance after subsequent conveyance is given, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 194.

As to right of purchaser of or from heir as against grantee in unrecorded conveyance from ancestor, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912B, 1289.

As between real estate mortgages given as security for pre-existing debts, the one first executed and delivered takes priority, although the other was first recorded, a mortgagee for a pre-existing debt not being a bona fide purchaser, within this section: McDonald & Co. v. Johns, 62 Wash. 521, 33 L. R. A., N. S., 57, 114 Pac. 175.

A purchase money mortgage does not, under our recording acts, take priority over others unless they concur in time or the priorities are controlled by contract or equities between the several mortgagees: Wakefield v. Fish, 62 Wash. 564, 114 Pac. 180.

As to priority of purchase money mortgage to dower right, see note in 4 L. R. A. 607.

Actual notice of an executory contract for the sale of real estate, recorded in the wrong book, is not to be imported from the fact that one of the vendees had slashed about two acres of the tract, where he had subsequently abandoned the same; nor by the fact that the cattle of such vendee and of others ranged upon the property; nor by the fact that one of the vendees lived in a small house either on the property or in a county road, where such vendee did not assert any claim or right to possession in conversations with the bona fide purchasers: Bernard v. Benson, 58 Wash. 191, 137 Am. St. Rep. 1051, 108 Pac. 439.

Construing together the recording acts, executory contracts for the sale of real estate, while not expressly mentioned, are included within the meaning of the words "deeds, grants and transfers of real property," and may be recorded, especially in view of the custom to record the same:

Bernard v. Benson, 58 Wash. 191, 137 Am. St. Rep. 1051, 108 Pac. 439.

A purchaser without notice may rely on the record chain of title: Burr v. Dyer, 60 Wash. 603, 111 Pac. 866.

As to the effect of statutes requiring actual notice as equivalent to registration, see note in 13 L. R. A., N. S., 62.

The purchaser of real estate is charged with notice of a right of way by open and visible use of the easement, although the contract therefor was not recorded: Kalinowski v. Jacobowski, 5 Wash. 359, 100 Pac. 852.

As to physical conditions which will charge purchaser with notice of easement, see note in 8 L. R. A., N. S., 418.

One taking a deed of land with notice that the grantor had no equitable interest therein, paying no present consideration, is not an innocent purchaser for value: Thompson-Spencer Co. v. Thompson, 61 Wash. 547, 112 Pac. 655.

The purchaser with notice of a party-wall agreement, from a former purchaser without notice, may claim the immunity of his vendor: Hawkes v. Hoffman, 56 Wash. 120, 24 L. R. A., N. S., 1038, 105 Pac. 156.

A bona fide purchaser from a bona fide purchaser is not affected by subsequent notice given to his vendor: Bernard v. Benson, 58 Wash. 191, 137 Am. St. Rep. 1051, 108 Pac. 439.

A purchaser of lots with actual notice of a lien thereon has the burden of proving that one of his predecessors in interest was a bona fide purchaser without notice, if he would free the lots of the lien: Biggs v. Hoffman, 60 Wash. 495, 111 Pac. 576.

As to purchaser with notice, see note in 29 L. R. A. 34.

§ 8785.

Under this section, requiring the county auditor to procure such "books for records as the business of the office requires," and in view of the uniform custom to record instruments affecting the title to real property in Deed Records, and of personal property in Miscellaneous Records, the record of an executory contract for the sale of real estate in Miscellaneous Records does not import notice: Bernard v. Benson, 58 Wash. 191, 137 Am. St. Rep. 1051, 108 Pac. 439.

CHAPTER IV.

SATISFACTION AND ASSIGNMENTS OF MORTGAGES.

§ 8800.

There is no law authorizing the recording of an assignment of a claim, and the record thereof is not constructive notice to the debtor: Dial v. Inland Logging Co., 52 Wash. 81, 100 Pac. 157.

As to unauthorized record as notice, see note in 1 L. R. A. 192.

Under this section and section 8781, providing that all deeds, mortgages, and assignments of mortgages shall be recorded and shall thereafter be valid as against bona fide purchasers, subsequent bona fide encumbrancers may rely upon an unauthorized satisfaction by an original mortgagee whose assignee had failed to record his assignment: Seattle National Bank v. Ally, 66 Wash. 610, 120 Pac. 94.

CHAPTER V.

LEASES.

§ 8802.

See notes to § 8745.

Under this section, requiring leases for more than one year to be acknowledged, the acknowledgment which is essential to the validity of a lease is that of the lessor, although the statute does not so provide in terms; and a lease acknowledged only by the lessee is void: Forrester v. Reliable Transfer Co., 59 Wash. 86, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1093, 109 Pac. 312.

This section goes to the validity of the lease, and not to the prerequisites for recording it: Forrester v. Reliable Transfer Co., 59 Wash. 86, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1093, 109 Pac. 312.

Where plaintiff erected a building under an agreement with defendant to lease the same for a period of five years, and defendant refused to take possession because of a statute passed subsequently preventing its use for saloon purposes, the breach of contract is actionable, regardless of whether or not the relation of landlord and tenant was created; and the measure of damages is the difference between the rental value during the term and the rent specified in the contract: Oldfield v. Angles Brewing & Malting Co., 62 Wash. 260, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 1050, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 426, 113 Pac. 630.

Where premises leased by a husband alone were occupied by the husband and wife and rent paid for the full term, the wife is estopped, as a member of the community, from disputing the title of the landlord, in an action for unlawful detainer, notwithstanding that the community relation was not considered in making the lease and that she did not sign the lease: Monroe v. Stayt, 57 Wash. 592, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 1102, 107 Pac. 517.

As to estoppel against married woman by representations, silence and conduct, see note in 57 Am. St. Rep. 178.

A contract whereby a party agrees to pay the assignee of a lease, for the use of the leased premises, a fixed sum monthly during the term of the lease in addition to the rent, signed by both parties, is on its face a mutual contract and enforceable: American Savings Bank & Trust Co. v. Mafridge, 60 Wash. 180, 110 Pac. 1015.

The assignee of a lease is not entitled to the use of a cottage which was expressly excepted in the assignment, in the absence of fraud, deceit or mutual mistake in reserving the cottage: Johnson v. Zufeldt, 56 Wash. 5, 104 Pac. 1132.

A contract to transfer a lease by a good title is provisional where the assignee knows that the lease contains a clause prohibiting assignment without consent to the landlord: Merritt v. Lillybalde, 57 Wash. 159, 106 Pac. 621.

A written contract whereby a party desiring to purchase a lease agreed to pay for the use of the premises, to the assignee of the lease, monthly during its term, a fixed sum in addition to the monthly rent which the original assignee is obliged to pay to the lessor, is in law an assignment of the lease: American Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Mafridge, 60 Wash. 180, 110 Pac. 1015.

Damages cannot be recovered by the assignees of a lease by reason of the assignor's breach of her agreement to procure the written consent of the landlord, where the assignees were not disturbed in their possession and the landlord waived a forfeiture of the lease by accepting rent from the assignee, after notice of the assignment: Batlew v. Dewalt, 56 Wash. 431, 105 Pac. 1029.

A landlord's acceptance of rent from assignees of the lease, after notice of the assignment, waives the right to forfeit the lease for assignment without the landlord's consent, although receipt for the rent was given in the name of the original lessees: Batley v. Dewalt, 56 Wash. 431, 105 Pac. 1029.

As to effect of acceptance of rent from assignee as waiver by lessor of condition in lease against assigning, see note in 47 Am. St. Rep. 199. See, also, note in Ann. Cas. 1913A, 1202.

After the landlord has given notice terminating a tenancy, whereby a bonus to the tenant attaches, he cannot revoke the notice upon the ground of his own mistake, without the consent of the tenant: Wisner v. Richards, 62 Wash. 429, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 160, 113 Pac. 1090.

Where a lease provides for a bonus to the tenant in case the landlord gives notice, terminating the term, tender of the bonus need not be given with the notice, and surrender of the premises without demanding the bonus in advance does not waive the tenant's right to recover the bonus: Wisner v. Richards, 62 Wash. 429, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 160, 113 Pac. 1090.

A lease with option to purchase is shown to be abandoned and mutually surrendered, where on the insolvency of the lessee, its president acquired the lease by assignment and removed the buildings, and in an action by the lessors to enjoin the removal of the buildings, the assignee filed an answer disclaiming any interest in the lease, whereupon the lessors abandoned the suit, relying on the answer as a surrender, retook possession, and refused subsequent tenders of rent: Sandberg v. Light, 55 Wash. 189, 104 Pac. 205.

An option to purchase, contained in a lease with renewal privileges, expires on any termination of the lease, without any express stipulation that time is of its essence, the continuance of the lease being essential to the option: Sandberg v. Light, 55 Wash. 189, 104 Pac. 205.

As to validity of option to purchase by stipulation in lease, see note in 15 Ann. Cas. 380.

As to right of assignee of lease to enforce option to purchase, see note in 5 Ann. Cas. 914.

The exercise of an option to terminate a lease by payment of a bonus presents no features of a forfeiture: Wisner v. Richards, 62 Wash. 429, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 160, 113 Pac. 1090.

Where a lease of a room for a restaurant, in a hotel building, which had a front entrance on the street, and a side entrance into the lobby of the hotel which was a convenience but not necessary to the beneficial use of the property, the side entrance is not an appurtenance and there is no implied easement rendering the landlord liable in damages for closing the same: Jemo v. Tourist Hotel Co., 55 Wash. 595, 19 Ann. Cas. 1199, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 926, 104 Pac. 820.

The forfeiture of the lessees' right to compensation for a building erected by them, under the terms of the lease, by reason of default in payments of rents and re-entry by the landlord, is not affected by the fact that an action for unlawful detainer is pending and undetermined, where it appears that the lessees admitted their purpose to pay no more rent and did nothing in the detainer action to tender rent, protect their interests, or prevent re-entry: Toellner v. McGinnis, 55 Wash. 430, 24 L. R. A., N. S., 1082, 104 Pac. 641.

A stipulation in a lease requiring a landlord to pay the lessee for improvements, at the end of the term, is one for compensation, and the intent of the parties, construing the lease as a whole, determines whether the same is dependent upon the payment of rents, irrespective of the fact that the improvements have become part of the real estate: Toellner v. McGinnis, 55 Wash. 430, 24 L. R. A., N. S., 1082, 104 Pac. 641.

Where a lease for a term of years, at a stipulated ground rent payable monthly with right of re-entry in case of default, provides that the lessees shall erect a building which shall become the property of the lessors at the end of the term upon payment of a sum equal to two-thirds of its value, the covenant to pay rent and the covenant to pay for the building are mutual and dependent, and the lessee cannot, after abandonment or forfeiture for condition broken and re-entry, recover the value of the building or any part thereof: Toellner v. McGinnis, 55 Wash. 430, 24 L. R. A., N. S., 1082, 104 Pac. 641.

The fact that a lease, with right of re-entry for condition broken, contains no forfeiture clause, does not prevent a forfeiture of the lessees' right to compensation for improvements, upon re-entry for nonpayment of rents, where the stipulation for rents and for compensation were mutual and dependent covenants: Toellner v. McGinnis, 55 Wash. 430, 24 L. R. A., N. S., 1082, 104 Pac. 641.

As to rights of landlord and tenant respectively as to fixtures, see notes in 5 L. R. A. 150; 9 L. R. A. 700; 10 L. R. A. 722.

The owner of an office building, who had leased the basement to different tenants, approached by a flight of outside steps which were in reasonably safe condition, is not under obligation to protect them from the elements, and is not liable to a customer of one of the tenants who was injured by a fall caused by a thin coat of ice on the steps; since the landlord is liable in such case only for general repairs and not for temporary obstructions arising from natural causes such as the accumulation of ice and snow: Oerter v. Ziegler, 59 Wash. 421, 109 Pac. 1058.

As to landlord's obligation to have premises safe for tenant's guests, see note in 34 L. R. A. 824.

As to liability of landlord to stranger for injuries received from alleged bad condition of area way, see note in 26 L. R. A. 198.

A lessee, for one night only, for the purpose of giving a public entertainment, of a new state armory, constructed under laws providing for rigid supervision by state officials and experts employed by them, owes no duty to spectators to make an expert inspection of a balcony rail which was apparently safe, only reasonable, and not extraordinary, care being required: Greene v. Seattle Athletic Club, 60 Wash. 300, 32 L. R. A., N. S., 713, 111 Pac. 157.

The owner of leased premises is not liable to one visiting an exhibition therein, for injuries caused by snow and ice on an outside stairway landing, where the tenant giving the exhibition was in exclusive possession and control of the premises, including the stairway, and when leased the premises were in safe condition and free from snow and ice: Spoar v. Spokane Turnverein, 64 Wash. 208, 116 Pac. 627.

Damages need not be shown with precision and accuracy, and a verdict for two hundred and fifty dollars for damages to leased premises, by reason of negligence of the landlord in repairing a building, is not unsupported or based on conjecture, where the walls were injured and the place of business closed while tenants made repairs, at an expense estimated by them at five or six hundred dollars: Jemo v. Tourist Hotel Co., 55 Wash. 595, 19 Ann. Cas. 1199, 30 L. R. A., N. S., 926, 104 Pac. 820.

The entire rent is not forfeited by failure of the lessor to deliver all of the leased property at the time agreed upon, as it could only defeat a recovery of the rent pro tanto: McLeod v. Russell, 59 Wash. 676, 110 Pac. 626.

Default in the payment of rents, and re-entry by the landlord under process in an action for unlawful detainer, works a forfeiture of all right to rents subsequently earned: Toellner v. McGinnis, 55 Wash. 430, 24 L. R. A., N. S., 1082, 104 Pac. 641.

An entry made by a third person with the consent of the lessee does not amount to an eviction, avoiding the payment of rents, merely because the landlord also consented to the entry: McLeod v. Russell, 59 Wash. 676, 110 Pac. 626.

Where the plaintiff, being assignee of a lease, sold the same to defendant, and defendant's corporation in possession afterward went into the hands of a receiver, acceptance of the rent for two months from the receiver, and receipt of the key will not prevent the plaintiff from recovering from the defendant the balance due on the contract, where the evidence shows he did not intend to release the defendant: American Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Mafridge, 60 Wash. 180, 110 Pac. 1015.

Upon a partial assignment of a lease, which contained no reference to the share of the rent which the assignee was to pay, the law implies an agreement to pay a proportional share only, according to the value of the respective interests, and upon payment of the entire rent by the assignee, he is entitled to recover from the assignor the proportional part admitted by the pleadings to be chargeable to the interest of the assignor: Johnson v. Zufeldt, 56 Wash. 5, 104 Pac. 1132.

The assignee of a lease, after breach, and sale of the lease at his request to lessen the damages is liable for the rent to the time of the breach, and for the present value of the monthly payments due to the assignor in the future, at the legal rate of interest, less the sum for which the lease was sold: American Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Mafridge, 60 Wash. 180, 110 Pac. 1015.

The landlord's consent to the assignment of a lease is not necessary to transfer title to the crop where there was no nonassignment clause in the lease, nor where the crop had been harvested and marketed by the assignees and the right of re-entry had been lost by nonaction of the lessor: Cupples v. Level, 54 Wash. 299, 23 L. R. A., N. S., 519, 103 Pac. 430.

A tenancy in common in a crop is created by a lease of land to be cropped under a contract for a specific division of the crop: Fuhrman v. Interior Warehouse Co., 64 Wash. 159, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 89, 116 Pac. 666.

As to croppers and cotenancy in crop, see note in 98 Am. St. Rep. 953.

The graveling of a leased right of way for a logging road that was to have been timbered is not such waste as to warrant a cancellation of the lease, where the rental value of the land was not impaired, drainage ditches benefited the land in excess of the damage, and the lessee can be compelled to remove the gravel or respond in damages at the end of the term: Northcraft v. Blumauer, 53 Wash. 243, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1071, 101 Pac. 871.

A lessee, who created a building on the premises under a recorded lease giving her the right to remove it, cannot recover the alleged price of the building from the lessor on his sale of the premises to one having notice of the lease, since the building still belonged to the lessee who remained in possession with the right of removal: Morin v. Bremer, 61 Wash. 62, 111 Pac. 1058.

Where, by the terms of a lease, the premises were to be arranged by the lessors for a cafe and kitchen, and the lessees were prohibited from making any other use of the same, the lessor cannot recover rent without complying with the lease, nor invoke the general rule that there is no implied warranty of the fitness of demised premises: Hardman Estate v. McNair, 61 Wash. 74, 111 Pac. 1059.

A lease providing that the lessor shall arrange the premises for a kitchen and cafe "as in its judgment shall be best," and prohibiting the lessee from making other use of the same, does not make the lessor the sole judge of the fitness of the place to the extent of relieving it of all obligation to produce the results contemplated: Hardman Estate v. McNair, 61 Wash. 75, 111 Pac. 1059.

As to liability for rent as affected by fact that property cannot be devoted to use intended without alterations to conform to police regulations, see note in 39 L. R. A., N. S., 350.

The statement in a lease of a store-room that it was "for the purpose of conducting a bakery therein" is not a restriction which would prevent its use and occupation for the purpose of selling groceries, since the building was adapted thereto, and the use was not materially different from the bakery business: Noon v. Mironski, 58 Wash. 453, 108 Pac. 1069.

Where the lessor of two blocks subleased the undivided one-half interest in one block and the easterly half of the other block, and the sublease covenanted that the sublessee could conduct certain specified amusements on the east half of the block leased and that the lessor therein should not conduct any amusement on "said premises," the sublease does not operate to restrain the lessor from conducting amusements on the west half of the block not included in the sublease: Loeff v. Seattle Park Co., 59 Wash. 217, 109 Pac. 806.

In the absence of any restrictions in a lease, the premises may be used for any lawful purpose: Rockwell v. Eiler's Music House, 67 Wash. 478, 39 L. R. A., N. S., 894, 122 Pac. 12.

Where an amusement company leased a portion of its premises, described as five certain lots, for the purpose of an amusement park, the lessee agreeing to pay as rent a percentage of the gate receipts, and not to conduct any bathing establishment, cafe, restaurant or skating-rink on the leased premises, and for a time all the property was included within a common inclosure, and the lessor conducted a bathing establishment, cafe, and skating-rink on property reserved and not mentioned in the lease, a clause in the lease that the whole of said "eight lots" shall be open to the public upon the payment of a general admission, is meaningless, and the covenants of the lease can refer only to the five lots described; hence the lessee has no right to control the admission to or the nature of amusements conducted on the lessor's portion of the premises reserved from the lease, and an injunction will therefore not lie to close the lessor's public entrances to the common inclosure and forbidding the lessor to call attention to his free entrances to the grounds, the lessee's remedy being to inclose his own portion of the premises, or by suit to reform the lease, if it does not express the agreement of the parties: Loeff v. Seattle Park Co., 70 Wash. 363, 126 Pac. 902.

In such a case, the fact that for several years the only public entrance to the grounds was in charge of the lessee during the summer months while his amusement park was in operation, and that the lessor conducted no amusements on its property other than those prohibited to the lessee, does not aid the construction of the writings, when their subject matter does not cover the lessor's reserved property, and where the subsequent conduct of the parties may have been the result of independent agreements: Loeff v. Seattle Park Co., 70 Wash. 363, 126 Pac. 902.

Where a lease of ground floor to be used for a theater entrance provided that the lessee may at his own expense install heat, water and light by such piping and wiring as may be necessary, the lessee is authorized to bore holes in the floor and connect with water-pipes by way of an unoccupied basement, although the basement was expressly reserved to the lessor, where it appears that there was no other way to make the connections, which did not in any way interfere with the lessor's reasonable use of the basement: Burns v. Dufresne, 67 Wash. 158, 121 Pac. 46.

In an action by a lessor for damages by reason of the lessee's abandonment of the premises, the lessor may recover general damages by reason of the violation of the terms of the lease and special damages to the premises committed by the lessee in making alterations; and hence cannot be required to make an election between the two causes of action: Forrester v. Reliable Transfer Co., 65 Wash. 602, 118 Pac. 753.

The adoption of local option prohibiting the sale of liquors in a town does not terminate a lease of premises used for a saloon, or relieve the lessee from the payment of rent, where the lease merely provided that the lessee may conduct a saloon on the premises in conformity to the ordinances of the town and the laws of the state then in force or thereafter enacted, since it is merely permissive and not restrictive as to the uses to which the property may be put: Hayton v. Seattle Brewing & Malting Co., 66 Wash. 248, 37 L. R. A., N. S., 432, 119 Pac. 739.

As to rights of landlord and tenant inter se under lease of premises for saloon purposes where subsequently tenant is unable so to use premises, see note in 15 Ann. Cas. 1103. And see note in 19 L. R. A., N. S., 964.

On the termination of the relation of landlord and tenant, the right to accrued rent is fixed by the terms of the lease, whether the termination was by re-entry or surrender, and whether the rent was payable in advance for a period beyond the time of the surrender, or already paid up in advance: Rockwell v. Eiler's Music House, 67 Wash. 478, 39 L. R. A., N. S., 894, 122 Pac. 12.

Under a lease of a space to be used as a theater entrance, covenanting that the same shall not be assigned without the written consent of the lessor, and providing that the portion of the premises not required for such purpose may be used by the lessee for any lawful purpose, the lessee may sublet such portions without the consent of the lessor, conditions against assignment and subletting being strictly construed: Burns v. Dufresne, 67 Wash. 158, 121 Pac. 46.

An injunction will not be granted at the suit of the owner against a sublease for the purpose of maintaining a cigar-store and saloon, on the theory that no saloon license can be granted without the owner's consent under section 6290, where the lease contained no restrictions, since plaintiff can withhold his consent and prevent the issuance of the saloon license, and the sublessee is entitled to conduct any other lawful business on the premises: Burns v. Dufresne, 67 Wash. 158, 121 Pac. 46.

The acceptance by the lessor of rent after notice of the assignment is a waiver of the right to forfeit the lease on account of an oral assignment without written consent of the lessor, and estops the latter from asserting the invalidity of the parol assignment: Field v. Copping, Agnew & Scales, 65 Wash. 359, 36 L. R. A., N. S., 488, 118 Pac. 329.

The assignment of a lease, under an unqualified consent by the lessor, may reassign the lease for the purpose of riding herself of liability to the lessor for rent accruing thereafter, although she had agreed with the original lessee on accepting the assignment to perform all the covenants and obligations in the lease: Harvard Investment Co. v. Smith, 66 Wash. 429, 119 Pac. 864.

Where the landlord gave an unqualified consent to the assignment of a lease, the assignee is liable for rent only during occupancy, and upon reassigning the lease, there is no consideration for a reservation whereby the landlord consented to the reassignment on condition that the first assignee should remain bound for the rent; and hence all subsequent assignees are liable for rent only during occupancy: Harvard Investment Co. v. Smith, 66 Wash. 429, 119 Pac. 864.

Where defendant promised to execute a lease to plaintiffs on specified terms, provided defendant's wife would sign the lease, and plaintiffs paid six hundred dollars as one month's rent, to be forfeited as liquidated damages if they failed to sign the lease, an allegation in plaintiffs' complaint for damages that defendant's wife did sign a lease but that defendant neglected and refused to deliver it, must be construed as implying that the lease so executed was such a lease as the plaintiffs were ready to accept; and, on issue joined on such allegation, it appearing that plaintiffs refused to accept the lease signed and tendered, they are not entitled to recover as damages the six hundred dollars paid as rent, although evidence was offered tending to show that the lease tendered was not such as was contemplated by the agreement, since such evidence was outside the issues: Michaels v. Levinson, 68 Wash. 364, 123 Pac. 520.

The measure of the lessee's damages for breach of covenant to erect a building being the diminished market rental value of the premises, the same may be recovered under an allegation of general damages without pleading the same as special damages: Ingalls v. Beall, 68 Wash. 247, 122 Pac. 1063.

Upon breach of the landlord's covenant to complete a building on the leased premises, the tenant cannot be required to mitigate his damages by performing the covenant: Ingalls v. Beall, 68 Wash. 247, 122 Pac. 1063.

A tenant who leased part of a building, intending to use the same as a theater, cannot recover damages for breach of the lease in that the landlord "did not disclose" that the building could not, under the ordinances of the city, be used for that purpose until an exit had been constructed, where the lease provided that the tenant should, at his own expense, make all changes and improvements in the building, and it was not alleged that the landlord refused to permit him to construct the exit, and did not mislead him as to the ordinances, since one contracting in a city with reference to matters governed by police regulations is charged with notice of the ordinances: Rockwell v. Eiler's Music House, 67 Wash. 478, 39 L. R. A., N. S., 894, 122 Pac. 12.

Under a lease of rooms to be sublet for furnished lodgings, the measure of damages for breach of the lessor's covenant to furnish heat is the difference between the value of the use of the rooms as furnished by the lessee and heated as contemplated by the contract, and the value of the use as in fact heated by the lessor: Purcell v. Warburton, 70 Wash. 129, 126 Pac. 89.

As to duty and liability of landlord of apartments as to heating, see note in 37 L. R. A., N. S., 1213.

In an action for breach of a covenant in a lease to furnish heat for rooms to be sublet for lodgings, evidence to show that lodgers suffered discomfort and illness by reason of failure to properly heat the rooms is relevant, where proper instructions on the measure of damages eliminated all elements of damages suffered by the lodgers: Purcell v. Warburton, 70 Wash. 129, 126 Pac. 89.

In such case, refusal to instruct that there could be no recovery if the rooms were kept as full as when properly heated is harmless: Purcell v. Warburton, 70 Wash. 129, 126 Pac. 89.

A finding that a lease was modified by an oral agreement to allow the lessee to pay rent to a third party, and to remain in possession without payment of rent pending the termination of litigation between the lessor and the third party, will not be disturbed where the evidence is conflicting and the lessee was corroborated by the fact that the lessor continuously refrained from demanding and collecting the rentals, which were paid to the third party, and that the litigation had not been finally determined: Oregon etc. R. Co. v. Elliott Bay Mill & Lumber Co., 70 Wash. 148, 126 Pac. 406.

A lessee is liable for rent upon accepting a lease, although it did not go into possession or sign the lease: Starwich v.

Washington Cut Glass Co., 64 Wash. 42, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 262, 116 Pac. 459.

As to binding effect on lessee of lease not signed by him, see note in Ann. Cas. 1913A, 264.

Where defendant agreed to lease premises, provided his wife would sign the lease, he would not be liable for damages for failure to perform unless his wife executed a lease which the lessees were willing to accept: Michaels v. Levinson, 68 Wash. 364, 123 Pac. 520.

A lease for one year with the privilege of two years renewal at a rental satisfactory to both lessor and lessee is a single contract, calling for renewal at a reasonable rental, and not subject to the objection that the agreement for renewal was without consideration or unenforceable: Anderson v. Frye & Bruhn, 69 Wash. 89, 124 Pac. 499.

The retaking of possession for default in the payment of rent does not waive the lessor's right to the liquidated damages stipulated for in the lease: Barrett v. Monro, 69 Wash. 229, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 763, 124 Pac. 369.

A stipulation in a lease that a deposit of twelve hundred dollars made at the beginning of the term shall be held by the lessors to indemnify them against any loss or damage which they may sustain by reason of any violation of the terms of the lease on the part of the lessees, as liquidated damages, is one for liquidated damages and not merely for security, and entitles the lessor to retain the whole deposit, upon termination of the lease for nonpayment of rent, the actual damages from default being incapable of exact determination: Barrett v. Monro, 69 Wash. 229, 40 L. R. A., N. S., 763, 124 Pac. 369.

Upon a subletting for the full term, which is an assignment pro tanto, the landlord may acquire the interests of the subtenant without incurring any liability except for unpaid rent: Hockersmith v. Sullivan, 71 Wash. 244, 128 Pac. 222.

Inasmuch as a lease granting quiet enjoyment does not insure against third parties who are wrongdoers, the landlord is not liable for damages to the leasehold by reason of work done by a city in grading a street: Hockersmith v. Sullivan, 71 Wash. 244, 128 Pac. 222.

Where the tenant assumes the obligation to repair the building, he cannot recover damages by reason of a leaky roof: Hockersmith v. Sullivan, 71 Wash. 244, 128 Pac. 222.

A tenant in possession who pays rent cannot claim that the landlord's interference with his enjoyment during occupancy amounts to an eviction: Hockersmith v. Sullivan, 71 Wash. 244, 128 Pac. 222.

§ 8803.

A holding under oral agreement for the payment of a monthly rental is a tenancy from month to month, under this section, and may be terminated at the end of any month by giving the statutory notice: Oregon & Washington R. Co. v. Vulcan Iron Works, 57 Wash. 372, 106 Pac. 1120.

An unacknowledged lease for a term exceeding one year being void, except as a lease from month to month, may be terminated by proper notice before the expiration of the year: Anderson v. Frye & Bruhn, 69 Wash. 89, 124 Pac. 499.

An unacknowledged lease for more than one year creates a tenancy from month to month only: Hockersmith v. Sullivan, 71 Wash. 244, 128 Pac. 222.

§ 8805.

See notes to § 204.

This section, authorizing an action to recover reasonable rents from a tenant by sufferance, changes the common-law rule that such rent is not recoverable, and the action lies against one claiming an adverse title, where the possession was not adverse and hostile in the beginning, but was obtained under an express written contract: Sheppard v. Coeur d'Alene Lum. Co., 62 Wash. 12, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 909, 112 Pac. 932.

CHAPTER VI.

REGISTRATION OF LAND TITLES.

§§ 8809, 8823.

See notes to § 8834.

§ 8834.

The superior court has no jurisdiction to try out conflicting titles and refuse the applicant a dismissal without prejudice, in a special proceeding to register land titles under the Torrens act, this section having provided that the superior court shall dismiss the proceeding if the title is not a proper one for registration which dismissal may be without prejudice, and that the applicant may dismiss at any time on terms fixed by the court, and sections 8809 and 8823, providing for the registration only of such titles as are found to be in the applicant, with admitted liens or outstanding interests, and that the applicant proceeds at his peril if there are hostile or conflicting interests: Krutz v. Dodge, 66 Wash. 178, Ann. Cas. 1812C, 869, 118 Pac. 188.

§ 8838.

§ 8852.

The first mortgage registered takes priority over other instruments, although previously executed, under this section, the act of registration being expressly made the operative act to convey or affect the land: Brace v. Superior Land Co., 65 Wash. 681, 118 Pac. 910.

One cannot be a bona fide purchaser of land registered under the Torrens act until his conveyance is registered, although by sections 8838, 8857, it appears that the act was for the protection of bona fide purchasers of registered land: Brace v.

Superior Land Co., 65 Wash. 681, 118 Pac. 910.

A person who holds a prior mortgage of land registered under the Torrens act, and who failed to have his instrument registered because unwilling to pay the taxes necessary to obtain registration, is estopped by laches from asserting a priority over one who paid the taxes to secure registration of a new mortgage, given to revive the lien of an earlier mortgage omitted from the memorial in the registration decree by mutual mistake of the parties: Brace v. Superior Land Co., 65 Wash. 681, 118 Pac. 910.

§ 8857.

See notes to § 8852.

TITLE LXXII.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

CHAPTER I.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

§ 8908. Who may be Admitted to—Regulations.

All honorably discharged Union soldiers, Mexican war veterans, veterans of Washington Indian wars, sailors, marines, soldiers of the Spanish-American war, and also members of the state militia disabled while in the line of duty, may be admitted to the home provided for in the last preceding section of this chapter under such rules and regulations as may be adopted by the state board of control: Provided, Such applicants are bona fide citizens of the state, and honorably discharged soldiers, sailors, marines, soldiers of the Spanish-American war, who are married and living with their wives at the date of the passage of this act, and who have been actual bona fide residents of this state for a period of two years at the time of their application and who are indigent and unable to earn a support for themselves and their families, and the widows, who have not remarried, of such soldiers, sailors, marines, veterans of Washington Indian wars and soldiers of the Spanish-American war who are indigent and unable to earn a support for themselves, whose husbands were members of the State Soldiers' Home, who reside within the corporate limits of Orting precinct adjoining said home and the Veterans' Home at Port Orchard, may be admitted to said homes and be members of said homes to all intents and purposes, and subject to all rules and regulations of said homes, except the requirements of fatigue duty, and said married members aforesaid shall, through rules and regulations adopted by the state board of control, be supplied with medical attendance from the home dispensary, and rations from the home supplies not to exceed seven dollars ($7) per month, and clothing not to exceed sixteen dollars ($16) per annum. [L. '11, p. 621, § 1.]

CHAPTER III.

PENSION FOR INDIAN WAR VETERANS.

§ 8923.

This section, granting pay for services performed by the Indian war veterans, is a gift in the nature of a pension, limited by its terms to the veteran in propria persona, and in case of his death pending his application, payment cannot be made to his heir or personal representative, since no provision is made therefor: Whitaker v. Clausen, 57 Wash. 268, 106 Pac. 745, 107 Pac. 832.

TITLE LXXIII. STATE AND STATE BOARDS.

CHAPTER III-A.

STATE BOARD OF PARK COMMISSIONERS.

§ 8967-1. Board—Of Whom Composed.

A state board of park commissioners is hereby created to consist of the governor, state land commissioner, state auditor and state treasurer, and one other person to be appointed by the governor. [L. '13, p. 346, § 1.]

§ 8967-2. Duties.

Said state board of park commissioners shall have authority to receive and accept donations of lands for state park purposes and shall have the management and control of all lands donated or acquired for state park purposes, and may from time to time recommend to the legislature the purchase or condemnation of lands for state purposes. [L. '13, p. 346, § 2.]

§ 8967-3. Compensation.

The members of said board shall serve without compensation, except necessary traveling expenses. [L. '13, p. 347, § 3.]

CHAPTER V.

STATE HUMANE BUREAU.

§ 8974-1. Humane Bureau—Members.

There is hereby created a bureau, which shall be known as the State Humane Bureau, which bureau shall consist of the governor, the superintendent of public instruction, the attorney general, and two members to be appointed by the governor. [L. '13, p. 312, § 1.]

§ 8974-2. Duties of Bureau.

It shall be the duty of said bureau to promote and aid in the enforcement of the laws for the prevention of wrongs to children, idiots, imbeciles and insane, feeble-minded and defective persons, and persons who by reason of age or for any other reason are helpless or unable to care for themselves; and to promote and aid in the enforcement of the laws for the prevention of cruelty to animals; to promote the organization of county and other local societies to aid such bureau in carrying out the provisions of this act, and to appoint local and state agents for that purpose; to aid such local societies and agents in carrying out the provisions of this act; and to promote the growth of education and sentiment favorable to the enforcement of the laws hereinabove enumerated. [L. '13, p. 312, § 2.]

§ 8974-3. Annual Meeting.

The said bureau shall hold an annual meeting on the second Monday in November in each year, at the state capitol, for the election of officers and for the transaction of such other business as will aid in carrying out the provisions of this act. [L. '13, p. 312, § 3.]

§ 8974-4. Reports.

Said bureau shall make and file, in the office of the secretary of state, on or before the first Monday in January of each year, a report of its proceedings for the preceding year, with statistics showing the accomplishments of the bureau and its agents, and the county and local societies organized under the advice and supervision of the bureau, together with such recommendation as the bureau may deem advisable for the further protection of incompetents, children and animals; which report shall be edited and published as are the reports of other state officers. [L. '13, p. 312, § 4.]

§ 8974-5. Officers of Bureau.

The governor shall be president of said bureau, and said bureau may elect a secretary, prescribe his duties, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, and fix his compensation; and may appoint and employ such other subordinate agents as it may deem advisable, define their duties and fix their compensation. [L. '13, p. 313, § 5.]

TITLE LXXIV.

STATE OFFICERS.

CHAPTER VII.

JUDGES OF THE SUPREME COURT.

§ 9043. Time of Election—Terms.

At the next general election, and at each biennial general election thereafter, there shall be elected three judges of the supreme court, to hold for the full term of six years, and until their successors are elected and qualified, commencing with the second Monday in January succeeding their election. [L. '11, p. 613, § 1.]

§ 9043-1. Election to Fill Vacancy—Commencement of Term.

A person elected judge of the supreme court to fill a vacancy for an unexpired term shall not qualify for office until the second Monday in January succeeding his election. [L. '11, p. 614, § 2.]

CHAPTER VIII.

JUDGES OF THE SUPERIOR COURTS.

§ 9050-1. Additional Judges.

Hereafter there shall be two judges of the superior court in and for Snohomish county; two judges in and for Yakima county; nine judges in and for King county; for the county of Lewis, one superior judge; for the counties of Pacific and Wahkiakum, one superior judge; for the counties of Cowlitz, Skamania and Klickitat, one superior judge; for the county of Clarke, one superior judge; and for the counties of Thurston and Mason, two superior judges. [L. '11, p. 134, § 1; L. '11, p. 332, § 1; L. '11, p. 375, § 1; L. '11, p. 642, §§ 1, 2; L. '11, p. 644, §§ 1, 2; L. '13, p. 47, § 1.]

Adapted from the acts cited.

TITLE LXXV.
STREET AND ELECTRIC RAILWAYS.

CHAPTER II.
CORPORATE RIGHTS.

§ 9080.

Charters adopted by cities of the first class are subject to and controlled by general laws; and this section, authorizing, cities to grant franchises to street railroads and to prescribe the terms and conditions thereof, supersedes the city charter of Seattle, article 4, section 23, requiring such franchises to be sold at public auction to the highest bidder: Ewing v. Seattle, 55 Wash. 229, 104 Pac. 259.

A city may not, in granting a franchise to a street railway company, divest itself of its governmental police power, the exercise of which is necessary for the public welfare or safety: Tacoma v. Boutelle, 61 Wash. 434, 112 Pac. 661.

An act entitled an act "relating to electric railways . . . and the use of streets and roads thereby" is sufficiently comprehensive to embrace provisions relating to the granting of franchises therefor by the legislative authority of cities: Ewing v. Seattle, 55 Wash. 229, 104 Pac. 259.

This section authorizes the city, by clear and unmistakable language, to grant a franchise giving a street railway company the right to build a track on a trestle in a portion of the street, excluding the public therefrom, upon condemnation of the abutter's easements of access, light, and air, under section 9081: State ex rel. Ford v. Superior Court, 67 Wash. 10, 120 Pac. 514.

TITLE LXXVI

TAXATION.

CHAPTER I.

STATE BOARD OF TAX COMMISSIONERS.

§ 9086-1. County Assessors' Annual Convention.

For the purpose of instruction on the subject of taxation, the county assessors of the state shall meet with the state board of tax commissioners at the capital of the state on the third Monday of January of each year. Each assessor shall be paid by the county of his residence his actual expenses in attending said convention, upon presentation to the county auditor of proper vouchers. [L. '11, p. 46, § 1.]

CHAPTER II.

DEFINITIONS AND EXEMPTIONS.

§ 9092.

See notes to § 9134.

§ 9093.

The assessment of a leasehold fixed by the value of the lessee's improvements, having no basis in law, will be set aside, notwithstanding it could not be reviewed for mere over-valuation: Metropolitan Bldg. Co. v. King County, 62 Wash. 409, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 943, 113 Pac. 1114.

§ 9094.

Under this section, requiring the assessment of leaseholds as personal property, the tax value of a fifty year lease from the state, the lessee's buildings reverting at the end of the term, is the actual value of the term less rent reserved, to be determined by the present worth from year to year, considering also the term: Metropolitan Bldg. Co. v. King County, 62 Wash. 409, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 943, 113 Pac. 1114.

§ 9098. Exemptions.

All property described in this section, to the extent herein limited, shall be exempt from taxation, that is to say:

First. All lands used exclusively for public burying grounds or cemeteries, all churches built and supported by donations whose seats are free to all, and the grounds whereon such churches are built, not exceeding one hundred and twenty feet by two hundred feet in quantity, together with a parsonage. The parsonage need not be on land contiguous to the church property if the total area exempted does not exceed the area above described: Provided, That such grounds are used wholly for church purposes and not otherwise. Also, all property of Young Men's Christian Associations and Young Women's Christian Associations, or any exhibit deposited in the State Historical Society building, which shall be wholly used, or to the extent solely used, for the religious purposes of such association.

Second. All property, whether real or personal, belonging exclusively to any school district, county, municipal corporation, the state or to the United States.

Third. All fire engines and other implements used for the extinguishment of fires, with the building used exclusively for the safekeeping thereof, and for the meetings of fire companies, providing that such belongs to any town or fire company organized therein.

Fourth. All free public libraries, orphanages, orphan asylums, institutions for the reformation of fallen women, homes for the aged and infirm, and hospitals for the care of the sick, when such institutions are supported in whole or in part by the public donations or private charity, and all of the income and profits of such institutions are devoted, after paying the expenses thereof, to the purposes of such institutions, and the grounds, whenever such libraries, orphanages, institutions, homes and hospitals are built and when used exclusively and not otherwise for the purposes in this subdivision enumerated. In order to determine whether such libraries, orphanages, institutions, homes and hospitals are exempt from taxes, within the true intent of this chapter, the state board of health, the county and city authorities of the county and city wherein such institutions are respectively situated, shall have access to the books of such institutions, and the institution claiming exemption shall provide by its articles of incorporation that the mayor of the city and the chairman of the board of county commissioners wherein such institution is located shall be ex-officio trustees thereof, and shall be notified of each and every meeting thereof, and shall have the same powers as a trustee of such institution. And the superintendent or manager of the library, orphanage, institution, home or hospital claiming exemption from taxation under this chapter shall make oath before the assessor that the income and the receipts thereof, including donations to it, have been applied to the actual expenses of maintaining it, and to no other purpose. He shall also, under oath make annual report to the state board of health of its receipts and disbursements, specifying in detail the sources from which the receipts have been derived and the object to which disbursements have been applied, and shall furnish in the said report full and complete vital statistics for the use and information of the state board of health, who may publish the same in its annual report.

Fifth. All fruit trees, except nursery stock and forest trees artificially grown.

Sixth. All ships, vessels and boats in actual construction and all materials especially designed and set apart for the construction of any such ship, vessel or boat in process of building within this state, shall be exempt from taxation.

Seventh. The personal property of each head of a family or widow liable to assessment and taxation of which such individual is the actual and bona fide owner to an amount of three hundred dollars: Provided, That each person shall list all of his personal property for taxation and the county assessor shall deduct the amount of the exemption authorized by this section from the total amount of the assessment and assess the remainder. [L. '13, p. 351, § 1.]

This section, exempting from general taxation all lands used exclusively for burying grounds or cemeteries, does not exempt such lands from assessments for local improvements: In re Sixth Avenue West, Seattle, 59 Wash. 41, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 1049, 109 Pac. 1052.

As to liability of cemetery to assessment for local improvements, see note in 35 L. R. A., N. S., 36.

A parsonage and lot, some distance and separated from the church lot, is not exempt from taxation, under this section, exempting from taxation all churches supported by donation in which seats are free to all, and the grounds on which such churches are built, not exceeding one hundred and twenty by two hundred feet in quantity, "together with the parsonage thereon," especially in view of the rule of strict construction of such exemptions: Foley v. Oberlin Congregational Church, 67 Wash. 280, 121 Pac. 65.

As to what is included in exemption of religious institutions from taxation, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 354.

As to exemption of parsonage, see note in 39 L. R. A., N. S., 437.

Under principles of public policy and constitution, article 7, section 2, and this section, exempting state property from taxation, lands purchased by the state in the months of May and August, cannot be subjected to the taxes levied for that year, in view of the fact that the levy of the tax cannot be made until October, since the development of liability for taxes was arrested the moment public ownership attached: State v. Snohomish County, 71 Wash. 320, 128 Pac. 667.

As to property of the state as a subject of taxation, see note in 33 Am. St. Rep. 403.

CHAPTER III.

LISTING AND ASSESSMENT OF PROPERTY.

§ 9101.

Where wheat was orally purchased in February, but the title did not pass until it was delivered on March 7th, and the purchaser's manager, without looking up the dates, but knowing that the wheat was delivered after that date, listed the same for taxation as of March 1st, after the assessor informed him that the vendor refused to pay, his error was a mistake of law, and not of fact, which a court of equity cannot relieve by restraining collection of the tax, in the absence of fraud or misrepresentation: Peacock Mill Co. v. Honeycutt, 55 Wash. 18, 103 Pac. 1112.

§ 9102.

The failure of the assessor to assess money, on the erroneous advice of the attorney general who was mistaken as to the law, does not affect the validity of a tax upon other property: Doty Lumber & Shingle Co. v. Lewis County, 60 Wash. 428, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 870, 111 Pac. 562.

An assessor acts in a quasi-judicial capacity, and it requires clear evidence to overcome the presumption that he acted in a proper manner in fixing valuations: Vancouver Water Works Co. v. Clarke County, 55 Wash. 112, 104 Pac. 180.

The evidence of a mistake of fact in listing property for taxation must be clear, cogent, and convincing in order to overcome the presumption arising from the sworn detail sheet: Peacock Mill Co. v. Honeycutt, 55 Wash. 18, 103 Pac. 1112.

§ 9112. Assessment at True Value—Definitions of.

All property shall be assessed at not to exceed fifty per cent of its true and fair value in money. In determining the true and fair value of real or personal property, the assessor shall not adopt a lower or different standard of value because the same is to serve as a basis of taxation; nor shall he adopt as a criterion of value the price for which the said property would sell at auction, or at a forced sale, or in the aggregate with all the property in the town or district; but he shall value each article or description of property by itself, and at such sum or price as he believes the same to be fairly worth in money at the time such assessment is made. The true cash value of property shall be that value at which the property would be taken in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor. In assessing any tract or lot of real property, the value of the land, exclusive of improvements, shall be determined; also, the value of all improvements and structures thereon, and the aggregate value of the property, including all structures and other improvements, excluding the value of crops growing on cultivated lands. In valuing any real property on which there is a coal or other mine, or stone or other quarry, the same shall be valued at such price as such property, including the mine or quarry, would sell at a fair, voluntary sale for cash. Taxable leasehold estates shall be valued at such a price as they would bring at a fair, voluntary sale for cash. [L. '13, p. 438, § 1.]

Where the assessing officers have adopted as a measure of value for assessments sixty per cent of the market value, and uniformly applied it, an assessment on a specified tract, conclusively shown to be in excess of that amount, cannot be sustained by reference to this section, requiring all property to be assessed at its cash value: Savage v. Pierce County, 68 Wash. 623, 123 Pac. 1088.

§ 9113.

The presumption being in favor of the regularity of tax proceedings, an assessment of two mining claims in solido instead of in parcels, as required by law, will not be found from the mere fact that the certificate of delinquency was for the total amount: Old Republic Mining Co. v. Ferry County, 69 Wash. 600, 125 Pac. 1018.

§ 9122.

A dredger built in, and engaged for two years in government work in a county of this state, has its situs for taxation in this state, although its home port and ownership is in another state; and the fact that it was seaworthy and had sufficient power to propel itself on the high seas does not bring it within the rule requiring vessels engaged in interstate traffic or sailing from one port to another to be assessed at their home ports or the domicile of her owners: North American Dredging Co. v. Taylor, 56 Wash. 565, 29 L. R. A., N. S., 105, 106 Pac. 162.

The use of a dredger for indefinite periods in a harbor where it may be engaged in work impresses it with a local character, and the declared intention of its nonresident owners to remove it from the state as soon as its contract for work is completed, does not exempt it from taxation at the place where found: North American Dredging Co. v. Taylor, 56 Wash. 565, 29 L. R. A., N. S., 105, 106 Pac. 162.

As to situs of personal property for purposes of taxation, see notes in 62 Am. St. Rep. 448; 127 Am. St. Rep. 1092.

Business property investment bonds held by a national bank are real estate, within the meaning of this section, where bonds, issued by a trust company in a sum equal to the alleged value of a specified tract of land, each represented and conveyed to the holder one of the "units" in the land created by a deed of trust, under a scheme devised by the trust company to enable persons to invest small amounts in high priced business property, the trust deed requiring the trust company to pay over to the bondholders certain profits and surplus dividends, together with a share of the net income, and finally to sell the property and distribute the proceeds among the bondholders, the only interest in the land retained by the trust company being a prospective right to share in the net income and in the surplus in the ultimate sale price above the face value of the bonds; especially in view of the presumption against a legislative intent to authorize double taxation impliedly prohibited by constitution, article 7, section 2, and in view of section 9092, defining real property for the purposes of taxation to include all rights and privileges thereto belonging or in any way appertaining: Dexter Horton National Bank v. McKenzie, 69 Wash. 314, 124 Pac. 915.

In the absence of any showing, it will be presumed that a national bank legally acquired its real estate, the assessed value of which it seeks to have deducted from the assessed value of its capital stock: Dexter Horton National Bank v. McKenzie, 69 Wash. 314, 124 Pac. 915.

The assessment of bank stock for the purposes of general taxation, under this section, is a property and not an excise tax, and hence is subject to the constitutional requirement that taxes be uniform and equal (overruling Pac. Nat. Bank v. Pierce County, 20 Wash. 675, 56 Pac. 936, and Ridpath v. Spokane County, 23 Wash. 436, 63 Pac. 261): Spokane & Eastern Trust Co. v. Spokane County, 70 Wash. 48, 126 Pac. 54.

As to state taxation of national banks, see note in 69 Am. St. Rep. 38.

CHAPTER IV.ASSESSMENT OF RAILROADS.*§ 9141.

See notes to § 8638.

The law making it the duty of the tax commissioners to classify railroad property and superintend its assessments, instructions sent out to all assessors fixing the assessment on different classes of railroad track and rolling stock will be presumed to have been sent in conformity to the law, and are binding upon the county assessors; and a larger assessment by an assessor is void, notwithstanding he honestly endeavored to assess it at sixty per cent of its value, uniformly with other property in the county: Great Northern R. Co. v. Snohomish County, 54 Wash. 23, 102 Pac. 881.

Where railway property is assessed upon a higher standard than other railway property and an unequal burden is placed upon it, the company is denied the guaranties of the constitution, and may object although the property was assessed at less than its actual value: State ex rel. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. Clausen, 63 Wash. 535, 116 Pac. 7.

As to the necessity that taxes be levied uniformly and equally, see note in 127 Am. St. Rep. 1045.

An arbitrary order of the state tax commission raising the valuation of railroad property from $19,500,000 to $27,529,771, cannot be sustained on appeal from the order, when the record on appeal does not show the introduction of any evidence or any inquiry by the commission such as is contemplated by this section since no presumptions can be indulged on a direct appeal from the finding: State ex rel. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. Clausen, 63 Wash. 535, 116 Pac. 7.

A determination by the tax commission as to the amount to be assessed against railroad tracks being binding upon county assessors, it is immaterial that the commissioners viewed their powers as only advisory: Great Northern R. Co. v. Snohomish County, 54 Wash. 23, 102 Pac. 881.

In the absence of fraud, the courts cannot review the discretion of the tax commission in determining the amount at which different classes of railroad track shall be assessed: Great Northern R. Co. v. Snohomish County, 54 Wash. 23, 102 Pac. 881.

§ 9152. Assessments—Realty and Personalty.

In making the assessments of the operating property of railroads, and in the apportionment of the values and the taxation thereof, as hereinbefore provided, all land occupied and claimed exclusively as the right of way for railroads, with all the tracks, and substructures and superstructures which support the same, together with all sidetracks, second tracks, turn-outs, station-houses, depots, roundhouses, machine-shops, or other buildings belonging to the road used in the operation thereof, without separating the same into land and improvements, shall be assessed and taxed as real property. And the rolling stock and other movable property belonging to any railroad company shall be considered as personal property and shall be assessed and taxed as such: Provided, That all of the operating property of street railroads shall be assessed and taxed as personal property. [L. '11, p. 62, § 1.]

CHAPTER VI.

ASSESSMENT OF TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE COMPANIES, ELECTRIC LIGHT LINES, ETC.

§ 9175.

Failure of a telegraph company to list all its tangible property for taxation does not preclude it from resisting a tax on its federal franchise: Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lakin, 53 Wash. 326, 17 Ann. Cas. 718, 101 Pac. 1094.

CHAPTER VII.

INHERITANCE TAX.

§ 9183. Tax Graduated—Rate of Levy.

The inheritance tax shall be and is to be levied on all estates subject to the operation of this act on all sums above the first ten thousand dollars, where the same shall pass to or for the use of the father, mother, husband, wife, lineal descendant, adopted child, or lineal descendant of an adopted child, one (1) per centum. On all sums not exceeding the first fifty thousand dollars, of three per centum, where such estate passes to collateral heirs to and including the third degree of relationship, and to six per centum where such estates pass to collateral heirs beyond the third degree, or to strangers to the blood. On all sums above the first fifty thousand dollars and not exceeding the first one hundred thousand dollars, four and one-half per centum to collateral heirs, to and including the third degree, and nine per centum to collateral heirs, beyond the third degree, or to strangers to the blood. And on all sums in excess of the first one hundred thousand dollars, the tax shall be six per centum to collateral heirs to and including the third degree, and twelve per centum to collateral heirs beyond the third degree or to strangers to the blood. [L. '11, p. 60, § 2.]

State laws in conflict with treaties between the United States and foreign countries are held in abeyance during the existence of the treaty: In re Stixrud's Estate, 58 Wash. 339, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 850, 33 L. R. A., N. S., 632, 109 Pac. 343.

This section [prior to the above amendment], providing for an inheritance tax of twenty-five per cent on all sums passing to collateral relatives who are aliens not residing in the United States, which exceeds the tax upon relatives who are citizens of the United States, violates the treaty between Norway and Sweden and the United States, which provides that the subjects of the contracting parties may freely dispose of their goods and effects by testament and that their heirs in whatever place they shall reside shall receive the succession, exempt from all duty called "droit de detractation" on the part of the government of the two states respectively, since an inheritance tax is an impost or excise on the right to pass the estate and not a tax upon the property, and the treaty was intended to secure to aliens the right to succeed to property upon the same terms provided by general laws for our own citizens: In re Stixrud's Estate, 58 Wash. 339, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 850, 33 L. R. A., N. S., 632, 109 Pac. 343.

An inheritance tax is properly charged to the beneficiaries: In re Lotzgesell's Estate, 62 Wash. 352, 113 Pac. 1105.

As to construction of inheritance tax laws, see note in 127 Am. St. Rep. 1052. See, also, notes in 1 Ann. Cas. 30; 12 Ann. Cas. 953.

CHAPTER VIII.

EQUALIZATION OF ASSESSMENTS.

§ 9200.

The assessment of the property of others at a lower rate than that of a complaining taxpayer, whose property is not assessed beyond its cash value, does not invalidate the tax: Doty Lumber & Shingle Co. v. Lewis County, 60 Wash. 428, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 870, 111 Pac. 562.

The failure of the board of equalization to raise the assessment on timber uncruised, or where no notice could be given to the owners, does not prevent a raise on cruised timber on notice to the owners and a hearing: Doty Lumber & Shingle Co. v. Lewis County, 60 Wash. 428, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 870, 111 Pac. 562.

The assessment of a city water company's franchise is not shown to be excessive from the fact that the franchises of telephone and light companies were less, there being no evidence to form a basis of comparison: Vancouver Water Works Co. v. Clarke County, 55 Wash. 112, 104 Pac. 180.

In an action to reduce an assessment upon lands containing springs used for a city water supply, it is no evidence of overvaluation that farming lands in the vicinity were assessed at a less rate, or that other things were assessed less, in the absence of proof that they were in demand for a similar use: Vancouver Water Works Co. v. Clarke County, 55 Wash. 112, 104 Pac. 180.

A valuation of fifty thousand dollars for the purposes of assessment for taxation, upon two hundred and seventy-six acres of land, chiefly valuable for limestone deposits, is excessive and constructively fraudulent, and should be reduced to fifteen thousand dollars where the assessor stated that he was unable to fix the value of mineral land unless it was tested or developed, the value did not exceed three dollars to five dollars per acre aside from the limestone, and the land had not been developed and a few years ago had sold for ten thousand dollars; and an offer of fifty thousand dollars made and refused is not a sufficient basis upon which to fix the valuation, where the offer was coupled with a condition that six or seven thousand dollars would be expended in development work and the land be demonstrated to contain sufficient limestone to operate a cement plant of one thousand barrels capacity per day for twenty-one years: Case v. San Juan County, 59 Wash. 222, 109 Pac. 809.

The action of the board of equalization in raising an assessment on timber that has been cruised, on notice given, cannot be reversed or set aside where the board did not act fraudulently or arbitrarily, but in good faith considered the distance of the property from railroads or logging streams, the contour of the land, and quality of the timber: Doty Lumber &

Shingle Co. v. Lewis County, 60 Wash. 528, Ann. Cas. 1912B, 870, 111 Pac. 562.

An assessment cannot be disturbed for mere overvaluation, in the absence of fraud or capriciousness, and clear evidence to overcome the liberal presumption that the assessor performed his duty in a proper manner; and a finding sustaining an assessment will not be disturbed upon conflicting evidence of values, in the absence of fraud: Northern Pac. R. Co. v. Pierce County, 55 Wash. 108, 104 Pac. 178.

As to the principle that taxation shall be in proportion to value or benefit, see note in 2 L. R. A. 826.

Sufficient cause is shown for the vacation of a tax judgment and sale, on petition made within one year, and it is error to deny the same, where it appears that the petitioner lived on the land and had made a good faith effort to ascertain and pay the back taxes prior to the issuance of a delinquency certificate, but was prevented by the act of the county treasurer, and he had had no notice of the suit, summons by publication having been made in a paper of limited circulation at a considerable distance from the property: Brewer v. Howard, 59 Wash. 580, 110 Pac. 384.

CHAPTER X.

COLLECTION OF TAXES.

§ 9222-1. Standing Timber—Fish-traps, Nets and Locations.

For the purposes of taxation the following described property shall be deemed personal property and shall be assessed and taxed in the county where situated, viz.:

Standing timber held or owned separately from the ownership of the land upon which it may stand.

Fish-trap, pound-net, reef-net, set-net and drag-seine fishing locations. [L. '11, p. 90, § 1.]

§ 9223a. Penalty, When Delinquent—Distraint for, etc.

On the first Monday in February succeeding the levy of taxes, the county treasurer shall proceed to collect all personal property taxes. He shall give notice by mail to all persons charged with personal property taxes, and if such taxes are not paid on or before the 15th day of March of such year, he shall notify the sheriff of such county, who shall distraint sufficient goods and chattels belonging to the person charged with such taxes to pay the same with interest at the rate of fifteen (15) per cent per annum from the 15th day of March of such year, together with all accruing costs, and shall immediately proceed to advertise the same by posting written notices in three public places in the county in which such property has been levied upon, one of which places shall be at the county courthouse, such notices to state the time when and place where such property will be sold. If the taxes for which such property is distrained and the interest and costs accruing thereon are not paid before the date appointed for such sale, which shall not be less than ten (10) days after the taking of such property, such sheriff shall proceed to sell such property at public auction, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to pay such taxes with interest and costs, and shall pay to the treasurer the money so collected at such sale, and if there be any overplus or money arising from the sale of any personal property, the treasurer shall immediately pay such overplus to the owner of the property so sold, or to his legal representative: Provided, That whenever it shall become necessary to distraint any standing timber owned separately from the ownership of the land upon which the same may stand, or any fish-trap, pound-net, reef-net, set-net or drag-seine fishing location, it shall be deemed to have been distrained and taken into possession when the said sheriff shall have, at least thirty (30) days before the date fixed for the sale thereof, filed with auditor of the county wherein such property is located, a notice in writing citing that he has distrained such property, describing it, giving the name of the owner or reputed owner, the amount of tax due with interest, and the time and place of sale. A copy of said notice shall also be sent to the owner or reputed owner at his last known address by registered letter at least thirty (30) days prior to the date of sale: And provided further, That if any personal property upon which taxes have been levied, but not paid, is about to be removed from the county where the same has been assessed, the county treasurer may demand such taxes without the notice provided for in this section, and if necessary may distrain sufficient goods and chattels to pay the same as provided in this act. [L. '11, p. 90, § 2.]

§ 9223-1. Destruction by Fire—Insurance.

In the event of the destruction of personal property by fire after the 15th day of March of any year, the lien of the personal property tax shall attach to and follow any insurance that may be upon said property and the insurer shall pay to the county treasurer from the said insurance money all taxes, interest and costs that may be due. [L. '11, p. 92, § 3.]

§ 9223-2. List Sent Treasurer.

After personal property has been assessed, it shall be unlawful for any person to remove the same from the state until taxes and interest are paid, or until notice has been given to the county treasurer describing the property to be removed and in case of public sales of personal property, a list of the property desired to be sold shall be sent to the treasurer, and no property shall be sold at such sale until the tax has been paid, the tax to be computed upon the consolidated tax levy for the previous year. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [L. '11, p. 92, § 4.]

§ 9230.

Under this section, providing that a tax lien shall have priority over all other liens or claims, a tax foreclosure and sale passes the fee freed from a prior easement for a private road, where the owner of the easement prior to foreclosure did not seek a segregation of the tax as to the strip of land affected by the easement: Hanson v. Carr, 66 Wash. 81, 118 Pac. 927.

§ 9233.

Where taxes are compromised by one claiming ownership of the land of another, his equitable lien therefor is limited to the sum actually paid, and cannot be extended to cover the original tax or services in making the payment: Vietzen v. Otis, 63 Wash. 411, 115 Pac. 858.

This section has no application to payments by parties claiming to own the land and making payment for themselves, since the statute was intended to protect parties who pay taxes for the use of other persons, and the rule of ejusdem generis applies in the construction of the words

"any other person": Vietzen v. Otis, 63 Wash. 411, 115 Pac. 858.

By this section, notice of application for apportionment of taxes on a tract of land, by the owner of a part, need not be given where the assessed valuation of the tract is less than two thousand dollars: Coleman v. Security Sav. Soc., 57 Wash. 675, 107 Pac. 842.

Where an act for the apportionment of taxes requires the treasurer to carefully investigate and ascertain the proportionate value of the parts sought to be segregated and divide the assessment on that basis, without providing any procedure, he may adopt the procedure deemed most fitting, and will be presumed to have done his full duty, in the absence of a showing that the apportionment is unjust: Coleman v. Security Sav. Soc., 57 Wash. 675, 107 Pac. 842.

This section, prescribing a remedy for the collection of taxes paid by a mortgagee for the purpose of protecting his lien, was not intended as an exclusive remedy; and his equitable right of subrogation does not expire with the lien of his mortgage, the statute providing that the lien for taxes shall continue until the taxes are paid: Childs v. Smith, 58 Wash. 148, 107 Pac. 1053.

When taxes are paid in good faith to protect the property from seizure, and inure to the benefit of the owner, a lien for repayment of the taxes is imposed on the premises: Dalpardno v. Trumbull, 61 Wash. 659, 112 Pac. 928.

This section, making the lien for taxes on real estate commence by relation on March 1st of the year in which they were levied, creates only an incipient or inchoate lien to become complete only on the making of a valid levy: State v. Snohomish County, 71 Wash. 320, 128 Pac. 667.

Under this section, providing that taxes assessed upon personal property shall be a lien thereon, regardless of transfers made, a vendee under a conditional sale, whereby the title to personal property remained in the vendor, cannot maintain an action to restrain the distraint of the property for personal property taxes, since it is immaterial who holds the title thereto, or to whom it was assessed: Lewis Construction Co. v. King County, 60 Wash. 694, 111 Pac. 892.

There is no implied exemption from the burden of taxation: Trimble v. Seattle, 64 Wash. 102, 116 Pac. 647.

CHAPTER XI.

CERTIFICATES OF DELINQUENCY, FORECLOSURE, TAX DEEDS, ETC.

§ 9252.

Under Laws of 1897, page 183, section 98, which designated no particular time for the issuance of a certificate of delinquency to a county, a certificate on the taxes for 1895 could be issued on January 31, 1898: Cavanaugh v. Roberts, 50 Wash. 265, 97 Pac. 55.

Where a tax for 1895 became delinquent May 31, 1896, by the law then in force, and a certificate of delinquency issued, August 1, 1901, for taxes for the year 1895, more than five years had elapsed, as required by the act of 1901: Timmerman v. McCullagh, 55 Wash. 204, 104 Pac. 212.

A certificate of delinquency for taxes that have been paid by the holder of a prior certificate is void, and cannot sustain an action for foreclosure, although the holder paid the taxes for three subsequent years upon which he might have secured a certificate: Trumbull v. Bruce, 64 Wash. 644, 117 Pac. 472.

A certificate of delinquency is invalidated by the inclusion of the attorney's fees and other costs of the foreclosure of a prior certificate which are not allowable in such foreclosures: Trumbull v. Bruce, 64 Wash. 644, 117 Pac. 472.

A tax certificate for the year 1905, upon property which was exempt from taxation that year, is not void so as to furnish no jurisdiction for foreclosure, where the holder, as such, paid taxes for five subsequent years when the property was not exempt, and sought foreclosure of the certificate for the subsequent years, as valid liens; since the certificate was prima facie evidence that the property was subject to taxation in 1905, upon which the holder had a right to rely in paying subsequent taxes, the result of which was to transfer to her the county's tax liens for the subsequent years: Foley v. Oberlin Congregational Church, 67 Wash. 280, 121 Pac. 65.

§ 9254.

In this state, the owner is not personally liable for taxes assessed against his real property, the statutory method of enforcing the same as a lien being exclusive: Clizer v. Krauss, 57 Wash. 26, 106 Pac. 145.

The applicant for the foreclosure of a certificate of delinquency must pay all taxes due and unpaid on the property: Trumbull v. Bruce, 64 Wash. 644, 117 Pac. 472.

A tax foreclosure judgment secured by a private individual by publication of summons without personal service of the summons on the owner to whom the land was assessed, and who lived on the premises, is void, and is properly vacated in an action to set it aside: Rust v. Kennedy, 52 Wash. 472, 100 Pac. 998.

The failure of a summons in a tax foreclosure to properly describe the property, as required by Ballinger's Code, section 1751, vitiates the tax judgment and sale, as the statute must be strictly pursued to obtain jurisdiction: Wick v. Rea, 54 Wash. 424, 103 Pac. 462.

The foreclosure of a tax certificate is void where there was no attempt made to personally serve the defendant, who lived in the city and whose name and address was in the city directory, and service was had by publication upon an attorney's affidavit of nonresidence and the sheriff's return of not found, made immediately upon presenting the summons at the sheriff's office without any attempt to find or serve the defendant: Olson v. Johns, 56 Wash. 12, 104 Pac. 1116.

A tax foreclosure proceeding without the service of any process is without jurisdiction and void: Silverstone v. Harn, 66 Wash. 440, 120 Pac. 109.

A county tax foreclosure of a general delinquency certificate is not void because the summons for publication incorrectly stated the date of the certificate, such requirement being descriptive only and to aid in identification, and is not essential to the jurisdiction of the court nor fatal to the proceedings, in the absence of a showing that the party was misled: Timmerman v. McCullagh, 55 Wash. 204, 104 Pac. 212.

A tax foreclosure summons is not so uncertain as to render the judgment void merely because of the use of the word "or" instead of "of" in describing the "N. E. $\frac{1}{4}$ of the S. W. $\frac{1}{4}$ " of a certain section, where it was followed by "40 acres," denoting the quantity of the land: Stanchfield v. Blessing, 55 Wash. 620, 104 Pac. 800.

As to omission of affidavit for service by publication, see note in 36 L. R. A., N. S., 1064.

A foreclosure of a tax delinquency certificate, under the act of 1899, which did not define the owner or authorize proceedings against the persons appearing as owners on the tax-rolls, is void, where the action proceeded upon personal service against defendants who had no interest in the land, and no publication was had against unknown owners or any other service had, as the owner never had his day in court: Jones v. Seattle Brick & Tile Co., 56 Wash. 166, 105 Pac. 238.

Under this section, subdivision 2, a summons by publication requiring the defendant to appear within sixty days after the "service" of the summons is not in accordance with the statute, and is insufficient to confer jurisdiction to enter a judgment of default: Pillsbury v. Beresford, 58 Wash. 656, 109 Pac. 193; Worthington v. La Violette, 60 Wash. 525, 111 Pac. 784.

A nonresident plaintiff in an action to set aside a tax deed is sufficiently identified as the grantee in a recorded deed from the conceded holder of the title, where he testified that he purchased the lot from such holder, paid for it, and produced tax receipts showing payment by him of taxes thereon, and that he lived in the state given as the residence of the grantee in the deed: Pillsbury v. Beresford, 58 Wash. 656, 109 Pac. 193.

In an action to set aside a default judgment in a tax foreclosure, a finding that there was no summons other than a defective publication shown by the files is warranted where the defendants in the foreclosure were nonresidents, did not enter any appearance, or know of the action and were not personally served, the files show no other service than the defective publication, and there was no affirmative showing that any other service was made: Pillsbury v. Beresford, 58 Wash. 656, 109 Pac. 193.

In an action to set aside a default judgment in a tax foreclosure, a finding that there was no summons other than a defective publication shown by the files is warranted where the defendants in the foreclosure were not personally served, the files show no other service than the defective publication, and there was no affirmative showing that any other service was made: Worthington v. La Violette, 60 Wash. 525, 111 Pac. 784.

A tax certificate upon land purchased by the state constitutes a mere cloud and not a lien, in view of the fact that there is no statutory authority for enforcing the lien against the state: State v. Snohomish County, 71 Wash. 320, 128 Pac. 667.

TIME FOR APPEARANCE ON PUBLICATION OF SUMMONS.—Under Laws of 1897, page 182, section 96, subdivision 3, a summons by publication requiring the defendant to appear within sixty days after the "service" of the summons is not in accordance with the statute, and is insufficient to confer jurisdiction to enter a judgment of default: Gould v. White, 54 Wash. 394, 103 Pac. 460; Hembree v. McFarland, 55 Wash. 605, 104 Pac. 837; Thompson v. Schoner, 58 Wash. 642, 109 Pac. 116.

An individual tax foreclosure and deed is void as to an owner of a one-sixth interest, and his successor, where there was no personal service and the summons for publication required an appearance within sixty days after service of the summons: Flueck v. Pedigo, 55 Wash. 646, 104 Pac. 1119.

Laws of 1897, page 136, section 116, authorizing the foreclosure of prior tax liens is expressly limited to lands forfeited to the county for taxes due and remaining unpaid at the date of the passage of the act, and was not intended to apply to forfeited lands upon which the taxes had already been paid by purchasers and certificates of purchase issued under the law of 1893: Barker v. Muehler, 55 Wash. 411, 104 Pac. 637.

§ 9258.

See notes to § 9265.

Where the full legal title to land is in a trustee for a minor, the minor cannot redeem the land from tax sale under this section, his remedy being against the trustee: Burdick v. Kimball, 53 Wash. 198, 101 Pac. 845.

This section, permitting any "minor heir" to redeem land sold for taxes does not apply to a minor for whom land had been deeded in trust and who had not inherited the property, as the statute is clear, and the history of the act shows "heirs" to have been advisedly used in order to limit the right to redeem to those who take by descent (Per Mount, J., with whom Crow, Dunbar, and Parker, JJ., concur; Chadwick, J., dissenting, with whom Rudkin, C. J., Fullerton and Gose, JJ., concur.): Burdick v. Kimball, 53 Wash. 198, 101 Pac. 845.

The neglect of a party to pay taxes for many years does not amount to laches that would bar an action to redeem the property within the statutory period: Gould v. White, 54 Wash. 394, 103 Pac. 460.

Upon setting aside a void tax foreclosure, six per cent interest is properly allowed upon taxes paid, since the statutory penalty of fifteen per cent runs only from the time the certificate is taken out until the taxes are paid, whether voluntarily or by foreclosure: Gould v. White, 62 Wash. 406, 114 Pac. 159.

Taxes may be redeemed at any time before a valid tax deed is issued, and insufficiency of the tender therefore is immaterial where the tax title holder refused to consider a tender useless unless another outside claim was also paid: Stockand v. Hall, 54 Wash. 106, 102 Pac. 1037.

Proceedings for the apportionment of taxes on a tract of land, followed by a redemption of the part of the applicant, are not affected by a mistake of the taxing officer in describing the land in the redemption certificate: Coleman v. Security Sav. Soc., 57 Wash. 675, 107 Pac. 842.

As to necessity for strict compliance with statute in redeeming from a tax sale, see note in 9 L. R. A. 767.

In a general tax foreclosure prosecuted by the county, the summons is sufficient if the property is properly described, notwithstanding a mistake in the name of the owner: Patterson v. Toler, 71 Wash. 535, 129 Pac. 107.

Repeals by implication not being favored, this section, which is a special act permitting a minor to redeem his real property from tax sale, at any time after sale and before the expiration of one year after removal of his disability, was not repealed by the general act of 1907, page 398, Rem. & Bal. Code, section 162, providing a limitation for the bringing of actions to set aside tax deeds or for the recovery of land sold for taxes: Seattle Land & Improvement Co. v. Blum, 71 Wash. 530, 128 Pac. 1066.

A tender of taxes by a minor, pursuant to this section, ipso facto operates as a redemption, the right being highly favored, requiring a liberal construction: Seattle Land & Improvement Co. v. Blum, 71 Wash. 530, 128 Pac. 1066.

The right of a minor to redeem his land sold for taxes, within one year after attaining majority, given by this section, is assignable, and may be exercised by his grantee, especially where he warranted the title: Seattle Land & Improvement Co. v. Blum, 71 Wash. 530, 128 Pac. 1066.

§ 9260.

A tax foreclosure is a special proceeding for a special purpose, and if it fails, the court cannot retain jurisdiction to grant general relief or establish an equitable lien for taxes paid: Barker v. Muehler, 55 Wash. 411, 104 Pac. 637.

Under a statute requiring the judge in a tax foreclosure to order the clerk to enter an order of sale to be signed by the judge and attested by the clerk, and to certify a copy thereof to the treasurer, a judgment, signed by the judge, containing an order of sale is a sufficient order of sale; and failure of the clerk to "attest" the same does not render it void, where the clerk certified a copy thereof to the treasurer: Trumbull v. Jefferson County, 62 Wash. 503, 114 Pac. 186.

In a tax foreclosure suit, personal judgment should not be entered for costs: Sound Inv. Co. v. Bellingham Bay Land Co., 53 Wash. 470, 102 Pac. 234.

The foreclosure of a tax certificate being a special proceeding, upon the failure of the action, the court cannot retain jurisdiction to grant relief for taxes paid, and the action should be dismissed without prejudice to an appropriate proceeding to establish an equitable lien: Trumbull v. Bruce, 64 Wash. 644, 117 Pac. 472.

Upon a collateral attack of a tax foreclosure sale of mining claims, a notice of sale describing the claims as the R. lode and the C. lode, with the number of acres in each, when the government patents named them as the R. lode and the C. "Fraction," is sufficient, in the absence of a showing that the claims could not be found from the description given: Old Republic Mining Co. v. Ferry County, 69 Wash. 600, 125 Pac. 1018.

This section has no application to appeals from judgments in independent actions in equity to set aside a tax foreclosure judgment and sale and to quiet title, which must be taken within ninety days (McCausland v. Bailey, 51 Wash. 183, overruled): Gould v. Knox, 53 Wash. 248, 101 Pac. 886.

A tax foreclosure judgment and sale is not void because of an overcharge of interest, since the owner has an opportunity to defend and is estopped to raise any but jurisdictional questions: Timmerman v. McCullagh, 55 Wash. 204, 104 Pac. 212.

A tax foreclosure judgment and sale cannot be attacked collaterally because the officer making the sale did not have a certified copy of the order of sale, where the officer in his return recites that the order was "directed and delivered" to him, since all presumptions are in favor of the regularity of the proceedings: Timmerman v. McCullagh, 55 Wash. 204, 104 Pac. 212.

An action to recover possession of lands sold for taxes and to set aside the tax judgment is a direct and not a collateral attack upon the tax foreclosure: Hembree v. McFarland, 55 Wash. 605, 104 Pac. 837.

Where a tenant in common pays a tax judgment and takes an assignment of the judgment, the certificate is merged in the judgment, and the payment operates for the benefit of the remaining tenants in common, subject to a lien for their portion of the tax, under this section, providing that the receipt of redemption money shall operate as a release of all claims by virtue of the certificate, and section 9258, providing that any person interested in lands may pay the taxes and have a lien for the payments made, and section 9259, providing that redemption shall inure to the benefit of the legal or equitable title, subject to the right of reimbursement of the person making the payment: Trumbull v. Bruce, 64 Wash. 644, 117 Pac. 472.

§ 9267.

Efforts of the owner in good faith to pay taxes before delinquency, which were prevented by mistake of the county treasurer in informing him that the taxes were paid, are equivalent to payment, rendering a tax sale therefor void: Gleason v. Owens, 53 Wash. 483, 132 Am. St. Rep. 1087, 17 Ann. Cas. 819, 102 Pac. 425.

A tax judgment may be collaterally attacked in a suit to quiet title where the tax has been paid, or the real estate is not subject to taxation, under the express exceptions of this section: Martin v. Rankert, 67 Wash. 325, 121 Pac. 817.

As to contesting tax title, see note in 2 L. R. A. 773.

A tax deed, upon foreclosure of a delinquency certificate, is void where, long before the date of delinquency, the owner sent the county treasurer more than enough money to pay all taxes, receipt for which was duly issued, and the certificate of delinquency was issued by mistake of the treasurer, and foreclosure and sale were had without actual notice to the owner: Loving v. Maltbie, 64 Wash. 336, 116 Pac. 1086.

The negligence of the county treasurer prevented the payment of taxes and a county tax deed is void, where the owner attempted in good faith to pay taxes upon platted property, and on furnishing a list was informed by the county treasurer that all delinquent taxes were paid; and it is immaterial whether the lists furnished described the property by government subdivision as assessed at one time, or it has been platted and assessed later: Blinn v. Grindle, 58 Wash. 679, 109 Pac. 122.

A tax foreclosure and deed is void where the owners, in an honest attempt to pay the taxes, delivered to the county treasurer a list of the property and blank checks with authority to fill in the same for the amount, and through an error of the treasurer, not known to the owners, taxes on part of the property were not paid: Puget Sound Nat. Bank v. Biswanger, 59 Wash. 134, 109 Pac. 327.

As to right of redemption as affected by error or negligence of tax official, see note in 6 L. R. A. 50.

A sale of land for taxes by a county treasurer to a deputy in his office is void as against public policy: Coughlin v. Holmes, 53 Wash. 692, 102 Pac. 772.

A mortgagee cannot acquire a tax title against the mortgaged property and hold the same against the mortgagor, except as a lien for the taxes paid, and one acquiring the tax title under a conspiracy with the mortgagee can acquire no greater right than could the mortgagee: Maher v. Potter, 60 Wash. 443, 111 Pac. 453.

A tax deed is not void on its face, where it is in the statutory form, recites the tax proceedings before the sale, and expresses the consideration in the language of the statute: Huber v. Brown, 57 Wash. 654, 107 Pac. 850.

The statute does not require a tax deed to be acknowledged: Huber v. Brown, 57 Wash. 654, 107 Pac. 850.

A certificate of purchase issued for lands forfeited to a county for taxes under the act of 1893 is void under section 133 of the act, if a deed is not taken out and recorded within one year after the expiration of the time for redemption: Barker v. Muehler, 55 Wash. 411, 104 Pac. 637.

A description in a tax foreclosure and deed of a lot "less west two feet," where the boundary line varied about twelve degrees from due north and south, is a sufficiently definite description of the lot, less two feet cut off by a north and south line, measured from the most westerly point of the lot, under a liberal construction of the provisions of Laws of 1899, page 301, requiring the sale of land for taxes to be made by selling a portion of the east side of the tract, determined by "a line drawn due north and south far enough west of the eastern point of the tract to make the requisite quantity": Lara v. Peterson, 56 Wash. 70, 105 Pac. 160.

Where land had been assessed for several years under the latest plat, superseding an earlier plat, a duplicate tax resulting from a mistake in again placing the property on the tax-rolls under the earlier plat and descriptions is void, and purchasers at a tax sale thereunder acquire no title: Martin v. Rankert, 67 Wash. 325, 121 Pac. 817.

In a collateral attack upon a tax foreclosure sale, the deed is conclusive of the regularity of the proceedings as against mere omissions in the recitals contained in the record, in view of the statute making the deed prima facie evidence that the sale was conducted in the manner required by law: Old Republic Mining Co. v. Ferry County, 69 Wash. 600, 125 Pac. 1018.

As to tax deed as presumptive evidence of title, see note in 2 L. R. A. 773.

A certificate of purchase of lands forfeited to a county for taxes, pursuant to Laws of 1893, page 323, sections 115, 134, entitles the holder to a tax deed upon application within one year after the time for redemption expires; and the certificate was not converted into a certificate of delinquency that could be foreclosed by the act of 1897, page 136, section 116, since the legislature could not impair the obligation of the contract; and an action to foreclose the same is properly dismissed: Barker v. Muehler, 55 Wash. 411, 104 Pac. 637.

The requirement that a tax sale be made at the front door of the courthouse is complied with where it was held inside of the building, twenty-five or thirty feet from and in plain view of the glass front doors and of people upon the street near the front doors: Trumbull v. Jefferson County, 62 Wash. 503, 114 Pac. 186.

The principle of equitable estoppel applies against a county's asserting title to land acquired by it in a proprietary capacity at a county tax sale, where, before the running of limitations against an action to set aside the tax deed, upon the advice of its attorney and the existence of a controversy over the validity of the tax deed, the county commissioners allowed the owner to "redeem" by paying all taxes, and executed and delivered to him a quitclaim deed, and thereby induced a bona fide purchaser to rely on the title and to pay taxes for six years, although, under this section, lands acquired by a county at tax sale could only be sold and disposed of at public sale: Franklin County v. Carstens, 68 Wash. 176, 122 Pac. 999.

CHAPTER XII.

ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION OF TAXES IN CITIES OF FIRST CLASS.

§ 9281.

This section does not conflict with the Everett city charter, section 222, limiting the levy to eight mills on the dollar, under the rule that the two must be construed together and harmonized, if possible, since the statute merely requires the fixing of the rate within the limit, and a levy in excess of eight mills is accordingly void: McGill v. Hedges, 62 Wash. 274, 113 Pac. 635.

TITLE LXXVIII.

TOWNSHIPS.

CHAPTER III.

TOWN MEETINGS, POWERS OF TOWNS.

§ 9339½. Powers of Electors.

The electors of each town have power, at their annual town meeting:

First. To determine the number of poundmasters, and location of pounds.

Second. To select such town officers as are required to be chosen.

Third. To direct the institution or defense of actions in all controversies where such town is interested.

Fourth. To direct such sums to be raised in such town for prosecuting or defending such actions as they may deem necessary.

Fifth. To make all rules and regulations for ascertaining the sufficiency of fences in such town and for impounding animals.

Sixth. To determine the time and manner in which certain domestic animals may be permitted to go at large.

Seventh. To impose such penalties on persons offending against any rules or regulations established by said town, except such as relate to the keeping and maintaining of fences, as they think proper, not exceeding ten dollars for each offense, unless herein otherwise provided.

Eighth. To apply such penalties, when collected, in such manner as they may deem most conducive to the interests of the town.

Ninth. To vote to raise such sums of money for the repairs and construction of roads and bridges as they deem necessary, and to determine the amount thereof to be assessed by the supervisors as labor tax and the amount thereof to be assessed and collected as other town taxes. Also to vote such sums of money for other necessary town charges as they deem expedient: Provided, That they may, at their annual town meeting, direct such an amount of the poll and road tax of the town to be expended on the highways in an adjoining town as they deem conducive to the interests of the town, which labor and tax shall be expended under the direction of the supervisors of the town furnishing the same.

Tenth. To vote by ballot to establish a town library for the use of the people thereof and when established to make all by-laws, rules and regulations necessary for the management thereof; to raise a sum not exceeding three hundred ($300) dollars in any one year for the providing of books, furnishing a place to keep such library, and pay a librarian for his services; said sum to be expended on the direction of the board.

Eleventh. To instruct by vote the board to purchase grounds for a town cemetery; to limit the price to be paid therefor, to raise a tax for payment thereon and to establish rules for the care and management of the same.

Twelfth. To authorize the licensing of dogs.

Thirteenth. To make such by-laws and regulations as may be deemed conducive to the peace, good order and welfare of the town; to license, tax, regulate and control hawkers, peddlers, auctioneers, shows, theatricals, circuses, lawful games, merry-go-rounds, ferris-wheels, or other amusement devices or places of amusement.

Fourteenth. To acquire land containing pits of gravel or quarries of stone needed by the town for road construction, proceeding in the same manner that land is condemned for road and other public purposes. [L. '11, p. 113, § 1; L. '13, p. 441, § 1.]

See notes to § 6292.

CHAPTER IV.

QUALIFICATIONS OF TOWN OFFICERS.

§ 9357. Overseers and Poundmasters to File Acceptance of Office.

Every person elected or appointed to the office of overseer of highways or poundmaster, before he enters on the duties of his office, and within two weeks after he is notified of his election or appointment, shall file in the office of the town clerk a notice signifying his acceptance of such office. A neglect to file such notice shall be deemed a refusal to serve. Every person elected or appointed to the office of overseer of highways, before he enters upon the duties of his office, and within two weeks after he is notified of his election or appointment, shall take and subscribe before the town clerk or justice of the peace an oath to support the constitution of the United States and of the state of Washington, and faithfully to discharge the duties of his office to the best of his ability. Such overseer of highways shall also execute and deliver to the supervisors of the town and their successors in office a bond, with one or more sureties, to be approved by the board of supervisors, in an amount determined by said board, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties. [L. '13, p. 443, § 2.]

§ 9358. Treasurer to Give Bond.

Every person appointed or elected to the office of treasurer, before he enters upon the duties of his office, shall execute and deliver to the supervisors of the town and their successors in office, a bond, with one or more sureties, to be approved by the board of supervisors, in double the probable amount of money to be in his hands at any one time, which amount shall be determined by said board, conditioned for the faithful execution of his duties as such treasurer. [L. '13, p. 444, § 3.]

§ 9362. Effect of Neglect to Give Bond.

If any person elected or appointed to the office of treasurer, constable or overseer of highways does not give such bond and take such oath as is required above, within the time limited for that purpose, such neglect shall be deemed a refusal to serve. [L. '13, p. 444, § 4.]

§ 9364. Officers not to be Interested in Contracts.

No town officer shall become a party to or interested, directly or indirectly, in any contract made by the board of which he may be a member: Provided, This shall not be construed to prohibit the employment of a team or teams belonging to a township officer when a required number of teams, owned in the township, are not otherwise obtainable, or the employment of a township officer as a day laborer. Every contract or payment voted for or made contrary to the provisions of this title is void and any violation of this section hereafter committed shall be a malfeasance in office, which will subject the officer so offending to be removed from office. [L. '13, p. 444, § 5.]

CHAPTER V.

FILLING VACANCIES.

§ 9366. Vacancies—How Filled.

The board of county commissioners of any county may, for sufficient cause shown to them, accept the resignation of any town officer in any township in their county, and whenever they accept any such resignation, they shall forthwith appoint another elector of the town to the office, and shall give notice thereof in writing to the person so appointed and to the town clerk; or in the case of a vacancy in the office of town clerk or overseer of highways, to the chairman of the board of supervisors of the town. [L. '13, p. 444, § 6.]

CHAPTER VI.

DUTIES OF TOWN SUPERVISORS.

§ 9368. Powers and Duties of.

The supervisors shall have charge of such affairs of the town as are not by law committed to other town officers; and they shall have power to designate the justice of the peace, or other suitable person, as police judge in and for such township; and such police judge shall have the same powers and duties as are conferred by law upon the police judge in cities of the fourth class; and they shall have power to draw orders on the town treasurer for the disbursement of such sums as may be necessary for the purpose of defraying the incidental expenses of the town, and for all moneys raised by the town to be disbursed for any other purpose. They shall have charge of all highways and bridges in their respective townships, and the care and supervision thereof; and shall have power to divide their respective townships into road districts and to appoint one resident elector of each road district as overseer thereof for the first year of township organization; to establish new highways and bridges and to vacate or alter all highways and bridges wholly within the township in the same manner as now provided by law for the establishing of new highways and bridges and the vacation or alteration of the same by the county commissioners in the case of county roads and bridges, except that the duties therein provided to be performed by the county commissioners shall be performed by the township board of supervisors except that all notices therein provided shall be given by the county engineer and all meetings therein provided shall be held at his office in the county courthouse and all records and files maintained therein, and all expenses for the condemnation and procuring of right of ways therein provided shall be met and paid by the township treasurer on order of the board of township supervisors, and it shall be unlawful for any township funds to be expended upon any roads not established in accordance with said law: Provided, Nothing in this act contained shall be construed as prohibiting any county from or denying to any county the power to build, repair, alter and maintain, at the county's expense, such highways and bridges as the county generally is interested in or such as may be of so large cost that a single township could not undertake the construction of, or such as are located in sparsely settled townships as are unable to construct the same. [L. '11, p. 113, § 1.]

This section does not affect the jurisdiction of the county over a county road wholly within the township sought to be established by the county commissioners, under sections 5623 to 5656, the township not being forced to aid in its construction: Strunz v. Spokane County, 67 Wash. 235, 121 Pac. 75.

CHAPTER VII.

DUTIES OF TOWN CLERK.

§ 9373-1. Duty of Clerk as to Supplies.

It shall be the duty of each township clerk to report to the county auditor on or before the first day of March in each year the amount and the kind of printing supplies, blank books, etc., other than those furnished by the county assessor, needed by the township for the ensuing year. [L. '11, p. 117, § 2.]

§ 9373-2. Supplies Furnished by County.

The county auditor upon receiving the estimates of the various townships shall procure from the lowest bidder the supplies and turn said supplies over to the township ordering the same at actual cost. [L. '11, p. 117, § 3.]

CHAPTER IX.

DUTIES OF TOWN TREASURER.

§ 9392. Shall Draw Money from County Treasurer—Fees.

The town treasurer shall from time to time draw from the county treasurer such moneys as have been received by the county treasurer for the use of his town, and on receipt of such moneys shall deliver proper vouchers therefor. Each town treasurer shall be allowed and entitled to retain, as his official compensation one per centum of all moneys received by him from the county treasurer, and one per centum of all moneys paid out in the redemption of warrants: Provided, however, That the compensation of said treasurer shall in no case exceed the sum of one hundred dollars in any one year. [L. '13, p. 445, § 7.]

§ 9392-1. Township Depository.

Each township treasurer shall annually within thirty days after taking office, designate some bank of the state as a depository of all public funds held and acquired to be kept by him as such treasurer: Provided, That the bank designated by the township treasurer shall furnish, if required by the board of supervisors, to the township an indemnity bond equal in amount to the official bond of said treasurer, such designation shall be filed in writing as part of the minutes of the township board. [L. '13, p. 446, § 9.]

CHAPTER XI.

THE ASSESSMENT OF PROPERTY.

§ 9400. County Assessor to Furnish Assessors' Books and Blanks.

First. The county assessor shall annually provide the necessary assessment-books and blanks at the expense of the county, for and to correspond with each assessment district. He shall make out in the real property assessment-book complete lists of all lands or lots subject to taxation, showing the names of the owners, if to him known, and, if unknown, so stated opposite each tract or lot, the number of acres and the lots and parts of lots or block included in each description of property. The list of real property becoming subject to assessment and taxation every odd-numbered year may be appended to the personal property assessment-book. The assessment-books and blanks shall be delivered to the county assessor on or before the second Saturday of March in each year, and the town assessors shall meet on that day at the office of the county assessor for the purpose of receiving such books and blanks, and for conference with the said county assessor in reference to the performance of their duties and that all township assessors shall perform their duties under the supervision of the county assessor.

Second. The county assessor shall in making up his work for the county board of equalization, add thereto the assessment-rolls of the various townships and the same shall be equalized by the county board of equalization as between townships as other property in such counties is equalized. If it shall be necessary to raise the assessment of a township or townships, the county board of equalization shall serve written notice upon the chairman of the township board of supervisors of its intention so to do and shall also give general notice by publication to the residents of such township or townships at least five days previous to raising such assessment. [L. '11, p. 113, § 1.]

CHAPTER XII.

TOWN TAXES AND CHARGES.

§ 9403. Taxes—When to be Certified.

All taxes shall be levied or voted in specific amounts, and the rates per centum shall be determined from the amount of property, as equalized by the county board of equalization each year, except such general taxes as may be definitely fixed by law. The taxes voted by townships, and not previously returned to the county auditor, and all delinquent poll, road and other taxes to be collected by any town officer, and due and unpaid, shall be certified by the proper authorities to the county auditor on or before the first day of November in each year. There shall be levied annually on each dollar of taxable property in the state [township] (other than such as by law is otherwise taxed), as assessed and entered on the tax lists for the several purposes enumerated, taxes at the rates specified as follows: For township purposes, such sum as may be voted at any legal town meeting, the rate of which shall not exceed, exclusive of such sums as may be voted at the annual town meeting for road and bridge purposes, two mills in any township having a taxable valuation of one hundred thousand dollars or more, and the amount of which shall not exceed one hundred and fifty dollars in any township having a taxable valuation less than one hundred thousand dollars, and the rate of such tax shall not exceed one-half of one per cent in any township. The rate of tax for road and bridge purposes in any township shall not exceed eight mills per dollar: Provided, That nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the township supervisors or corporate authorities of any town from levying any tax which by any special law they may be authorized to levy. [L. '13, p. 445, § 8.]

§ 9406-1. County to Set Aside Certain Amounts.

Whenever any county of this state shall have adopted township organization it shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners of such county to set aside from the levy of the current year the following sums, which shall be paid to the township treasurer in the manner provided by law: To each township for current expenses, one hundred dollars; to each township for township roads and bridges, twenty-five per cent of the amount levied upon the property of said township for construction and repair of roads and bridges. [L. '13, p. 446, § 10.]

CHAPTER XIV.

POLL TAX—COLLECTION OF TOWN TAXES.

§ 9411.

An allegation that by reason of the closing of the polls before the time fixed by law many qualified voters were deprived of the right of voting is not sufficient to invalidate the election where it does not appear how long before the closing hour the polls were closed, or that any voters coming to the polls before that time were prevented from voting: Murphy v. Spokane, 64 Wash. 681, 117 Pac. 576.

As to irregularity in opening or closing polls as one which will avoid the election, see note in 90 Am. St. Rep. 78.

CHAPTER XV.

FEES OF TOWN OFFICERS.

§ 9414. Poundmaster—Duties—Fees.

The poundmaster shall be allowed the following fees, to wit: For taking into pound and discharging therefrom any horse, ass or mule and all neat cattle, fifty cents each; and for every hog, large or small, sheep or lamb, goat or kid, twenty-five cents each; and fifty cents a day for keeping each head of horses, asses, mules or neat cattle twenty-four hours, and twenty cents for keeping each hog, sheep or goat, for each twenty-four hours. And the poundmaster has a lien on all such animals for the full amount of his legal charges and expenses, and shall be entitled to the possession of such animals until the same are paid; and if the same are not paid, and said animals removed, within four days after they are so impounded, the said poundmaster shall give notice by posting the same in three of the most public places in said town, or by personal notice in writing, if the owner is known, that said animals (describing them) are impounded and that, unless the same are taken away and fee paid within fifteen days after the date of such notice, he will sell the same at public vendue at the place where the town meetings of said town are usually held; and on the day designated in such notice the said poundmaster shall expose the said animals for sale, and sell the same to the highest bidder in cash, for which service he shall receive two per cent of the purchase money for each animal. Out of the money realized from said sale, the said poundmaster shall deduct all his legal fees and charges, and pay the balance, if any, to the chairman of the town supervisors, at the same time giving to said supervisors an accurate description of the animals sold, and the amount received by him for each animal, and shall take a receipt and duplicate therefor, and file one of them with the town clerk: Provided, That the said supervisors shall, at any time within six months, upon sufficient proof from the owner of any animal so sold, pay to said owner the balance due as received from the said poundmaster; but if said money is not claimed within that time the sum so received shall be retained for the use of said town. [L. '11, p. 113, § 1.]

CHAPTER XXI.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

§ 9436-1. Obligations Against Road Districts Under Township Organization.

Whenever any county has heretofore, or shall hereafter, adopt and take upon itself township organization and government under the provisions of any law passed pursuant to the provisions of section 4, article 11 of the constitution of this state, authorizing such organization and government, and at the time of the adoption of such form of government there shall exist against any road district in such county, previously created and defined by the commissioners of such county, any obligations for debts incurred in the construction or repair of any roads or bridges in such road district, such change in the government of said county shall not in any way affect such existing obligations of any such road district; but all such obligations shall remain and constitute a valid charge upon and against all of the taxable property included within the territorial limits of such road district as it existed at the time of the adoption of such township organization for the full amount of all of said obligations. For the purposes of this act, the territory which comprised said road district shall thereafter comprise and constitute a road tax district of said county, and said road tax district shall be designated by a like number by which said road district was theretofore known. [L. '11, p. 47, § 1.]

§ 9436-2. Road District Tax to be Levied.

There shall be levied annually at the same time the levy for general county taxes is made, and by the officers levying the said county tax, a tax of not more than five mills on the dollar on all taxable property within the territorial limits of every such road district as the same existed at the time of the adoption of such township organization for the payment of and until the full amount of all indebtedness, together with all accrued and accruing interest thereon, existing against any such road district, shall have been paid in full. [L. '11, p. 48, § 2.]

§ 9436-3. Tax Collected as Other Taxes are.

The tax levied, as provided for in section 9436-2, shall be extended upon the tax-rolls of the county, and shall be collected by the county treasurer of said county at the same time and in the same manner as other taxes are collected, and said treasurer shall credit to the proper road tax district all sums collected from any such levy, and all sums so collected shall by the said treasurer be applied to the payment, in the order of their issue, of the outstanding warrants against the road district for the indebtedness of which said levy was made. [L. '11, p. 48, § 3.]

TITLE LXXX.

TRADEMARKS.

§ 9492.

The name of a corporation is not its trademark, as the latter refers to the thing sold, and a trade name embraces both the thing and the individuality of the seller: Eastern Outfitting Co. v. Manheim, 59 Wash. 428, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 251, 110 Pac. 23.

As to general principles in the use of trademarks, see note in 85 Am. St. Rep. 84.

A corporation which was first in the use of the name is not entitled to an injunction preventing the further use of the trade name by a copartnership, since protection to a trade name is only coextensive with the market, and there cannot be unfair trade competition unless there is competition: Eastern Outfitting Co. v. Manheim, 59 Wash. 428, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 251, 110 Pac. 23.

A corporation organized in this state under the name of "Eastern Outfitting Company," for the purpose of selling cloaks, suits and men's clothing, has no exclusive right to the use of the name throughout the state for that purpose; and where its business had been confined to a retail and mail order business in the vicinity of Seattle, it will be enjoined from opening a branch house under the same name in Spokane, for the purpose of defrauding the public and a copartnership that had for several years been doing the same kind of business under the same name in the city of Spokane, where there had been no confusion theretofore owing to the fact that neither had invaded the territory of the other: Eastern Outfitting Co. v. Manheim, 59 Wash. 428, 35 L. R. A., N. S., 251, 110 Pac. 23.

As to right of corporation organized for purposes other than pecuniary profit to use name similar to that of other corporation, see note in Ann. Cas. 1912A, 825.

Although there may be no exclusive right to use a proprietary trademark, nor any breach of contract as to goodwill, yet an injunction will be granted to restrain unfair competition by the fraudulent use of a trade name, and the complaint states a cause of action, where it appears that a corporation had acquired from a partnership in the restaurant business the right to use the individual name of one of the partners, who had previously built up an enviable reputation and trade at a certain location in the city of S., with the right to conduct the business under such individual name, that such partner afterward sold out his stock to his former partner, and soon after organized a new corporation and opened up and began conducting another restaurant and cafe in the same city within a block of the old location, with the same individual name printed in large letters on the front door in such a manner as to make the public believe that the old restaurant had moved to the new location, advertising the same in the daily papers and moving picture shows in the same misleading manner, to the plaintiff's damage: Wright Restaurant Co. v. Seattle Restaurant Co., 67 Wash. 690, 122 Pac. 348.

Under the law making the secretary of state's attested certificate of the recording of a trademark proof of its adoption, and prescribing no form for the certificate, the secretary of state's certified copy of the application and label is sufficient prima facie proof of all acts necessary for registration, including the filing of two copies of the label required by law: State v. Montgomery, 57 Wash. 192, 106 Pac. 771.

An application for registration of trademarks to consist of the words "Typographical Union Label" or "Allied Printing Trades Council," fac-simile of each being attached, is not void as being in the alternative, but is rather an application for the registration of two labels, the law not prohibiting the registration of more than one label on one application: State v. Montgomery, 57 Wash. 192, 106 Pac. 771.

The law does not require application for the registration of a trademark to be made by any particular person, and it is sufficient that one application for two labor union labels, having some interests in common, was made by the president of one of the unions in the interest and for the use of the unions: State v. Montgomery, 57 Wash. 192, 106 Pac. 771.

A complaint for the infringement of a trademark label is sufficient when the charging part is in the words of this section, and the label is identified as that of the Allied Printing Trades Council, adopted, used, and filed as required by law: State v. Montgomery, 57 Wash. 192, 106 Pac. 771.

The title "An act relating to trademarks" is sufficient to embrace penal provisions for violations of the act: State v. Montgomery, 57 Wash. 192, 106 Pac. 771.

TITLE LXXXI.

WATER AND WATER POWER COMPANIES.

CHAPTER I.

POWERS AND RIGHTS OF APPROPRIATION.

§ 9510.

Under this section, providing that corporations organized for the purpose of erecting and maintaining flumes or aqueducts to convey water for irrigation shall have the same right to appropriate lands for necessary corporate purposes as other corporations and to take any water not otherwise legally appropriated, an irrigation company may condemn land for a reservoir site, that being a "necessary corporate purpose" within the act, where it is necessary to store water in order to accomplish irrigation: State ex rel. Golden Valley Irr. Co. v. Superior Court, 67 Wash. 556, 122 Pac. 19.

The title, "An act to amend an act approved November 13, 1873, entitled an act to provide for the formation of corporations," is sufficient and broad enough to include a provision conferring the right of eminent domain on corporations organized for certain purposes: State ex rel. Golden Valley Irr. Co. v. Superior Court, 67 Wash. 556, 122 Pac. 19.

CHAPTER II.

WATER AND POWER DISTRICTS.

§ 9510-1. Water Districts Authorized.

Water districts for the acquirement, construction, maintenance, operation, development and regulation of a water supply system within such districts are hereby authorized to be established in the various counties of this state, as in this act provided. [L. '13, p. 533, § 1.]

§ 9510-2. Formation of District.

At any general election or any special election which may be called for that purpose the board of county commissioners of any county in this state shall on petition of at least twenty-five per cent of the qualified electors residing within the district described in said petition, submit to the voters residing within said district, the proposition of creating a water district which shall be coextensive with the territory described in the petition and the board of county commissioners shall submit such proposition at a special election to be called therefor when such petition so requests. [L. '13, p. 533, § 2.]

§ 9510-3. Petition.

The petition presented to the board of county commissioners shall set forth the territorial extent of the proposed district, particularly describing the same and shall be filed with the county auditor who shall within fifteen days examine the signatures thereto and certify to the sufficiency or insufficiency thereof, and for such purpose the county auditor shall have access to all registration books in the possession of officers of any incorporated city or town in such proposed water district. If such petition be found to be insufficient it shall be returned to the person or persons filing the same who may amend or add names thereto for ten days when the same shall be returned to the county auditor who shall have an additional fifteen days to examine the same and attach his certificate thereto. No person having signed such petition shall be allowed to withdraw his name therefrom after the filing of the same with the county auditor. Whenever such petition shall be certified to as sufficient, the county auditor shall forthwith transmit the same, together with his certificate of sufficiency attached thereto, to the board of county commissioners who shall, at their first meeting thereafter if such petition so requests, by resolution, call a special election to be held not less than thirty nor more than sixty days from the date of such certificate and shall cause to be published a notice of such election at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which said proposed water district is located, which notice shall state the hours during which such polls will be open, the boundaries of the proposed water district and the object of such election, and said notice shall also be posted for ten days in ten public places in such proposed water district. The same notice shall be given in the event of such proposition being submitted at a general election: Provided, In submitting the said question to the voters for their approval or rejection, the proposition shall be expressed on said ballot in the following terms: “—— Water Supply District. Yes.” (Giving the name to such district as may be decided on by the board of county commissioners.) “—— Water Supply District. No.” (Giving the name to such district as may be decided on by the board of county commissioners.) There shall be not less than one polling-place in each of the various wards of any incorporated city or town in the proposed water districts, and one polling place in each precinct in such proposed water district. [L. '13, p. 533, § 3.]

§ 9510-4. Two or More Petitions.

Whenever two or more petitions for the formation of a water district shall be filed as herein provided the petition describing the greater area shall supersede all others and an election shall first be held thereunder, and no lesser water district shall ever be created within the limits, in whole or in part of any water district. [L. '13, p. 534, § 4.]

§ 9510-5. Elections.

If at such election a majority of the voters voting upon such proposition shall vote in favor of the formation of such district the board of county commissioners shall so declare in its canvass of the returns of such elections and such water district shall then be and become a municipal corporation of the state of Washington, and the name of such water district shall be “—— Water District” (inserting the name appearing on the ballot). [L. '13, p. 535, § 5.]

§ 9510-6. Commissioners—Election of.

At the same election, at which the proposition is submitted to the voters as to whether a water district shall be formed, three water commissioners shall be elected to hold office respectively for the terms, one, two, and three years and until their respective successors are elected, the term of each nominee for water commissioner to be expressed on the ballot. And thereafter and at least thirty days prior to the first Tuesday of June in each year such board of water commissioners shall give notice by publication at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in said water district that an election will be held on the first Tuesday in June thereafter for a water commissioner to hold office for three years and until his successor is elected and qualified.

Nominations for water commissioners shall be by petition of at least ten per cent of the qualified electors of such water district to be filed in the office of the county auditor of the county in which such district is located for the first election and with the secretary of such water district for all succeeding elections such nominations to be so filed at least ten days prior to such election: Provided, however, That there shall be no election held on the first Tuesday of June immediately following the creation of such water district: And provided, further, That in the event of a vacancy caused by death, resignation or otherwise, such vacancy shall be filled by appointment by a majority vote of the remaining board of water commissioners until the next regular election for water commissioner. Said board of water commissioners shall designate in their notice of election whether such election be a general or special election, the time of opening and closing of polls, and the place of voting, but in no event shall there be less than one voting place in each of the wards of any city or town in such district, and at least one voting place in any precinct in the water district outside of any town or city. The polls shall be open at every election held by said water district at least from 1 o'clock P. M. to 8 P. M., but said board of water commissioners may keep the polls open for a longer period of time if they shall so order, but the time of opening and closing the polls must be stated in the notice of election and the polls shall be opened and closed in accordance with such notice. Any person residing in said water district who is at the time of holding of any election, a qualified voter under the laws of the state of Washington, shall be entitled to vote at any election held in such water district.

The officers of any city or town, or in any precinct in a water district where registration is required, having charge of the registration, shall deliver the same to the water commissioners for the use of the election officers at any election held in a water district formed under and in accordance with the provisions of this act. And the registration of voters for election to be held in such water district shall be conducted by the city or town clerks and officer of registration of the city, town and territory embraced within said water district; and the notice prescribed to be given by section 4765 of Remington and Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington, shall constitute sufficient notice to citizens residing in within said water district for registration for any general or special election therein, without the necessity for such notice specially stating that it is for registration for an election to be held in a water district. And any elector who shall have registered in accordance with the laws of this state, entitling him to vote at a general or special election in the city, town or territory comprised within such water district, within time to constitute same a good registration for any general or special election of said water district, shall be entitled to vote thereat without further or other registration. The clerk of such water district shall give notice of the closing of the poll-books for registration for any general or special election of such water district by a notice published at least ten days preceding such closing, such published notice to have at least two insertions in a newspaper of general circulation in such water district. And such poll-books shall be closed for the purpose of registration of voters for any general or special water district election five days preceding such election and such published notice shall so declare: Provided, however, That such poll-books shall not thereby be deemed closed for a general, county or city municipal elections, but closed only for general or special water district elections. The city or town clerk or registration officer required to perform the duties enumerated under this act shall receive no additional compensation therefor. The general laws of the state of Washington governing the registration of voters for a general or a special city or town municipal elections, when not inconsistent with the foregoing provision, shall govern the registration of voters for elections held under this chapter, and the registration books of the city, town and territory comprising said water district shall be the books used by said water district, and no separate registration books shall be kept or maintained by it. The manner of holding any general or special election for said water district shall be in accordance with the laws of this state and the charter provisions of the cities or towns within said water district if any there be, in so far as the same are not inconsistent with the provisions of this act. All expense of elections for the formation of such water districts shall be paid by the county in which said election is held and such expenditure is hereby declared to be for a county purpose, and the money paid out for such purpose shall be repaid to such county by the water district if formed. [L. '13, p. 535, § 6.]

§ 9510-7. Board of Water Commissioners—Officers.

When the said water district shall be created as hereinbefore provided for, the officers of such district shall be a board of water commissioners consisting of three members elected as provided in section 9510-6 and said board of water commissioners shall annually elect one of their number as president and another of their number as secretary of said board. All water commissioners shall serve without compensation. They shall by resolution adopt rules governing the transaction of its business and shall adopt an official seal. All proceedings shall be by resolution recorded in a book or books kept for such purpose which shall be public records. [L. '13, p. 538, § 7.]

§ 9510-8. Board of Water Commissioners—Powers and Duties.

All water districts organized under the provisions of this act shall be and are hereby authorized to acquire by purchase or condemnation, or both, all lands, property, property rights, water, water rights, leases or easements necessary for the purposes of the water district and to exercise the right of eminent domain in the acquirement or damaging of all land, property, property rights, water or water rights, leases and easements necessary in carrying out the purposes for which said district shall have been created and such right of eminent domain shall be exercised in the same manner and by the same procedure as is or may be provided by law for cities of the third class, except in so far as such law may be inconsistent with the provisions of this act, and except that all assessment or reassessment rolls provided by law to be prepared and filed by eminent domain commissioners or commissioners appointed by the court shall be prepared and filed by the water district, and the duties devolving upon the city treasurer under said law be, and the same are hereby imposed upon the county treasurer for the purposes of this act; to construct, condemn and purchase, purchase, acquire, add to, maintain and supply water-works for the purpose of furnishing such water district and inhabitants thereof, and any city or town within such district, and any other persons with an ample supply of water for all uses and purposes public and private, except irrigation, with full authority to regulate and control the use, distribution and price thereof. And for the purposes aforesaid, it shall be lawful for any water district so organized in this state to take, condemn and purchase, purchase, acquire and retain water from any public or navigable lake, river or watercourse, percolating or subterranean or any underlying water within the state and, by means of aqueducts or pipe-line to conduct the same throughout such water district, and throughout any city or town within such district and to construct and lay the same along and upon public highways, roads and streets, within such district, and to condemn and purchase, purchase or acquire, lands and rights of way necessary for said aqueducts, and pipe-lines, and such water district is hereby authorized and empowered to erect and build dams or other works across or at the outlet of any lake, river or other watercourse therein up to and above high-water mark; and for all the purpose of constructing or laying such aqueducts or pipe-lines, dams or waterworks or other necessary structures in storing and retaining waters as above provided, or for any of the purposes provided for by this chapter, such water districts shall have the right to occupy the beds and shores up to the high-water mark of any such lake, river, or other watercourse, and to acquire the right by purchase or by condemnation and purchase or otherwise to any water, water rights, easements or privileges named in this chapter or necessary for any of said purpose and any such water district, shall have the right to acquire by purchase or condemnation and purchase any lands, properties or privileges necessary to be had to protect the water supply of such water district from pollution: Provided, That should private property be necessary for any such purposes or for storing water above high-water mark, such water district may condemn and purchase or purchase and acquire such private property. [L. '13, p. 538, § 8.]

§ 9510-9. Local Improvement Districts.

Said water district shall have the power to establish local improvement districts within its territory; to levy special assessments under the mode of annual installments extending over a period not exceeding twenty years on all property specially benefited by any local improvement on the basis of special benefits to pay in whole or in part the damages or costs of any improvements ordered in such water district; to issue local improvement bonds in any such improvement district to be repaid by the collection of local improvement assessments: Provided, That the levying and collection of all public assessments and issuance of bonds hereby authorized shall be in the manner now and hereafter provided by law for the levying and collection of local improvement assessments and the issuance of local improvement bonds by cities of the third class in so far as the same shall not be inconsistent with the provisions of this act: Provided, however, That the duties devolving upon the city treasurer under said laws be and the same hereby are imposed upon the county treasurer for the purposes of this act, the mode of assessment shall be in the manner to be determined by the tax commissioner by resolution. [L. '13, p. 540, § 9.]

§ 9510-10. Adoption of Plan—Submission—Election—Notice.

It shall be the duty of the water district commissioners of every water district before creating any improvements hereunder or submitting to vote any plan for incurring any indebtedness, to consider and determine upon and adopt a comprehensive scheme or plan of water supply for such district for the purposes authorized in this act, and for such purpose, the water district commissioners shall investigate the several portions and sections of such water district for the purpose of determining the present and future needs of such district in regard to a water supply; to examine and investigate, determine and select a water supply or water supplies for such district suitable and adequate for present and future needs thereof; to consider and determine a general system or plan for acquiring such water supply or water supplies, and the lands, waters and water rights and easements necessary therefor, and for retaining and storing any such waters, erecting dams, reservoirs, aqueducts and pipe-lines to convey the same throughout such district; for determining the plan or system for distributing such water throughout such district by means of subsidiary aqueducts and pipe-lines, and the method of distributing the cost and expense thereof against such water district and against local improvement districts within such water district for any purpose authorized in this act, and including any such local improvement district lying wholly or partially within the limits of any city or town in such district.

Such general comprehensive scheme and plan, when finally considered or determined upon by such board of water commissioners, shall be by them adopted by resolution, which resolution shall provide for the submission thereof at a general or special election specified in such resolution to the qualified voters within such district for their ratification or rejection. No expenditure for the carrying on of any part of such plan shall be made by the water district commissioners other than the necessary salaries of engineers, clerical and office expenses of such water district, and the cost of engineering, surveying, preparation and collection of data necessary for the making and adoption of a general scheme of improvements in such water district unless and until such general scheme of improvements has been so officially adopted by the water district commissioners and ratified by the affirmative vote of a majority of the voters of such water district voting thereon at the election which shall be held for such purpose. Twenty days' notice of such election shall be published in one or more weekly newspapers of general circulation in such water district. If at such election a majority of the votes cast upon such question shall be in favor of the adoption thereof, the same shall thereupon be ratified and adopted and proclamation thereof made by such commission within ten days after such election. Such commission may submit at the same election at which the proposition to adopt the comprehensive plan or scheme is submitted, or at any general or special election a proposition that said water district incur a general indebtedness for the construction of any part or all of said comprehensive plan. Provided, however, That such proposition to incur indebtedness shall be so submitted as to enable the voters to vote for or against the same independent of any vote on the proposition of adopting or rejecting such comprehensive plan or scheme. If such general indebtedness is to be incurred, the amount of such indebtedness and the terms thereof shall be included in the proposition submitted to the qualified voters as aforesaid and such proposition shall be adopted and assented to by three-fifths of the qualified voters of the said water district voting at said election.

Whenever a proposition has been adopted as aforesaid, the water district commissioners shall have power to proceed forthwith to carry out said general scheme or plan to the extent specified in the proposition to incur such general indebtedness. [L. '13, p. 540, § 10.]

§ 9510-11. Issuance of Bonds.

Whenever the qualified voters of any such water district shall have heretofore adopted or shall hereafter adopt a proposition for a water supply, as set out in the preceding section, and shall have authorized a general indebtedness for all of said proposition or any part thereof, general water district bonds may be issued as hereinafter provided. Said bonds shall be registered or coupon bonds; shall be issued in denominations of not less than one hundred or more [than] one thousand dollars; shall be numbered from one up consecutively; shall bear the date of their issue; shall be payable not more than forty years from date; and shall bear interest not to exceed six per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, with interest coupons attached; and the principal and interest shall be made payable at such place as may be designated. The bonds and each coupon shall be signed by the presiding officer of the board of water district commissioners and shall be attested by the secretary of the said board under the seal of the water district. There shall be levied each year a tax upon the taxable property within such water district, sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds as the same accrues: Provided, however, That no levy shall be made for such purposes, if the revenues from the sale of water or power is sufficient to pay said interest; before ten years prior to the maturity of said bonds an annual sinking fund sufficient for the payment of said bonds at maturity may be established by the levy of a tax; all taxes shall become due and collectable as other taxes. Said bonds shall be printed and engraved or lithographed on good bond paper and a duly authenticated copy of this act, and a copy of the resolution of the water district commission directing the submission of such plan or system to the qualified voters of such water district for ratification or rejection shall be printed on each bond, together with a printed copy of a signed statement by the presiding officer of the board of water commissioners and the secretary of such board, showing the result of said election. Such bonds shall be sold in such manner as the corporate authorities shall deem for the best interest of the water district. A register shall be kept of all bonds which register shall show the number, date, amount, interest, to whom delivered—if coupon bonds—and the name of the payee—if registered bonds; and when and where payable and each and every bond executed, issued or sold under the provisions of this subdivision. [L. '13, p. 542, § 11.]

§ 9510-12. Improvements on Local Assessment Plan.

Whenever a petition signed by a majority of the owners of land in the district to be therein described shall be filed with the water district commission, asking that any portion of the general plan adopted be ordered, and defining the boundaries of a local improvement district to be created to pay in whole or in part to pay the cost thereof, it shall be the duty of the water district commission to fix a date for hearing on such petition after which it may alter the boundaries of such proposed district and prepare and adopt detailed plans of any such local improvement, declare the estimated cost thereof, what proportion of such cost shall be borne by such proposed local improvement district and what proportion of the cost, if any, shall be borne by the entire water district: Provided, however, That engineering and office expenses in all cases shall be borne by the general water district.

The water district commission shall forthwith by resolution order such improvement, provide the general funds of the water district to be applied thereto, acquire all necessary lands therefor, pay all damages caused thereby and commence in the name of the water district such eminent domain proceedings and supplemental assessment or reassessment proceedings to pay all eminent domain awards as may be necessary to entitle said water district to proceed with such work, and said water district commission shall thereafter proceed with such work and shall make and file with the county treasurer, its roll levying special assessments in the amount to be paid by special assessment against the property situated within such local improvement district in proportion to the special benefits to be derived by the property in such local improvement district from such improvement. Before the approval of such roll a notice shall be published once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in such local improvement district, stating that such roll is on file and open to inspection in the office of the clerk of the water district commission, and fixing the time not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days from the date of the first publication of such notice within which protests must be filed with the secretary of said water district commission against any assessments shown thereon and fixing a time when a hearing shall be held by said commission on said protests. After such hearing the water district commission may alter any and all assessments shown on such roll and may then by resolution approve the same, but in the event of any assessment being raised a new notice similar to such first notice shall be given, after which final approval of such roll may be made by the water district commission: Provided, That whenever any property shall have been entered originally upon such roll and the assessment upon any such property shall not be raised, no objection thereto shall be considered by the water district commission or by any court on appeal unless such objection be made in writing at, or prior to the date fixed for the original hearing upon such roll. [L. '13, p. 543, § 12.]

§ 9510-13. Method of Appeal.

The decision of the water district commission upon any objections made within the time and in the manner herein prescribed, may be reviewed by the superior court upon an appeal thereto taken in the following manner. Such appeal shall be made by filing written notice of appeal with the secretary of said water district commission and with the clerk of the superior court in the county in which such water district is situated within ten days after the resolution confirming such assessment-roll shall have become published, and such notice shall describe the property and set forth the objections of such appellant to such assessment; and within ten days from the filing of such notice of appeal with the clerk of the superior court, the appellant shall file with the clerk of said court, a transcript consisting of the assessment-roll and his objections thereto, together with the resolution confirming such assessment-roll, and the record of the water district commission with reference to said assessment, which transcript, upon payment of the necessary fees therefor, shall be furnished by such secretary of said water district commission and by him certified to contain full, true and correct copies of all matters and proceedings required to be included in such transcript. Such fees shall be the same as the fees payable to the county clerk for the preparation and certification of transcripts on appeal to the supreme court in civil actions. At the time of the filing of the notice of appeal with the clerk of the superior court a sufficient bond in the penal sum of two hundred dollars, with at least two sureties, to be approved by the judge of said court, conditioned to prosecute such appeal without delay, and if unsuccessful, to pay all costs to which the water district is put by reason of such appeal. The court may order the appellant upon application therefor, to execute and file such additional bond or bonds as the necessity of the case may require. Within three (3) days after such transcript is filed in the superior court, as aforesaid, the appellant shall give written notice to the head of the legal department of such water district, and to the city clerk, that such transcript is filed. Said notice shall state a time (not less than three (3) days from the service thereof) when the appellant will call up the said cause for hearing; and the superior court shall, at said time or at such further time as may be fixed by order of the court, hear and determine such appeal without a jury; and such cause shall have preference over all civil causes pending in said court, except proceedings under an act relating to eminent domain in such water district and actions of forcible entry and detainer. The judgment of the court shall confirm, correct, modify or annul the assessment in so far as the same affects the property of the appellant. A certified copy of the decision of the court shall be filed with the officer who shall have custody of the assessment-roll, and he shall modify and correct such assessment-roll in accordance with such decision. An appeal shall lie to the supreme court from the judgment of the superior court, as in other cases: Provided, however, That such appeal must be taken within fifteen (15) days after the date of the entry of the judgment of such superior court; and the record and opening brief of the appellant in said cause shall be filed in the supreme court within sixty (60) days after the appeal shall have been taken by notice as provided in this act. The time for filing such record and serving and filing of briefs in this section prescribed may be extended by order of the superior court, or by stipulation of the parties concerned. And the supreme court, on such appeal may correct, change, modify, confirm or annul the assessment in so far as the same affects the property of the appellant. A certified copy of the order of the supreme court upon such appeal shall be filed with the officer having custody of such assessment-roll, who shall thereupon modify and correct such assessment-roll in accordance with such decision. [L. '13, p. 545, § 13.]

§ 9510-14. Proceedings Conclusive.

Whenever any assessment-roll for local improvements shall have been confirmed by the water district commission of such water district as herein provided, the regularity, validity and correctness of the proceedings relating to such improvement, and to the assessment therefor, including the action of the water district commission upon such assessment-roll and the confirmation thereof, shall be conclusive in all things upon all parties, and cannot in any manner be contested or questioned in any proceeding whatsoever by any person not filing written objections to such roll in the manner and within the time provided in this act, and not appealing from the action of the water district commission in confirming such assessment-roll in the manner and within the time in this act provided. No proceeding of any kind shall be commenced or prosecuted for the purpose of defeating or contesting any such assessment, or the sale of any property to pay such assessment, or any certificate of delinquency issued therefor, or the foreclosure of any lien issued therefor: Provided, That this section shall not be construed as prohibiting the bringing of injunction proceedings to prevent the sale of any real estate upon the grounds (1) that the property about to be sold does not appear upon the assessment-roll, or (2) that said assessment had been paid. [L. '13, p. 547, § 14.]

§ 9510-15. Annexation of Territory—Petition for Election for.

The territory adjoining and in the same county with any water district organized under this chapter may be annexed to and become a part of such water district in the manner following: Any twenty-five (25) legal voters, residents within the territory proposed to be annexed, may petition the said water district commission of such water district to cause the question to be submitted to the legal voters of the territory proposed to be annexed whether they will be annexed and become a part of such adjoining water district: Provided, however, That where such territory to be annexed shall be within the limits of an incorporated city or town other than the first class, such petition shall be signed by at least twenty (20) per cent of the qualified electors residing within such territory. The petition shall define the limits of the territory proposed to be annexed to such water district. Upon the filing of such petition with the board of water commissioners, if said commissioners shall concur in said petition, they shall provide for a hearing to be held for the discussion of such proposed annexation at the office of said board of water commissioners, and shall give due notice of such hearing by publication in a weekly newspaper published in said water district for at least two weeks prior to said hearing. If said water commissioners shall concur in said petition, it shall be their duty to submit the proposal to the electors of such territory proposed to be annexed, at an election to be held in such territory. The said commissioners shall, by order of such board duly adopted, fix a time and place or places within the limits of the territory proposed to be annexed for the holding of such election to determine the question of annexation, and said commissioners shall name the persons to act as judges at such election, and shall give notice thereof by causing notice to be published for two weeks in two consecutive issues of a weekly newspaper published in said water district, and by posting notices in five (5) public places within the territory proposed to be annexed to said district. The ballot to be used at such election shall be in the following form:

“For annexation to water district.”

“Against annexation to water district.”

The judge or judges at such election shall make return thereof to the board of water commissioners, who shall canvass such return and cause a statement of the result of such election to be entered on the record of such commissioners. If the majority of the votes cast upon the question at such election shall be for annexation, then such territory shall immediately be and become annexed to such water district, and the same shall thenceforth be a part of said water district, the same as though originally included in such district. [L. '13, p. 547, § 15.]

§ 9510-16. Election—Officers—Expenses.

All election officers for any election held pursuant to this chapter shall be named by the board of water commissioners and the expense of all such elections shall be paid out of the funds of such water district. [L. '13, p. 549, § 16.]

§ 9510-17. Tax Levy—Limit of—Collection.

The board of water commissioners are hereby authorized to levy, or cause to be levied, to carry out the purposes of this act in addition to that mentioned in section 9510-11, a general tax on all property located in said water district each year not to exceed two mills on the assessed valuation of the property in such water district. Said taxes when so levied shall be certified to the proper county official for the collection of the same as other general taxes. When such money is collected it shall be placed in a separate fund to be known as the — Water District Fund and paid out on warrants issued on the board of water commissioners for the purposes specified in this act. [L. '13, p. 549, § 17.]

§ 9510-18. Limit of Indebtedness.

Each and every water district that may hereafter be organized pursuant to this act is hereby authorized and empowered by and through its board of water commissioners to contract indebtedness for water purposes, and the maintenance thereof not exceeding one per cent of the taxable property in such water district to be ascertained by the last assessment for state and county purposes previous to and the incurring of such indebtedness. [L. '13, p. 549, § 18.]

§ 9510-19. Additional Indebtedness—Election to Authorize.

Each and every water district hereafter to be organized pursuant to this act, may contract indebtedness in excess of the amount named in the preceding section, but not exceeding in amount, together with existing indebtedness, five (5) per centum of the taxable property in said district, to be ascertained as provided in the preceding section, whenever three-fifths ($\frac{3}{5}$) of the voters voting at said election in such water district assent thereto, at an election to be held in said water district in the manner provided by this act, which election may either be a special or a general election, and the board of water commissioners are hereby authorized and empowered to submit the question of incurring such indebtedness, and issuing negotiable bonds of such water district to the qualified voters of such water district at any time they may so order: Provided, That all bonds so to be issued shall be subject to the provisions regarding bonds as set out in section 9510-11. [L. '13, p. 549, § 19.]

§ 9510-20. Contracts.

The board of water commissioners shall have authority to create and fill such positions and fix salaries and bonds thereof as it may by resolution provide. All materials purchased and work ordered, the estimated cost of which is in excess of one thousand dollars shall be let by contract [; but] before awarding any such contract the board of water commissioners shall cause to be published in some newspaper published within the district a notice for at least ten days before the letting of such contract, inviting sealed proposals for such work, plans and specifications which must at the time of publication of such notice be on file in the office of the board of water commissioners subject to public inspection. Such notice shall state generally the work to be done and shall call for proposals for doing the same to be sealed and filed with the board of water commissioners on or before the day and hour named therein. Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified check payable to the order of the board of water commissioners for a sum not less than five per cent of the amount of the bid and no bid shall be considered unless accompanied by such check. At the time and place named such bids shall be publicly opened and read and the board of water commissioners shall proceed to canvass the bids and may let such contract to the lowest responsible bidder upon plans and specifications on file or to the best bidder submitting his own plans and specifications: Provided, however, That no contract shall be let in excess of the cost of said materials or work, or if in the opinion of the board of water commissioners all bids are unsatisfactory they may reject all of them and readvertise and in such case all checks shall be returned to the bidders; but if such contract be let, then and in such case all checks shall be returned to the bidders, except that of the successful bidder, which shall be retained until a contract shall be entered into for the purchase of such materials or doing such work, and a bond to perform such work furnished with sureties satisfactory to the board of water commissioners in the full amount of the contract price between the bidder and the commission in accordance with the bid. If said bidder fails to enter into said contract in accordance with said bid and furnish such bond within ten days from the date at which he is notified that he is the successful bidder, the said check and the amount thereof shall be forfeited to the water district. [L. '13, p. 550, § 20.]

§ 9510-21. Interest Coupon—Payment of.

The coupons hereinbefore mentioned for the payment of interest on said bonds shall be considered in all purposes as warrants drawn upon the general fund of the said water district issuing such bonds, and when presented to the treasurer of the county having custody of the funds of such water district at maturity, or thereafter, and when so presented, if there are not funds in the treasury to pay the said coupons, it shall be the duty of the county treasurer to indorse said coupons as presented for payment, in the same manner as county warrants are indorsed, and thereafter said coupons shall bear interest at the same rate as the bond to which it was attached. [L. '13, p. 551, § 21.]

§ 9510-22. County Treasurer—Funds.

The county treasurer shall create a fund to be known as the “—— Water District Fund,” into which shall be paid all money received by him from the collection of taxes in behalf of such water district, and no money shall be disbursed therefrom except upon warrants of the county auditor as in this act provided. The county treasurer shall also maintain such other special funds as may be prescribed by the water district, into which shall be placed such moneys as the board of water commissioners may by its resolution direct, and from which disbursements shall be made upon proper warrants of the county auditor issued against the same by authority of the board of water commissioners. [L. '13, p. 551, § 22.]

§ 9510-23. Cumulative.

TITLE LXXXII.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

§§ 9511-9523.

Repealed. See L. '13, p. 155, § 11.

§ 9511-1. National and State Standards.

The weights and measures, received from the United States under a resolution of Congress approved June 14, 1836, and such new weights and measures as shall be received from the United States as standard weights and measures in addition thereto or renewal thereof, and such as shall be supplied by the state in conformity therewith and certified by the National Bureau of Standards, shall be the state standards, by which all county and municipal standards of weights and measures shall be tried, approved and sealed.

All weights, measures, scales, scale beams, patent balances, steelyards, automatic or computing scales, or other instruments for weighing or measuring, by which any merchandise, commodity, or thing is bought or sold by weight or measure, or offered or exposed for sale, shall conform to the state standards herein prescribed.

Any weight, measure, scale, scale-beam, patent balance, steelyard, automatic or computing scale or other instrument or device for weighing or measuring which does not conform to such state standards is hereby declared to be a false weight or measure. [L. '13, p. 144, § 1.]

§ 9511-2. Department of Weights and Measures—Officers and Duties.

There is hereby created a department of weights and measures in and for the state of Washington. The secretary of state shall be ex-officio superintendent of weights and measures and the head of the department herein created. He shall appoint a deputy superintendent of weights and measures and one inspector whose terms of office shall expire with that of the superintendent. The deputy shall receive a salary of twenty-four hundred dollars per annum, and the inspector shall receive a salary of fifteen hundred dollars per annum. There shall be allowed for maintenance of the department of weights and measures such sums as shall be appropriated by the legislature.

The superintendent shall take charge of the state standards, cause them to be kept in a safe and suitable place in the office of the superintendent, from which they shall not be removed except for repairs or for certification, and he shall take all other necessary precautions for their safekeeping. He shall maintain the state standards in good order and shall submit them at least once in ten years to the National Bureau of Standards for certification. He shall at least once in five years try and prove by the state standards all weights, measures and other apparatus which may belong to any county or city, and shall seal such when found to be accurate, by stamping on them with seals which he shall have and keep for that purpose, the letter "W" and the last two figures of the year in which the same are sealed. He shall have and keep a general supervision of the weights, measures and weighing and measuring devices offered for sale, sold or in use in the state. He shall, upon the written request of any citizen, firm, corporation or educational institution in the state, test or calibrate weights, measures, weighing or measuring devices and instruments or apparatus used as standards in this state. He, or his deputy, or his inspectors, by his direction, shall, at least once annually, test all scales, weights and measures used in checking the receipts or disbursements of supplies in every institution for the maintenance of which moneys are appropriated by the legislature, and he shall report in writing his findings to the supervising board and to the executive officer of the institution concerned, and at the request of such board or executive officer, the superintendent of weights and measures shall appoint in writing one or more employees, then in the actual service of each institution, who shall act as special deputies for the purpose of checking the receipts or disbursements of supplies. He shall keep a complete record of the standards, balances and other apparatus belonging to the state and take receipt for same from his successor in office. He shall annually, on the first day of October make to the governor a report of the work done by his office. The state superintendent, or his deputy, or inspectors, at his direction, shall inspect all standards and apparatus used by the counties and cities at least once in two years, and shall keep a record of the same. He or his deputy or inspectors, at his direction, shall at least once in two years visit the various cities and counties in the state, in order to inspect the work of the local sealers, and in the performance of such duties he may inspect the weights, measures, balances or any other weighing or measuring appliances of any citizen, firm or corporation, and shall have the same powers as the local sealer of weights and measures. The superintendent shall issue from time to time, regulations for the guidance of county and city sealers, and the said regulations shall govern the procedure to be followed by the aforesaid officers in the discharge of their duties. The state superintendent of weights and measures shall forthwith, on his appointment, give a bond in the penal sum of five thousand dollars with sureties to be approved by the governor for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and for the safety of the standards intrusted to his care, and for the surrender thereof immediately to his successor in office or to the person appointed by the governor to receive them. [L. '13, p. 145, § 2.]

§ 9511-3. County and City Standards.

The board of county commissioners of each county and the common council of each city required to appoint a sealer under this act, shall procure at the expense of the county or city, and shall keep at all times a complete set of weights and measures and other apparatus of such materials and construction as the said superintendent of weights and measures may direct. All such weights, measures and other apparatus having been tried and accurately proven by him, shall be sealed and certified to by the state superintendent as hereinbefore provided; and shall be then deposited with and preserved by the county or city sealer as public standards for such county or city.

Whenever the board of county commissioners of a county or the common council of such city shall neglect for six months so to do, the county auditor of the county, or the city clerk or comptroller of said city, on notification and request by the superintendent of weights and measures, shall provide such standards and cause the same to be tried, proved, sealed and deposited at the expense of the county or city. [L. '13, p. 147, § 3.]

§ 9511-4. Auditor Ex-officio Sealer—Duties—Powers.

The county auditor of each county shall be ex-officio sealer of weights and measures in such county and shall, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act, appoint a deputy sealer of weights and measures who shall possess the same powers and perform the same duties as to the county auditor in respect to this act. Such deputy shall be paid a reasonable salary, and no fee shall be charged by the inspector or by the county for the inspection or testing of weights, measures, or weighing or measuring device. Where not otherwise provided by law, the county sealer shall have the power, within his county, to inspect, test, try and ascertain if they are correct all weights, scales, beams, measures of every kind, instruments or mechanical device for measurements and tools, appliances or accessories connected with any or all such instruments or measures kept for the purpose of sale, sold or used or employed within the county by any proprietor, agent, lessee or employee in proving the size, quantity or extent, area or measurement of quantities, things, produce, articles for distribution or consumption offered or submitted by such person or persons for sale, for hire or award; and he shall have the power to and shall from time to time weigh or measure packages or amounts of commodities of whatsoever kind kept for the purpose of sale, offered for sale or sold, or in the process of delivery, in order to determine whether the same contains the amount represented, and whether they are being offered for sale or sold in a manner in accordance with law. He shall at least twice in each year, and as much oftener as he may deem necessary, see that the weights, measures and all apparatus used in the county are correct. He may for the purpose above mentioned, and in the general performance of his official duties, enter and go into or upon, and without formal warrant, any stand, place, building or premises, or stop any vender, peddler, junk-dealer, coal-wagon, wood-wagon, ice-wagon, delivery-wagon or any dealer whatsoever, and require him, if necessary to proceed to some place which the sealer may specify, for the purpose of making the proper tests. Whenever the county sealer finds a violation of the statutes relating to weights and measures, he shall cause the violator to be prosecuted. Whenever the sealer compares weights, measures or weighing or measuring instruments, and finds that they correspond or causes them to correspond with the standards in his possession, he shall seal or mark such weights, measures or weighing or measuring instruments with appropriate devices to be approved by the state superintendent of weights and measures. He shall condemn and seize and may destroy incorrect weights, measures or weighing or measuring instruments which cannot be repaired; and such as are incorrect and yet may be repaired he shall mark or tag as "Condemned for repairs"—in a manner prescribed by the state superintendent of weights and measures. The owner or users of any weights, measures or weighing or measuring instruments of which such disposition is made, shall have the same repaired or corrected within ten days and they may neither use nor dispose of the same in any way, but shall hold the same at the disposal of the sealer. The county sealer shall keep a complete record of the work done by him, and shall make an annual report to the board of county commissioners and an annual report duly sworn to not later than the first of October to the state superintendent of weights and measures on blanks to be furnished by the superintendent. The deputy county sealer of weights and measures shall forthwith, on his appointment give a bond in the penal sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000) with sureties to be approved by the appointive power for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, and for the safety of the local standards, and such appliances for verification as are committed to his charge, and for the surrender thereof immediately to his successor in office, or to the person appointed by the proper authority to receive them.

Provided, however, That nothing in the above shall be construed to prevent two or more counties from combining the whole or any part of their districts as may be agreed upon by the auditors thereof with one set of standards and one sealer, upon the written consent of the state superintendent of weights and measures. [L. '13, p. 147, § 4.]

§ 9511-5. County and City Sealer—Powers.

There shall be a city sealer of weights and measures in cities of the first class to be appointed by the mayor from a list to be furnished by the civil service board, and under the rules of said board, where such board exists, otherwise he shall be appointed by the mayor by and with the advice and consent of the common council or city commission. He shall perform in said city the duties and have like powers as a county sealer in a county. In those cities in which no sealer is required by the above, the county sealer of the county shall perform in said cities the duties and have like powers as in the county.

Provided, however, That nothing in the above shall be construed to prevent any county and a city situated therein from combining the whole or any part of their districts, as may be agreed upon, with one sealer, subject to the written approval of the state superintendent of weights and measures.

Provided, however, That in every case where any city of the first class has heretofore made, or may hereafter make provision by charter or ordinance for the enforcement of proper legal weights and measures vesting general supervision and direction in any official at the head of any department of such city, such official for the purpose of this act, shall be the ex-officio sealer of weights and measures in such city, and he and his subordinate or subordinates, shall have the duties and powers of city sealers of weights and measures, and the powers of such cities relative to weights and measures shall be additional to the powers granted such city by law or charter: And provided further, That the county sealer shall exercise no powers and discharge no duties in any city of the first class having its own sealer of weights and measures. [L. '13, p. 150, § 5.]

§ 9511-6. Penalties.

Any person, who, by himself or his servant or agent or as the servant or agent of another, shall use or retain in his possession a false weight or measure or weighing or measuring device, or any weight or measure or weighing or measuring device which has not been sealed by a sealer of weights and measures within one year, in the buying or selling of any commodity, or thing; or who shall dispose of any condemned weight, measure or weighing or measuring device contrary to law, or remove any tag placed thereon by the sealer; or any person who, by himself or by his servant or agent, or as the servant or agent of another, shall sell or offer or expose for sale less than the quantity he represents; or sell or offer or expose for sale any such commodities in a manner contrary to law; or any person who by himself or by his servant or agent or as the servant or agent of another shall sell or offer for sale, or have in his possession for the purpose of selling any device or instrument to be used to or calculated to falsify any weight or measure, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty (20) dollars nor more than two hundred (200) dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than three months, or both such fine and imprisonment upon a first conviction, but upon a second conviction he shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty (50) dollars, nor more than five hundred (500) dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [L. '13, p. 150, § 6.]

§ 9511-7. Special Policemen.

The superintendent of weights and measures, his deputy and inspectors, and the county and city sealer of weights and measures, are hereby made special policemen, and are authorized and empowered to arrest, without formal warrant, any violator of the statutes in relation to weights and measures, and to seize, for use as evidence, and without formal warrant, any false weight, measure or weighing or measuring device or packages or amounts of commodities found to be used, retained or offered or exposed for sale or sold in violation of law. [L. '13, p. 151, § 7.]

§ 9511-8. Obstructing Officers—Penalty.

Any person who shall hinder or obstruct, in any way, the superintendent of weights and measures, his deputy or inspectors, or any county or city sealer, in the performance of his official duties, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished upon conviction thereof, in any court of competent jurisdiction by a fine of not less than twenty (20) nor more than two hundred ($200) dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than ninety days or by both such fine and imprisonment. [L. '13, p. 151, § 8.]

§ 9511-9. Specified Standards.

A standard package or container of butter in the state of Washington shall contain sixteen (16) ounces net weight or thirty-two (32) ounces net weight, and a standard package or container need have no statement of the net weight of its contents.

Whenever butter is sold or offered for sale in a package or container the net weight of which is more or less than the standards herein prescribed, such package or container shall be labeled in plain English words or figures with the correct net weight of its contents expressed in pounds and ounces together with the name of the manufacturer or jobber.

A standard loaf of bread in the state of Washington shall contain sixteen (16) ounces net weight or thirty-two (32) ounces net weight, and no bread shall be sold within the state except it be a whole, half or quarter loaf, containing thirty-two (32) ounces, sixteen (16) ounces, or eight (8) ounces net weight, unless the same be labeled in plain English words or figures with its correct net weight expressed in pounds and ounces together with the name and address of the manufacturer.

This section shall not apply to rolls or to fancy bread weighing less than four (4) ounces nor to stale bread sold in quantity.

A standard sack of potatoes in the state of Washington shall contain one hundred (100) pounds net weight, and a standard sack of potatoes need have no statement of the weight of its contents.

Whenever potatoes are sold by the sack, in sacks containing more or less than the standard, such sack shall be labeled in plain English words or figures with its true net weight.

All sales of blackberries, currants, strawberries, raspberries, cranberries, blueberries, gooseberries, cherries and similar berries in packages containing less than one bushel, shall be sold by the dry quart containing 67.2 cubic inches or the dry pint containing 33.6 cubic inches, and all berry boxes sold, used or offered for sale within the state shall be of the interior capacity of 67.2 or 33.6 cubic inches, unless the same be labeled in plain English words or figures with its correct interior capacity expressed thereon in cubic inches.

Nothing in the above section shall be so construed as to prevent the sale of any of the articles therein mentioned by weight.

A standard sack of coal in the state of Washington shall contain one hundred (100) pounds net weight and a standard sack of coal need have no statement of the net weight of its contents.

Whenever coal is sold or offered for sale by the sack, in sacks containing more or less than one hundred (100) pounds net weight, such sack shall be labeled in plain English words or figures with the true net weight of its contents expressed in pounds.

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation or their agents, servants or other employees to misrepresent any coal offered for sale or to sell coal of any particular name or designation, or from any particular mine under the name or designation of another coal or mine.

All milk, cream or buttermilk sold in the state of Washington, in bottles shall be sold only in bottles containing one-half pint, one pint, one quart, one-half gallon or one gallon standard liquid measure.

All vinegar sold, exposed or offered for sale in the state of Washington, in bottles, shall be sold in bottles containing one-half pint, one pint, one quart, one-half gallon or one gallon standard liquid measure and when so sold need have no statement of the net measure of its contents.

Whenever vinegar is sold in the state of Washington in bottles containing more or less than mentioned in the foregoing section, such bottles shall be labeled in plain English words and figures with its true net measure.

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation in the state of Washington to buy any commodity upon the basis of weight or measure except the same be bought upon the basis of the true net weight or measure, and unless the scales or measures so used shall bear the seal of a sealer of weights and measures and conform to the standards adopted by the state of Washington.

Every vender of ice in the state of Washington shall at the time of actual delivery of any ice sold, weigh the quantity of ice delivered, and for that purpose shall use a steelyard balance or other apparatus for weighing such ice, which shall have been duly adjusted and sealed by a duly appointed sealer of weights and measures in accordance with the provisions of the laws of the state of Washington, and all ice delivered to consumers within this state shall be sold by avoirdupois weight unless it is otherwise specially agreed upon between the buyer and the seller.

Each and every pair of ice tongs used in the delivery of ice within said state shall have prominently and conspicuously stamped thereon the exact and true avoirdupois weight of said tongs.

It shall be unlawful for any vender, or his servant, agent or other employee in the state of Washington, to offer to sell, or sell, or sell and deliver any commodity ordinarily and usually sold in bulk or quantity by weight or measure, unless the same be weighed or measured as the case may be upon or by officially tested and approved weights, measures, scales, scale beams, patent balances, steelyards, automatic or computing scales or other instruments for weighing or measuring, and unless that portion of such commodity so offered for sale or sold by weight or measure shall be the true net weight or measure.

It shall be unlawful for any vender of firewood in the state of Washington, or his servant, agent or other employees to sell or offer for sale the same in the state in any quantity or by any measure except by the cord or fractional part thereof. The standard measurement of a cord of firewood in this state is hereby fixed and established at one hundred twenty-eight (128) cubic feet.

It is hereby expressly provided that mill wood in twenty-four (24) inch lengths or shorter shall not be subject to the provisions of this act.

Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [L. '13, p. 152, § 9.]

§ 9511-10. Effect on Powers of Public Service Commission.

Nothing contained in this act shall be construed as withdrawing or superseding the powers and duties of the Public Service Commission of Washington with respect to track scales and other weighing devices used by common carriers, but the standards herein established shall be used in testing the track scales and weighing devices of such carrier. [L. '13, p. 155, § 10.]

§ 9511-11. Berry Boxes Until January 1, 1914.

No law passed during the session of 1913 of the legislature of the state of Washington relating to the size and capacity of berry boxes shall go into effect until January 1, 1914. [L. '13, p. 201, § 1.]
